Commissioner's Court...

Roll-back date on Monday agenda

Scurry County commissioners are scheduled to set a tax roll-back election date in their regular 10 a.m. Monday meeting. Clerk Frances Billingsley will present the petition, bearing 1,304 names, that she certified last Monday as having more than the required number of 902 to force an election.

She said at that time the election might be called on the state's next uniform election date, Jan. 20. The court must call the election no sooner than 30 days nor later than 90 days after the petition is certified.

Commissioners are not expected to set the date of the election where it would be held prior to receiving results of an impending county audit. District Court Judge Gene Dulaney ordered an independent operational audit of the finances of the county on Oct. 12, to be performed by Coopers and Lybrand, a national accounting firm, with offices in Lubbock.

The audit, and any recommendations coming from it, could be expected to have a direct bearing on the roll-back election.

The petition seeks a roll-back of the county ad valorem tax rate from 39.80 to 34.75 cents per $100 in valuation.

Other business in the meeting will include County Treasurer Rita Staton's quarterly report.

Fugitive arrested

A 35-year-old former Snyder man who had been a federal fugitive for almost a year has been arrested in Hendersonville, N.C., on multiple land fraud charges.

Johannes J. Eicke and three other men were taken into custody by the county sheriff's officers after a state grand jury had indicted him on 13 counts of attempting to obtain property under false pretenses and one count of conspiracy to obtain property under false pretenses.

Eicke, who was using the name of David Matthew Ben-Israel, and three men whose identities had not been verified were arrested on Oct. 13 after they tried to acquire a $4-million Hendersonville estate with fraudulent bank drafts, an Asheville, N.C., newspaper had reported.

The newspaper said Eicke and the others are suspected of having been trying to raise money for a radical anti-governmental group called Posse Comitatus in part because David Matthew was a Posse Comitatus member who was killed by Arkansas state police.

It said Posse Comitatus materials were found among their effects.

Eicke's identity was not established until this week, investigators said, when it was learned that he had been indicted last April by a federal grand jury in Springfield, Ill., for conspiracy and abetting bond-jumping.

He had been sought by federal authorities for breaking his common-law wife, Bridget Jones, away from the custody of a bail bondsman after she was convicted in March 1987 in Springfield on one count of conspiracy, four counts of wire fraud and one count of obstruction of justice.

Jones had been arrested in connection with what federal authorities said was an attempt to move some $10 million out of the country in a money-laundering scheme to avoid paying federal taxes. She is still at large.

The source of that money was said to have been an "advanced fee loan program" promoted by her late husband, Richard Jones. Authorities said Eicke was not believed to have been involved in the sequence of events that led to Jones' conviction. Prior to the North Carolina indictments, he had been sought only for helping her to escape.

Louisiana travelers injured in collision

Two Louisiana women and a 4-year-old girl were injured in a two-car collision in a driving rain at 3:50 p.m. Friday at Ennis Creek Rd. and U.S. 84 a mile north of Snyder.

A 1974 Buick driven by Clarence Moore, 78, of 2501 Ave. F was coming north off Ennis Creek Rd. when it was in collision with a 1984 Ford Escort that was westbound on 84 and driven by Shirley Bonnette, 52, of Alexandria, La., a Department of Public Safety trooper said.

Bonnette and a passenger in the Escort, 81-year-old Ferne Cleveland of Alexandria, were admitted to Cogdell Memorial Hospital, where both were listed in stable condition Saturday. Bonnette with multiple bruises and abrasions and Cleveland with a broken right wrist.

Another passenger in the Ford, 4-year-old Renee Adkins of Alexandria, was treated in the hospital emergency room for minor injuries and released.

Moore was not seriously injured and did not require medical attention, the DPS investigator said.

Both vehicles were heavily damaged and had to be towed from the scene.

In Brief

Time change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Folks who have been a bit tired all summer will finally get back that lost hour of sleep this weekend, with the return of standard time.

The time change occurs officially at 2 a.m. local time Sunday, the moment when clocks should be set back an hour.

That switch provides the extra hour for sleep, carousing, toil or whatever, that was lost last spring when the clocks were moved ahead.

The change to standard time moves an hour of daylight from the evening to the morning.

That means it will get dark earlier at night, but there will be more light in the mornings.

The change affects most Americans, although a few areas do not change to daylight time in the spring and, thus, don't have to go back in the fall.

Proposed Amendment No. 16

Below continues the series outlining the 21 proposed constitutional amendments which will be offered for voter ratification on the Nov. 7, 1989, general election ballot.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION 34: would allow the legislature to authorize the creation of hospital districts by general or special law and also authorize in counties with a population of 75,000 or less the creation of hospital districts that would operate in cooperation with the county in which the district is located instead of operating as independent political subdivisions as do regular hospital districts.

Additional Information

A hospital district is a separate governmental entity that is governed by a board that is usually elected by the qualified voters in the area the hospital district serves. With the voter's approval, a hospital district may levy a property tax to finance its operation. Traditionally, a hospital district is created by a two-step process in which the state legislature must authorize the creation of the district and the registered voters living in the area must vote to approve its creation. A new Section 9B would allow the legislature to authorize the creation of hospital districts in counties with a population of 75,000 or less. The commissioners court of the county in which the district was created would levy a property tax for the district and perform other (see PROPOSED, page 15A)

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "There's one government handout that everybody believes in—the hand out of your pockets."

According to experts, good health means good timing. Fitness experts say what time you do something is almost as important as doing it.

The best time to make decisions, for example, is said to be in the early morning when anxiety and depression are at the lowest. The worst time is between 2 and 7 p.m. when those two negative factors are at their peak. Neutral hours are between 8 a.m. and 2 a.m.

The three half hours before breakfast, lunch and dinner are called "hot spots." These are the times when persons are most likely to lose their cool. So when tempers flare, either count to ten or take an early lunch.

The time to think your most positive thoughts is right after you get out of bed. Studies show that unless a person is on vacation or has something special to look forward to, most down feelings are felt immediately after rising. All this time we thought it was part of the aging process.

Those who like to over-indulge should do so early in the day because calories burn faster in the morning because the thyroid is more active and insulin levels are lower.

Experts say a person should get out of bed the moment he wakes up. Linger in bed allows a person to dwell on unpleasant thoughts. This produces a tense and anxious start of the day.

A person's physical best is said from mid to later afternoon. This is when the body is fastest and strongest.

About 3 p.m. is said to be the time for a caffeine break. Stimulants work best when already stimulated. Experts say the typical American wakeup cup of coffee is based more on mental conditioning than physiological factors.

That explains why we get to the coffee shop faster in the p.m. than in the a.m.

Americans learn early to take defeat like a man—blame it on somebody else.

9 held in student's beating

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Nine football players at Tyler Junior College have been jailed on aggravated assault charges in a fellow student's beating, police say.

The players, one-fifth of the team's roster, were suspended indefinitely on the eve of the school's homecoming, authorities said Friday. Investigators are still looking for another player in the beating of Sean Daugherty.

Police arrested eight of the players, including the Apaches' starting quarterback, at the school campus Friday morning. Jerron White, a freshman fullback from Hemphill, Texas, was arrested Thursday night.

White and the other eight players were released from Smith County Jail after posting $5,000 bonds each on charges of aggravated assault, said a sheriff's spokeswoman who would not give her name.

The spokeswoman said other players charged included Chris Dolan, a freshman punter from Jacksonville, Texas; Hud Gibbins, a sophomore tailback from Weatherford, Texas; Derrick Deshotel, a freshman receiver from Beaumont, Texas; and Mark Ellis, a sophomore quarterback from Littlefield, Texas.

Also charged were David Jamison, a sophomore defensive back from Houston; and freshman split receivers Chris Tagle and Kevin Moody and freshman tailback Kevin Brown, all of Austin, Texas.

The charges came in the Tuesday night beating of the 19-year-old Daugherty at his apartment, in a fight that apparently began over a woman, said Tyler police Lt. Robin Roberts.

Search for missing workers continues after explosion

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — An around-the-clock search for the 15 workers still believed missing at the Phillips Petroleum Co. plastics plant is focusing today on its fire-swept control room.

"That's where we anticipate hoping to find a majority of the people who are unaccounted for," said Phillips spokesman Don Kremer.

Workers on Friday believed they had found an eighth body, but Kremer said officials determined after a further examination that it was partial remains from a body already counted.

The 15 missing workers are presumed dead, said Phillips spokesman Jere Smith. The company, city officials and the employees' union have organized a memorial service Monday evening for the 22 dead and missing workers from Monday's blast.

Searchers found two bodies late Thursday, three on Wednesday and one each on Monday and Tuesday. Only two victims have been identified positively, said Smith.

He said identifications have been slowed because the victims were burned beyond recognition and medical examiners have been forced to use dental records in their grim search.

Much of the control room, where two bodies were found Thursday, remains buried beneath tons of debris that fell from a caved-in polyethylene finishing building.

"It is just amazing to see the amount of debris workers are having to dig through," said Kremer. "But we are continuing to work around the clock to find all the unaccounted for employees. And we will continue to work around the clock until we account for all our employees and contract employees."

The Phillips plant, leveled four days ago, accounts for nearly 20 percent of the nation's production of plastic pellets used in the manufacture of milk jugs and grocery bags.

The Harris County Medical Examiner's office's Sheryl Tumis said the bodies of two Phillips employees have been identified: James H. Campbell, 30, of Baytown, and Jeffrey L. Harrison, 36, of Houston.

The office also identified the bodies of two Fish Construction Co. employees, who were doing contract work at the plant: Jose Gonzales, 38, of Galena Park, and William Scott Martin, 28, of Dayton, Texas.

The remaining three victims have not been identified, said Ms. Tumis, medical secretary for the office.

The company, the City of Pasadena and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Local 4-227 scheduled a memorial service for all 22 workers believed killed in the blast for 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Pasadena Convention Center.

The first two memorial services for missing employees came last week. Family and friends of Jesse Oscar Trevino, 33, met at St. Helen's Catholic Church near Pearland Thursday, while relatives of Ciprano Rodriguez Jr., 42, of Pasadena met at the Pasadena Funeral Chapel Friday afternoon.

On Monday, a series of explosions rocked the Pasadena plastics plant, injuring 124 people and trapping another 22 inside the plant.

Adopted Child Is Thankful For Both Her Mothers' Love

DEAR ABBY: I am 19 years old and my sister and I are identical twins. We were privately adopted at 3 days old. My mother was also 19 years old when she gave birth to us. We feel that our parents were the most generous people in the world for putting us up for adoption.

A few years ago you printed a poem titled "Legacy of an Adopted Child." Would you please reprint it? Many people do not realize how special adoption is.

AN ADOPTED TWIN
IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR TWIN: It appeared in 1986, and here it is:

LEGACY OF AN ADOPTED CHILD

Once there were two women
Who never knew each other.
One you do not remember,
The other you call mother.

Two different lives
Shaped to make yours one.
One became your guiding star,
The other became your sun.

The first gave you life
And the second taught you to live in it.

The first gave you a need for love
And the second was there to give it.

One gave you a nationality,
The other gave you a name.
One gave you the seed of talent,
The other gave you an aim.

One gave you emotions,
The other calmed your fears.
One saw your first sweet smile,
The other dried your tears.

One gave you up —
It was all that she could do.
The other prayed for a child
And God led her straight to you.

And now you ask me
Through your tears,
The age-old question
Through the years:

Heredity or environment —
Which are you the product of?
Neither, my darling — neither,
Just two different kinds of love.
AUTHOR UNKNOWN

READERS: If anyone knows who wrote this poem, please let me hear from you. The author deserves to be credited. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90089.

DEAR ABBY: I don't have a problem; I am writing to thank you from the bottom of my uterus for printing that wonderful letter from Ellie and Jack suggesting what not to say to an infertile couple.

My husband and I have heard all those remarks, and many more equally inane and hurtful. Thank God, someone is finally speaking up. Maybe people will listen. And if they must say something to infertile couples who are trying desperately to have a child, let it be, "I'm sorry."

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago, I ordered some sexually explicit materials. I am a 23-year-old unmarried woman and I am making no excuses. I was just curious.

Unfortunately, the company I ordered this material from must have given — or sold — my name to some similar companies, because every week I receive catalogs and advertisements from other sexually oriented businesses, and some of them are not very discreetly packaged. Also, I have spent about $20 in postage to return the stuff.

These businesses use computerized mailing systems, and either by mistake or design they misspell my name, so instead of getting just one mailing, I get two, and sometimes three and four!

I have written to request that my name be removed from their mailing lists, and guess what? They create yet another way to spell my name.

Have you any suggestions on how to get my name off these mailing lists? I would prefer to keep a low profile, but the mailings are multiplying. What do I do now?
RED-FACED IN JERSEY

DEAR RED-FACED: Fill out Form 2201 at your local post office. The form will be given to your carrier, who will stop delivering the pornographic literature.

Also, contact the Direct Marketing Association, Mail Preference Service, 6 E. 43rd St., New York, N.Y. 10017, and ask that your name be removed from junk mail lists.

P.S. You are not legally responsible for the return of any unsolicited material. If you don't want it, simply throw it away.

DEAR ABBY: Am I a casualty of the sexual revolution? Lately, I'm finding myself less and less physically turned-on by my live-in girlfriend/fiancee. She hasn't gotten fat or anything like that. I think it's because she goes around the house stark naked most of the time.

This occurred to me the other day when we were at a football game, and I found myself turned-on because from where I was sitting I could see partway down another girl's shirt! This girl was not nearly as attractive as my fiancee. It must be true that what you don't see is sexier than what you do see.

I am writing to you because I hope my fiancee will see this. I don't have the guts to say this outright to her because it might hurt her feelings. (Ladies, if this applies to you, don't ask your man if he feels this way — most of us would like to spare your feelings.)

FAITHFUL FROM FLORIDA

DEAR FAITHFUL: You are not a casualty of the sexual revolution. You have only concluded what mothers have been trying to teach their daughters for generations — that a little mystery can be a big turn-on. Somehow, in the '60s, this message was shelved in favor of "let it all hang out." I'm in favor of putting it all back in.

***

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE KVETCHER" IN NEWARK: In the immortal words of Ella Wheeler Wilcox: "Talk health. The dreary, never-ending tale of mortal maladies is worn and stale. You cannot charm or interest or please by harping on that minor chord... disease. So, say that you are well, and all is well with you. And God will hear your words and make them true."

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc., because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." East Germany...

Officials declare amnesty

BERLIN (AP) — Thousands of people demonstrated in four East German cities for more democracy and reforms despite important concessions announced by the new Communist leader-ship.

The demonstrations in Dresden, Karl-Marx-Stadt, Senftenberg and Saalfeld late Friday came after authorities declared amnesty for demonstrators, for people who have left the country illegally and for thousands who have been jailed for trying to escape.

The amnesty was the most dramatic move that Egon Krenz has taken since he became Communist Party chief last week, taking over from hard-line leader Erich Honecker.

Leaders of the pro-democracy opposition praised the action, but said it was not enough.

"This is the first signal that we have been waiting for such a long time," said opposition leader Baerbel Bohley, founder of New Forum, the main pro-democracy group. But she added that the legal system must be changed and laws revised.

The official news agency ADN said 12,000 people marched late Friday in Dresden, 10,000 in Karl-Marx-Stadt, 3,500 in the mining town of Senftenberg and 2,000 in Saalfeld.

In Karl-Marx-Stadt, the protesters shouted: "We want to see deeds" and in Senftenberg there were calls for better living conditions, ADN said.

A later ADN report said 20,000 people joined a procession in Guestrow calling for the legalization of New Forum. No violence was reported.

Explaining the amnesty, the government said that in future, people who remain in the West after officially permitted trips are finished will be able to return home later without fear of prosecution.

The government also said it will restore free travel to Czechoslovakia as of Nov. 1. Restrictions were imposed Oct. 3 to stop a rush of thousands of East Germans to the West German Embassy in Prague, where they demanded to be allowed to go West.

Travel restrictions have been among the most bitter complaints of East Germans for decades.

About 60,000 East Germans have gone to West Germany since July via Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary, which opened its borders with the West to East Germans on Sept. 10. A few have returned because of homesickness or for other reasons.

Historians steal sunset from 'Jerks of the West'

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Calamity Jane was an "uneducated, uncultured woman," and some frontier heroes were shameless bigots, according to an iconoclastic conference titled "Speaking Ill of the Dead: Jerks in Montana History."

Nearly every event in the life of the true Calamity Jane — Martha Jane Canary — is clouded by contradictory evidence, Dan Gallacher told the annual Montana History Conference on Friday. Even her birth date and parents' names are suspect.

Much of the legend of Calamity Jane as a swashbuckling frontier woman who rode with General Custer and captured Wild Bill Hickock's killer was built by Canary herself, who fed lurid stories to newspapers that didn't care if they were true, he said.

Friday's panel on jerks in the state's history also featured the "Golden Hatchet Award," which went to Lyndel Meikle, whose research showed that many of Montana's founding fathers were racist and sexist.

The panel drew a crowd of nearly 200, and may become an annual part of the conference. Conference organizer Jennifer Jeffries Thompson was pleased, but also distressed that the scholarly work of the meeting would go unnoticed.

The same sort of thing happened in September, she said, when a society program was upstaged by the Great Montana Centennial Cattle Drive.

"This is the cattle drive of the history conference," Thompson said.

Gallacher, a historian with Historical Research Associates in Missoula, said much of the legend of Calamity Jane can be flatly disproved.

Her claim to have been a Cavalry scout for George Armstrong Custer in Arizona is easily debunked, he said, because Custer never served in Arizona.

And despite the many tales about her and Hickock — including that she was married to him — the only verifiable fact is that both were in Deadwood, S.D., when Hickock was shot to death in 1876.

"It was pure fantasy that she captured Hickock's killer, Jack McCall," Gallacher said.

Meikle, a ranger at the Grant-Kohrs Ranch National Historic Site southwest of Helena, dug into official records that revealed the prejudices of delegates to Montana's original constitutional convention in 1889.

C.J. Hartman, one of Montana's founding fathers, wanted a requirement that anyone allowed to vote should be able to read English. He saw that as a safeguard against "the scum of foreign nations" who were being admitted to the United States.

Tickets for WTC play on sale Nov. 3

Tickets for the Western Texas College theatre department production of "Hamlet ESP" will go on sale Friday.

The show is to run Nov. 11-12 in the Fine Arts Theatre on campus. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students. Tickets can be reserved by calling the box office at 573-8511, ext. 234.

"Hamlet ESP" will open the WTC season and will be the college entry in the American College Theatre Festival.

The play is an adaptation of William Shakespeare's Hamlet by Paul Baker. "The main action happens inside Hamlet's mind," Baker said, "and the real excitement is the working of his mind. I decided that this adaptation would play out the events as Shakespeare developed them and as Hamlet lives them — through the mind and imagination and actions of Hamlet."

Appearing in the cast will be Brandon Neely of Snyder, Scott Weaver of Levelland and Jeff Hicks of Muleshoe as the three Hamlets; Kenn Kern of Hurst, Jerry Vizena of Thorndale, Rodney Gestes of Lorenzo; Lee Ann Bonner of Albany, Lisa Sorrells of Maryneal, Steve Warner of Huntsville and Joy McSpadden, Jay Burns, Richard Lack, Trisha Phillips, Frank Pointeau, Clay Travis, Christi Wilcox and Kim Helton, all of Snyder.

On-stage technicians and dresser seen on stage are Brian Hamrick of Colorado City, Ginger Miller of Ingram and Rebecca Kizer of San Antonio.

Shipments suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department is suspending commercial shipments of tritium for the second time in four months because of another unexplained loss of the material used in nuclear warheads.

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., lambasted the department Friday, saying it had bungled the investigation at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Oak Ridge, Tenn.

"You have to wonder what kind of Keystone Kops operation the Department of Energy has down at Oak Ridge when they lose more than 22,000 curies of tritium in a test designed to find out why DOE keeps on losing track of tritium," he said. A curie is the unit used to measure radioactivity.

The department usually sells about $5.6 million of tritium a year to private companies that use it in research and the manufacture of luminous lights and dials.

Most tritium, however, is used as a vital component in nuclear warheads.

"For now, we're on hold on making further shipments," said Oak Ridge spokesman Jim Alexander.

Cease-fire plan jolts meeting

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — President Bush met with Nicaraguan and Panamanian opposition leaders Saturday to wrap up a Latin American "celebration of democracy" that was jolted by Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega's decision to end a cease-fire with U.S.-backed rebels.

Ortega said he was ending the cease-fire because of "savage attacks" by Contra forces on peasants trying to register to vote in elections scheduled for Feb. 25.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III would not comment on whether the Contras had indeed broken the cease-fire, but said Ortega's decision would be interpreted as a "desperate attempt to cancel the elections."

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater called the Nicaraguan decision "incredible."

Bush, who has openly advocated ouster of Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government, Saturday made a pointed show of the rift by meeting with Ortega's election opponent, Violeta Chamorro.

Ortega, Bush said Friday, is "swimming against the tide of democracy."

Also invited to Saturday's breakfast session was Panamanian opposition candidate Guillermo Endara, dramatizing U.S. opposition to the regime of Gen. Manuel Noriega in that Central American nation.

Noriega was not invited to the two-day regional summit called by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias as a "celebration of democracy."

Later Saturday, Bush attended the dedication of a "Democracy Plaza" to honor the 100 years of democratic government in Costa Rica before heading back to Washington.

Discussions of drugs and debt issues dominated Friday's opening-day meetings, but tensions between the United States and Nicaragua overshadowed the three-hour official session and a lavish state dinner Friday evening.

Going into the meeting, the United States had refused to sign any communique stemming from the meeting if Ortega also signed.

Bush and Ortega greeted each other at the opening session with a handshake, but the Nicaraguan president — stung by days of hostile rhetoric from Bush — announced soon after the meeting that he was ending the cease-fire that had been in effect with the Contras since March 1988.

Spain ceded Florida to the United States in 1821.

Judges: new inmate program has some conflicts of interest

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — A district judge has ruled that a new Texas Department of Criminal Justice inmate defender program has a built-in conflict of interest because of its close ties to the department.

The program is funded with $300,000 of TDCJ funds. The money is used to pay legal fees for indigent inmates charged with crimes committed in the department's Institutional Division.

It was formed as part of a state appropriations bill that reformed the former Texas Department of Corrections on Sept. 1.

Defense attorney Sam Hicks said the program's public defenders' representation could suffer because it depends on the department for funds, supplies, facilities and equipment.

"The office is too closely tied to TDC through funding," Hicks told the Palestine Herald-Press. "They have some control over what the office does. They could control the money and affect how (the program's administrator) does her job. Money is a control mechanism."

But J. Kirk Brown, TDCJ general counsel representing the Attorney General's office, said the program will continue to offer legal representation to inmates.

At this point, Judge Bascom W. Bentley III's ruling only affects the case of Willie Lee Mayes. Mayes, 28, is serving a 149-year sentence for aggravated kidnapping and aggravated robbery convictions.

Correctional officers allege they found Mayes with a homemade knife in the unit in December 1988.

Elizabeth DeRieux, administrator of the inmate defender program, said the system contains no conflict of interest.

"I think it helps that I am divorced from the Institutional Division," she said. "That's critical. I do not share the same goals as the warden."

Five locals attend drug conference

Five Snyder school personnel attended the Texans' War on Drugs leadership conference held Oct. 22-24 in Austin. The conference focused on strategies for action that could be replicated to prevent the use of drugs in local communities throughout Texas.

Locals attending included Sue Eiring, junior high; Sharrylon

Vestal and Kim Collier, high school; Carolyn Glaves, North Elementary; and Janice Brown, director of curriculum and testing.

Governor Clements, who initiated the Texans' War on Drugs prevention program during his first term in office (1979-83), welcomed the participants Monday morning at 9:30 a.m. Clements has been a strong supporter and a front-runner in the fight against drugs in Texas. Many states and nations have used the governor's strategy to start their own action.

Many workshops were conducted on "how to" organize and implement programs on the grassroots level.

First life sentence given in drug case

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A Texas man with a history of drug convictions was sentenced to life in prison Friday on drug charges, the first life term given in a federal drug case in the state, authorities said.

But Johnny A. Perez, 42, of Houston, said that since he's become a Christian, he will use his time in prison "to preach the word of God."

Perez was sentenced to two concurrent life terms plus a consecutive five-year term for possessing a gun while drug trafficking.

He was convicted in May of cocaine conspiracy, possession and sale charges in connection with the seizure of more than 11 pounds of the drug Nov. 6 outside a west Wichita restaurant.

U.S. District Judge Patrick F. Kelly explained the sentence to Perez several times to make sure he understood it.

"I will take it one day at a time, sir," Perez calmly replied.

Before pronouncing sentence, the judge told Perez he probably could win his freedom if he cooperated with federal authorities in prosecuting drug dealing associates. Kelly suggested Perez might even qualify for the federal witness protection program, which would afford him a new identity.

But Perez said being a government witness would hinder what he wants to do in prison.

"I want to teach and preach the word of God," Perez said. "I want to do it to prisoners and to young people who might get in trouble."

Being a stool pigeon will keep prisoners from listening to him, he said, adding that he became a Christian through the influence of a jail chaplain.

"Through his Bible studies and the grace of God I have become a Christian," Perez said. "I'm not asking for a sentence reduction or anything like that."

U.S. Attorney Ben Burgess said the sentence was warranted in light of Perez' previous convictions and the seriousness of the Wichita offense.

Under federal sentencing guidelines, Kelly had to impose at least a 30-year term. He also could have fined Perez as much as $4 million. No fine was assessed.

Burgess said Perez has pleaded guilty and is awaiting sentencing on several charges in Harrisburg, Pa.

Financial Focus

Although balanced funds are of the most conservative mutual funds, risk still depends upon the quality of securities in the portfolio.

Like all mutual funds, balanced funds present different levels of risk. They generally underperform all-equity funds in good markets, but they offer an edge of market protection in bad markets.

Based on this criteria, one way to judge a balanced fund is to compare its five-year performance and its 10-year performance to that of a high-quality growth-and-income fund managed by the same fund group.

It's important to note that over a 10-year period, the balanced fund, which had an average annual compounded rate of return of 12.4 percent, underperformed the S&P 500 at 15.2 percent and the Dow Jones Industrial at 14.6 percent. Both indexes are comprised of common-stock equities.

On the other hand, this balanced fund outperformed the Solomon Brothers High-grade Corporate Bond Index, 9.7 percent, and the average yearly increase in the cost of living measure by the Consumer Price Index, 6.4 percent.

Following is a simple way to evaluate any balanced fund. A balanced fund should:

- Underperform comparable growth and income funds in good markets.
- Offer downside protection in bad markets.
- Offer a better total return than high-grade corporate bonds.
- Keep ahead of inflation.

If you're a conservative investor who still wants the opportunity of growth to hedge against inflation, you may want to consider investing in balanced funds.

Pilgrims to have 50th Mass at shrine

SUNLAND PARK, N.M. (AP) — This year, when thousands of people trek to the top of Mount Cristo Rey, as is done every year on the last Sunday in October, a minor miracle will await them.

Years ago Urbici Soler, the sculptor of the 27-foot-high white stone statue of Jesus, envisioned a concrete crown at the base of the huge cross that sits on the peak of Mount Cristo Rey. In 1984, those plans were scrapped when money raised in a telethon instead was used to reinforce the crumbling base of the statue.

But with volunteers carrying on the tradition of their forefathers and with a little help from St. Joseph, the crown was finished this year in time for the 50th anniversary of the statue.

Tony Vasquez, a member of the Mount Cristo Rey Restoration Committee, said building the huge crown encircling the crucifix seemed unaffordable after contractors quoted costly prices.

Then Vasquez recalled a story about a group of Santa Fe nuns praying to St. Joseph for help in building a stairway in their church. "One day a man walks in and they find out he's a carpenter ...," Vasquez said.

As Vasquez and other committee members tried to find an affordable way to build the crown, they met two men who often prayed at the shrine of Mount Cristo Rey. The men, one a welder and one described as a jack-of-all-trades, offered to help build the crown.

"I'm a great believer of St. Joseph," Vasquez said. "St. Joseph must have sent those guys to help us. They don't want to charge us anything. The time they have spent, they are maestros."

The pilgrimage to Mount Cristo Rey, held on the day the Catholic church celebrates the Feast of Christ the King, attracts an average 10,000 people every year. Because of this year's anniversary celebrations, much larger crowds are expected Sunday.

"It's a feast that gives people hope, a reminder of the power of God, what Christ meant to the world," said the Rev. Ed Roaden, secretary to the Bishop Raymond Pena of the El Paso diocese. "People like to make the climb every year. It's meant to be a prayer and offering. They see it as doing something for the Lord."

According to legend, a local priest began the first pilgrimage to what is now Mount Cristo Rey 50 years ago after having a vision of a white cross at the summit of the 4,576-foot mountain. The statue that overlooks El Paso, Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, and parts of New Mexico was completed on the peak of Sierra de Muleros or Mule Drivers Mountain in 1939. The first cross on the mountain was a wooden cross 12 feet high planted there Oct. 30, 1933.

Later an iron cross was built by the Smelter Vocational School in Smelertown, a community built up around the ASARCO copper smelter plant now in El Paso. Finally, Soler's white stone crucifix was built.

Mass was first celebrated atop the mountain 50 years ago by the Rev. Lourdes F. Costa, who was pastor of San Jose de Cristo Rey, a poor parish in Smelertown. Costa was instrumental in naming the peak Mount Cristo Rey.

Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Sunday. Those who ascend the mountain pray, sing hymns or walk in silence.

Bishops and archbishops from Western states are expected to attend Sunday's Mass, which will be celebrated by Archbishop Pio Laghi, a special envoy from Pope John Paul II. Loghi is the papal representative at the Vatican Embassy in Washington, D.C.

Money to build the new crown was raised from $200 donations. In return, donors' names will be inscribed on one of 11 crosses embedded in the huge crown.

The 12th cross will be stamped with information about the 50th anniversary celebration.

Vasquez estimated the cost of the stone crown at about $15,000. For Results Use Snyder Daily News Classified Ads Call 573-5486

Oakland set to end Series...

A's take Friday win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Baseball is back in the Bay area, and it's like the Oakland Athletics never left.

The A's returned from an 11-day earthquake layoff stronger than ever, tying a World Series record with five home runs, including two by Dave Henderson and even one by slumping Jose Canseco, and routing San Francisco 13-7 Friday night for an all-but-invincible 3-0 lead.

No team has ever rallied from such a deficit and the Giants show no signs of being able to do it, either. They had hoped the break might stall Oakland's momentum, but instead they got bashed again.

Dave Stewart did not get a shutout, as he did in Game 1, but he didn't need one. He outpitched Scott Garrelts for the second time this series and is now 4-0 in the postseason.

From the start, the crowd of 62,038 was ready for baseball and so were the A's. They stood respectfully, but anxiously, during a moment of silence at precisely 5:04 p.m. PDT — the time the earthquake struck — and a tribute to victims, rescuers and survivors.

Then it was time to play ball.

And Oakland did, just like all during the delays. The Athletics, unlike the Giants, spent the break playing simulated games and even went to their spring-training site in Phoenix for a practice game against their instructional league team.

If pitchers are supposed to be ahead of hitters after a layoff, it didn't show.

Dave Henderson hit a two-run double in the first inning and he and Tony Phillips each homered in fourth — just as they had in Thursday's practice in Arizona.

Canseco and Henderson connected in the fifth and Carney Lansford's shot in the sixth made it 9-3 and gave Oakland its season-high for home runs. The Athletics outhit San Francisco 14-10 and Canseco ended his 0-for-23 World Series slump by going 3-for-5.

Pokes set to meet Phoenix Cardinals

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Another game. Another new NFL team for Jimmy Johnson and his rookie coaches to figure out.

On Sunday, Johnson will be matching wits with the Phoenix Cardinals' Gene Stallings, who learned many of his coaching tricks from Tom Landry, the former head coach of the Dallas Cowboys. Stallings was an assistant under Landry for 14 years.

It will be Johnson's first test against a Landry-schooled head coach. Ironically, the starting quarterback for the Cardinals, Gary Hogeboom, also played for the Cowboys.

Of course, Johnson replaced

Landry when Jerry Jones bought the Cowboys from Bum Bright.

Stallings hasn't said much publicly about the change over. He still had to catch himself this week during a conference call to media.

"As I've said so many times tell coach Landry hello," Stallings said. "Oh, but he's not there. So say hello to Jimmy."

The Cowboys are the NFL's only winless team and Stallings said he barely recognizes them on film.

"They still have a few assistants down there I know, but it's a different team and it plays different," Stallings said. "There are a lot of players I thought were great players not playing anymore."

Stallings said he didn't believe the Cowboys would go 0-for-89.

Stallings just doesn't want it to be at his expense.

Cage tourney is scheduled

Coahoma Athletic Boosters are sponsoring a men's outsiders basketball tournament Nov. 4 in the CHS gym.

Cost to enter is $100 per team with a limit of 10 men on a roster. Entry deadline is Oct. 31.

For more information contact Charlotte Williams at 267-2574 or 394-4448.

Baseball event set for winter

The Gladiators' Winter Ball '89 State Baseball Tournaments will be held in Grand Prairie Nov. 18-19 for 9-10 year olds, 11-12 year-olds and 13-14 year olds.

The 15-18 age group, including junior varsity and varsity divisions, will be held at various sites in the Dallas-Ft. Worth metroplex Dec. 10.

To enter a team contact Putt Fleming at 817-540-3379 or write: Gladiators, 1905 E. Oak Creek, Bedford, Texas, 76022.

WTC boosters meet Monday

Western Texas College athletic boosters will meet at noon Monday for a Dutch-treat lunch at Golden Corral.

Everyone interested in WTC sports is encouraged to attend.

Business as usual, Thatcher says; critics: biggest crisis

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Friday it's "business as usual" with a revamped Cabinet after her treasury chief quit, but critics and commentators called it the biggest crisis of her 10 years in power.

Many of Mrs. Thatcher's staunchest supporters blamed her high-handed style of leadership for provoking Thursday's resignation of Chancellor of the Exchequer Nigel Lawson and the ensuing run on the pound and sharp drop on the London stock market.

"The City Hit For Billions," headlined Friday's Evening Standard newspaper, saying Lawson's resignation had wiped billions off share values, shaken the pound and raised the threat of another interest rate increase.

The main stock exchange index was off 2.2 percent for the day, while the pound rebounded slightly from a sharp skid with the support of the Bank of England and the U.S. Federal Reserve Board.

Dough ornament class set again

A popular class on making dough ornaments will be repeated Saturday (Nov. 4) at Western Texas College.

Dough ornaments are formed from a dough made of flour and salt mixed with water. The dough can be shaped by hand or with cookie cutters and colored with tempera. After shaping, the pieces are baked and become hard enough to last for many years. Dough ornaments are popular for holiday decorating.

Martha Gist will again instruct the class which will meet from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Students will pay fees of $20 each which includes the cost of all supplies. Students will complete six ornaments to take home. They should bring a large mixing bowl, a towel for cleaning their hands and a cookie sheet to take their ornaments home.

To pre-register call 573-8511, ext. 240. Enrollment will be limited to 20 persons.

report that Conservative Party legislators met secretly to discuss challenging Mrs. Thatcher's leadership could not be confirmed. Conservative and opposition lawmakers agreed that her authority had been undermined but did not believe her job was under immediate threat.

"Not now. Not yet," said Ivor Stanbrook, a right-wing stalwart in the House of Commons.

Mrs. Thatcher, starting the day with new faces in charge at the Treasury, the Foreign Office and the Home Office, said government policies would continue "precisely as they were."

"We have an excellent new team and it will be business as usual and we shall go steadily forward," she said.

But the headline in the pro-Thatcher Daily Telegraph blared "Crisis For Thatcher" and the normally pro-Conservative Times of London said it was her biggest crisis since taking office in 1979. The Financial Times editorialized she had put Lawson in an impossible situation and might eventually follow him out of office.

Lawson resigned because of a clash over currency policy with Sir Alan Walters, Mrs. Thatcher's private economic adviser. Lawson believed in a strong and stable pound, Walters advocated free-floating exchange rates.

Lawson also advocated joining the European Monetary System, which Walters opposed and Mrs. Thatcher resisted. Differences over European policy were also believed to be at the root of Mrs. Thatcher's decision three months ago to remove Sir Geoffrey Howe as foreign secretary.

According to the British media,

Mrs. Thatcher would not fire Walters so Lawson resigned. Then, Walters resigned a few hours after Lawson.

Mrs. Thatcher replaced Lawson with his former deputy, John Major, who had been foreign secretary for just three months. Home Secretary Douglas Hurd, a former career diplomat, became foreign secretary and David Waddington, the government's chief whip in the House of Commons, replaced Hurd.

Neil Kinnock, leader of the opposition Labor Party, blamed the affair on "the utter incompetence of the prime minister."

Camp Hill, Pa...

Prison disturbance under control after inmates riot

CAMP HILL, Pa. (AP) — A two-night rampage at a state prison ended Friday with a guard and two inmates seriously injured, five hostages freed and much of the overcrowded institution destroyed or damaged by fire, authorities said.

It also left Pennsylvania corrections officials scrambling to find cells for prisoners from Camp Hill, which was 45 percent over its capacity at 2,600 inmates, according to Attorney General Ernie Preate.

The state prison system as a whole is 48 percent over capacity. There were no deaths and no escapes, officials said. More than 100 people were injured, two hospitalized in critical condition, in the battle to take back the medium-security prison.

"It was a lot of waiting, but when we do it, we do it," said one state trooper, who declined to give his name.

Five staff members taken hostage were either released by inmates or rescued by police, Corrections Department spokesman Ken Robinson said.

Police stormed a kitchen building with guns firing, wounding one inmate as they began taking back control of the prison Friday morning after fires spewed eye-burning smoke into the early morning darkness, officials said. The officers also used tear gas.

Robinson announced at 9:35 a.m. that officials were "again in control of the institution," nearly 15 hours after inmates somehow freed themselves during a lockdown imposed because of a seven-hour riot Wednesday.

State police in riot gear and wielding shotguns pushed surrendering or captured prisoners to the ground, holding them face-down in the grass of a prison courtyard.

"At one point, all inmates were out of all the cellblocks," Robinson said.

Fourteen of 31 buildings were gutted by fire, Robinson said, including eight modular housing units.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

Let's turn back the clock 12 years. It's Christmas and Martha Moore is opening presents. In one newly unwrapped box she finds a set of keys. The keys belong to a 200 Honda Motorcycle, a present from her husband, Lester. Martha is now 72 years old and she is still riding a motorcycle, only this one is a larger 400 Honda.

Martha says her friends think she is "crazy" and many remark that they could never do what she is doing, but she discounts all that because she said she believes that anyone can do anything if they put their mind to it.

"I decided to ride in the White Buffalo Days parade simply because a lot of women have the attitude that they cannot do things," she explained. "I dressed in black without thinking and I got ribbed about being a 'Hell's Angel.' I just laughed and said I was a reformed one."

The Moores like to ride their cycles on their property which is located west of Snyder and at one time they liked to take short trips with friends.

One summer found them riding through the mountains around Ruidoso, N.M., something she said she never wants to do again. The first time was "quite an experience," and one she is not willing to repeat as the highway was too narrow and winding.

Martha rode her 200 Honda for about two years, but since she had trouble keeping up with others in her party, she and her husband replaced her cycle with a bigger model which is easier to handle and has more traction, something that surprises a lot of people.

She said they ride for pleasure and she prefers not to ride in heavy traffic. They always observe safety rules such as staying within the speed limit, wearing helmets and other appropriate clothing such as jeans, long sleeves, jackets (unless it's too warm), and boots. When riding the cycle, she said she always tucks in her pant legs as an added safety measure. But sometimes, in spite of all the precautions, spills are possible. She has had a few falls herself, though no serious injuries, and her husband suffered a leg injury as a young boy.

Martha said she likes "the sense of freedom" which comes with riding a motorcycle and particularly enjoys late evening rides in the summer time. But, she said you have to be observant and you have to know how to handle "tight spots." Riders have to be careful because if brakes lock then the rider can be thrown. For this reason she said she was told never to brake for animals as it can be too dangerous. One time that meant hitting a rabbit straight on and "cutting it in half."

She said she tries to use common sense when riding and to always respect her machine and never forget how powerful it is.

Martha said her husband "keeps her cycle running" while she cooks for him. But for the White Buffalo Days Parade she washed and polished her machine. She said she never had much trouble learning how to handle a cycle because she and Lester had ridden mopeds around their place for years.

However, her first experience on a cycle came soon after she and Lester were married some 53 years ago. "We wrapped up our son real good because the weather was cold and rode on a motorcycle to my parents' home. They thought we were crazy," she laughed.

Tragedy struck some years later when that same son was killed in a motorcycle accident at the age of 16. For that reason, she said, many people cannot understand how she can ride a motorcycle today.

Since the accident occurred only a few miles from their home on a stretch of the highway they pass every day, she said they just had to accept it and go on. "That happened in 1953 and I never pass that intersection without thinking of my son, but we have to go on anyway. We have to be objective."

The Moores have a daughter, Treva Weaver, who lives across from their home.

For the past two years, Martha has been unable to ride her motorcycle because of problems with her right foot which required corrective surgery. The diagnosis had been some kind of nerve damage. She hated being on crutches and not being able to walk. This past summer she was able to return to her motorcycle rides.

Martha said she never dwells too much about the danger sometimes involved with cycles because she has taken chances all of her life. As a small child, she liked to ride horses and often jumped ditches much against her father's wishes. Also, one day she fell out of a buggy and it ran over her. She doesn't have time to think about the danger because, as she puts it, "As a child why wasn't I killed on a horse?"

The Moores are both natives of Scurry County. Her father and grandparents moved from Virginia to homestead the Trevey Crossing area. She attended school at Bison and Ira and her husband went to Crowder. Her father was both a farmer and a rancher and she was raised near Lake Thomas. Instead of a bike, as a child she said she occupied herself with horses, an interest her husband has never shared.

After the Moores married, she said they bought their present land from her husband's father in the late 1930s. They still live in the home which they built in the late 1940s, but it has been remodeled several times since then.

They farmed the first year or so of their marriage but later her husband entered the construction business from which he is now retired.

Martha likes to do a little of everything and she considers herself fortunate in that her husband always encourages her to try different things. She said Lester was always able to do anything he wanted to do until he developed health problems.

Besides riding motorcycles, Martha also likes to crochet and play the piano. At one time she gardened, and was a garden club member for many years.

"I've never had a hard time staying busy because I can always find something I enjoy doing," she said.

One of the newest additions to the Moore household is a Doberman Pinscher named Lucky who is quite large and gentle and is less than a year old. "We don't know how big he will be because he is still growing," she said.

Lucky is their third Doberman and while feeding the then young pup, she said she got too close and he accidentally bit her finger. That required a trip to the doctor and a surprised question, "What in the world are you doing with a Doberman?"

But she said they wouldn't take anything for Lucky.

STILL RIDING--At 72, Martha Moore still enjoys taking a spin on her motorcycle. For the past two years she has been unable to ride due to foot problems and surgery, but returned to her love this past summer. She rides a 400 Honda and wears a helmet, boots, appropriate clothing, and if she were really going for a ride, she would have tucked her pantlegs inside her boots as an extra safety precaution. Martha began riding 12 years ago when her husband, Lester, surprised her with a cycle one Christmas. (SDN Staff Photo)

"Spinsters Abroad" describes the experiences and aspirations of Victorian women who sought new horizons abroad. They undertook perilous journeys, traveling thousands of miles to discover freedom and respect unimagineable as spinsters at home. Dea Birkett draws upon the diaries, letters and writings of more than 50 such women to vividly reconstruct the adventurous journeys they took.

BWARE OF FALSE CLAIMS
Beware of advice linking nutrients and behavior. General statements and recommendations linking these two could be premature.

The relationship between nutrition and behavior has received a lot of publicity lately, and some of these guides and paperback advisories may be fiction.

Recent research, cited in the spring edition of Nutrition and Food Sciences, indicates that changes in diet may not be directly responsible for changes in an individual's behavior.

Actually, different people may have varying sensitivities to nutritional factors.

The brain comprises two percent of the body's weight and consumes up to 30 percent of the energy that the body produces at rest. You would assume that the brain, and therefore behavior, is affected by the food we eat.

The total number of neurons—100 billion to be exact—is equal to the number of stars in this galaxy. Each of these cells is connected to thousands of others and it's estimated that some cells receive direct signals from 100,000 other cells.

However, the cells aren't physically connected to each other, but can transmit minute electrical signals across a gap that is less than a millionth of an inch across. Neurotransmitters, complex chemicals, assist the signal transfer.

Research presented by a University of Toronto, Ontario professor indicates that amino acids, the building blocks of proteins, have many uses in the body. For example, an amino acid called tryptophan is eventually metabolized into serotonin, a neurotransmitter. At elevated concentrations, tryptophan decreases food intake and produces drowsiness and sedation, according to Nutrition and Food Sciences.

Additionally, some vitamins have the potential to affect brain function at levels that are considered "normal," according to the publication.

Many factors are present and many factors could be affecting behavior.

Therefore it would be premature to assume that changes in an individual's behavior are directly linked to diet.

Willy Nilly got to four hearts, and West led the club 10. East won the ace and returned the jack. West ruffed Willy's king, and then played diamond ace and a diamond to dummy's king. Willy drew trumps (noting happily that West had ruffed with a natural winner), and then played a spade to dummy's king. Then he led the diamond jack to find out who had the queen. East of course played low and Willy ruffed. Now Willy tried some "thinking." Wouldn't East have over-called with anything more than six clubs headed by the A-Q-J? Perhaps. So Willy played a spade to dummy's jack and was down two when East won the queen and cashed another club.

Willy had a tip-off when West played ace and a diamond. If West held ace of diamonds and no queen, he might have underled the diamond ace, making declarer guess. But that doesn't mean Willy should finesse. East after all has a high club that he must keep; if West keeps the diamond queen, who is going to be able to keep the spade queen as declarer cashes all his trumps? Willy's right play is to win dummy's diamond king, cash the spade king, and then run his trumps. On the last trump, dummy is down to A-J of spades and the diamond jack. East holds Q-10 of spades and the queen of clubs. West must keep the diamond queen, so he throws a spade. Now Willy discards dummy's diamond jack. What should East do? If he throws the club queen, Willy's five-spot becomes a winner. If East throws a spade, declarer can play to dummy's ace, dropping East's queen and making the contract.

IT'S THE LAW

If you've been leasing your land for hunting, you're supposed to have a hunting lease license. That's not a new law, but the name of the license has changed from the old designation as shooting preserve permit. The license is required of anyone who leases hunting rights or charges a fee for hunting on property they own or control.

The manager of a hunting lease must maintain a record book provided by the TP&WD with each hunter's name, address, license number, dates hunted and number and species of wildlife killed. Hunters are responsible for providing the information to the manager. The annual license costs $15 for leases up to 499 acres, $40 for leases 500-999 acres, and $60 for leases over 1,000 acres in size.

Landowners in a county may pool their acreage licensed as a hunting lease to form a "hunting cooperative," in which the leasing profits are distributed to the landowners according to the landowner's participation. The fee for a license for such a cooperative is $60 annually. This might be a money saver to those involved in Deer Management Associations like those in Gillespie, Burnet, and Llano counties. For more information regarding these licenses, contact your game warden.

Allergies stay since pets do

NEW YORK (AP) — Allergy sufferers would rather endure the symptoms of allergies than part with their favorite pets, according to the Chlor-Trimeton Allergy Season Index, an allergy awareness and education program.

According to the study, more than 63 percent of the allergic people polled would rather keep their pet than reduce their sniffing and sneezing by getting rid of it.

The survey also revealed that baby boomers (sufferers aged 30-49) were the least likely to part with their allergic pets and women were more likely to shed their pets than men were.

Deterioration sparks anger

CAIRO (AP) — Deterioration of the Great Sphinx of Egypt continues to spark controversy here.

The monument's noseless face is missing its upper lip as well as part of one eye. The monument is falling prey to excessive moisture which dissolves salts. The salty solution is then drawn to the surface where it recrystallizes, undermining surface stones which eventually crumble into dust.

The 4,600 year old sphinx is made from limestone, perhaps 50 million years old. It has gone through a series of renovations, mostly unsuccessful.

Damage is put at $35 million

AUSTIN (AP) — Insured property damage caused by Hurricane Jerry earlier this month is estimated at $35 million, the American Insurance Services Group said Friday.

The hurricane, accompanied by tornadoes and flooding, blew ashore at Galveston in mid-October and that was the area of heaviest damage, said C.E. Hermanson, vice president of the industry group's property claim service division.

The British royal family adopted the name "Windsor" in 1917.

Two law firms planning merger

HOUSTON (AP) — Two prominent law firms, Jackson & Walker of Dallas and Dotson & Scofield of Houston, agreed in principle Friday to a merger that would create one of the 10 largest Texas-based law firms.
The combined firm, which would continue under the name of Jackson & Walker, would have offices in Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and New Orleans and include about 200 attorneys.
"The merger will provide the combined firm with a strong regional base," said Michael C. French, chairman of Jackson & Walker's management committee. "The firm will have a significant presence not only in Dallas and Houston, but also in Fort Worth and New Orleans, which we feel will enhance our collective ability to serve the expanding and diverse client base of the two firms."

Sonic Drive-In

The Sonic Drive-In offers delicious, fresh, and hot food, cooked to order. The food is not made ahead of time where it sits and waits until someone orders it, in fact, their slogan is "we don't start cooking 'till we hear from you."

The Sonic, located at 4100 College Ave. is getting ready to celebrate its 19th birthday in Snyder. Mac and Virginia Humphrey are the owners and Barry Lee is the local manager. These folks have worked hard to build a reputation for the Snyder Sonic as being a favorite hangout for fun and good food. One of the best features of the Sonic Drive-In besides the food is that you don't have to get out of your car. You can sit back and enjoy your own kind of music while you enjoy your favorite foods. There's no need to dress up; no need to make reservations. You can even call ahead if you want your order to be ready when you get there.

The wide variety of food the Sonic offers includes sandwiches, burgers, fries, basket dinners, conies, ice cream and soft drinks.

The good, fresh food at the Sonic is just waiting for you to come by—today.

SONIC STEAK & RINGS

A big, juicy, tender chicken fried steak sandwich served with lettuce, tomato and an order of Sonic's famous onion rings! It's big fun for the big appetite!

Blind caseworker helps 16-year-old teen

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The 16-year-old boy lay in the hospital bed — alive despite a bullet he fired into his skull, blind because of it.

Doctors and family had told him he was going to live. It was up to a stranger to tell him how.

That stranger was Judy Jackson.

Slipping between protocol and paperwork, the Texas Commission for the Blind children's caseworker eases herself into client's lives.

She said she has no special pass permitting her infiltration. But she does have a unique understanding — she is blind. In fact, the Lubbock woman is the only blind children's caseworker of 35 statewide, and is one of three ever.

The 28-year-old San Antonio native was born with congenital glaucoma, meaning the disease was not progressive, but caused complete blindness at birth. She was reared in a foster home and sent to public school. As a child, she said, other children accepted her lack of sight. As she grew older, however, peers grew more uncomfortable. Humor became her method of easing their apprehension.

Don't look for hand-delivered stories of her malaise, however. "My blindness has never been a problem. It's always been there, and that's just the way it is," she said.

Only about five to 10 of the some 200 children she sees in her 19-county region are completely blind. "I see children ages zero to 16. Our main goal is to prevent blindness and to help children and their parents become their own advocates. We work with children who have 20-20 vision, but their eyes are crossed, or they have 20-30 vision and the eye is lazy," she explained.

She travels about two days a week. The commission pays for her driver.

Besides visiting homes, she provides in-services for professionals. At Big Spring State Hospital, for example, "I'll tell them that a blind person needs to be made aware of his environment, but he doesn't need to be assisted in making each step for his environment."

"I'll talk about feeding — are they holding a fork properly? Do they know how to cut their meat? About how to use the fork as a guide," she said.

Mrs. Jackson's career started as a special education teacher in Van Horn. There, she learned to work with some of the same problems she now treats. About half of the children served by the commission have special needs beyond sight impairment, said Juanita Barker, the Austin-based commission regional supervisor for the children's program.

"I have gotten to know Judy very well. She serves as a wonderful role model, maybe even more so for the parents than the kids. They think, 'My poor baby, he's not going to be able to do anything.' Then they meet her, and they say, 'Hey, he can do this,'" Mrs. Barker said.

Mrs. Jackson began her career as a caseworker in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. "I had one client in Fort Worth where I wrote many letters to the kid and the family. I went so far as to say, 'I have my paycheck, I live alone. Don't tell me it's not possible.' I've certainly made some crucial mistakes. I think that's the biggest message to communicate to parents and the disabled — everybody makes mistakes," she said.

Mrs. Jackson said preconceived but unfounded notions cause sighted people to make mistakes in their treatment of the blind.

"If I do something that's not exactly right, (people think) it's not that I'm ignorant, it's because I'm blind," she explained. "Probably the thing that frustrates me more than anything is 'Oh, I'm so proud of you,' or being at airports, they'll ask the person I'm with, 'Does she need assistance?' I'll interrupt. Automatically, it's assumed if you're blind, you're deaf and you're mute."

She said her husband of about three months, John Jackson, doesn't roll along on stereotypes. The 25-year-old occupational therapist, a native of Anderson, S.C., first met his wife in church last October. He said he was initially attracted to her sense of humor. She was attracted to his singing voice — he performs in the choir. "I was very nervous around him at first," she said, laughing.

DIABETES - DIET

Diabetes is now considered a disease of the blood vessels as well as a bodily malfunction in handling sugar. The arteries of diabetics tend to be clogged with cholesterol so that gangrene, kidney failure, heart attack or stroke may occur at an early age. Thus a low-cholesterol diet is essential, emphasizing oat bran, whole grain breads, fish, fresh vegetables and fruit, and low-fat dairy products. An increased blood flow to the pancreas also tends to increase the production of insulin.

Peter Gott, M.D.

Is socialized medicine that bad?

The British system of health care, called National Health Service, has been getting favorable press recently because American legislators are flirting with the concept of socialized medicine. To U.S. doctors, the idea of government-controlled medical care is repugnant. However, American medical costs are escalating so rapidly that options, such as the British system, have become increasingly attractive to congressional cost-cutters and to individuals and corporations paying for health care and medical insurance.

I've always opposed socialized medicine and have been relieved to learn from reports in American medical journals that NHS is failing. Now, having just returned from a vacation in Scotland, where I viewed the system firsthand, I'm not so sure. I was impressed that British doctors have a different attitude than do their U.S. colleagues; also, the British public has expectations that are in contrast to those in the United States.

To begin with, most British doctors are comfortable with NHS. Yes, many healers supplement their incomes by moonlighting as private consultants. True, British practitioners are paid the same, regardless of specialty, and they sacrifice autonomy and independence for economic security. Nonetheless, as peculiar as it seems to us Americans, the doctors are satisfied. One of the reasons they seem content is that their patients take a very un-American view of medical care.

British patients accept the reality of health-care allocation. Because of financial constraints, not all deserving patients receive hi-tech treatment, such as dialysis and coronary by-pass operations. They must wait — sometimes for months — to have elective surgery. Although the backlog of cases is a consequence of inadequate hospital services, the British feel honor-bound to wait their turn: If you're thirsty, you move away from the well out of respect for those people in greater need.

In contrast, Americans believe in "me-first" medicine. If you don't look after No. 1 and the little No. 1-ettes, who will? A Sunday hangnail becomes a quality-of-life issue; your need is as pressing as the next guy's. Why not call the doctor on a weekend? That's what he's paid for. The British lionize their doctors and believe that it's uncivilized to bother such dedicated community servants with frivolous complaints. For their part, British practitioners encourage this perception by roundly intimidating their patients and being unavailable on weekends, except for life-and-death emergencies.

Another fundamental difference: Americans believe death is negotiable. Europeans are much more fatalistic about this subject. When your time comes, it comes; princely medical care simply prolongs the inevitable. On the other hand, Americans — who are back-seat doctors armed with medical articles from the Ladies' Home Journal — demand high standards, full explanations and second opinions ... as well as heroic, expensive and painful life-prolonging measures. Death can be put off and damn the cost. After all, if we can land a man on the moon, what's the problem with a little cardiac arrest or a pesky terminal cancer?

Finally, the malpractice situation is quite different on the two sides of the Atlantic. Brits pretty well accept accidents as inevitable; nature is full of unpleasant surprises, physicians are fallible and are not held accountable for bad results, providing they administer a level of care consistent with the norm.

Americans do not believe in accidents. There is no such thing as medical no-fault. If somebody screws up, then someone's gonna pay. Therefore, Yank practitioners live under constant surveillance and threat that thus far has not contaminated British medical care. The British physician has not been forced into practicing defensively, with each patient a potential lawsuit.

Of course, this enviable orientation is changing in the United Kingdom. More disgruntled patients are refusing arbitration, preferring instead to go to court in hopes of a big settlement. Believe me, British doctors are becoming uncharacteristically nervous about this. Very alarmed. They realize that if their patients become more bloody-minded, NHS might collapse under the weight of litigation and the system would have to be reorganized into a — horror of horrors — free-market American scheme.

Paradoxically, the United States seems to be heading toward a more British arrangement. The form our health-care system will eventually take probably depends more on the American public's attitudes and expectations than on any other factor. Americans consider the individual first and the collective second; Britons consider the community and common good as paramount. I contend that, unless our public sentiments are altered, any new health-care system is doomed.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a member of an HMO. In the past, I had a barium enema that was negative. A little over a month ago, I noticed blood in my stool. I called this to the attention of my "gatekeeper." Again, a barium enema was performed, and the doctor remarked that I still had the mushroom polyp that was present in 1986. I'm concerned. Since my contract with the HMO runs out in four months, I feel they are trying to out-wait me rather than take care of the problem. What do you think?

DEAR READER: You may be right, unfortunately. Health Maintenance Organizations often make their profits by withholding expensive testing and consultations. In this way, the patients' premiums go toward maintaining the HMO, rather than being used for laboratory tests or surgery. This is not true of all HMOs, but it is common enough to be a problem.

Of course, your HMO doctor may have simply messed up. I cannot imagine why your polyp was not removed in 1986. In my opinion, this was exceedingly poor medical judgment. Polyps, outgrowths of tissue from the intestinal lining, can become malignant. Yours should have been removed three years ago. Now that it may be bleeding, the risk of malignancy is multiplied. You should have an examination as soon as possible by a gastroenterologist, either in the HMO or independent of it.

'Mass of Hope' offered on journalist's 42nd birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The family and friends of Lebanon captive Terry Anderson celebrated his 42nd birthday Friday at a "Mass of Hope" where a journalistic colleague said, "As long as he is a hostage, we are not free."

Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, has spent five birthdays in captivity since gunmen seized him on a Beirut street on March 16, 1985.

His sister, Peggy Say, said that ceremonies of the kind held Friday at Georgetown University's Dahlgren Chapel have made sure he has not been forgotten.

Hope, she said, is the way that she and other families of eight American hostages in Lebanon have survived their ordeal. "Hope is not a way out, it is a way through," she said.

After years of crushed expectations and false alarms, Mrs. Say said, she still prays every day and night that freedom will come to her brother.

"It is my hope that our hostages will not have suffered for so long for nothing," she said, appealing for peace in the Middle East.

Prominent journalists, along with representatives of the State Department and the embassies of Lebanon, Algeria and Syria attended the hour-long Mass in the small chapel.

Charles Lewis, Washington bureau chief for Hearst Newspapers, said other hostages who were in captivity with Anderson recalled how important his Roman Catholic faith has been to him while passing the time frequently in a darkened room. Anderson even made a rosary from fibers in a mat that he sat on, Lewis said.

Tom Brokaw, the NBC News anchorman, implored the Shiite Muslims who hold Anderson captive to release him. "No God would sanction such an act," he said, urging the kidnappers to "reclaim your place in society."

Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of The Washington Post, said all journalists feel an outrage at Anderson's captivity, and it is way past time the cruel treatment of him and the other hostages ends.

Others who took part in the service were former diplomat Bruce Laingen, once a hostage in Iran; and journalists Peter S. Prichard, editor of USA Today; Peter Arnett, a CNN correspondent; R.W. Apple, deputy Washington editor of The New York Times; and David Aikman, a foreign correspondent for Time magazine.

A number of relatives of other hostages also attended, including the family members of Americans Frank Reed, Joseph Cicippio, Alann Steen and Robert Pohill and Alec Collett, an Englishman.
