

Abilene, five others selected for prisons but Lamesa loses out

From Wire, Staff Reports

AUSTIN—Abilene and Childress will bring new prisons to West Texas but Lamesa's hope as a site for a new state unit was dashed in Monday's meeting of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Abilene was chosen for a 2,250-bed maximum security unit on first ballot and Childress, an alternate when Snyder was selected in 1987, was picked for a 1,000-bed medium security unit on the second ballot.

Abilene and Freestone counties won Texas prison sites despite local opposition, but Wichita Falls was also eliminated after opponents said the city didn't heed or want a prison. Opponents also said the applicant did not have the support of city or county elected officials.

The Texas Board of Criminal Justice selected six sites for new prisons, including the first units in south Texas, in Dilley and Beeville.

The board chose Abilene, Beeville and Jefferson County (Beaumont) for 2,250-bed maximum security units and Childress, Dilley and Freestone County (Teague-Fairfield) for 1,000-bed medium security units.

Dilley is south of San Antonio and Beeville is north of Corpus Christi. Teague-Fairfield is east of Waco.

Of the 12 finalists, only Wichita Falls, Abilene and Freestone County had opposition at the board meeting, which lasted more than six hours.

"This selection process has been an agony and ordeal for the board that has caused everything but knife fight," said board Chairman Charles Terrell of Dallas.

But he said the process of narrowing the field of 44 proposals was open and fair.

Four of the prisons will be built with $200 million in bonds approved by voters last Tuesday. The other two units will be built with $138 million remaining in the 1987 bond issue, said prison board spokesman David Nunnelee.

Nunnelee said construction bids for the first units should be taken in May or June, with construction starting in August. He said the large units should take 18 to 24 months to complete and the smaller units 14 to 18 months.

Communities eliminated Monday were given a ray of hope when Chairman Charles Terrell of Dallas said two additional 2,250-bed units could be built if Gov. Bill Clements placed the issue on the special session agenda (see PRISONS, page 9)

In Brief

Man said shot

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas police officer shot a man in the wrist early today after the suspect apparently tried to douse the officer with gasoline and light him on fire, authorities said.

The suspect was in fair condition at Methodist Central Hospital, officials said.

Bill Bateman, a spokesman for the Dallas Police Department, said the officer was not injured.

Bateman said the suspect bought a container of gas at a Texaco station south of downtown and then remained at the station, prompting employees to call police.

When police officers arrived at the station, the man became angry and threatened to pour gasoline on the officer, Bateman said.

"The man began pouring the gasoline on the officer and was attempting to light the officer on fire when the officer fired his weapon, hitting the man in the wrist," Bateman said.

Indian art site

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Two archaeologists have discovered four area sites abundant with well-preserved ancient Indian rock art and are asking federal officials that they be designated as national monuments.

Gerald X. Fitzgerald and Alex Apostolides hope the designation will save the art from vandalism and ensure their preservation. Some of the art is located at a Fort Hancock site where the government is considering building a low-level nuclear dump.

Trustees okay bids for repairs

Western Texas College trustees Monday night approved bids for equipment that will allow the college maintenance department to begin a massive buildings repair project by the end of the month.

Maintenance director Leon Pettitt told the board that its approval of bids for a gasoline power sprayer and power washer will allow his staff to begin work as soon as the equipment arrives.

Bids were okayed from Sunbelt Finishing Systems of Dallas for a $5,402 sprayer, a $2,431 washer and $1,154 in accessories.

Gay Hickman, college vice president of business and finance, said the equipment could be delivered within a week.

Pettitt said today that all campus buildings will be worked on "over a period of years" but that work will start on the north side of the upstairs area of the Student Center.

He said the work will be primarily to repair cracks and waterproof the buildings.

Other business in the 5:45 p.m. meeting included approval of a $14,862 offer from Jacobsen Turf of Dallas for a riding reel mower for the golf and landscape technology department.

Office careers instructor Joann Snider appeared before the board to discuss her department's plan to advertise for bids for four desk-top computers and a printer, to go with the six computers already in use there.

Snider said more are needed because the current ratio of students to computers is 3 to 1.

A written policy on investment management guidelines was approved at the request of the school's accrediting agency, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools of Atlanta, Ga.

Board member John Fagin had a sentence deleted from the policy, that local banks should get first consideration, because he said that policy is already in effect and did not need to be stated.

Dr. Harry Krenek said in his monthly president's report that United Technologies of Lubbock is preparing to perform a $4,850 re-furbishing of the campus air-conditioning system, to extend the life of the system's $250,000 "chiller."

The meeting was attended by board members John Gayle, R.C. Patton, Dr. Robert Hargrove, Howard Sterling and Fagin. Bill Wilson Jr. and Roy Baze were absent.

Lawmakers talk turkey as worker's comp issue lies before them again

AUSTIN (AP) — As state lawmakers returned to the capitol today, legislative leaders were talking turkey — as in fixing the workers' compensation system and making a break for home in time for Thanksgiving.

On Monday, House Speaker Gib Lewis endorsed a plan authored by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to reform the insurance system designed to pay benefits for workers injured on the job.

Hobby praised the "spirit of bipartisan cooperation" and promised "to move as quickly as possible on the Senate side so we can all eat Thanksgiving dinner

Closed sessions, bid request dominate SISD board agenda

Snyder public schools trustees cast their votes for four men in the election of a Scurry County Appraisal District board, approved the purchase of computer-related equipment and gave the go-ahead to solicit bids on a restroom facility during a three-hour meeting Monday — two hours of which were spent in executive session.

The board also hired Alfreda Shepard, an Angelo State University graduate, to instruct second grade classes at Northeast Elementary.

The meeting began with a 70-minute executive session to discuss a personnel matter and ended in similar fashion as County Attorney Pete Greene advised the board as to legalities pertaining to the proposed deannexation of property in Kent County lying within the Snyder school district. The board is expected to be presented with a petition which would call for the old Polar school district, now within Snyder ISD, to be deannexed to the Jayton school district.

Dalton Moseley, SISD superintendent, said the area involves some 55 square miles with property valued at $12,496,718. At $1.04 tax rate set by Snyder ISD, the local school system stands to lose some $129,966 if the property is deannexed to Jayton.

The petition has been presented to the superintendent at Jayton, Moseley said, but has not been delivered to Snyder.

Moseley said no action was taken at either of Monday's two executive meetings.

In regards to the appraisal board, the trustees elected to divide their 3,100 votes among four individuals. They cast 800 votes each for Doug Flynn, John Reed and Mickey Sterling, and 700 for Julius Roemisch.

The board also approved spending $1,383 for an IBM printer and an additional $158 for a display station for the ad-

Firemen battle house blaze for three hours

A large brick house on West 37th St. was heavily damaged in a Monday afternoon fire that firemen said "could have been a lot worse" if it had not been reported promptly.

Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell said the 4:11 p.m. fire started in the garage but that the cause had not been determined.

The house, 1½ miles west of town on the north side of 37th St. and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Palmer, had heavy fire damage in the garage, attic and two rooms and heavy heat and smoke damage in the other rooms.

McDowell said Mrs. Palmer

The Texas Legislature—for the third time—will attempt to make needed changes in the workers' compensation system in Texas.

The special session, which started Tuesday, will again be a show-down between the lawyer-controlled Senate and the business-minded House.

To once again have a favorable business climate in Texas, changes are needed. Rates must come down. Our suggestion is for employers to have employees write representatives and senators since both businesses and the jobs they provide are in jeopardy because of skyrocketing premiums.

Texas not only needs to keep its jobs, but it needs new jobs, and a Chicago-based food company recently announced it will build a $40 million poultry center in Madill, Okla., that will employ 1,500.

The company said the new site was selected from a four-state area that did not include Texas. "What scared us away was the high cost of doing business, especially workers' comp," said Rymer Foods' chief financial officer.

Senate leaders argue that business needs to provide a safe workplace. We couldn't agree more, but a safe place of work has done nothing to reduce individual premiums.

All business is lumped together for rate-making purposes, and even firms with few or no claims have experienced hefty increases in workers' comp premiums.

Testimony in previous legislative debate has shown that few cases actually go to trial in Texas, but that the threat of going to trial is the major cause of large settlements outside the administrative process.

Injured workers need compensation, but the present system is broke and it's going to break the state's economic base—the folks that sign the payroll checks.

Action is needed—and now.

Pentagon wants home on range for bombers, tanks

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The military wants more land for war games in four Western states, but hunters, ranchers and environmentalists see its plans as a land grab twice the size of Massachusetts that menaces wildlife and farming.

Four separate proposals by different branches of the armed services would expand areas for training with tanks, warplanes and artillery by 16,800 square miles in unconnected areas in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Nevada.

The Pentagon says the proposals to add military training to uses allowed on the federally owned land aren't part of a coordinated effort. But environmentalists say Congress rejected a similar national program in 1974.

"It's too coincidental to be a coincidence," said Charles Griffith, regional executive for the National Wildlife Federation in Bozeman.

The National Guard wants to use 1,500 square miles in northeastern Montana's rolling plains for training by its own units and forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. About three-fourths of the acreage is federally owned grazing land.

In southern Idaho, the Air Force has proposed expanding the 155-square-mile Saylor Creek Bombing Range to more than 2,300 square miles. The plan has stirred opposition from ranchers with cattle grazing the land, environmentalists fearing damage to wildlife, and some local politicians.

In Utah, the Air Force wants to create a $3 billion "electronic battlefield" that will be used to test aircraft and weapons under simulated combat conditions. The machinery would be scattered across a 20-mile-wide, 70-mile-long section of the state's western desert.

In western Nevada, the National Guard wants a 1,100 square mile training area near Naval Air Station Fallon.

The base also has proposed adding 10,000 square miles of the airspace used for flight training, more than doubling the area now used. That would restrict uses of the land beneath the flight paths.

The Navy also wants to set aside 310 square miles in Nevada as a missile firing range, plus 200 square miles as buffer zones for the naval air station's bombing ranges.

Despite the suspicions of environmentalists, the simultaneous proposals in four states are coincidental, said Maj. Everett Foster, public affairs officer for the National Guard Bureau at the Pentagon.

Pentagon activates new office

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A long-awaited military headquarters to coordinate the war on drugs along the southern border of the United States has been activated by the Pentagon, a military spokesman says.

Spokesman Buddy Gee of 5th Army Headquarters at Fort Sam Houston said Monday that Joint Task Force 6, commanded by Brig. Gen. Sherman H. Williford, currently 5th Army chief of staff, will have its headquarters at Fort Bliss near El Paso.

The establishment of the headquarters and the Joint Task Force 6 was approved Monday by Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney after a two-month study he ordered Sept. 19 to plan implementation of President Bush's $7.9 million anti-drug program.

Gee said the joint task force is to provide Defense Department support to federal, state and local law enforcement agencies along the border. The exact boundaries have not been determined, he said.

The joint task force was located at Fort Bliss because that is a central location and because nearby Biggs Army Airfield already is the site of an existing joint federal intelligence center.

Gee said establishment of the task force near the Mexican border does not mean the war on drugs will be carried into Mexico. "U.S. military forces will respect the sovereignty of all nations and will maintain the integrity of international boundaries at all times," he said.

The specific military units to take part in the task force will be determined on a case-by-case basis, he said.

Gee stressed that active and reserve military personnel will not conduct searches, seizures or arrests and will serve strictly to support law enforcement agencies in their counter-narcotics operations.

Your Birthday

Nov. 15, 1989

In the year ahead you might enter into an interesting arrangement with someone who is older and more experienced than yourself. This could turn out to be a rewarding association in several ways.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might be a trifle difficult to get along with if your companions aren't in complete accord with your ideas or suggestions. Strive to be democratic, not dictatorial. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph, predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're likely to be better at managing the resources of others today than you will be with your own. However, even in this area your performance may not be up to par.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to keep your life in proper balance today. Don't be all work and no play, nor all play and no work. Parity is essential for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There is a possibility today you might pretend you received nothing in return for something you did for another while, in actuality, you did receive some acknowledgment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Sights will breed resentment today, so be sure you do not play favoritism in your involvements with friends. Anyone you anger may not forgive readily.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will generate respect from associates today by emphasizing your modest virtues. Conversely, if you tend to be flamboyant or pretentious, your behavior will have the opposite effect.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In areas where you have previously been fortunate your luck is apt to be still intact today. However, in situations where you've not established a track record, developments could be dubious.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your prospects for personal gain could be rather "iffy" today, so proceed cautiously in all commercial matters. It won't take much to tip the scales against you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It might be best if both you and your mate keep your hands off the family check book today. Either of you are capable of bruising it rather badly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be realistic today if you have to negotiate a matter that pertains to your work or career. There might be a tendency on your part to make larger concessions than necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid the lines of least resistance today, because what may appear to be simple could be fraught with complications, while that which appears difficult will be slower but sure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Give full expression to your ambitions today, but be realistic regarding what you hope to achieve. Don't establish objectives that are unattainable.

May raise cholesterol levels...

Study fingers decaf coffee

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — People who switch to decaffeinated coffee to avoid the jitters may be unknowingly raising their cholesterol levels and even heightening their risk of heart disease, a study suggests.

Researchers have long suspected but never proven that caffeine, the chemical that gives coffee its jolt, was somehow involved in heart trouble.

The study raises the possibility that coffee without caffeine could be the real villain.

The research, conducted at Stanford University, found that people who went from regular coffee to decaf increased their levels of low-density lipoprotein — the so-called bad cholesterol — an average of 7 percent.

"It's not like going out and eating cheesecake, but the overall impact could be great," considering the popularity of decaffeinated coffee, said Dr. H. Robert Superko, who directed the research.

Superko, director of Stanford's Lipid Research Clinic, presented his findings Monday at the annual scientific meeting of the American Heart Association.

He said he doubts that the process of taking out caffeine changes the coffee so that it raises cholesterol. Instead, he said the difference may result from the kinds of beans that go into various types of coffee.

In general, he said, mild arabica beans are used to make regular coffee, while most decaffeinated brands use more strongly flavored robusta beans.

Superko calculated that the average 7 percent increase in bad cholesterol in his subjects could translate into about a 12 percent jump in the risk of heart disease.

"Does coffee cause heart disease?" he asked. "I don't know. We can only say that coffee causes cholesterol changes."

No single study can prove that something is harmful, and the Stanford findings will have to be duplicated by other researchers before doctors are certain they are true.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are the statistics on psychiatric cure of patients? Are there any objective, hard-proof statistics that psychiatrists are any more credible than chiropractors in treating mental illness?

DEAR READER: Yours is a two-part question phrased in the when-did-you-stop-beating-your-wife mode. I'll break it down and answer the last part first.

Chiropractors are not qualified to treat mental or emotional illness. Most chiropractors recognize this fact and accept it; they carry out their spinal manipulations and leave mental health to the mental-health professionals. Therefore, comparing psychiatry to chiropractic is meaningless, sort of like asking the corollary: Are psychiatrists any more credible than chiropractors in spinal adjustments? Heck, no! They don't even do them!

The second part of your question is more complicated. Do psychiatrists cure patients? Yes and No. Mental illness comes in many forms and in many degrees of seriousness. On one hand are chronic psychotic schizophrenics. Such patients are totally out of touch with reality, as most of us understand it. These patients cannot take care of themselves; carry on lengthy conversations with imaginary voices, behave inappropriately, may harm themselves or others, and traditionally have been shut away in insane asylums.

On the other hand is a healthy neurotic patient who faces reality and understands it but has trouble dealing with it. This person can function in society, have a career, be a parent — and suffer interminable torment. In between these extremes are the majority of emotionally handicapped individuals: the depressives and the substance abusers, to name a few. Unquestionably, many patients can be helped by psychiatric intervention. The schizophrenic can be given tranquilizers and mood-altering drugs, permitting more contentment — maybe even a return to society. The depressive can be aided by anti-depressant medication. Many emotional problems respond to psychotherapy and counseling. In short, people do get well after psychiatric treatment.

Are they cured? I don't know, because I don't know the definition of a "cure." Maybe all of us are a little nuts, so the question of cure becomes an issue of semantics. What is important is that people get better. They feel more confident, more able to cope; they interact more appropriately with their environment; they stop doing things to harm themselves. I am not aware of any "hard-proof statistics" about the effectiveness of psychiatric care. Some diseases are harder to treat than others; some psychiatrists are more successful than others.

The bottom line seems to be that many people need help with emotional and mental problems. This help is available from several sources, including psychologists, clergymen and social workers. Psychiatrists, who are specially trained M.D.s, are more or less at the top of the hierarchy.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

A lesson in timing

By James Jacoby

One of the ways to beat a contract is to shorten the declarer's trumps by forcing him to ruff. Eventually declarer will run out of trumps before he has done everything needed to make his contract. Even when you cannot reduce declarer's trumps to fewer than yours, forcing him to ruff can still be effective.

In today's deal, South played in four spades after North jumped to game, compensating for his earlier pussy-footing. Clubs were led and continued. Declarer ruffed, then played A-K and a diamond. East won the trick as West discarded a heart. Declarer ruffed the club return and played a heart. West won the ace and played still another club. Declarer ruffed low in dummy. East overruffed with the nine, and South won in his hand with the trump 10. He now had nothing better to do, if he wished to make the contract, than play A-K of spades and hope both defenders would follow. Alas, West was left with the lone trump and two more good clubs, so declarer was down three.

Declarer played with too much abandon. He should time things better. After ruffing the second club, he does better to play a low diamond. The defenders will play another club. He ruffs and then plays a heart toward dummy's king. West can win and play another club if he likes, but South can take the ruff in his hand, cash A-K of spades, then get to dummy with the heart king to draw the last trump. He can then take the remaining tricks with his A-K-9 of diamonds.

President Virginia Clark presided over a brief business meeting in which the discussion centered around the club travel event. Members will travel to the Fort Concho Festival in San Angelo Dec. 2.

Dorothy Dennis, who will be the hostess in San Angelo, presented an itinerary she planned, and commented on the festival.

Westerners claim victory over Rams

The WTC Westerners remain unbeaten on the season, but for awhile Monday night at the Scurry County Coliseum, their first loss of 1989 seemed imminent. A second half rally, sparked by Ft. Worth freshman, Dominick Byrd, gave them a 103-89 victory over Southwest Christian College.

Byrd finished the game with 29 points on 12 field goals and five of nine free throws.

He also snatched a game-high 19 rebounds against the Rams.

Southwest Christian, beaten

118-81 by WTC in October, started the game with 16 straight points, keeping the Westerners off the scoreboard for the first four full minutes of the contest.

At 10:00 left in half number one the Rams led 25-11 but by the 4:30 mark WTC had chipped the lead down to 35-26.

A furious defensive effort at the end of the half closed the gap to 43-39 with the Westerners scoring the final seven points before intermission.

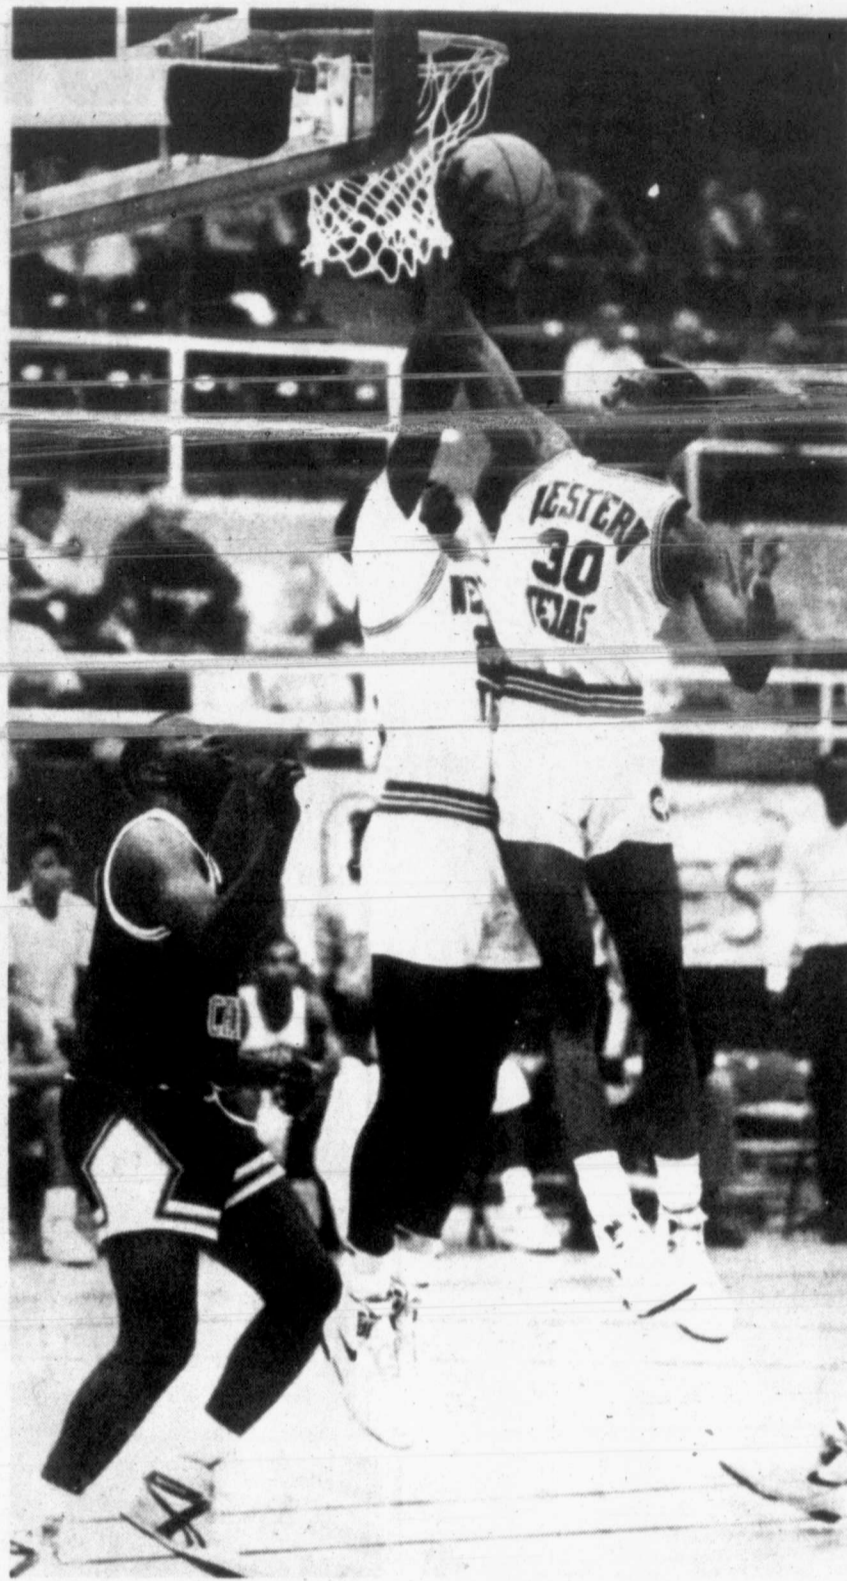

Alfredo Porter had five goals from the floor, including a pair of three-pointers, and was a perfect four of four from the free-throw line.

Jeff Shelley added 13 points on five of six free shots and four two-pointers.

David Smith of the Westerners also finished in double figures with 12 points. His dozen came on a three of six performance from the charity stripe and four hoops from the floor, including a three-point goal.

Cedric Mason scored nine, Allen Smith added seven, Kenneth Critton poured in six, Jacoby Garmon and Lester White each carded four and Ray Johnson tacked on two to round out the Westerners scoring Monday.

The WTC men will see action Thursday through Saturday in the South Plains College Classic in Levelland.

Tark's UNLV Rebels tabbed top college basketball squad

by The Associated Press
Jerry Tarkanian hasn't had a team atop the polls since the 1986-87 season when his UNLV Runnin' Rebels held that spot for 12 weeks.

Well, he was back in the No. 1 position again Monday when the AP's preseason Top 25 was released.

"I just hope they're all right," Tarkanian said of the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters who made the Runnin' Rebels No. 1 with 30 of 65 first-place votes and 1,555 points, comfortably ahead of Louisiana State, Syracuse, Michigan and Georgetown.

"I like our team very much, I like our kids very much. They've got a great ethic and they want to win," Tarkanian said. He was asked if he thought the team would react differently with the No. 1 tag.

"There's always pressure whether you're No. 1, or No. 3 or 4. I'm happy we're No. 1. I don't think it puts any more pressure on us than being ranked No. 3 or 4.

"We never talk about the ratings. We haven't talked about the ratings all year, and we've been rated No. 1 by some of the preseason magazines."

The Runnin' Rebels, who added junior college player of the year Larry Johnson to an already deep and experienced roster that fell one win short of making the Final Four last season, get the season started Wednesday night when they host Loyola Marymount in the first round of the Big Apple NIT.

LSU, which will feature sophomore sensation Chris Jackson as well as a front line bolstered by freshman Shaquille O'Neal and Prop 48 sophomore Stanley Roberts, had 14 first-place votes and 1,447 points, 16 more than Syracuse, which had eight first-place votes.

Defending national champion Michigan was next with seven first-place votes and 1,415 points, just three ahead of Georgetown, which had four first-place votes.

Arizona, North Carolina, Illinois, Arkansas and Duke rounded out the Top Ten.

Arizona, the No. 1 team in last season's final poll, had one first-place vote, the same number as Arkansas, the seventh and final team to be No. 1 on a ballot.

Missouri was 11th, followed by Louisville, UCLA, Indiana, Temple, Oklahoma, Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, North Carolina State, Minnesota, Oklahoma State, Georgia Tech, Florida, Memphis State and St. John's.

LSU was the highest-ranked team this season not to be ranked in last year's final poll.

Arkansas was the highest ranked team of the six in the poll which were not ranked at any point last season. The others were Pittsburgh, Minnesota, Oklahoma State, Memphis State and St. John's.

Seton Hall, the national runner-up last season, was the highest ranked team from last season not to be included in the preseason voting. The Pirates lost all five starters from last year's team.

Eighth-ranked Illinois and No. 10 Duke were the other members of last season's Final Four, and St. John's was the NIT champion.

Duke was last season's preseason No. 1 and Georgetown, Michigan, North Carolina, Syracuse, Illinois and UNLV were all in the Top Ten.

Oilers take Cincy on last second FG

HOUSTON (AP) — It was the age-old tactic of a team that needs only a field goal to win or tie. Maneuver into position and call a timeout, leaving just enough left on the clock for the kick.

The Houston Oilers were executing perfectly — but the officials forgot to cooperate.

Trailing Cincinnati 24-23 Monday night, the Oilers got the ball at their own 20 with 4 minutes, 48 seconds remaining. The Oilers moved methodically down the field to the Cincinnati 10-yard line, forcing the Bengals to use their final timeouts en route.

With 30 seconds left, the Oilers prepared to set up Tony Zendejas' fourth field goal of the game. Coach Jerry Glanville told quarterback Warren Moon to call a timeout with four seconds remaining.

Referee Dick Hantak's officiating crew didn't believe Moon when he asked for the timeout. The officials thought the Oilers were ahead and were just trying to run out the clock.

"I went up to the official at the end and told him we wanted the clock stopped at four seconds," Moon said. "He asked me 'Do you really want a timeout?' We finally got the clock stopped at two seconds left."

Zendejas took over, kicking the 28-yarder that won the game 26-24.

Earlier, Zendejas had field goals of 32, 42 and 37 yards as the offense continually failed to get touchdowns after special teams had put the Oilers into scoring position.

"I guess the law of averages was working for me," said Zendejas, who earlier this season missed a 41-yarder in overtime against Buffalo in a game that Houston ended up losing.

"The whole season was pretty much riding on this kick so I just had to make it."

If that was the case, it was also riding on the final drive.

Before Moon's 23-yard, fourth-quarter pass to Leonard Harris, the only Houston touchdown had come on Eugene Seale's recovery of a blocked punt in the end zone.

So Moon played on the positive when the Oilers got the ball for the final time with 4:48 left.

"I told them that all we needed was a field goal," Moon said, then went out and proceeded to get one.

His first play was a 20-yard completion down the left sideline to Haywood Jeffires. Then he hit Ernest Givins for 13 more.

Moon faced a third-and-10 after getting Houston to the Cincinnati 47. He was rushed, stepped up in the pocket and then took off, sliding to a halt 10 yards downfield. He just made the first down.

Both teams and everyone in the stadium knew what Moon was doing.

"It was," Moon said, "just a matter of not turning the ball over and being methodical."

7th graders whip Steers

John Klinkinbeard scored on an 88-yard touchdown scamper and Colton Carthel plowed 12 yards for another score as the seventh grade "B" Tigers whipped Big Spring, 16-0, Thursday.

"The whole team played really well," said coach Terrel Harris.

"This was their last game this season and they played a good one."

Dennis Creager added a two-point conversion to the total and Mike McQuery pounced on a Big Spring ball carrier in the end zone for a safety for Snyder.

The "B" teamers finished their season with a record of 4-1-1, having allowed just eight points all season.

The seventh grade "A" team scored a 30-22 victory Thursday against the young Steers.

Ruben Foy blasted for touchdown runs of 88, 75 and 64 yards in the win.

He also recovered a fumble on the defensive side of the football.

Jeremy Wells had a 20 yard scoring run and Lionel Aviles pounced out a pair of two-point conversions for Snyder.

Aviles forced three fumbles defensively. The one recovered by Foy, one recovered by Derek Freeman and one by Wells.

Greg McAden tacked on an interception against Big Spring.

The last contest for the "A" Tigers, who are 4-3, is scheduled for Thursday at Midland Greenwood.

Kick-off is set for 5 p.m.

Chicago man will plead guilty to a slaying in 1960

DALLAS (AP) - A Chicago man arrested in connection with the 1960 shooting death of his former girlfriend says he will plead guilty to the charge.

Robert Lee Mitchell, 64, told reporters upon arrival at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Monday that he will plead guilty and hope the judge realized he has changed in the last 29 years.

"It happened and I'm sorry about it," he said. "Not a day has gone by since then that I didn't think about what happened."

"It was an accident. We were tussling over the gun and it went off," Mitchell said. "I'm sorry it happened, but that's the God's truth."

"But I have changed. My outlook has changed," he said. "I know about the things that mean something to a human being, the real things in life — like God, a family and treating your fellow human being right, doing the best you can."

Mitchell is accused of killing Billie Marie Redmon Phillips in September 1960. He left town and never came back, moving to Chicago where he lived and raised a family as Billy Jackson.

Mitchell has told authorities he took the name Billy intentionally. "She always meant a lot to me; we were together for 12 years," he said.

Mitchell was jailed in the Lew Sterrett Justice Center today in lieu of $100,000 bail on a murder charge.

Prosecutors asked for the high bond because of Mitchell's history.

"He's shown he's pretty good at disappearing," Norm Kinne, first assistant district attorney, said.

Dallas County deputies were searching through some old arrest warrants when they found the one for Mitchell. A check of FBI fingerprint files showed that Jackson had the same prints as Mitchell.

Kinne had said earlier he might have Mitchell indicted under the habitual criminal law, a move that would make a life sentence possible.

But Kinne indicated Monday that he may not do that.

"We still haven't decided for certain," Kinne said. "But we probably won't re-indict him. He hasn't been in too much trouble for the last 28 years."

While living in Chicago, Mitchell married, worked 17 years at a steel mill, and raised five children. He has three grandchildren and worked with others on his block to crusade against drug dealers in the area.

Mitchell said that no one, including his wife, knew about his past until he was arrested earlier this month by the FBI.

"I thought about turning myself in two or three times, but then I thought about the pain it would cause my family. So for that reason I didn't," he said. "I just had to live with this."

"I always did figure they would catch me," he said. "I wasn't running. I lived in just one place. To tell you the truth, I'm glad it's over."

Mitchell, who has not hired a lawyer and did not fight extradition to Texas, says he wants to plead guilty and take the consequences.

Budget feud shaping up as '90 campaign theme

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a campaign slogan, sequestration is not going to make it. Too long, almost a tongue-twister, it is four syllables of bureaucratic jargon. Besides, as one Democrat observed, most voters probably think it is an Olympic event having something to do with horses.

No such luck. What it is is the government code for automatic spending cuts, jargon masking the fact that Congress and the White House haven't managed to put together a budget that fits their own deficit rules.

President Bush has delivered a simple, Republican translation that is likely to be built into the GOP campaign of 1990: "Congress is to blame."

Bush has the better pulpit, but the Democrats aren't about to plead guilty. So the budget feud will become a theme of the contest for House and Senate seats next year, by which time the mess may be worse than it is now.

The sequester system of spending reductions has been in effect for just short of a month, triggered by budget failure. Bush is threatening to leave it in place, unless Congress devises and delivers spending cuts of about $14 billion.

"Sequestration is a drastic action, but neither the administration nor the Congress must flinch from our obligation to keep this nation's deficit moving down and ultimately to reduce the debt," Bush said in self-appraisal of his presidency so far. But they've already flinched — the deficit hasn't been moving down.

The sequester system of spending reductions is part of a process of deadlines and ceilings that are supposed to rein in deficit spending and start trimming it. The automatic cuts that now are in effect, and become more drastic if they stay, are to reduce spending by an estimated $16.1 billion, although the final figure may turn out to be somewhat lower.

Bush now says that unless Congress can slice the deficit by at least $14 billion in a bill that still is being negotiated, he'll veto the bill and leave the automatic cuts in place. "We are prepared to manage the government under sequester," he said.

The president said the bill will have to produce real reductions in red ink without new taxes, without pushing off spending in a fashion that will push the deficit up in future budgets, and without gimmicks.

He didn't define gimmicks, perhaps because the original administration plan for deficit reduction included savings to be realized by pushing up the date of a $3 billion military payroll, and dropping postal costs from the budget numbers.

But there also is an advantage for the administration in keeping the current cuts — Bush must send Congress a new federal budget, for the year beginning Oct. 1, 1990, only two months from now. With the automatic cuts in place at least into the winter months, it will be easier to produce a budget meeting next year's deficit ceiling, $74 billion.

That also would strengthen his hand in opposing future tax increases.

Bush said he still wants to work with the Democrats in Congress for a bipartisan budget settlement that will bring down the deficits, and that politics can wait until the fall of 1990.

But budget pronouncements on both sides are taking on a political edge. "The American people know why this deficit isn't down," Bush said last Tuesday. "They see, 4 to 1, that the Congress is to blame."

It's not a new argument.

When he signed a 1981 debt ceiling bill that pushed the limit past $1 trillion, Ronald Reagan said the measure "can stand as a monument to the policies of the past which brought it about, policies which as of today are reversed."

The government has had to triple the limit since then. Last week, just before a default deadline, Congress passed and Bush signed a bill increasing the debt limit to $3.12 trillion.

Early emergence of Mayan civilization revealed in ruins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jungle-shrouded city of pyramids and temples in Guatemala was built as long ago as 630 B.C., showing that Mayan civilization blossomed about four centuries earlier than believed, scientists say.

The findings may make the ancient city of Nakbe in northern Guatemala one of the oldest in the Americas, researchers said. "It's a very significant discovery," said Arthur Demarest, anthropology chairman at Vanderbilt University in Tennessee.

The University of California, Los Angeles, on Monday announced the findings by archaeologist Richard Hansen and colleagues at UCLA, Utah's Brigham Young University and Guatemala's University of San Carlos.

"We have substantial evidence that this is the earliest Maya urban center ever found," Hansen said. BYU anthropology chairman Donald Forsyth added, "We're now going to have to push the beginning of Maya civilization back further into the past."

Archaeologists once believed advanced Mayan civilization emerged around A.D. 300 and ended 600 years later during what is described as the "classic period." Research conducted during 1978-83 at El Mirador, Guatemala, pushed that date back to 200 B.C.

But in excavating Nakbe, 350 miles north of Guatemala City and not far from El Mirador, Hansen's 50-member team determined that roughly 100 stone pyramids and other buildings were from about 630 B.C. to 400 B.C. So were some of the site's 65,000 pottery pieces, sculptures, figurines and other artifacts.

Dates can be determined by the radioactivity of carbon in organic material associated with buildings. Pottery is dated by comparison with the style of shards from elsewhere in Central America.

"We have from 1000 B.C. to 600 B.C. a small village with wooden buildings," Hansen said by telephone from his home in Rupert, Idaho. "Then all of a sudden — boom! They brought in rock and fill and buried the village and made platforms. On those they placed their buildings."

Hansen said Nakbe's buildings include 35- to 150-foot-tall platforms and flat-topped pyramids, many of which are topped by three small temples and sculpture depicting important gods and kings. The buildings are solid, without interior rooms.

The scale of construction reflects the emergence of an administrative and religious elite to command thousands of workers, Hansen said.

Anthropologist John Graham of the University of California, Berkeley, said an even earlier center of advanced Mayan civilization may be found.

Still, Graham said, the Nakbe study "is part of the most exciting Maya discovery of recent decades."

Man gets life sentence for being habitual criminal

TYLER, Texas (AP) - Texans take their brisket seriously. Steal it and you're going to jail.

A Tyler jury has sentenced a man to life in prison for shoplifting $10.35 worth of the meat of choice for Texas barbecue cooks. It was his ninth felony conviction since 1967 and thus made the offense fall under the habitual criminal statute.

The sentence was assessed Monday for Merwyn Willis Nichols, 49, who had eight previous felony convictions and four misdemeanor convictions.

"I guess they (jurors) figured enough is enough," said Assistant District Attorney Troy Johnson. "You can only give a guy so many chances. You have to draw the line somewhere and they drew the line."

The theft of the brisket from a Brookshire's Food Store would have been classified as a Class C misdemeanor, an offense not punishable by a term in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Johnson said that because of Nichols' repeated convictions over the years, the punishment range was "enhanced" and he faced between 25 to 99 years or life.

It took jurors only 45 minutes to hand down the maximum punishment.

Employees of the grocery store testified that they saw Nichols leaving the store with a package of meat under the back of his shirt last November and informed him he would be held on a felony charge.

They said Nichols told them he "knew the law" and the amount of merchandise was not enough to make it a felony case.

"In his mind, all he's done is commit a Class C misdemeanor," Johnson said. "He thought he could steal a brisket, spend a night in jail, and be on his way."

Testifying in his own behalf, Nichols said he has difficulty holding a regular job.

His prior convictions were for theft, burglaries, forgeries, illegal possession of a firearm and driving while intoxicated, according to court records.

Johnson said that prior to Monday, the stiffest sentence Nichols had received was for eight years.

Nichols will have to serve 15 years before he is eligible for parole, although he could reduce that amount if he earns time off for good behavior while in prison.

Widow's Mementos Are Rich Reminders of Happier Days

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1989 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You recently ran a letter from a widow whose daughters, meaning to be helpful, had gone to her home and cleaned out all the evidence of her deceased husband. As a rather recent widow, may I comment on those who are carrying on without their partners?

It gives me much comfort to have my late husband's pictures around me. I "talk" to them. Yesterday I even scolded him, saying, "You know I hate being alone. Why aren't you here to help me?"

I am always pleased when I see my young adult son wearing one of his father's good shirts. (He wore his dad's favorite tie at his recent graduation.) If all those things had been given away, I would miss reliving so many happy memories.

My husband was an avid sailor and had many books on sailing. Had I given them to a rummage sale, they would have meant nothing. I gave them as gifts to his sailing friends who treasure them, knowing they came from a real sailing expert. His notes and comments scribbled in the margin enhanced their value. Even an old dish that was his is on my desk holding paper clips and rubber bands. Why should I discard useful objects because they were his and he is gone?

It's true, those things can be painful reminders, but one way to get over the pain is to keep a few familiar things around to remind me of good times.

Thanks for listening, Abby. My husband died at 52, too soon.

GERALDINE IN HONOLULU

DEAR GERALDINE: Thank you for a poignant letter. When one partner leaves a loving partnership, it's always "too soon." My condolences. Carry on, brave lady.

DEAR ABBY: I was in the restaurant business in Monroe, La., during the Depression as well as during inflation.

People used to complain about the high cost of eating out. I am enclosing one of our counter menus just to give you an idea of what the prices were like in 1933.

Notice the "special lunch"—meat, potatoes and a vegetable cost a dime. A piece of pie (any pie in the place) cost a nickel. You could get a jumbo cup of coffee and three doughnuts for a nickel. In comparison with today's prices, they had nothing to complain about.

I am now 87 years old, and people are still complaining about how expensive everything is. I guess some things never change.

Please use my name — I'd love to hear from somebody else who lived during the Depression days.

PETER P. BOORAS,
ROCK ISLAND, ILL.

DEAR PETER: In 1933 people were lucky to be eating — never mind eating "out."

DEAR READERS: Did you know that ...

- The number of people who die from cigarette smoking every day in this country is equivalent to two full jumbo jets crashing with no survivors?
- The cigarette industry needs to recruit 1,000 new smokers each day to replace the 1,000 who die from smoking each day?
- The cigarette industry spends $7 million in advertising per day?
- 2,400 non-smokers die in the United States each year from involuntary smoke?
- There are more deaths from smoking each year in the United States than there are from AIDS, heroin, crack, cocaine, alcohol, fire, murders and car accidents combined?

It's true. Please, do not miss my column tomorrow.

Rebels continue to advance

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas waging war against the government today declared parts of the country "liberated territory" and a resident said rebels in a northern neighborhood advanced to new positions.

The government rejected the rebels' claims. "The situation is almost totally under control of the army," said Miguel Salavarría, El Salvador's ambassador to the United States.

A rebel communique said guerrillas had liberated parts of eight of the country's 14 provinces. It said people's governments would be established in them.

A resident of the Zacamil neighborhood, one of the northern sectors rebels held part of on Monday, said by telephone that the rebels were advancing and taking up new positions closer to military installations.

Thousands of residents were trapped after combat intensified Monday night between rebels and the government, whose jets and helicopter gunships rocketed rebel positions in poor neighborhoods.

At least 305 people have been killed in the fighting that has paralyzed the capital since Saturday night, when the leftist guerrillas mounted their largest offensive of the 10-year-old civil war.

Civilian casualties were high in the capital as government troops and rebels exchanged gunfire in densely populated districts. Along a wide arc on San Salvador's northern fringe, rebels installed themselves in homes and apartments and put snipers in church towers and tall buildings. People in rebel-held areas said food and water were in short supply.

Fighting intensified Monday night in northeastern San Salvador when rebels attacked the San Benito national police battalion near the military headquarters.

Sporadic gunfire and explosions could be heard this morning.

"We came down from the mountains and we're going to stay here," a guerrilla who identified himself only as Porfirio said earlier Monday. "We're winning so far and we have their morale down."

He gestured with his AK-47 assault rifle toward soldiers in the distance.

"The combat is hard, the boys (guerrillas) are in all the high buildings and control the movement of the soldiers," said a rescue worker with the Salvadoran Red Cross.

The U.S. Embassy said Monday that 86 soldiers, 202 guerrillas and 17 civilians had been killed — a total of 305. Its count of 373 wounded included 189 soldiers, 96 rebels and 88 civilians.

Morgues reported 51 civilian killed. Hospital workers said more than 220 civilians were wounded in the capital.

The military said Monday night that at least 67 soldiers and 127 guerrillas had been killed.

Worker's comp issue who defend injured workers, and consumer groups wanting tougher penalties against unsafe employers have weighed in against the Hobby plan.

The plan would limit jury trials in disputed benefits claims and establish specific awards for permanent disabilities, regardless of the impact that injury might have on an individual worker.

Richard Smith, the House leader on workers' comp, blasted trial lawyers.

"Any individual who opposes Lt. Gov. Hobby on this important issue is choosing the self-interest of the Texas trial lawyers over the economic recovery of Texas," Smith, R-Bryan, said.

Joe Woods, executive director of the Texas Trial Lawyers Association, said Smith was trying to politicize the issue. "That's been the song that Smith has been singing for a year and a half, so I'm not surprised he's singing the same verse today."

But Smith and Lewis refused to support the second part of Hobby's package, which calls for mandatory comp coverage by 1995 for businesses with four or more employees, self-insurance of large firms and discounts for safe employers and penalties against unsafe employers.

The second part of the package also would overhaul the insurance pool set aside for companies that are unable to purchase comp coverage on the open market.

"I'm not here today to address insurance reform, I'm here today on the question of benefit delivery which is the crisis that we have to deal with," Smith said.

Lewis also said there was no reason for insurance reform and he accused groups that support an alternate proposal by Sens. Kent Caperton and Carl Parker of selling out to trial lawyers.

Hobby said the Legislature could pass one bill without the insurance reform.

The Caperton-Parker bill calls for stiffer penalties against unsafe employers, a 15 percent rate rollback in workers' comp premiums and tighter controls over the insurance industry. Benefits also would be based on lost wage-earning capacity rather than an impairment schedule, and the plan wouldn't limit jury trials to the extent Hobby's bill does.

East German lawmakers are now favoring free elections

BERLIN (AP) — In a session of unprecedented liveliness, East German lawmakers long subservient to the Communist leadership voted by secret ballot for the first time and endorsed opposition calls for free elections.

Some deputies meeting Monday — four days after authorities began letting their people flow freely through the Berlin Wall — even called for stripping the constitution of a clause that designates the country "socialist."

In the secret ballot, the parliamentarians chose a non-Communist as their speaker. They also elected a new premier, Communist reformer Hans Modrow, who immediately called for a true coalition government.

The state-run ADN news agency reported Modrow's gesture without specifying who the Dresden party chief — the ruling Communists' choice for premier — is willing to include in the Cabinet he will now form.

East Germany has several non-Communist parties that have traditionally marched in lockstep with the Communists but are now increasingly asserting their independence in Parliament.

It also has a burgeoning opposition movement whose supporters have taken to the streets by the hundreds of thousands since early October to demand an end to one-party rule and stifling state authority.

Powering the whirlwind of reform, hundreds of thousands of demonstrators around the country again took to the streets on Monday, shouting anti-Communist slogans and demanding an end to the party's monopoly on power.

The new Communist leader,

Egon Krenz, has pledged to honor demands for free elections but without laying out details or setting a date.

Late Monday, the embattled Communist leadership set an emergency party congress in East Berlin for Dec. 15-17. The congress has the power to change the entire party leadership and fundamentally change party policy.

In Leipzig, about 300,000 people paraded through the streets in what has become a Monday night ritual, chanting "We are the people!"

ministration building. The old display station will be put in operation at the high school counselor's office.

Business Manager Lee McNair was instructed by the board to begin soliciting bids for a 16 by 20-foot restroom facility, to be constructed near the junior high tennis courts. In a Friday afternoon workshop, Lawton Taylor, maintenance director, estimated the cost at roughly $12,500.

Assistant Superintendent Tom Scannichio briefly reviewed a 218-page 1989-90 Annual Performance Report with the board, which gave its formal approval.

In addition to approving minutes and paying bills, the board was informed that the school would ask the city to put up 20-mile per hour school zone signs around the high school. A check with the city determined that the area had been approved for the signs in 1967.

Board members present were Billy Bob McMullan, Mike Jordan, Luann Burleson, Terry Martin, Sam Robertson and Ann Walton. Ygnacio Benitez was absent.

Local charged with car theft

An 18-year-old Snyder man was arrested for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and on several misdemeanor charges at 8:17 p.m. Monday at 32nd St. and Ave. V.

Don R. Constancio of 1600 27th St. was being held on the UUMV charge, a felony, and for DWI, evading arrest, resisting arrest, not having a driver's license or liability insurance and being a minor in possession of alcohol.

Constancio allegedly tried to escape from the police sergeant who stopped him and then wrestled with the officer as he was being put into the patrol car.

Police said Constancio was being sought because a woman told them he had threatened her at 8:04 p.m. in the 1600 Block of 27th.

The 1973 Buick he was driving belonged to Bobby Griffith of 3202 Ave. V, who had come home from work at 5:30 p.m. and been told by his step-daughter that Constancio had taken the car, officers said.

Two juvenile boys whose ages were not reported were in the car and were arrested for being minors in possession of alcohol.

Constancio was being held at the county jail in lieu of a total of $3,000 in bonds.

Tire stolen

Police are investigating the theft of a spare tire from a pickup truck belonging to Keven Low of 3781 Sunset Ave.

Low reported the theft at 3:09 p.m. Monday.

Three wrecks are reported

Police investigated three minor traffic accidents Monday, the first at 9:17 a.m. in the 2400 Block of Ave. Q, where a 1976 Chevrolet Impala driven by Ann G. Guzman of 2308 Ave. N was in collision with a 1975 Buick driven by Macie Taylor of Rt. 3.

A 1979 Chevrolet driven by Agatha Lochabay of 404 33rd St. hit a parked 1984 Chevrolet Suburban attended by Johnny Irons of 2903 Ave. W at 5:19 p.m. Monday in the Furr's supermarket parking lot off College Ave.

A 1986 Lincoln driven by Gregory Robinson of 2718 48th St. hit a guard post around a fire hydrant at 5:21 p.m. Monday in the 1500 Block of 40th St.

The investigating officer said a city water department official was notified of the accident so that the hydrant could be checked for damages.

Firemen

reported the fire after going outside and then noticing smoke coming out of the garage.

Seven regular firemen and 21 volunteers in six trucks responded to the call and returned to the station at 7:20 p.m.

"Our main problem was to keep it from coming down out of the attic into the rest of the house," the fire chief said. "It could have been a lot worse."

One of the volunteer firemen said gunpowder for re-loading rifle, pistol and shotgun cartridges had been moved from the garage to another house before the fire but that firefighters were concerned throughout the emergency about cartridges in a garage cabinet that kept exploding.

McDowell said there was another fire inside the same house "two or three years ago," before Mr. and Mrs. Palmer moved there last year, in which a heater caught a bathroom wall on fire and a woman in a wheelchair was in danger of smoke inhalation.

That fire was a relatively minor incident, however, he said.

McDowell had gone to a 2:40 p.m. grass fire in a pasture two miles south of Dunn and was returning from there when the house fire call came in. "They had it mostly knocked down when I got there," he said.

Firemen returned from the Dunn grass fire at 4 p.m.

In each advertisement on this page you will find the contestants in a prominent football game being played around the country this weekend. On the entry blank at the bottom of the page, fill in your selection of the WINNING TEAM only...opposite the name of the business firm on the entry blank. Then clip out the entry blank and send it to FOOTBALL CONTEST EDITOR, Snyder Daily News, Box 949, or bring it by the news office at 3600 College Ave. Entries must be in the hands of the editor by 5:00 p.m. Friday. Games ending in a tie must be specified as a tie or else it will be considered a miss.

To avoid splitting the prize money a TIE-BREAKER slot will be provided on each entry blank. Pick the total points of the score for that game and in case of a tie the one who picks the winner and the nearest number of total points will receive the prize money. The same formula will apply to second and third place winners. In the case of a perfect score, the formula would apply for that cash prize.

There will be fun for the entire family. Only one entry blank will be permitted for any one person. More than one will disqualify all that person's entries. Entries must be on the official entry blank (No Copies Please). Scores listed on the entry blank will have no bearing except in the case of the tie-breaker. Sign your entry blank and list your address and phone number and watch for the winner's story in next Tuesday's SDN. Employees of the SDN and their families are not eligible to enter.
