

Local wins SAF Leadership Award

Secretary of the Air Force Edward C. "Pete" Aldridge, Jr., presents the Secretary of the Air Force Leadership Award to Capt. Ted Knowles.

Captain Ted Knowles, wing executive support officer, was honored at Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala. May 19 when he received a Secretary of the Air Force Leadership Award. Secretary of the Air Force Edward C. Aldridge, Jr. presented the award which recognizes individuals in Air University's professional military schools.

Captain Knowles received his award for his performance during the eight and one-half week Squadron Officer School course. Of the most outstanding students from each of the five SOS classes conducted during the past year, he was selected as the best of this elite group. In addition, he was both a distinguished graduate and the winner of the Commandant's Trophy for his class. He was chosen outstanding graduate among the some 4,000 Air Force and international company grade officers who attended SOS during the year.

Captain Knowles attended SOS in the January-March 1986 class. He described his experiences there as being very beneficial to his career. The course brought people from a variety of backgrounds, career fields and MAJCOMs together. "It gave me the opportunity to look at the Air Force from different perspectives," he said.

"Teamwork, not just academics, was very important during the course," he added. "You have to work with others when doing problem solving scenarios. Because I get along well with people, it was easier for me to participate with and motivate others to reach a goal." That, along with his "do the best you can at whatever you do" theory of success, made him a standout among his peers while at SOS.

Captain Knowles has been a vital part of the Reese team for the past six years. After graduating from the Air Force Academy in 1981, he came to Reese for UPT and was chosen to return as a T-37 instructor pilot. Since then, he has been a flight scheduler, a check pilot, a Standardization/Evaluation flight examiner and a flight commander. He received the Wing IP of the Year Award in 1984.

Captain Knowles is scheduled to go to the Pentagon in October under the Air Staff Training (ASTRA) Program where he will be working with the Air Force budget.

Forms now available

Deadline for dental program nears

Air Force families have less than 30 days to decide if they want to participate in the new Dependent Dental Insurance Plan. The deadline is June 30.

The Defense Department's Active-duty Dependents Dental Insurance Plan begins Aug. 1. It is a voluntary program offering basic dental care for the families of active-duty service people.

Civilian dentists will provide the care, with the government and service people sharing the cost.

Eligible families are automatically enrolled unless they decline before June 30. Those not wanting to participate in the insurance plan must get a disenrollment form, DD Form 2494, from the CBPO Customer Service Unit or at the Unit Orderly Room. The form must be returned to the personnel office before Thursday, June 30.

CHAMPUS sent letters explaining the dental plan to all service people. Everyone, including single people and others not currently eligible, should receive a letter.

In some of the letters, there was an error in reference to officers eligibility. Most officers with less than six months retainability and less than four years active duty were told they are not eligible; this is in error. All officers, except overseas accompanied by dependents, regardless of retainability, are eligible for the program. These officers will be automatically enrolled unless they disenroll. Also, a letter was sent to all Air Force members regardless of marital status or the absence of dependents. This is for information in the event they acquire dependents at a later date. If no dependents are reflected on their DEERS file, they will not be enrolled in the program.

Initially, members overseas were told they would not be automatically enrolled. However, we have been able to ensure that members assigned overseas unaccompanied whose dependents are in CONUS, will be automatically enrolled. This will pick up unaccompanied members at remote locations and members serving long overseas tours unaccompanied who have dependents in CONUS.

If a member disenrolls during the initial implementation phase but desires to enroll later, he/she can enroll at any time. However, members who initially enroll may only disenroll later for the following reasons:

- They are within 90 days after a PCS move,
- Spouse/children become eligible for dental benefits by an employer,
- Loss of all family members due to divorce, death, or change in eligibility,
- Other locally determined administrative errors.

The above disenrollment reasons can be retroactively updated to allow reimbursement of premiums paid effective the date of change, such as members date arrived station is 870812 and disenrolls 870930, effective day for disenrollment is 870812.

The recent pamphlet distributed by CHAMPUS to each active duty member entitled "New dental plan for active duty dependents" is in error.

Dependent Dental Insurance will cost $3.93 a month for one dependent, and $7.86 a month for two or more dependents. Finance offices will deduct the monthly cost from paychecks beginning in July.

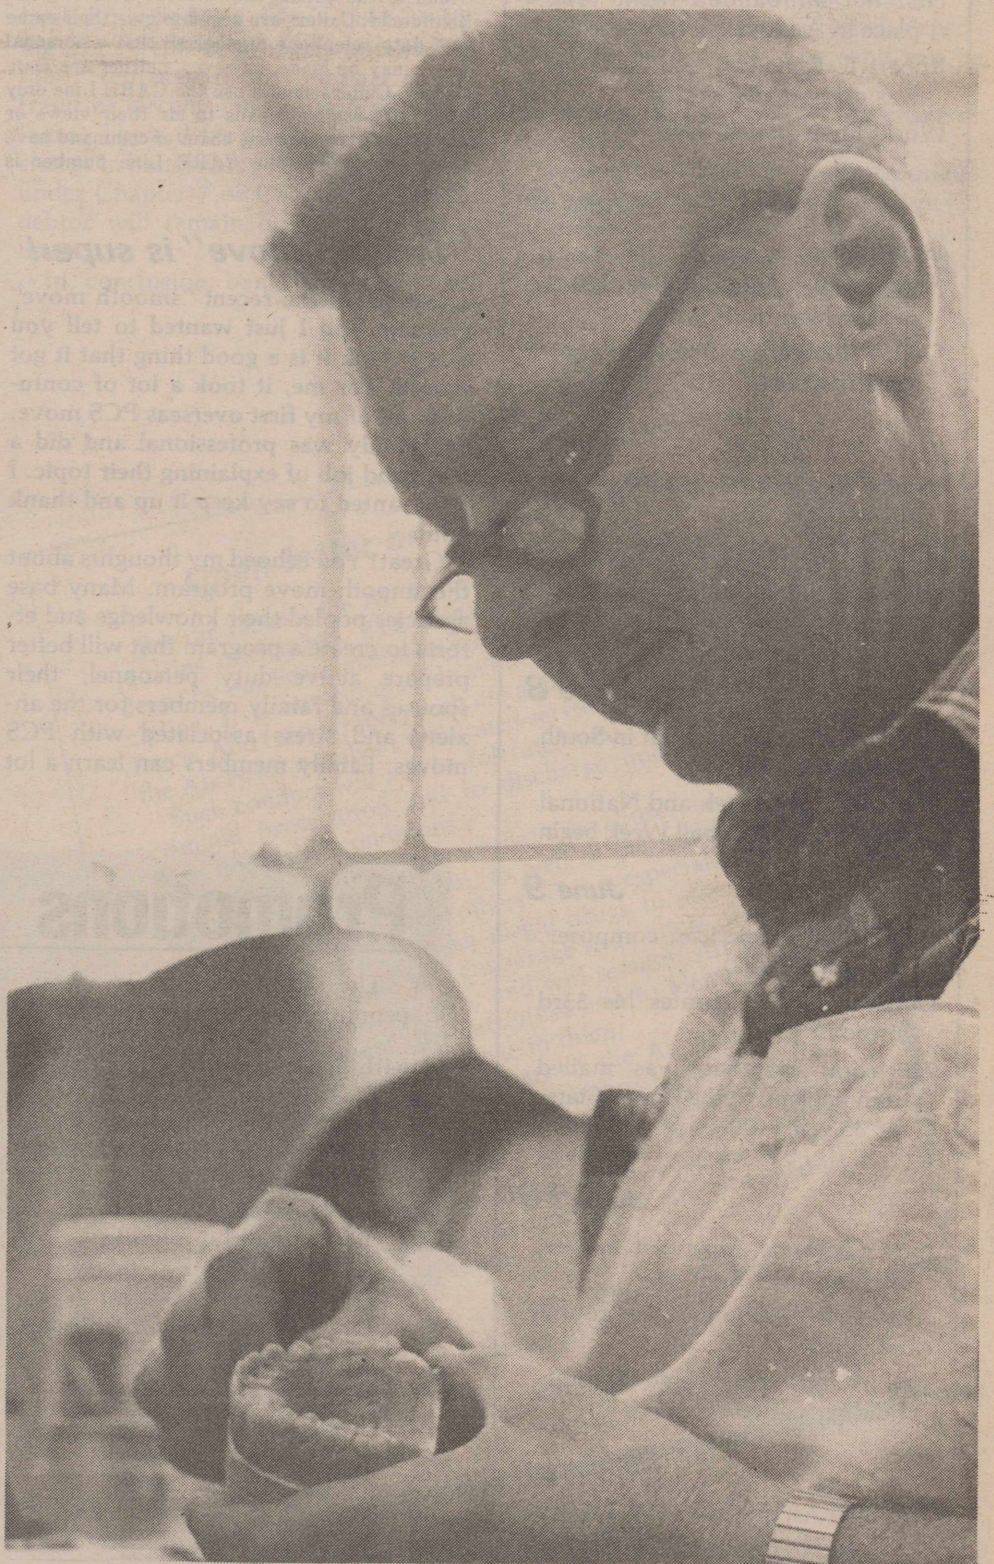

Active-duty family members must be living in the states, Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands to be eligible. The families of first termers are eligible if the sponsor has at least two years remaining of active duty. However, during the initial enrollment period, first-term families are eligible if the sponsor has at least six months remaining on active duty.

The insurance plan covers the full cost of routine exams, dental x-rays, teeth cleaning and polishing, fluoride treatment, space maintainers, and minor emergency treatment for pain.

The plan covers 80 percent of the cost of fillings, stainless steel or plastic crowns for baby teeth, and repairs to dentures.

Dental care such as braces, extractions, root canals, new dentures and crowns are not covered under the plan.

The list of civilian dentists participating in the plan will soon be available through Health Benefits Advisors. Delta Dental Plan of California is the insurer.

As I see it

Congratulations Reese, and thanks

As George Bernard Shaw once wrote to a close friend, "I have taken the time to write a short note."

The opportunities that I have had over the past nearly two years to express my views weekly in the Roundup, to say what's on my mind, and hopefully pat a few of the many special Reese people on the back, is too rapidly coming to an end. I figure three or four more chances at most.

Frankly, I have cherished these chances to get the word out "as I see it," and have, after 100 weeks straight, become quite accustomed to them. So as I consider the week past, perhaps the proudest that Karen and I have experienced at Reese, I'm now grappling with how to pass on a Wing Commander's view of a special community of pros who once again rallied to make Reese shine as never before.

Once again, so many of you deserve special recognition for your efforts on several fronts—a superbly organized General and Mrs. Shaud's visit, the best Civilian Awards Banquet in the history of the Air Force, and a flawless ceremony moved on short-notice to Hangar 82 due to lousy weather, during which this Wing celebrated its receipt of the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award. Then the Marines demonstrated how a vertical takeoff and landing Harrier can run out of room on 10,000 feet of Air Force runway, and Friday mother nature blew two twisters south to north not more than a mile or so west. The response to each of these circumstances was likewise superb. The Reese TEAM...proving it again. If anyone ever questioned the substance of our people—or why Reese has earned its reputation for excellence—the answer became manifest in spades, in so many visible ways, in the span of the one week past.

For all these tremendous accomplishments, to cite a few folks in this article—so constrained by space—would do injustice to the hundreds that I personally know deserve credit. Who was it that said, "A truly outstanding unit achieves its potential because those in it forget about who gets the credit."? Somebody smart, I'd say. Certainly we all saw this throughout last week at Reese in all of our special activities, but no better typified than when Airman Basic Musselman knocked on my door Sunday afternoon to say that he and his OMS buddies from the dorm (SrA. Starnes, A1Cs' Barnett, Paalman, Puckett, Serrao, Snyder and Airmen Berg, Black, Clark and Goff) had volunteered to assist at the tornado sight, had been out there on Saturday, and hoped it was okay to go again on Sunday. Few things speak better about our troops than that if you ask me.

Such involvement is what makes Reese special—everyday. So, with regard to ALL that happened here last week, let me simply say in brief—like George Bernard Shaw's "short letter":

Thank you all for busting your tails last week. You deserve to know that General and Mrs. Shaud left tremendously impressed with Reese and especially its proud people, both military and civilian. The attention that you pay to your daily mission was evident everywhere, in every shop on and off the flightline. Perhaps General Shaud said it all when he said, "Your nation has asked that you train the best pilots in the world—and you are clearly doing that, very, very well."

Wing Ding revisited— Let's do it up right on June 15

A community of winners like you 3,000 deserves another shot at a real picnic and celebration that hopefully will be blessed by good weather. We've saved all the food, school will be out, and the new picnic area will hopefully have a chance to dry out. I'm declaring June 15 a down day at Reese, a fitting occasion to cut the ribbon officially at the park, and a second chance to pull off the Wing Ding that—AS I SEE IT—this great Wing deserves following the awarding of the AIR FORCE OUTSTANDING UNIT AWARD.

Care line

The CARE Line is prepared by Col. James McIntyre, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the CARE Line only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARE Line number is 885-(Ext.) 3273.

"Smooth move" is super!

I attended the recent "smooth move" program and I just wanted to tell you that I think it is a good thing that it got started. For me, it took a lot of confusion out of my first overseas PCS move. Everybody was professional and did a real good job of explaining their topic. I just wanted to say keep it up and thank you!

Great! You echoed my thoughts about the smooth move program. Many base agencies pooled their knowledge and efforts to create a program that will better prepare active duty personnel, their spouses and family members for the anxiety and stress associated with PCS moves. Family members can learn a lot that will make their next PCS move easier. Thanks for your call.

Hazardous chuck hole

There is a chuck hole about 10 feet long between Bldg. 89 and Hangar 92. I'm not sure who is in charge of getting this repaired but the hole is getting bigger with each rainfall. I'm concerned because it could present an increased FOD problem on the flight line and it could cause damage to vehicles. Thank you.

Thanks for your attention and concern. The hole has been patched with a temporary fix—it had been called in by the hangar 92 folks earlier. The problem will be fixed permanently in October when CE has an in-house road replacement project scheduled.

Thanks Housing staff!

For nearly five years I have worked cleaning quarters in Reese Village for and with the Housing Office staff, during good and bad times. They have always been courteous, understanding and helpful and have always answered my questions.

I've heard many complaints that the inspectors are too rigid and "knit-picky." Believe me, the inspectors are doing a thankless job trying to bend one way for the people cleaning quarters and still have the quarters up to satisfactory standards for the people moving in. I have found the inspections the easiest part of my job and always consistent. I thank the people working in the Housing Office. It has been a pleasure to work with you.

It's always a pleasure to receive a call of this type. I join you in saluting the Base Housing Inspectors for a hard job well done! Thanks for the call.

Varsity sports—treat equally

I played on the Reese men's varsity basketball team and now on the men's softball team. When the basketball team went out of town, they received per diem and the gym staff paid for billeting. The softball team gets per diem but has to pay for their own billeting. Why don't all varsity teams get treated equally?

They do. All varsity and intramural sports are treated in a fair, equitable manner. The explanation for the situation you describe is that the whole MWR budget Air Force-wide has been cut drastically since the basketball season. Now, the money to support TDY and billeting costs is just not available for any sport. Thanks for your call.

Commander's Column

Can we continue to do more with less?

by Colonel Donald J. McCullough
Deputy Commander for Resources

An article in the latest edition of the Air Force Comptroller magazine had an interesting acronym—it was TANSTAFL. You aren't any different than I was if your first thought was, "I've never heard of it!" It stood for "There ain't no such thing as a free lunch!"

In light of all the news we've read recently about budget cuts, manpower cuts, and less funding for civilian salaries, it is an acronym that has found its time. It would appear that the military will be faced with the dilemma of doing more with less in the future.

You might ask yourself "can we answer the challenge again?" I believe we can. As we continue with our routine order of business—constant trade-offs, difficult choices, and above all, continuous prioritization of projects and purchases to determine which will be funded, it will take the involvement and commitment of everyone of us to continue to do our respective jobs smarter, better, and more efficiently. Our track record with the Model Installation Program attests to our success in the past. However, one area would suggest that we have room to improve—this is our Reports of Survey Program.

So far this year, we have lost or damaged Air Force assets worth several thousands of dollars. This is really not a great deal of money when you consider our annual budget, which is in the millions, but when we are looking for savings, it could be important. The common thread running through the incidents that have caused our losses has been carelessness or the exercise of poor judgment. Although we were able to recoup part of the monetary losses we have experienced, that money was lost for our local use.

Remember TANSTAFL! Each of us can make a difference by exercising caution, taking a little more time to do things right the first time, and by judiciously guarding our resources and equipment against loss.

If we continue to gain efficiencies, guard against unnecessary accidents or losses, and use what assets we have wisely, we really can do more with less. Help us accept the challenge we have—but remember—there ain't no such thing as a free lunch!

We must continue to pursue our quest for excellence in our routine day-to-day activities and at the same time guard against these unnecessary losses.

Bankruptcy: outlining the details

In the previous articles, the pros and cons of filing bankruptcy under Chapter 7 and Chapter 13 were discussed. In previous articles the terms "empty property" and "non-dischargeable debt" were used. This article will discuss these two terms and the effect they have on an individual's bankruptcy.

Exempt property is that which is exempt from being sold to satisfy an individual's debts or a judgment. This category of property is established by federal and state statutes and sometimes, as in Texas, by constitutional provision. The idea of exempt property is misunderstood because it is not exempt for all purposes. For example, in Texas, a debtor's homestead is exempt property under a constitutional provision. This means a creditor may not force a debtor in Texas to sell his home and use the money to repay the creditors. However, a debtor could still lose his home because it is not exempt from sale to pay a tax lien, a purchase money lien, or a mechanic's and materialman's lien. Similarly, a Chapter 7 bankruptcy does not relieve the debtor of the requirement of making payments on his home after the discharge is granted.

A Chapter 13 bankruptcy will not affect a debtor's payments on his home if the sale agreement is longer than five years.

Under bankruptcy law the debtor may choose to use the exempt property rules of the bankruptcy code or of the state where he is a resident and where he files the petition. Each state's exempt property rules are different and the state where an individual files his bankruptcy is one of the most important considerations in the bankruptcy process.

Texas has one of the most liberal lists of exempt property. In Texas 100 percent of the home is exempt from execution as are some types of insurance and retirement benefits (note: IRAs, Keough Plans, and military retirement are not exempt). Household furnishings, passenger cars (not used to produce income), professional books and/or tools, and current wages for personal services are exempt up to $30,000 for a family or $15,000 for a single adult. The exempt property rules under the Bankruptcy Code are not as favorable to a debtor as those established in Texas.

All the same, a discharge under Chapter 7 or an approved plan under Chapter 13, there are certain debts which are not (and cannot be) discharged by a bankruptcy court. Among the debts not discharged are certain federal, state, and customs taxes (including Federal and State income taxes); child support, separate maintenance, and alimony payments; debts not listed in the petition (called unsecured debts); debts resulting from credit or property obtained by false representation, embezzlement, fraud or larceny, and certain education loans. These debts will survive the discharge in bankruptcy whether it is issued under Chapter 7 or Chapter 13 and the debtor will remain obligated to repay them.

In conclusion, bankruptcy, like marriage, is not to be entered into lightly, without preparation and thought. Some debts are not discharged regardless of whether the debtor files a Chapter 7 or Chapter 13 petition and there are many detrimental effects to filing a bankruptcy, first of which is the probable inability of the debtor to obtain credit for six to ten years after the petition is filed.

Anyone experiencing major financial problems is encouraged to try to work these problems out individually, through their squadron, the legal assistance officer or the comptroller, before filing for bankruptcy. An individual thinking about bankruptcy should contact a knowledgeable civilian attorney experienced in bankruptcy law, and can be certain that the attorney briefs him on all aspects of a bankruptcy, negative or positive.

Bankruptcy is not the "painless, quick-fix cure" that many people have been led to believe, it should only be done as a last resort after all other avenues of relief have been explored and exhausted.

Fund Raising reminder

by 2nd Lt. Todd A. Bowetz
Legal Office

During the spring and summer months, many local organizations hold fund-raising activities. Such activities may include bake sales, carnivals, and the like.

These fund raisers can benefit civilian and or military charitable organizations as well as projects for the Air Force that in turn benefit the military community. If your club is planning a fund raising activity, one of the first steps is to obtain the permission of the base commander.

To do this, your squadron orderly room has the necessary forms to obtain permission from the legal office, and the Base Commander's Office. Also, if the sale of a food item is involved, permission must be obtained from Environmental Health.

Proposals should be submitted in writing, with a description of the purpose, nature, and extend of the activity each and every time you wish to conduct the activity, even though the same or similar activity has been conducted in the past. You will receive a written response to your request.

If you have any questions concerning fund raising, please contact your squadron orderly room, or the legal office, 3505.

Investing in the future

"As summer approaches it brings with it a superb opportunity for everyone at Reese to make an investment in their future," said Maj. Bill Rice, U.S. Savings Bond Drive Project Officer. The 1987 U.S. Savings Bond Campaign will be conducted the entire month of June.

U.S. Savings bonds offer individuals both military and civilian a convenient, dependable means of building toward a secure financial future, said Major Rice.

Benefits of investing in Series EE Savings Bonds include:

Guaranteed Competitive Earnings: Savings Bonds earn variable market based interest, just like money market accounts.

Great tax benefits: There are no state or local taxes on the interest earned from Savings Bonds and federal income tax is deferred until they are cashed or mature.

Complete Security: Savings Bonds are issued and fully backed by the U.S. Government.

Easy to buy: Payroll deduction is available to regularly purchase Savings Bonds.

Affordable and flexible: Savings Bonds are available in eight denominations, from $50 to $10,000.

Strengthen America's economy: Savings Bonds increase savings and reduce the cost of financing the public debt.

"U.S. Savings Bonds are indeed 'the great American investment.' I encourage everyone to talk to their representative and seriously consider the advantages of Savings Bonds. U.S. Savings Bonds, like the people at Reese, are winners!" Major Rice said.

Open letter on drug abuse

For the record, the Air Force policy on drug abuse remains unchanged. The illegal or improper use of drugs by Air Force members is a serious breach of discipline. It is not compatible with service in the Air Force. And furthermore, such use automatically places the Air Force member's continued service in jeopardy. Such conduct will not be tolerated and can lead to criminal prosecution and to discharge under other than honorable conditions.

This policy reflects the fact that drug abusers jeopardize the Air Force mission, as well as the health and safety of themselves and others. This is especially true of those few who furnish illegal drugs to others, or otherwise promote and encourage drug abuse among Air Force members. It is, and will remain, Air Force policy to prevent these activities and to identify and discipline those who engage in them.

While rehabilitation is part of the Air Force drug abuse control program, the primary purpose of the program is the prevention of all drug abuse in the Air Force. To that end it has been very effective; drug abuse rates have fallen dramatically over the last decade. The Air Force will continue to strive toward its goal of zero drug abuse.

Enlisted golf tourney

The NCO Academy Graduates Association and Noncommissioned Officers Association hosts its first ever Enlisted Open Golf scramble tomorrow at the Reese Golf Course. Registration and green fee is $15 per person.

Registration begins at 7 a.m., followed by tee off at 8 a.m. Top prize includes a 1987 Nissan pickup for a hole-in-one on the third hole. In addition, refreshments will be available. Call 3817 to sign up.

Releasing information: A timely reminder

SCENARIO: A quick stop at a convenient grocery store on your way home from work, still in uniform, brings you face to face with a representative of the local media: "What is your opinion on Air Force policy..." you are asked.

"You may be asked at anytime or anyplace to represent the Air Force by the media or community. Remembering a few basic guidelines will prevent problems from occurring later on," said 2nd Lt. Cecily Christian, Deputy Chief of Public Affairs.

"If you are approached by members of the media or community and asked to be a spokesperson for the Air Force, you must contact the Public Affairs office for guidance," Lieutenant Christian said.

Air Force Regulation 190-1 clearly states the procedures for releasing information; and who may make a release.

Paragraph 3-4A reads: "The command is responsible for releasing information to the public. Even though information is unclassified or has been cleared by security review...it cannot be given to the public unless the commander, or the commander's authorized Public Affairs Representative, approves it for that purpose."

Paragraph 1-17 reads: "...specifically, each member of the Air Force is responsible for getting the necessary review and clearance (through the base or organization Public Affairs Office) before releasing any proposed written or spoken statement, or taking any action that involves an issue of public concern."

According to Air Force Officials, photographs or video shot off base, while off duty is personal and individuals may do with it whatever they like. If material is shot on base or while on duty, release of that material outside of the Air Force is against Air Force directives.

"It is very important that accurate information be released and it is the responsibility of the Public Affairs Office to insure accuracy," Lieutenant Christian said. "A Public Affairs representative can be reached 24 hours a day, if a situation arises during non-duty hours. The Command Post can put you in touch with a member of the Public Affairs staff," she added.

Individuals may not release information such as photographs, video or observations to the local media, even if the event was covered by civilian news media representatives without following the procedures outlined in Air Force Regulation 190-1, Lieutenant Christian cautioned.

If you have questions concerning the media, contact the Public Affairs Office, 3410 or the base command post.

Many get private line

by Mr. Von McLaughlin
1958th Communications Squadron

General Telephone Electric of the Southwest (GTE) recently completed an upgrade in the telephone cable system to the dormitories, resulting in improved services to the dorm residences.

Prior to the upgrade, there was a long waiting period for phones, and some airmen could not even get a phone. Several of the phones had two lines coming off the same cable pair, resulting in call interruptions. The upgrade will allow more phone lines to be placed at the dormitories and establish more private lines for the airmen living there.

The new cables have been run directly from the Hurlwood substation, across War Highway.

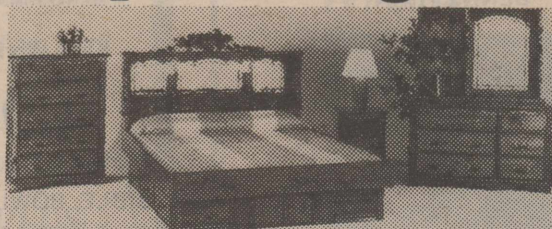

Johnny Todd (right), a GTE cable splicer, and Von McLaughlin, 1958th Comm. Squadron, completes a cable splice for increased services to Dormitories 220, 320 and 420.

Teamwork makes Reese great

Lieutenant Gen. John Shaud, commander, ATC, visited Reese last week to present the 64th Flying Training Wing with its second Air Force Outstanding Unit Award in the past six years, Thursday morning and to be the featured guest speaker at Wednesday's Civilian Award Banquet.

After an early Wednesday morning arrival, General Shaud spent most of the duty day visiting personnel in their work areas and shaking hands with most of them. "I know I met every one of you," the general stated Wednesday evening. "I was prepared for the 'Spirit of Reese' before my arrival, but that 'Spirit' really struck me as the day went on," he stated. The general expressed the opinion that things have gotten better at Reese over the years since he went through pilot training.

General Shaud congratulated the men and women of Reese for the sustained hard work that resulted in the Outstanding Unit Award that he presented. He discussed the philosophy behind the success of the Model Installation Program initiatives saying, "The people who do the work are accountable (for its completion) and they know best how to do it. You know it (as shown by your implemented MIP suggestions), I know it, and slowly my command headquarters is beginning to know it."

On other topics, General Shaud expressed concern about a possible reduction in force a year or two from now. "The Air Force is getting smaller," because of Congressionally mandated strength limits, "I see fewer people on the parade field at Lackland (for a BMT graduation)," he concluded.

Looking ahead, General Shaud sees a dual track coming into being in the 1990 time frame. Student pilots who complete the T-37 phase successfully will remain here to continue training in a "business jet" if they qualify as multi-engine pilots or will leave for another base to fly the T-38 if they are selected to fly fighter, attack, reconnaissance aircraft. In the mid 1990s he foresees the T-37 being replaced, but the T-38 will continue into the early 2000s.

Col. Ramon Broerman, Deputy Commander for Maintenance, greets Lt. Gen. John A. Shaud during his visit to Reese last week. (USAF Photos)

General Shaud expressed his opinion that "The future of the Air Force is in space," and to that end, ATC has already begun training personnel to fill slots in the Space Command.

Addressing retention, he said that two things have helped keep more people than anticipated on active duty. "We are giving people something significant to do with their lives and we're making them feel like a part of the team while they're here. It's the idea of the team that makes Reese great," he concluded.

General Shaud talks with a group of students in the 64th Student Squadron MAC Room.

Chapel Notes

The chapel is bidding goodbye to Chaplain Roger Winburg who has served here for four years. While Chaplain Winburg is at Osan, Korea, his family will remain here. Chaplain Winburg's replacement, Chaplain Don Bickers, is due in from Lajes Field in mid-September.

The annual Chapel Leadership Conference is scheduled for July 27 through 31, Mo Ranch, near Kerrville, Texas. If you are interested in representing the Reese Chapel at this event, please contact Father Peter Otto or Chaplain (Capt.) Rob Stroud. There are a limited number of spots reserved.

Registrations are now being accepted for the Reese Chapel Center's annual Protestant Vacation Bible School. Classes will be held June 15 through 19, 9-11:30 a.m. daily. Buses will pick the children up in Reese Village, the Child Care Center and Youth Center. The theme for this year's program is "God's Promises for You."

Classes will be offered for children aged three through sixth grade.

Vacation Bible School is available as a service to the entire Reese community; everyone is invited to participate. Call 885-3237 to register.

Chapel Schedule

Protestant Vacation Bible School at the Reese Chapel will be held June 15 through 19. Classes will be from 9 to 11:30 p.m. daily. Three year-olds will meet from 10 to 11:30 p.m.

Buses will pick up the children in Reese Village, Child Care Center and Youth Center. Maps of the stops are available at the chapel.

"God's Promises for You" is the theme for the week. Children will learn a new promise each day. Music, crafts, films and snacks are also a part of daily planned activities.

Registrations are now being taken at the Chapel. There is no charge for the program. Parents are asked to help furnish daily snacks. Children should bring theirs on the first day of Vacation Bible School.

Best kept secret in AF is....

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS)—"The best kept secret in the Air Force is..." That phrase begins many conversations about bases, locations and a long list of other variables that make up an Air Force career. And it's a phrase you're very likely to hear if talking to any number of young Air Force pilots who are convinced they've found one of the Air Force's best kept secrets—instructor pilot duty in Air Training Command.

While the majority of ATC's IPs are assigned immediately after completing pilot training, almost 40 percent are experienced pilots who return to ATC to share their experiences and flying expertise with upcoming aviators.

Whether in a first assignment or from the ranks of the more experienced, ATC's IPs speak enthusiastically of the opportunities they have from the increased number of flying hours, leadership roles and a stable lifestyle.

"Many pilots have misconceptions of what ATC instructor pilot duty is like and how it fits in with a rated career," says Capt. Steve W. Byrum. After six years instructing in ATC's T-37, Captain Byrum now handles rated assignments for the command here at Randolph, and he's an enthusiastic advocate of what IP duty has to offer. "The opportunities for responsibility, career growth and the additional flying hours are simply not available to junior pilots anywhere else."

A former Strategic Air Command pilot, Capt. Gregory S. Wiebe echoes that view from his vantage point as flight commander, 97th Flying Training Squadron, Williams AFB, Ariz. He recalls being told by some SAC flyers that he'd fall three years behind his contemporaries if he volunteered for a tour in ATC. "Not true," he says. "With the flying and leadership opportunities I've had, I'm right up there with everyone else."

Another SAC pilot resource, Capt. John Zalenchak, ATC IP and executive officer to the 80th Flying Training Wing commander at Sheppard AFB, Texas, agrees. "In fact, I feel I'm ahead of my peers in some ways. The opportunities to lead are here. Being a class commander is just one example of where I supervised 20 officers. Majors or lieutenant colonels have those jobs in SAC."

While some point to the early leadership opportunities, others insist it's the "good flying" that makes ATC's instructor duty so outstanding.

SAC pilot Capt. Joseph Drew, flight commander, 560th FTS, Randolph, said he had time for work on his master's degree while in SAC, but what he really enjoys about ATC is his stable home life and the flying time. "I spend a lot more time flying and working on my flying skills without a lot of TDY."

"Every day, the type of flying varies," said Captain Wiebe. "My flying skills have improved because I fly more. You have the opportunity to fly aerobatics, low level and formation, for example. In other aircraft you fly the type of mission your aircraft is designed to do, so sometimes you don't practice all the types of flying that you can do in a T-38."

First assignment IP, 1st Lt. Richard L. Fullerton, check pilot and executive officer for the 90th FTS from Sheppard AFB, enjoys the unique training that goes on at his base with the Euro-NATO Joint Jet Pilot Training Program. His IP experience at Sheppard extends beyond U.S. Air Force flying to include aviation interchange with foreign officers. "With the different countries represented, I've learned a lot about other aircraft, terrain flying and difference cultures," said Lieutenant Fullerton.

"Most Air Force pilots have MAJCOM experience in other types of aircraft, and I used to feel I was underqualified, but not anymore," continued Lieutenant Fullerton. "I feel I can relate to what the students are going through if they're having problems."

ATC pilots cite many reasons for volunteering for IP duty. For some it was a chance to have time to further their education; for others, more time to be with their family than they had when flying with other MAJCOMs was an important consideration. "I chose ATC because the other satellite tours offered by TAC didn't have what I needed...time for my master's," said Capt. Grady L. Douglas, ATC Programs Officer, Randolph AFB. "I rarely go TDY in ATC, so I'm free to study and not worry about missing classes."

"While other MAJCOM pilots practice their mission, which we all hope they'll never have to put to the test," said Lieutenant Fullerton, "I get to do my 'real world' mission every day by training the best pilots I can."

"Initiative, aggression, air discipline and teamwork are words that mean something in Air Fighting."

Too bad my grandmother doesn't golf

by 2nd Lt. Bob Wenner

If you're too busy playing golf on your time off and have guilty feelings because you haven't done your share to help people in need (and rightly so that you should feel that way).

A great philosopher once said, "I used to complain that my shoes were too big, then I met a man that had no feet" This is also the quote that my grandmother tried to enlighten me with when, at the age of 13, I tried desperately to convince her that I should have a new bicycle.

What that philosopher, and in turn my grandmother, are really trying to say is that we should not complain about what little we have when there are so many others who have so much less.

When I finally broke away from the security of my parents, I complained because my apartment was so small—when so many others had no home at all. Just about every day I open my refrigerator and complain that there is nothing to eat (there is plenty to eat)—and there are still so many others that have nothing to eat at all. There are thousands of people in the West Texas area alone who are literally starving and in desperate need of our help.

Of the problems that I have mentioned, it is the easiest to correct. No, we can't go out and buy cars and homes for those people who need them or even bicycles for every kid that wants one. We can help the numerous people that are starving in this area.

What can we do to help? We can support the South Plains Food Bank, a non-profit warehouse that collects salvageable food from supermarkets and other agencies in the area, separates it into individual boxes, and distributes the food to those in need through a membership of Social Service Agencies (such as local churches). The South Plains Food Bank and its affiliated food banks in Odessa, San Angelo and Abilene have 438 member agencies that were able to help over 790,000 people in 1986 with a total weight of more than 5.8 million pounds of salvaged food to needy families.

In spite of their efforts, their task has grown. To handle larger volumes of salvage reclamation the food bank has begun construction on an annex that will double their current capacity. The food is available. The need for it is acute. All that is lacking is the money to complete the construction. Two-thirds of the needed $100,000 has already been raised.

How can we help the South Plains Food Bank? By playing golf. That's right...GOLF! A golf tournament has been set for June 20 at the Reese Golf Course. The entry fee of $30 includes your green fee, a country style barbecue, refreshments, lots of prizes, and plenty of good times.

So, if you're the kind of person who likes to play golf (or would just like to give it a try), wants to win some great prizes, enjoys a good barbecue, and wants to stop complaining and help some people who need you—then get involved! Call the Reese Golf Course for more information on how to sign up for this special event.

The tournament is limited to 64 players and scramble rules will apply. It's too bad my grandmother couldn't golf. I'm sure she would have wanted to help.

No butts about it

The next "Fresh Start" smoking cessation course will be held from noon to 1 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursday, June 30, July 2, 7 and 9.

The course is designed to help you if:

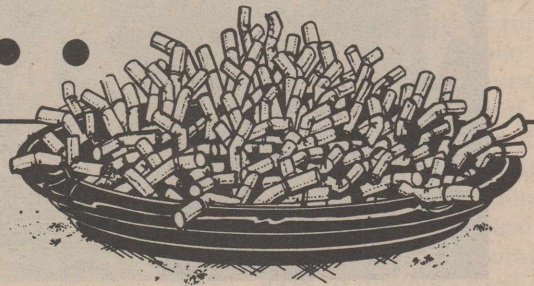

- You've tried to quit before but failed.

- You have a spouse who smokes also.

- You are afraid of gaining weight if you quit.

- You have tried pills or gimmicks and they haven't worked.

The classes are available to the entire Reese community. To register, call 3536.

Smoking is hazardous to your health!!

Veterinary Corps celebrates 71st

Wednesday, the U.S. Army Veterinary Corps celebrated its 71st Anniversary as a vital member of the Army Medical Department team according to Army Capt. Clinton W. Crusberg, chief of Veterinary Services, Reese Veterinary Services.

The Veterinary Corps was established on June 3, 1916, with its initial officers serving either in the Remount Service (procurement and medical care of horses) or the Army Meat Inspection Service. Since that date, the Corps has established a proud history of Food Inspection and Animal Care Support through four major wars and today has the distinction of serving as the Department of Defense Executive Agent for Veterinary Services. As such, the Army Veterinary Corps provides total veterinary support, not only to the Army, but also the Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, Defense Logistics Agencies and many other DoD and federal agencies. In fact, 51 percent of the Veterinary Corps resources are expended on other than Army support.

The U.S. Army Veterinary Corps performs, in addition to animal medicine, essential public health and preventive medicine missions in support of the health of the U.S. Armed Forces. The many U.S. Army Veterinary Corps functions are varied and include: food hygiene, safety, and quality assurance inspections; complete animal medical support for government-owned animals; medical and sub-sistence research and development; animal disease prevention and control; veterinary preventive medicine; administration and teaching; readiness training of Medical Department personnel; laboratory services to diagnose food and animal-borne diseases; and both command and consultative functions.

These functions are provided to support military missions worldwide in 37 different countries on an area basis, regardless of the service at that location. This support is provided at 683 DoD installations (313 Army, 142 Air Force, 203 Navy and Marine, and 25 Coast Guard). In addition, Veterinary Service personnel are assigned to another 100 installations/sites of the Defense Logistics Agency Defense Personnel Support Center, Army and Air Force Exchange Service, NASA and others.

The Corps is currently composed of 440 Doctors of Veterinary Medicine serving in various assignments around the world. One hundred and fifty officers have graduate degrees to the Master or Ph.D. level. Additionally, 30 percent of the Corps are specialty board certified in one of the many areas of Veterinary Medicine, like Preventive Medicine/Public Health, Pathology, Laboratory Animal Medicine, Surgery, Microbiology, and Internal Medicine.

Assisting the Veterinary Corps officers celebrate their anniversary this year are the many other important personnel within the Army Veterinary Service. The Service is composed of the commissioned officers plus 53 Warrant Officer Food Inspection Technicians, 1089 91R Food Inspection Specialists, 380 91T Animal Care Specialists, and numerous civilian employees. The Veterinary Corps officers wish to extend a special thanks to these personnel who assist them daily in the performance of their widely diverse veterinary service mission.

It's not just a hamburger, it's a Whataburger.®

What makes our burger better?
Fresh meat for one. Pure 100% beef, sizzlin' hot off the grill.
Fresh buns. Toasted up while your Whataburger's cookin'.
And fresh produce. Crisp lettuce. Ripe, red tomatoes. Juicy pickles and sweet onions. Fresh off the farm.
And what makes it bigger?

Start with a full quarter pound of beef. Top it with a big hot bun. Then pile on more lettuce, more tomatoes, more pickles and onions.
And presto!
We've built a bigger, better burger. Right before your eyes.
So come on in to Whataburger.® And we'll build one for you.

5K run draws 110 participants

Over 100 individuals turned out to participate in Friday's second U.S.A.F. World-wide 5K Fitness Fun Run.

The early morning rain and drizzle that dragged on into the afternoon ended just before starting time. Participants from Reese and the Lubbock area were "treated to temperatures just right for running" said

SSgt. Randy Pratt of the Physical Fitness Center.

Although the run was just for fun, and not a race, "Some admirable times were recorded," said Sergeant Pratt. Peter Biwott of Lubbock finished the 3.1 mile run with a time of 16 minutes and 29 seconds. The fastest woman runner was Cindy Payne, also of Lubbock.

Payne finished the run in 23 minutes and 36 seconds.

Thirty of the 110 entrants in the run were 4th, 5th and 6th graders from Haynes Elementary School in Lubbock.

"We have had numerous requests for future similar events here," said Sergeant Pratt. For information on future runs, contact Sergeant Pratt at 6026.

Contest nears

The theme for the 1987 Project Warrior Poster Contest is "American Fighting Spirit and Aviation Heritage."

The contest is open to all Reese military personnel, their family members and civilians.

To enter:

Name, duty or home phone number and duty section or address must accompany all entries;

Entries should be full color renditions in medium the artist desires;

Entries should be in vertical format, at least 1" by 14", but no larger than 16 by 20 inches;

All entries must be submitted by June

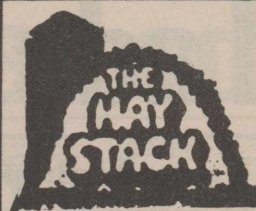

25, to Maj. Greg Jolda of the 64th Resource Management, Bldg. 800;

Entries will be judged on originality, theme and artwork. Winners will be announced June 29, at the Mathis Recreation Center.

The first place winner will receive a $100 U.S. Savings Bond, second place, a $75 U.S. Savings Bond, and the third place winner will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

The winning poster will be used as an advertising display for the 1987 Base Open House, Sept. 18-19.

For more information, contact Maj. Greg Jolda, 3604.
