This week's reviews are fiction titles.

Focused on a career in medicine and not on romance, Willa Duvall is thrown slightly off course during the summer of 1865 when she discovers a never-opened love letter in a crack of her old writing desk in The Love Note (F POL J) by Joanna Davidson Politano. Compelled to find the passionate soul who penned it and the person who never received it, she takes a job as a nurse at the seaside estate of Crestwicke Manor. Everyone at Crestwicke has feelings, mostly negative ones, about the man who wrote the letter, but he seems to have disappeared. With plenty of enticing clues but few answers, Willa's search becomes even more complicated when she misplaces the letter and it passes from person to person in the house, each finding a thrilling or disheartening message in its words.

old Gerrit Laninga doesn't know what to do with himself in The Sowing Season (F POW K) by Katie Powner. He sacrificed everything for the land, his time, his health, his family, with nothing to show for it but bitterness, regret, and two grown children who want nothing to do with him. Fifteen-year-old Rae Walters has growing doubts and fears about "The Plan," the detailed blueprint for high school that will help her follow in her lawyer father's footsteps. She's always been committed to The Plan, but now that the pressure to succeed is building, what was supposed to unite her family in purpose, may end up tearing it apart. When their paths cross just as they each need a friend the most, Gerrit's and Rae's lives begin to change in unexpected ways. Can they discover together what really matters in life and learn it's never too late for a second chance?

It is 1886, and the government has given the US Cavalry control of Yellowstone in Nothing Short of Wondrous-American Wonders Collection Series Bk# 2 (F SCO R) by Regina Scott. For widowed hotelier Kate Tremaine, the change is a welcome one. She knows every inch of her wilderness home like the back of her hand and wants to see it protected from poachers and vandals. Refused a guide by Congress, Lieutenant William Prescott must enlist Kate's aid to help him navigate the sprawling park and track down the troublemakers. But a secret from his past makes him wary of the tender feelings the capable and comely widow raises in him. When her 6-year-old son is kidnapped by a poacher who wants the boy to guide him to the place where the last of the Yellowstone bison congregate, Will and Kate must work together to rescue him, save the bison, and protect the park. In doing so, they may just find that two wounded hearts can share one powerful love when God is in control.

Once held captive and tortured on a mysterious mountain, Dan was lucky to have made it out alive in These Nameless Things (F SMU S) by Shawn Smucker. But freedom comes at a cost. Left with little memory of the horrific ordeal, Dan remembers one thing, his escape meant having to leave his brother behind. With each day that passes, Dan waits with other survivors in hope of his brother's escape. But just as long-forgotten memories start rising to the surface, the sudden appearance of a wounded woman throws everything further into question. As Dan struggles to know whom to trust, he is caught once again in a paralyzing moral dilemma: How far will he go to save the people he loves?

MEN WITH FIRETRUCKS

By Tumbleweed Smith
Special to the Herald

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Carroll Choate drills water wells all over west Texas. He has had his business since 1957. He started it while he was working at the oil refinery in Big Spring. Prior to the official start of Choate Well Service he did the work for his family and friends at no charge. He knew the procedure well because he grew up taking care of windmills.

In 1957 he was drilling a well for an uncle and Carroll told his uncle he was going to have to charge him and the uncle said that was fine. "It didn't really seem to make much difference if I did it for free or got paid for it," says Carroll. "I'd rather get paid for it."

Carroll lives in the country near Moss Creek Lake on the outskirts of Big Spring. He is 90.

Recently he bought a fire truck, a 1950s model that had been in use in Stanton. Usually men buy fire trucks because they've always wanted one just to have for grandkids and parades. Carroll sure plans to do some of that for sure, but he has a special use for his fire truck. He plans to put out fires. "We live out here and there's not a fire station nearby, so if we have a house fire it'd burn to the ground before a fire truck got here." He has already used it to put out some grass fires.

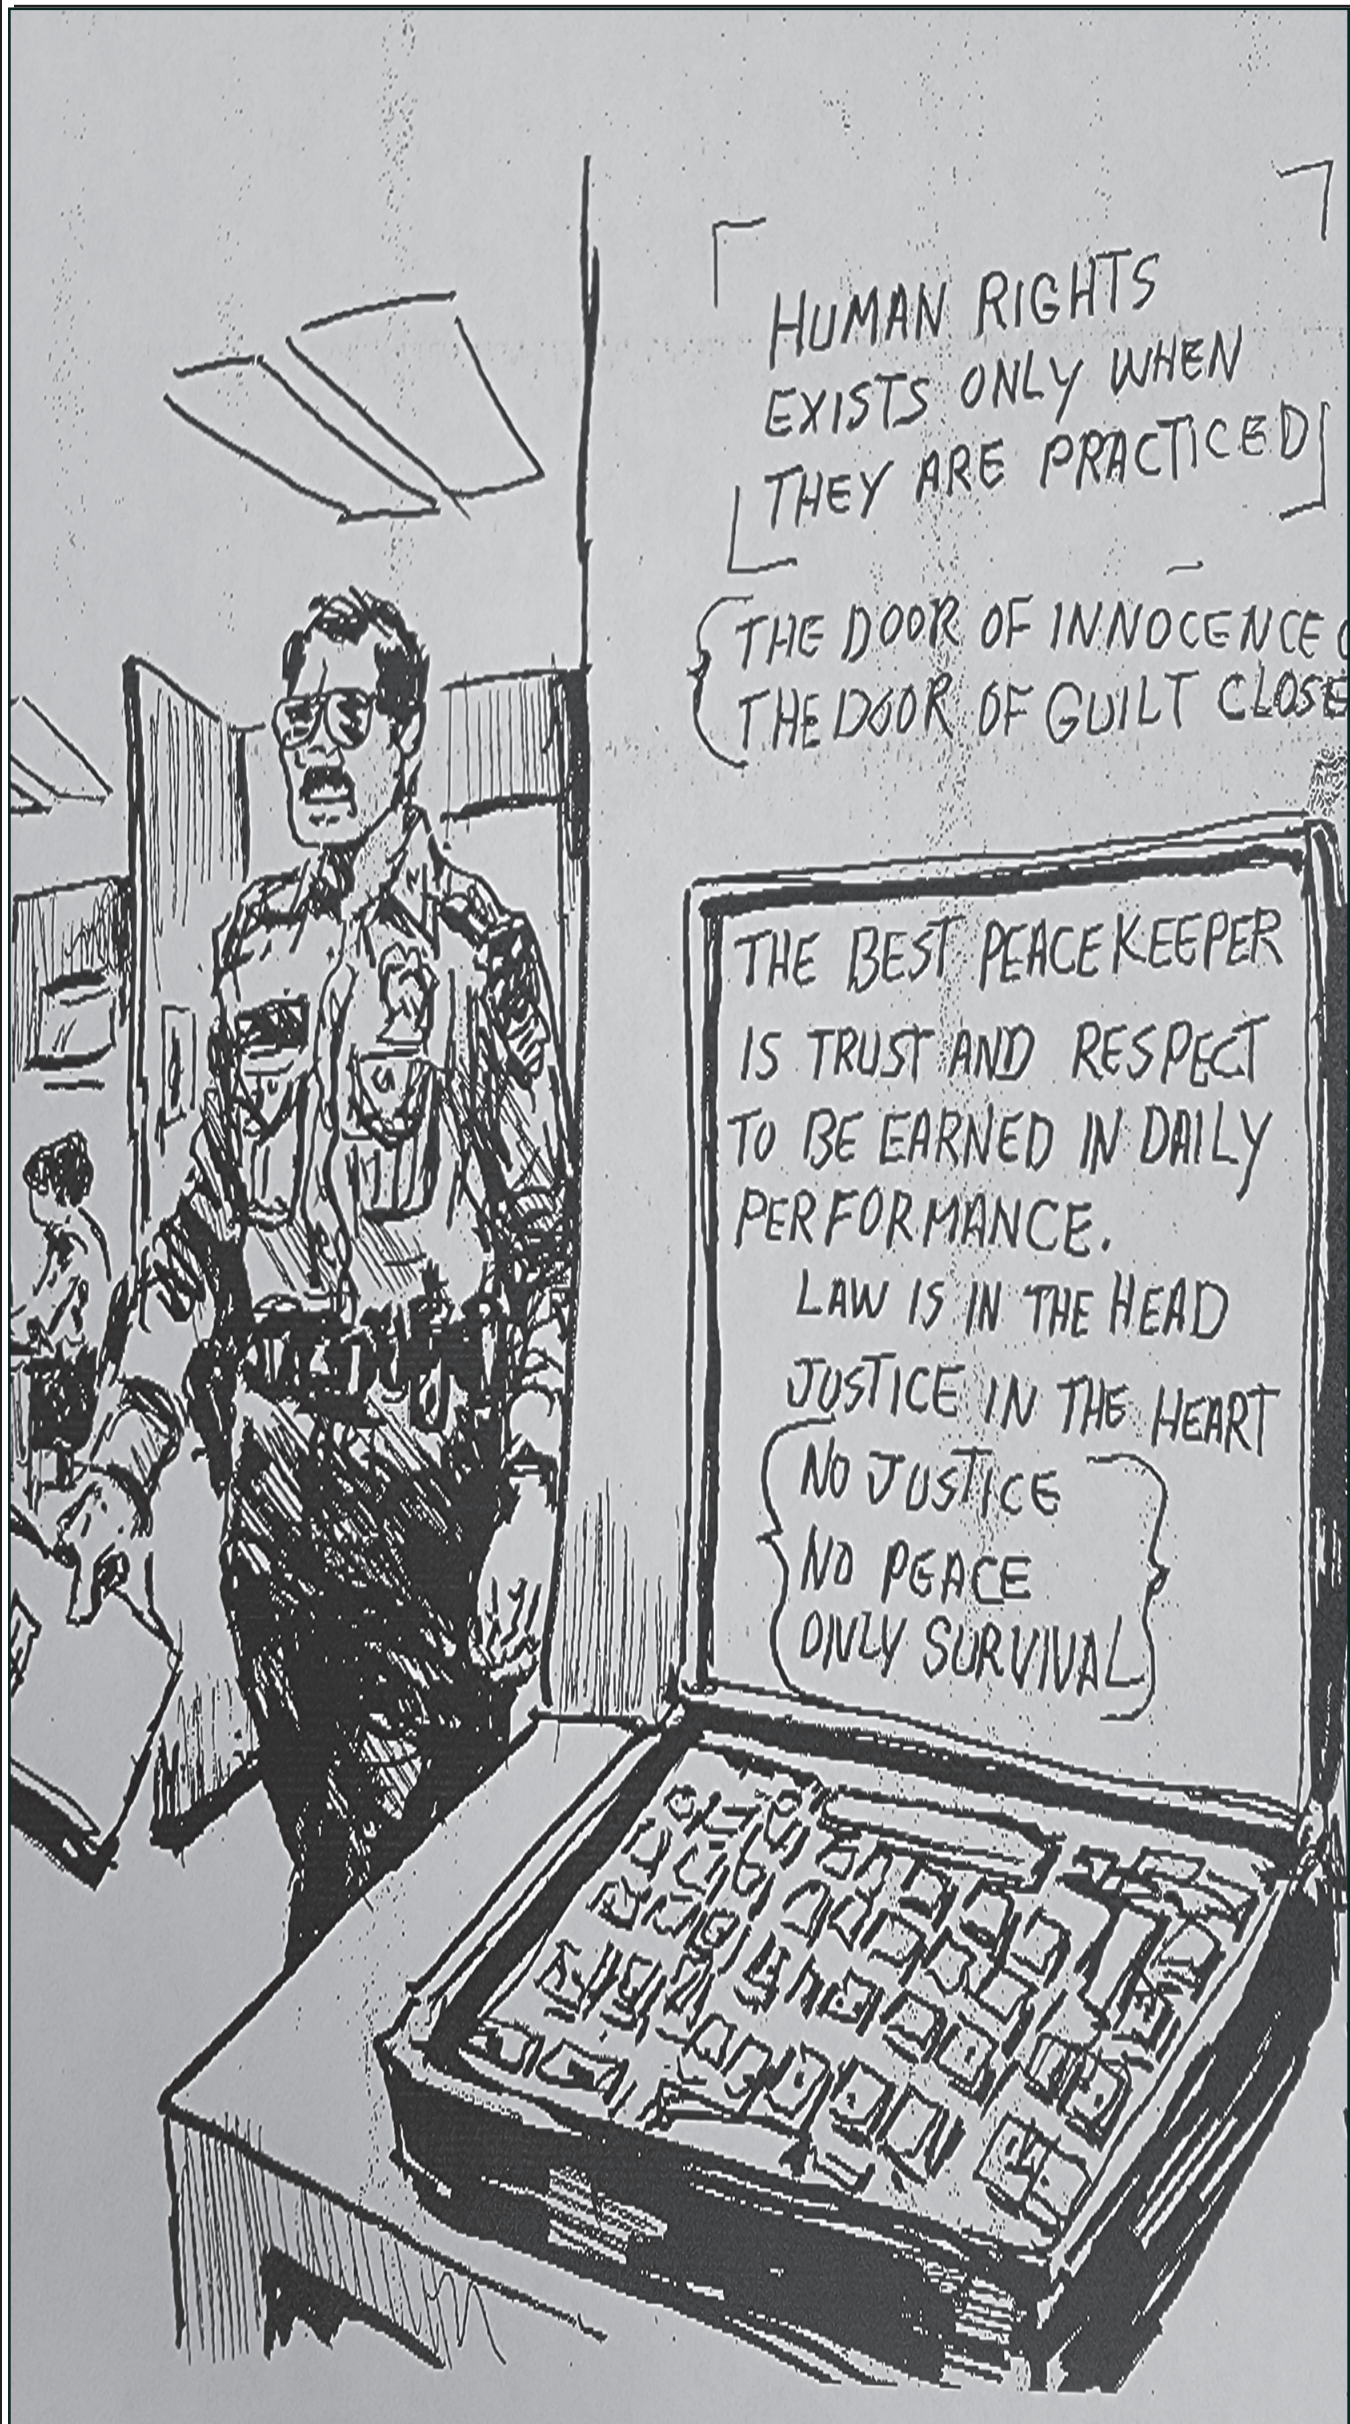

Carroll named his fire truck Gladys, his mother's name and painted her name on the doors. He says she always liked fire trucks. The truck has a tank that holds 750 gallons of water, 5 minutes' worth of spray. It has all the bells and whistles with a bunch of hoses, lights and a siren that sounds like a musical instrument.

I have met several men who have fire trucks. Bob Robertson, who owns radio station KAIR in Humble (don't pronounce the H), has owned two of them. He has a friend named Clinton, a former Fire Marshall in Humble who is a member of the IFD (Involuntary Fire Department). He buys and sells fire trucks. One day he told Bob that everybody needs a fire truck. So Bob bought one.

"I was going to a car show with my wife," says Bob, "and there were 4 fire trucks. I turned into a 5 year old. I got so excited and I asked some of the guys standing around if they owned the fire trucks. Sure enough, one of them was my friend Clinton who said 'Bob, when are you gonna buy a fire truck?' A few days later I went to his place and saw this big 1962 La France. It was running with that big Detroit 671 engine going chug chug chug and I just melted. It was complete with generator, axes, big old siren and flashing lights."

During the 6 years he had that truck Bob drove it in some of Houston's biggest parades "My brother in law played Santa every year I had it. We would go to these apartment complexes near downtown Houston where underprivileged kids lived. Some of them never had a chance to see Santa Claus. We'd pull up with the flashing lights and siren blasting and he'd be up there stately looking, it was a sight to see. And the kids just loved it." After his brother in law passed away Bob traded that fire truck for a 1973 model. He kept it a few years, then sold it. He is without one now.

Second Time Around

By STEVE BELVIN

Special to the Herald

Ryan Tannehill constantly shows why he's one of the elite quarterbacks in the NFL. Not a flashy type, but I do like his "Tanner roll" after scoring a touchdown. Doesn't put up the big numbers like Mahones and the rest of those guys. They throw two-yard touchdown passes. For a two-yard scoring run.

No Tannehill doesn't have all the glitz. He just gets it done. Reminds me of a song back in the 70s. "Ain't too much of nothing, but just enough of everything".

He was good in Miami, just didn't have the right supporting cast. He's a perfect fit with Tennessee. Since the Titans have played for a few seasons, compiling a 43-22 record..

The thing is that Tannehill makes the plays and decisions that win games. He won't get you beat because of silly mistakes. His football IQ is very high. He can manage a game and he doesn't panic.

Which gets me on another subject - coaches' kids. We've heard all of the stories - "Yea, they're just playing because their parent is the coach. He's not better than my kid".

I see this more in the early stages with the Little League and Pop Warner dad-coach. Dad, trying to relive his early days by trying to make his kid the superstar. On the other hand, the UIL dads, who are coaches, produce good players. That's because these coaches have the proper sports training and teaching. They are bona fide coaches - most of the time it shows in the kid's ability.

Ryan Tannehill is a coach's kid. His father -

Tim has been at Big Spring High School a number of years. Tim started off a coach at Big Spring., I believe he played wide receiver in the mid 80s. at Texas Tech during the Jerry Moore, David McWilliams era..

Naturally all of his kids grew up around sports.. Tim and his wife Cheryl, supplied lots of support to start their own "Quarterback U". Those Tannehill boys could be seen around the Big Spring field house all the time. They always had a ball in their hands.. You grow up around sports, in a good environment you play it, more than likely you're going to be good. Coaches' kids. - I'll take 'em every time

GETTING HER PROPS

Howard College Lady Hawks have endured a rough season so far, mainly because of Covid protocols . Coach John Ishee's troops have had to forfeit three games, including two conference games.

For the first week of the new year Howard guard Daysha Tijerina was named Region V Western Junior College Athletic Conference player of the Week. The 5-foot-8 freshman. from Edinburgh, scored 22 points in 24 minutes in a win over Dallas Christian College JV She made 7 of 16 shots from the floor.

In a game before that against Community Christian College, Ca, another win, she scored 18 points, including going 4 of 8 from the three point line. Tijerina leads Howard with a 11.4 scoring average. She's shooting a hot 44 percent from the three point arc and 94 percent from the foul line.

GOODBYE FRIEND

Back in the mid-80s me and my family was staying at a Best Western hotel in Colorado City while I was playing in a softball tournament. Me and my eldest daughter Marcia was at the pool and she made a remark on how pale a man's skin was. He was sitting around the pool. After I explained to her she shouldn't make those kind of comments out loud, the gentlemen just laughed and said it was all right.

I looked at this man, took a double take, and realized it was former NFL receiving star Don Maynard. He and I spent a few hours just talking about life in general. Of course we got his autograph, he was a real down-to-earth person. Imagine me! Bonding with a man on his way to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

He and I continued our friendship over the years. Every time he would enlighten me with a interview when he came, back to this part of West Texas. Later I lived in El Paso for 10 years, back in the mid 2000s, and that's where Maynard lived . I would run into him occasionally.

I was proud to have him as a friend. The man graduated from Colorado City High. No he wasn't a C-City native, he only went to CHS his senior year. But us C-Cityans still claim him as our own.

He attended college at University of Texas El Paso (Ke at Texas Western at the time)..

We know the rest of the story - played 15 seasons in the NFL, 13 with the New York Jets, The Jets won Super Bowl III over the Baltimore Colts. Maynard was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1987. He finished his career with 633 receptions for 11,834 yards and 88 touchdowns.

He died Monday in El Paso at the age of 86.. Knowing him is one of the biggest highlights of my writing career.

49ers, Cowboys renew playoff rivalry after 27-year hiatus

SAN FRANCISCO (10-7) at DALLAS (12-5)

Sunday, 4:30 p.m. EST, CBS

SERIES RECORD: Cowboys lead 19-17-1.

LAST MEETING: Cowboys beat 49ers 41-33 on Dec. 20, 2020, in Arlington, Texas.

LAST WEEK: 49ers beat Rams 27-24 in OT; Cowboys beat Eagles 51-26.

49ERS OFFENSE: OVERALL (7), RUSH (7), PASS (12), SCORING (13).

49ERS DEFENSE: OVERALL (3), RUSH (7), PASS (6), SCORING (T-9).

COWBOYS OFFENSE: OVERALL (1), RUSH (9), PASS (T-2), SCORING (1).

COWBOYS DEFENSE: OVERALL (19), RUSH (16), PASS (20), SCORING (7).

TURNOVER DIFFERENTIAL: 49ers minus-4; Cowboys plus-14.

49ERS PLAYER TO WATCH: WR Deebo Samuel has been one of the NFL's most versatile players, excelling as a receiver lined up wide or in the slot or a running back out of the backfield. He even threw a TD pass last week. Samuel finished the season with a career-high 77 catches for 1,405 yards to go with 365 yards rushing and 14 total TDs. Samuel is the only player in NFL history with at least 1,400 yards receiving and 300 yards rushing in a season.

COWBOYS PLAYER TO WATCH: QB Dak Prescott plays his first playoff game since being awarded $160 million, four-year contract during the offseason. While the Cowboys led the NFL in points and yards per game, there were pockets of inconsistency that led to plenty of questions about the 2016 NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year. Prescott led the league with a club-record eight games of a passer rating of at least 100 and at least three touchdowns passing. It means nothing if he loses the first game of the playoffs for the second time in three trips over six seasons.

KEY INJURIES/COVID-19: Niners LT Trent Williams (elbow) missed last week's game, but is aiming to be back Sunday. ... QB Jimmy Garoppolo played through a sprained right thumb last week. ... Standout rookie LB Micah Parsons and eight-time Pro Bowl LT Tyron Smith were activated off the COVID-19 list after missing the Philadelphia game. ... S Jayron Kearse, a surprisingly key defender in part because of his versatility against the run and pass, didn't come off the COVID-19 list until Thursday and also has been battling a hamstring injury.

SERIES NOTES: It's the first postseason matchup between the old playoff rivals since three straight NFC championship games during the 1992-94 seasons. The winners of those games (Dallas the first two, San Francisco the third) won the Super Bowl. ... It's their eighth playoff meeting, tied for second most in the Super Bowl era behind nine between Dallas and the Los Angeles Rams. ... The Cowboys lead the playoff series 5-2, including 2-0 at home.

STATS AND STUFF: The 49ers made the playoffs for the second time in five seasons under Kyle Shanahan after losing the Super Bowl to Kansas City two years ago. The Cowboys last qualified in 2018. A Dallas victory would tie San Francisco for the most home playoff wins in NFL history (22). ... San Francisco has made it to the conference title game in its past four playoff appearances. The Cowboys haven't been that far since the last of the franchise's five Super Bowl titles to end the 1995 season. Dallas has reached the playoffs 10 times since then. The Cowboys have won their past three wild-card games (2009, 2014 and 2018 seasons), all at home. ... The 49ers are 18-7 on the road the past three seasons, the second-best record in the NFL. ... Garoppolo will make his fourth playoff start. Garoppolo completed 63.8% of his throws for 142.3 yards per game with two TDs, three INTs and a 75.9 rating in the playoff run two years ago. ... San Francisco was tied for the fifth-most sacks in the NFL this season with 48, led by 15½ for DE Nick Bosa. He also tied for the NFL lead with 21 tackles for loss. ... Niners RB Elijah Mitchell had a franchise rookie record 963 yards rushing this season and led all rookies with five 100-yard games. He finished with 1,100 yards from scrimmage and six TDs in 11 games. ... San Francisco WR Jauan Jennings had career highs last week with six catches for 94 yards and two TDs. ... The 49ers led the NFL by scoring TDs on 66.7% of red zone drives. ... San Francisco was penalized a league-high 20 times for pass interference for 367 yards. ... Coach McCarthy is making his playoff debut with the Cowboys in his second year. He took Green Bay to the postseason nine times, including eight straight, in 12-plus seasons before getting fired midseason in 2018. The Packers won the Super Bowl to cap the 2010 season at the home of the Cowboys, and the last of McCarthy's 10 playoff victories with Green Bay (10-8 record) was over the Cowboys when Prescott was a rookie in 2016. ... Dallas led the NFL in scoring (530 points, 31.2 per game) and takeaways (34). Six teams have done that since the 1970 merger. Two of the previous five won the Super Bowl: Washington in 1983 and Dallas in 1971 (the franchise's first title). ... Prescott broke Tony Romo's franchise record for touchdown passes (37-36). He had an NFL-best eight games with a passer rating of at least 100 and at least three touchdowns passing. ... RB Ezekiel Elliott has averaged 103 yards (4.5 per carry) with two touchdowns in three playoff games. The two-time rushing champion had just two 100-yard games in the regular season, in Weeks 4-5. ... CB Trevon Diggs led the NFL with 11 interceptions. He can become the first player with double-digit picks in the regular season along with at least one in the playoffs since Antonio Cromartie with the Chargers in 2007. Everson Walls is the only Dallas player to do it, in 1981. ... LB Micah Parsons led NFL rookies with 13 sacks. The last Dallas rookie with a sack in the postseason was teammate DeMarcus Lawrence in a wild-card win over Detroit during the 2014 season.

5 players are unanimous choices for AP's NFL All-Pro Team

By BARRY WILNER

AP Pro Football Writer

NEW YORK — Five players, including dynamic pass catchers Cooper Kupp and Davante Adams, are unanimous choices for The Associated Press 2021 NFL All-Pro Team.

Joining the Rams' Kupp and the Packers' Adams in receiving votes Friday from all 50 members of a nationwide panel of media members who regularly cover the league are Colts running back Jonathan Taylor, Steelers edge rusher T.J. Watt, and Rams defensive tackle Aaron Donald.

While Donald is a perennial pick — the three-time Defensive Player of the Year makes the team for the seventh time in his eight pro seasons — Watt is on it for a third time. He tied the NFL record for sacks with 22 1/2. Adams makes it for the second time, and the other two are newcomers as All-Pros. Kupp led the NFL in receptions (145), yards receiving (1,947) and TD catches (16). Taylor was the top rusher by a landslide with 1,811 yards and scored 18 touchdowns on the ground, two as a receiver.

"Obviously, it's an honor to be recognized, and it wouldn't be possible without my coaches and incredible teammates, but the awards and accolades aren't what drives me," said Watt, whose Steelers play at Kansas City on Sunday. "It's competing with and for them, this franchise, and this city, that drives me. My coaches and teammates are the people that put me in a position to make splash, help us win, and this recognition honestly doesn't come without them."

Like Donald, although not nearly as often as the offense-wrecking DT, several players are making another appearance on the All-Pro Team. Green Bay quarterback Aaron Rodgers is on for the fourth time, as is Philadelphia center Jason Kelce — one more than his brother, Chiefs' star tight end Travis. One better than them: Dallas right guard Zack Martin and Baltimore placekicker Justin Tucker at five.

Three-time All-Pros are Colts linebacker Darius Leonard, Rams cornerback Jalen Ramsey, and Steelers defensive tackle Cam Heyward. Double All-Pros are Browns edge rusher Myles Garrett and Titans safety Kevin Byard.

Bears interview Kelly, Browns exec Adofo-Mensah for GM job

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — The Chicago Bears interviewed front-office executive Champ Kelly and Cleveland Browns vice president of football operations Kwesi Adofo-Mensah for their general manager job Thursday.

Kelly has worked for the Bears the past seven years, as director of pro scouting from 2015 to 2016 and director of player personnel since 2017. He was with Denver from 2007 to 2014, rising from college scout to assistant coordinator of college and pro scouting. Kelly was a receiver and defensive back at Kentucky from 1998 to 2001. Adofo-Mensah comes with an analytics background over nine years in the NFL.

He spent the past two seasons under Browns GM Andrew Berry after working in San Francisco's research and development department from 2013 to 2019. Adofo-Mensah played basketball at Princeton.

The Bears are looking for new leadership after firing GM Ryan Pace and coach Matt Nagy following a 6-11 season.

Chicago interviewed former Philadelphia Eagles coach Doug Pederson and Cleveland executive Glenn Cook for their vacant coach and general manager jobs Wednesday.

nio, and 49ers wide receiver Deebo Samuel. On defense, it's linebackers Micah Parsons of Dallas, the only rookie on the squad, and De'Vondre Campbell of Green Bay; Cowboys cornerback Trevon Diggs; Bills safety Jordan Poyer; and five special teamers: Las Vegas punter A.J. Cole, Jets kick returner Braxton Berrios, Ravens punt returner Devin Duvernay, Saints special teams ace J.T. Gray, and Colts long snapper Luke Rhodes.

Perhaps the most thrilled player is Williams, whose been a stellar blocker for a decade with Washington and now San Francisco, but never got the All-Pro nod.

"I do feel more comfortable than I've ever felt," he said. "I do feel like I'm as strong as I've ever been. I do feel my football IQ is probably better than it's ever been. As a football player, as a competitor every year you want to be better than the last year. That's my goal and always has been my goal. So if this year is better than last year, I hope so. That's the plan."

Almost as unusual as sweeping the votes is having a rookie on the team. Parsons has been so outstanding he's also considered a strong contender for the Defensive Player of the Year award.

"I think it's an extraordinary honor," he said of being an All-Pro. "It speaks to the work and the position the Cowboys put me in. I think it's just a true blessing. It just makes you want to go harder."

"I think when you achieve things early, you've got to learn how to sustain it. People always say when you get there it gets easier. But I think when you get there, it gets harder. Once you get it, you've got it. But it's hard to sustain it than it is just to get there. I've got to just keep working and keep getting better and find a way to beat this season next year, which is the harder part."

Byard was an All-Pro in 2017, and now he's back on the roster after what he felt was a down 2020 season.

"It means a lot to me, honestly," he acknowledged. "I put a lot of work in every single offseason by myself, not necessarily with the team in training camp, but just try to come into the next season to try to play the best I can be for my team."

"I've talked about it a lot. Just not felt like I played my best last year. So to be able to bounce back and see the kind of the work that I put in mentally and physically kind of pay off."

The Packers, Colts, Ravens, Rams and Cowboys each have three All-Pro. There's an even breakdown by conference of 14 apiece.

HERALD TEAM OF THE YEAR: FORSAN BUFFALOES

The Big Spring Herald team of the year is unquestionably the Forsan Buffaloes football team. The Buffs had a record-breaking year and set many school records. They finished the season with an impressive 10-2 record. This was one of the most complete football teams I have seen in a long time. The way they could run the ball at will and play lights our defense was simply outstanding. Congratulations to the Buffs on a tremendous season, and I cant wait to see what's in store for next year!

New Year Resolutions

Earth Team volunteer Dolline Budke helps teach Forsan Elementary students about "SWAPA"
By Judy Tereletsky

HSWCD District Clerk

As traditions go, we all try to make New Year resolutions to better our lives. Whether we will lose weight, eat better, or just lead healthier lives as a whole; the resolutions we make to improve health could not be accomplished without agriculture. Beyond the obvious of providing food for the occupants of this world, agriculture impacts our environment in a great number of ways.

When working with students in our local schools, Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) Soil Conservationist Keelee Allen and I talk to the students about "SWAPA". SWAPA is an acronym for "Soil, Water, Air, Plants, Animals". These are the areas of our Earth that the NRCS and other conservation services concentrate on.

Keeping our soil healthy is necessary to produce crops and keep livestock healthy. Agricultural producers can do this in several ways from no-till farming to brush management. By teaching students about the different layers of soil (called a soil profile), they can realize that soil must be protected because we only have so much available. The majority of soil in Howard County is sandy loam texture.

Water is another precious element on our planet. West Texans know all too well how little water we have in this area. It appears just when we might have enough rain to break our drought, the skies hold back from providing more water. Only about 1% of the Earth's water is drinkable with the rest locked in glaciers, ice caps, oceans, etc. Agricultural producers strive to keep healthy crops so that the root systems will help in the retention and conservation of water.

When our soil is not at its best, we see it in our dust storms that fill the air. Our winds pick up the loose topsoil and blow it away. Crops and grass areas help to hold in this topsoil which also contains and houses beneficial microorganisms and nutrients for plants. Of course, the "P" in SWAPA stands for plants.

The connection between agriculture and plants is an obvious one. Beyond our producers providing food, crops provide materials for shelter/clothing, and many plants have medicinal uses. Native Americans and other indigenous peoples of the world have used plants in medicinal ways. It is best to consult your doctor or health professional before using medicinal plants, but natural remedies are often found over the counter. Ginkgo is best known to relive memory loss, Turmeric or Lavender for anti-inflammatory, Garlic to lower blood pressure, Aloe Vera for burns, and the list could go on. The agricultural producer impacts the household ability to produce, purchase, and consume more and better food. Over the past years agricultural advances have improved the yield of crops helping underprivileged areas to improve the health of the residents. Agriculture has often been the venue for poor countries to provide livelihood for their people. The "A" for animals not only refers to people but the other creatures of our world. Agricultural producers often maintain their natural habitats for the wildlife of the area. Bobwhite quail and deer benefit from the planting of native species of grasses and forbs. The Monarch Butterfly has been helped through the planting of Milkweed species necessary for the caterpillar stage to flourish. Advancements in livestock care impacts the nutritional and economical value of our food and animal by-products.

Agriculture is such a vital part of our lives. Educating students about or concentrating agricultural services on "SWAPA" is just one way to help our ag producers. Communication is an importance link. Whether it is the Local Work Group meetings held to receive information on local agricultural concerns, or newsletters from HSWCD and FSA, or visits to local schools and encouraging involvement through poster contests and Four H and FFA Clubs, even these monthly articles in the Big Spring Herald; the goal is clear: Healthier Agriculture means Healthier people. So, when you are making your New Year resolutions perhaps, we need to remind ourselves to thank an Ag producer.

Report analyzes record-high fertilizer prices

Written by Blair Fannin,
Special to the Herald

Joe Outlaw, Ph.D., co-director of the Agricultural and Food Policy Center and Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service economist, told farmers at the Blackland Income Growth Conference in Waco that fertilizer prices could escalate as much as 80% this year as supply and demand gyrate at never-before-seen levels.

A recently completed AFPC report, which analyzed the economic impacts of higher fertilizer prices on 64 representative farms, was compiled from a study initially requested by U.S. Rep. Julia Letlow, R-La. Outlaw said producers are not only experiencing sticker shock, but may see product shortages.

"Coupled with current COVID supply chain issues, this will further stress the production environment for agriculture across the country," Outlaw said.

The fertilizer report is the most recent in a series of analyses by AFPC, which has previously released impact reports on supply disruptions to the U.S. cattle market and proposed estate tax legislation.

Rocketing fertilizer prices

The AFPC report found that as the nation continues to maneuver through supply chain disruptions and agricultural input availability, there are impacts on both fertilizer availability and costs. Last August, the Food and Agricultural Policy Research Institute in Missouri projected only a 10% increase in fertilizer prices in its forecast model, but recent spot prices have forecasts reaching as high as 80% more for the 2022 planting season.

Fertilizer prices have reached record highs and a new report by the Agricultural and Food Policy Center at Texas A&M University indicates they may go much higher in 2022.

Anhydrous ammonia increased by as much as $688 per ton or $86,000 per 1,000-acre AFPC representative farm through October 2021. The AFPC representative farms are from across the country and are used to calculate and project potential implications on future production.

"The current farm safety net is not designed to address these types of rapid production cost increases, which will continue to be a growing concern for farmers across the country, creating an emerging need for assistance," Outlaw said. The report found that the largest whole-farm impact would fall on AFPC's feed-grain farms at an average of $128,000 per farm and the largest per acre impact would hit AFPC's rice farms at $62.04 per acre.

AFPC economists went back to the 1980s, finding that fertilizer prices typically tend to rise as corn revenues increase.

Grain market, production implications Jason Johnson, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension economist, Stephenville, said during the Blacklands Income Growth conference that grain farmers really need to do some crop budget forecasting for 2022.

Grain farmers will not only have to cope with record-high fertilizer prices, but also price support pressure from carryover supplies of grain coupled with drought in some of the major wheat production areas.

"If fertilizer prices are way up, how can you (as a farmer) reduce costs?" Johnson said. "Make sure you are not wasting fertilizer and that you are being very strategic in your crop management planning."

With higher fertilizer prices, Johnson said farmers are going to have to be increasingly mindful of their crop production budgets. He also suggested that to cope with inflation, grain farmers should consider putting some of their cash to work such as buying input needs ahead of time.

"Also, when was the last time you had an increasing interest-rate environment?" Johnson

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're doing more than you used to and possibly more than you should. Irritations in the afternoon signal the need for rest. Can you arrange a break? Can you expect less from yourself?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). The plot turns meta. Thinking into the thinking will be necessary. It takes a secure person to be objective about the inner world and open your own ideas up for a little scrutiny; you are such a person.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 16). You learned manners and social behaviors at home, but you'll seek the extra polish and training that makes you comfortable in unfamiliar situations and gain an edge. Learning different customs and language opens the world to you. An educational pursuit will connect you with friends, money and love. Virgo and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 33, 2, 21 and 16.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: The full moon in Cancer on Martin Luther King Jr. Day recalls our security needs. Most of the world's problems occur out of a sense that these needs are being threatened. Cancer is the sign of home. Home is the place where we feel safe. The crab creates his own safety and wears his shelter wherever he goes.

What do we need to do to feel safe wherever we go? How would the world need to change? How would we need to change? Perhaps the ideas of Martin Luther King Jr. can inspire our answers. "Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that."

Tuesday, Uranus goes direct. It won't put an end to the silly miscommunications and mistakes (Mercury is still retrograde) but perhaps we'll have a better sense of humor about it as we understand the underlying logic and lessons a little better. It's like watching a show in our favorite genre. There's comfort in the predictable plot, and pleasure in the twist.

Midweek, we welcome the season of Aquarius. The Leo moon puts an MGM-style lion's roar to the start of this fun, and we know we're in for a spectacular ride.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Capricorn women are known for their enduring beauty, but supermodel Kate Moss elevates the concept with her unwavering popularity. Does her inherent Capricorn respect for all things timeless and elegant have something to do with it? The style icon born under a mysterious, sensual Scorpio moon is known to be a connoisseur of vintage couture with a passion for antiques.

Supreme Court halts COVID-19 vaccine rule for US businesses

By MARK SHERMAN and JESSICA GRESKO

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has stopped a major push by the Biden administration to boost the nation's COVID-19 vaccination rate, a requirement that employees at large businesses get a vaccine or test regularly and wear a mask on the job.

At the same time, the court is allowing the administration to proceed with a vaccine mandate for most health care workers in the U.S. The court's orders Thursday came during a spike in coronavirus cases caused by the omicron variant.

The court's conservative majority concluded the administration overstepped its authority by seeking to impose the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's vaccine-or-test rule on U.S. businesses with at least 100 employees. More than 80 million people would have been affected and OSHA had estimated that the rule would save 6,500 lives and prevent 250,000 hospitalizations over six months.

"OSHA has never before imposed such a mandate. Nor has Congress. Indeed, although Congress has enacted significant legislation addressing the COVID-19 pandemic, it has declined to enact any measure similar to what OSHA has promulgated here," the conservatives wrote in an unsigned opinion.

In dissent, the court's three liberals argued that it was the court that was overreaching by substituting its judgment for that of health experts. "Acting outside of its competence and without legal basis, the Court displaces the judgments of the Government officials given the responsibility to respond to workplace health emergencies," Justices Stephen Breyer, Elena Kagan and Sonia Sotomayor wrote in a joint dissent.

President Joe Biden said he was "disappointed that the Supreme Court has chosen to block common-sense life-saving requirements for employees at large businesses that were grounded squarely in both science and the law."

Biden called on businesses to institute their own vaccination requirements, noting that a third of Fortune 100 companies already have done so.

When crafting the OSHA rule, White House officials always anticipated legal challenges — and privately some harbored doubts that it could withstand them. The administration nonetheless still views the rule as a success at already driving millions of people to get vaccinated and encouraging private businesses to implement their own requirements that are unaffected by the legal challenge.

The OSHA regulation had initially been blocked by a federal appeals court in New Orleans, then allowed to take effect by a federal appellate panel in Cincinnati.

Both rules had been challenged by Republican-led states. In addition, business groups attacked the OSHA emergency regulation as too expensive and likely to cause workers to leave their jobs at a time when finding new employees already is difficult.

The National Retail Federation, the nation's largest retail trade group, called the Supreme Court's decision "a significant victory for employers."

The vaccine mandate that the court will allow to be enforced nationwide scraped by on a 5-4 vote, with Chief Justice John Roberts and Justice Brett Kavanaugh joining the liberals to form a majority. The mandate covers virtually all health care workers in the country, applying to providers that receive federal Medicare or Medicaid funding. It affects 10.4 million workers at 76,000 health care facilities as well as home health care providers. The rule has medical and religious exemptions.

Biden said that decision by the court "will save lives."

In an unsigned opinion, the court wrote: "The challenges posed by a global pandemic do not allow a federal agency to exercise power that Congress has not conferred upon it. At the same time, such unprecedented circumstances provide no grounds for limiting the exercise of authorities the agency has long been recognized to have." It said the "latter principle governs" in the healthcare arena.

Justice Clarence Thomas wrote in dissent that the case was about whether the administration has the authority "to force healthcare workers, by coercing their employers, to undergo a medical procedure they do not want and cannot undo." He said the administration hadn't shown convincingly that Congress gave it that authority.

Justices Samuel Alito, Neil Gorsuch and Amy Coney Barrett signed onto Thomas' opinion. Alito wrote a separate dissent that the other three conservatives also joined.

Decisions by federal appeals courts in New Orleans and St. Louis had blocked the mandate in about half the states. The administration already was taking steps to enforce it elsewhere.

More than 208 million Americans, 62.7% of the population, are fully vaccinated, and more than a third of those have received booster shots, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. All nine justices have gotten booster shots.

Joe Mantegna helps portray autism ‘As We See It’ in Amazon series

Joe Mantegna (left) and Rick Glassman star in "As We See It," which begins streaming Friday on Amazon.

After his long run on “Criminal Minds,” Joe Mantegna’s new series is quite a switch for him ... and he brings part of his own family background to it.

A parent of an autistic daughter, the Tony Award-winning actor also addresses the subject in “As We See It,” Amazon’s adaptation of an Israeli drama series that begins streaming Friday, Jan. 21. Mantegna portrays the father of Jack (Rick Glassman), one of several young-adult roommates on the autism spectrum who are supported by their families and each other. Albert Rutecki and Sue Ann Pien play the other members of the central trio, with Sosie Bacon (daughter of Kevin Bacon and Kyra Sedgwick) as their main aide.

“I’ve been involved in it since its inception,” Mantegna says of the show developed by Emmy-winning executive producer Jason Katims (“Friday Night Lights,” “Parenthood”). “They came to me shortly after ‘Criminal Minds’ stopped, and when I read the (pilot) script, I was really knocked out by it ... for a lot of reasons. Jason is such a wonderful, beautiful writer, and it had a very personal impact on me.”

Mantegna isn’t sure whether his eldest daughter Gia’s condition was known to Katims. “I never asked,” he reveals. “Jason might have thought that might be an interesting layer, but I know that it’s also a personal thing for him. They really thought it out to the point where, besides that the three main actors were identified as being on the autism spectrum, they were going to hire 12 (autistic) people on the crew – which is really unheard of. You have to go through the unions and all that, and they did that. I hope it’s a sign of the times, in terms of where we’re going with inclusion.”

In “As We See It,” Mantegna’s character Lou faces a health challenge of his own. “My watchword for a good part of my life has been, ‘Everybody’s got a story, and nobody gets a free ride,’ ” reflects Mantegna. “To me, this is an example of that. Each of us has a personal story, and some of those are things we would not have chosen. And so be it.”

Gia Mantegna is a makeup artist who almost ended up working on “As We See It” along with her father, but ultimately didn’t. However, her dad has enjoyed acting with Glassman as his on-screen son, deeming him “a wonderful young man. Most people in the world would think of him as just a smart, sunny, quirky guy, yet being sensitive to that world, I could tell there’s a reason for that quirkiness. He’s a stand-up comic, so he has those certain savant abilities, just like my daughter has.”

Lifetime's 'Vanished: Searching for My Sister' a twin challenge for Tatyana Ali

Playing twin sisters in the Lifetime telepic "Vanished: Searching for My Sister" turned out to be quite the acting exercise for Tatyana Ali.

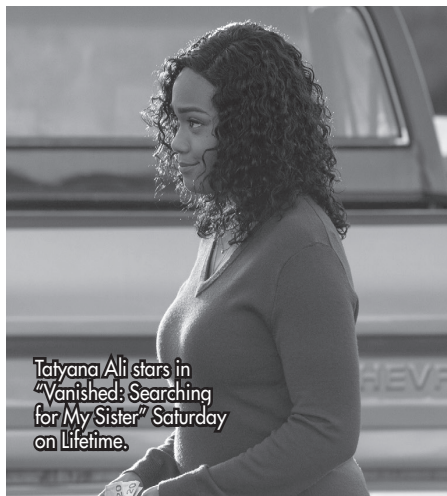

In the thriller, which is based on a true story and premieres Saturday, Jan. 22, Ali ("The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air," "The Reason") stars Jada and Kayla, identical twins who could not be more opposite. While Jada is a responsible, gainfully employed single mom, Kayla is the wild child, going in for drugs, clubbing and associating with dubious characters.

So when Kayla disappears, Jada pushes her way into the investigation to the consternation of two police detectives (Jasmine Guy, "The Vampire Diaries," and Carolyn Hennesy, "Click"). At one point, Jada even poses as her sister to infiltrate her world hoping to find someone who knows something.

So the challenge for Ali was not only to play two characters, but also one character playing the other, sometimes in the same day, during the three-week spring shoot in Atlanta.

"It is a crazy challenge," Ali says with a laugh. "It gets confusing. I think it even got confusing for the crew ... I'm Jada now but I'm Jada as Kayla; I'm Jada now but I'm really Jada. I'm just Kayla now. Jada's not involved. Yeah, it is challenging.

"I really, really relied heavily on the costumers, the hair and makeup team that I was able to work with," she continues. "They were wonderful and I really relied on them to kind of help make it through kind of the maze of all of that. ... So the makeup and hair trailer, that was really like my safe haven, like the place where I could kind of switch from one woman to the next."

Tatyana Ali stars in "Vanished: Searching for My Sister" Saturday on Lifetime.

Ali was so unrecognizable as she switched characters that she even fooled the actor who played Kayla's estranged husband Warren, Justin Bruening ("Grey's Anatomy"). "I didn't get to meet Kayla until my last day of filming," Bruening recalls. "And I didn't even realize that we were moving on to the next scene where I would see Kayla ... So at one point, I come back and we're like in our little holding area and I sit down. And we've got the PPE stuff on - the protection gear, masks and stuff - so that helped with the situation.

"But I sat there and there was a person sitting across from me on a couch," he says with a laugh, "and I didn't realize for the first 20 minutes that it was Tatyana, who I had been working with all day. ... And I finally went, 'Is that you? Oh my gosh! I'm so sorry. I haven't been talking to you.'"

TCM remembers Cary Grant on his birthday

Cary Grant was in a league of his own, even if his self-deprecation suggested he might not have seen it that way.

One of the most legendary of all film stars was born in 1904 on Jan. 18, and Turner Classic Movies will use much of that date Tuesday for a birthday salute to an actor who was as solid as a dramatic figure as he was as a lighthearted rogue ... sometimes evoking both personalities within the same role.

"I see aspects of Dad in every film," actress-author daughter Jennifer Grant told this writer several years ago. "There isn't one film that I think best embodies him, but his films were all made before I was born. He had retired by then, so he wore a different hat.

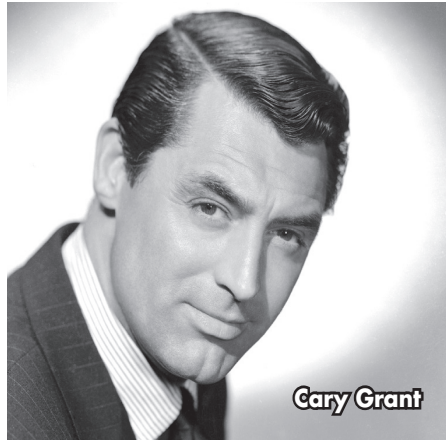

"In his earlier films, he's very much the charming bachelor. He was good-looking throughout his life, but he was just playing a different role as a father. I didn't see the romantic lead around the house; I saw the guy who was making the bed with me and making peanut-butter-and-jelly sandwiches and reading 'Sleeping Beauty.' He had plenty of charm to throw in there, but it was a different sort of thing."

Also the daughter of actress Dyan Cannon, Grant explained of her father, "There was a certain vulnerability he had with me, his child, a certain lilt in his voice and a certain joy. I don't necessarily see that in his films. I might see a glimpse, but at home, all masks were removed."

In the order they'll be shown, here's a look at the films in TCM's Cary Grant birthday salute.

"Destination Tokyo" (1943): Released while World War II still was raging, this tense drama stars Grant as the captain of a Japan-bound American submarine.

"Every Girl Should Be Married" (1948): A pediatrician (Grant) becomes the romantic target of a saleswoman (Betsy Drake, who married Grant in real life afterward). "Gunga Din" (1939): Grant, Victor McLaglen and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. star in this adventure classic as military men assisted by a would-be soldier (Sam Jaffe).

Cary Grant

"Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House" (1948): Grant is Mr. Blandings, and indeed, he wants a country home built just the way he desires it.

"Mr. Lucky" (1943): A gambler (Grant) adopts an alias in a bid to spirit money away from a charity.

"The Bachelor and the Bobby-Soxer" (1947): A womanizer (Grant) attracts a much-younger admirer (Shirley Temple) in this Sidney Sheldon-written comedy.

"North by Northwest" (1959): In one of Alfred Hitchcock's best movies, Grant plays a businessman mistaken for a spy and forced to run for his life... all the way to Mount Rushmore, in a hugely famous and effective climactic sequence.

'American Auto' is giving Harriet Dyer a TV tune-up

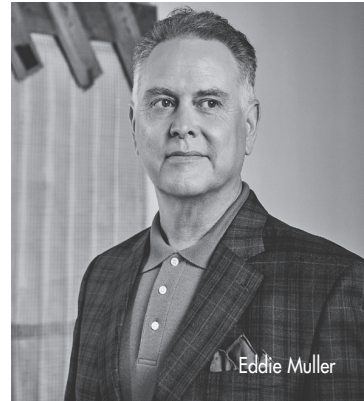

Q: Where have I seen Harriet Dyer of "American Auto" before? - Mike Jennings, via email

A: While a lot of her work has been for television in her native Australia - which you might not suspect from her flawless American accent in her new NBC comedy - Dyer had the lead for the same network as a clairvoyant in the drama series "The InBetween" several summers ago. She also appeared in "Wakefield," which Showtime ran recently.

However, she may be even better known now for "The Invisible Man," the 2020 horror-movie update in which she plays Elisabeth Moss's sister. Semi-spoiler alert: Dyer makes a very memorable exit from the film in a scene that she told us was the last one shot on a very long work day, in the middle of the night. And it may well be the moment you'll remember most from the picture, long afterward.

Q: Every so often on "Noir Alley," I'll hear Eddie Muller give the impression that he helps restore classic films himself. Is that actually something he does? - Bob Winder, Stuart, Fla.

A: It is. Even before he started hosting his weekly program on Turner Classic Movies, Muller became the founder and president of the Film Noir Foundation, which works with producers and studios to preserve examples of the genre. In many instances, movies that he presents on "Noir Alley" are titles he has had a firsthand role in bringing back to their original (or better) picture and sound quality.

Muller also showcases those films at in-person events he stages around the country (including in his native San Francisco), though in the era of the coronavirus pandemic, such in-person gatherings have been suspended.

Sophia Bush OF 'GOOD SAM' ON CBS

How are you finding it to play a heart surgeon in "Good Sam"?

For me, the irony of all of this is that my plan as a kid ... I don't know if it was growing up the daughter of an immigrant or what, but your options are really like, you're a doctor or a lawyer. So, as a young person, I said I wanted to be a doctor. And I was particularly fascinated with heart surgery. I considered it as a specialty.

Then, my high school drama teacher got in the way and helped put me in my first play. You can imagine the shock when I told my parents I wasn't going to med school; I was going to go study theater and learn how to do costume makeup. So, it really feels full-circle. My parents are thrilled by this. They're sort of like living out their moment. And for me, I think it's loving the genre so much.

What exactly do you love about the medical-show genre?

There is such a heightened sense of what's important in the walls of a hospital, when things are literally life and death, and that has only increased for all of us in terms of representing health-care workers since COVID. This incredible sum of all these parts that we've put together has made learning (medical) terminology, and all of these other things - I love it.

One of my very favorite things to do, not only as an individual but with this whole team of unbelievably talented actors, is to get into our medical rehearsals and figure out who slaps what where and how we do the things, and we make it look pretty bad-ass. I'm actually living a dream.

Having had lengthy runs on "One Tree Hill" and "Chicago P.D.," do you envision "Good Sam" as another situation where you could be content to stay for a while?

I'm sure everyone has a day where they wonder, "Might I wind up doing something else later in my life?" But being on this show, I would like to not do anything else for a very, very long time.

It's time to travel on your stomach with Food Network and Cooking Channel

Welcome to the middle of January, a time of year when the Christmas bills are coming due and cabin fever is beginning to set in.

The instinct is to go far, far away – preferably to somewhere warm – but in the age of the pandemic that may prove difficult, if not unhealthy. So it might be safer to live vicariously through the foodies on Cooking Channel and Food Network, who will not only show you cool places but where you can get a great meal.

Andrew Zimmern certainly has the right idea in the Monday, Jan. 17, episode of Cooking's "The Zimmern List," in which he stops in San Diego, an often-overlooked culinary destination, to grab a bite of seafood in Little Italy, sample some authentic Mexican in Barrio Logan and feast on everybody's newest favorite fast food, fried chicken.

A quick hop halfway across the Pacific is Guy Fieri, who in the Friday, Jan. 21, episode of "Guy! Hawaiian Style" on Food Network has a busy agenda on tap for his family that includes spearfishing, catching prawns and a visit to Pearl Harbor to prepare a Mexican lunch for troops as a "mahalo" for their service.

If sheer volume is your thing, Casey Webb might have what you seek on Cooking's "Man v. Food" on Tuesday, Jan. 18, which finds him in Virginia Beach chowing down on a street corn snack-turned-burger, a decadent croissant-muffin hybrid and the vaunted corned beef omelet challenge involving a dozen eggs. Calorie counters, you have been forewarned.

Up the East Coast in Philadelphia, Robert Irvine is checking out some of the comfort foods the City of Brotherly Love has to offer in the Sunday, Jan. 16, edition of Cooking's "Cheat Day." The day starts with a stop at the city's oldest Irish pub for meatloaf and mashed potatoes stacked high with fish and chips. Then it's off to Stamford, Conn., for chocolate-hazelnut peanut butter cup French toast and San Antonio for crispy pata and sisig made from pork and spices.

And if you're looking for more exotic fare, turn it to Cooking on Monday for "Bizarre Foods: Delicious Destinations," which brings host Zimmern to Stockholm to sample herring and traditional Swedish fare such as pea soup and pancakes and cinnamon rolls topped with crunchy pearl sugar. There is also a dish known as "Jansson's temptation," a creamy potato and anchovy casserole that is said to be named for early-1900s Swedish opera singer Pelle Janzon, a renowned gourmet.

Checking in with BRIDGET EVERETT

celebrity scoop BY GEORGE DICKIE

Performing "Don't Give Up" by Peter Gabriel and Kate Bush in the premiere episode of HBO's "Somebody Somewhere" almost proved to be too much for series star Bridget Everett.

"And when I sang it on that day," the native Kansan continues, "it was very personal to me because I feel like I am the character Sam. I just let a lot of years slide by. And it really is the message to keep trying and give yourself and opportunity to succeed.

Full name: Bridget Jean Everett Birth date: April 21, 1972 Birthplace: Manhattan, Kan. Family: Single; the youngest of six siblings

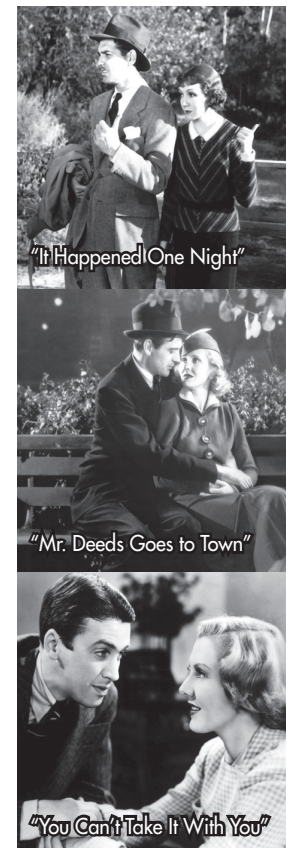

TV credits include: "2 Broke Girls," "Difficult People," "Girls," "Inside Amy Schumer," "Lady Dynamite," "No Activity," "Another Period," "Bobcat Goldthwait's Misfits & Monsters," "Camping," "Historical Roasts," "Twelve Forever," "Unbelievable," "At Home With Amy Sedaris," "Bob's Burgers" (voice only)

Movie credits include: "Sex and the City" (2008), "The Opposite Sex" (2014), "Trainwreck" (2015), "Patti Cake$" (2017), "Fun Mom Dinner" (2017), "The Stand In" (2020), "Breaking News in Yuba County" (2021)

She's living at home and feeling like she's just sleepwalking through life. So when her best friend Joel (Jeff Hiller, "Nightcap") calls Sam up on stage to do a duet with him at their church, Everett found herself getting emotional.

So the tears viewers see on the screen are genuine. "First of all, I love Peter Gabriel and Kate Bush ...," explains Everett, who is also an executive producer of the series, "But every time I would even think about singing, I would get choked up because it's one of those songs that I always listened to and loved but I'd never sung or put in my own voice.

BY JAY BOBBIN

Denzel Washington's strong work lifts 'Flight'

If you're about to travel on an airplane, this might not be the time to see "Flight."

That's not because the 2012 drama — which EPIX presents Monday, Jan. 17 and Tuesday, Jan. 18 — isn't a good movie. It's extremely good indeed, but early on, it presents a crisis-in-flight scene that will stand your hair on end. That's no surprise, since "Flight" is directed by someone who had done such a scene before with great and terrifying skill: Robert Zemeckis, who put Tom Hanks through a similar emergency with the crash that set "Cast Away" in motion.

That's just the beginning of "Flight," which primarily is a character study that gives Denzel Washington a crack at a somewhat different kind of role. He surely has played flawed people, but here, he tries to conceal the flaws as the pilot who becomes a media hero after maneuvering his passenger jet out of seemingly certain doom during a fierce storm.

Not all such heroes necessarily want to be that widely praised and looked at; even Capt. "Sully" Sullenberger seemed a bit uncomfortable with all the justified praise after his "miracle landing" in New York. But Washington's character, the charismatic and somewhat arrogant "Whip" Whitaker, has another reason for not wanting the spotlight shining so brightly on him. He had drugs and liquor in his system when he performed his heroics.

As many people as he saves in the near-disaster, he can't save everyone, and the National Transportation Safety Board comes calling to start the preliminaries of an investigation. This is where a story such as "Flight" takes a star as skilled as Washington. Once the scary special effects and aerobatics that set the tale in motion are over, the movie needs somewhere to go, and Washington steers it there most ably.

That being said, the show isn't his alone. Strong impressions also are made by Don Cheadle as the attorney who tries to help Whitaker through the inquiry, and the ever-welcome John Goodman as a cheery supplier of chemicals the pilot should not be indulging in ... especially pre-flight. Kelly Reilly (lately of the series "Yellowstone") also makes her mark as another addict, and Bruce Greenwood ("The Resident") is typically solid as a Whitaker friend who's also a liaison between the pilots' union and the NTSB.

Ultimately and expectedly, though, "Flight" really does take off on the strength of Washington. That's often a quiet strength, a firm indication of why the star in charge here remains one of today's best and most compelling performers.

JEFF GOLDBLUM

Jeffrey Lynn Goldblum was born in West Homestead, Pa., on Oct. 22, 1952. One of four siblings, he gained an interest in jazz music – and a determination to succeed in life – from his late older brother Rick, and he moved to New York to pursue acting at age 17. He studied under the renowned Sanford Meisner at the Neighborhood Playhouse. Goldblum made his Broadway debut in the Tony Award-winning musical “Two Gentlemen of Verona,” then made his movie debut as one of the hoodlums who attacked the Charles Bronson character’s wife and daughter in “Death Wish.” Other film work soon followed for him in such pictures as “Nashville,” “Annie Hall,” “Between the Lines,” “Thank God It’s Friday” and the 1978 remake of “Invasion of the Body Snatchers.”

The 1980s brought notable screen roles for Goldblum in “The Big Chill,” “The Right Stuff,” “Into the Night,” “Silverado,” and “The Fly.” He also starred with Ben Vereen in the series “Tenspeed and Brown Shoe,” and he had the title role as the comedian in the TV movie “Ernie Kovacs: Between the Laughter.” Working for a time as an acting teacher at Playhouse West in Los Angeles – and later a founder of the New York theater company The Fire Dept. – Goldblum continued his career with such movies as “Jurassic Park,” “Nine Months,” “Independence Day,” “The Lost World: Jurassic Park” and “Holy Man.” He also spent time on the series “Law & Order: Criminal Intent” in the regular role of Detective Zack Nichols, and he had a recurring role on “Will & Grace.”

Goldblum is the host of the Disney+ series “The World According to Jeff Goldblum,” which resumes streaming its second season Wednesday, Jan. 19. In the show, he examines a variety of subjects for his unique point of view, consulting with experts on the topics (which include birthdays, puzzles and motorcycles this time).

Also the leader of a jazz group, Goldblum previously was married to actresses Patricia Gaul and Geena Davis. His current wife is retired Canadian gymnast Emilie Livingston; they have two sons together.

'The Price Is Right' is on at night again

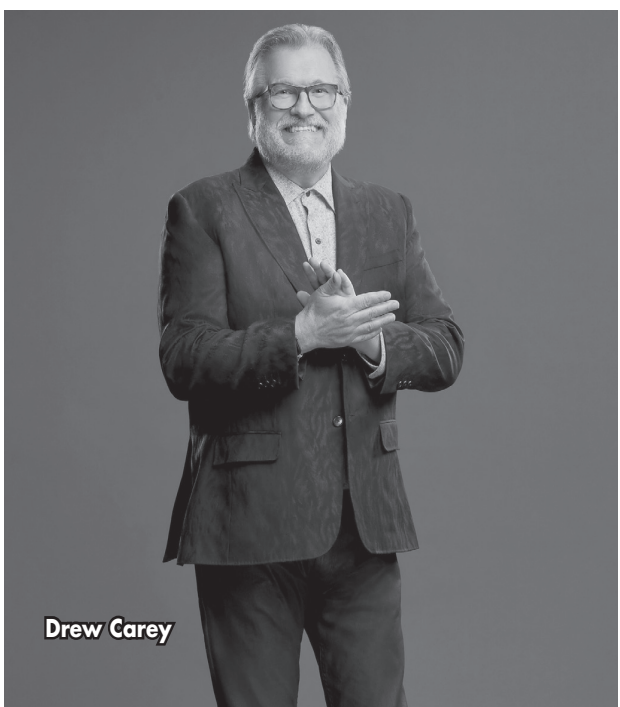

BY JAY BOBBIN

If it seems like a novelty to see “The Price Is Right” in the evening, the game show has been there before, and regularly.

Now in the 50th-anniversary season of its current incarnation, the CBS daytime staple has done a number of primetime special editions, and it presents its second of two to launch 2022 with “The Price Is Right at Night” Wednesday, Jan. 19. Host Drew Carey brings all the familiar elements, but the value of the potential winnings is likely to be a bit bigger for nighttime purposes, especially when it comes to the concluding “showcase” grand-prize round.

“The Price Is Right” (which was created by genre titans Mark Goodson, Bill Todman and Bob Stewart) dates back to the fall of 1956, when Bill Cullen presided over a weekday version on NBC that soon yielded a once-week evening spinoff. In 1963, both editions moved to ABC, but they lasted only two more years there.

In 1972, the show was brought back, both in the CBS daytime lineup – where it initially was dubbed “The New Price Is Right,” with Bob Barker hosting – and in a weekly syndicated version that Dennis James presided

Drew Carey

Barker remained with the daytime “Price Is Right” until the summer of 2007, accruing competitive Daytime Emmys and a Lifetime Achievement Award along the way. Naming Drew Carey to succeed him was met with considerable surprise. Best-known for his eponymous ABC sitcom, Carey actually had been hired by CBS to front another game show “Power of 10,” so he already was on that network’s radar for that sort of job.

Though the retired Barker remains game-

Australia’s Barty seeks first title in Melbourne

She’s a two-time Grand Slam champ and has been World No. 1 for more than 100 weeks. But an Australian Open singles title has persistently eluded this native daughter.

Ashleigh Barty, this is your time.

As the tennis year’s first major kicks off Sunday, Jan. 16, and airs on ESPN and ESPN2, the 25-year-old product of Ipswich on the continent’s east coast sits at the top of the ladies rankings thanks to a stellar 2021 season in which she ran up a 42-8 record with five WTA titles, including her second Slam at Wimbledon.

At Melbourne, she’s reached at least the quarterfinals the past three years with a semifinal appearance in 2020. She appeared on her way to a title last year when she opened her quarterfinal match in dominant fashion by drubbing Karolina Muchova in the first set 6-2. She was up 2-1 in the second when Muchova used an injury time out to regain her bearings.

When play resumed 10 minutes later, the Czech looked like a completely different player, reeling off 11 of the next 15 games to win 1-6, 6-3, 6-2 and sending Barty packing and out of her home Slam. Muchova would then go on to lose in the semifinal to Jennifer Brady, who herself would fall to eventual champ Naomi Osaka in the final.

Barty is only the second Australian woman to be World No. 1 after Evonne Goolagong Cawley. If she wins this year’s tournament, she’d cement that laurel and be the first Aussie woman since Christine O’Neil in 1978 to take the title at Melbourne.

Christopher Lowell, Francia Raisa, Tom Ainsley and Suraj Sharma are also in the cast. (ORIGINAL SERIES)
