County Judge candidates answer platform questions posed by the Herald

By CARRIE HARVELL

Thomas (Tom) Land
for
Howard County Judge

- Supports Business Growth
- 40 Years Budgeting Experience
- Fresh Ideas & Straightforward Leadership

Paid Political Ad - Paid for by Committee to Elect Tom Land Jeanie Knocke, Treasurer

The main purpose of elections is to choose good representatives for our county. On March 1, the citizens of Howard County will vote in a Primary election to elect the candidates they want on the ballot in November for the following positions: County Judge, County Commissioner (Precinct 2) County Commissioner (Precinct 4), Justice of the Peace (Precinct 1, Place 2), and Justice of The Peace (Precinct 2). Early voting is now underway at the Howard County Courthouse, and is slated to continue each weekday through Feb. 25.

To aid voters in making the best choice, each candidate was asked to respond to a set of seven questions, selected by the Big Spring Herald. The questions, presented in the same order for each candidate, include:

1. Some people in our community say we have a traffic problem; heavy trucks coming through town and drag racing down Third and Fourth streets. What is your opinion? How would you mitigate or change the situation?
2. How do you plan to involve residents in the decision-making process in our community?
3. What career accomplishments are you most proud of?
- 4 (a). What is your greatest strength?
(b). What is your weakness?

5. What are your top three priorities?

6. What steps do you take when making decisions?

7. What motivates you to work?

Printed below are the verbatim responses from each candidate for County Judge:

Steven Hobbs (Democrat)
1. I have experienced this traffic problem myself. We want to encourage large trucks to utilize the reliever route to go around the city rather than through it. If they refuse to be encouraged to use the route that is designed for them, we can discourage their use of the major thoroughfare with advertisement of the route, working with the city council and law enforcement to remind large trucks about Section 48-16 of our city code. The Department of Transportation can also be requested to repair or replace high-use areas like intersections with resistant materials such as concrete rather than asphalt.

2. There are multiple avenues that elected officials can use to help get citizens involved: 1) openly advertise meetings to the public and encourage the general public to speak at the meetings. It is quite literally the job of elected officials to listen to their constituents, weigh the options, and take action that benefits the city/county. In my case, it will be everyone living in Howard County and I plan to hear them when they speak. 2) Host town hall meetings with open forums for elected officials to listen. Oftentimes citizens have issues where they may not feel they are heard by sending an email or a letter. I speak for a living in the classroom, the lab, and on the radio. The spoken word is powerful. Too few elected officials fear their constituents and instead shut them out. I understand that as Howard County Judge, the authority of the position is because of the citizens. 3) Encourage public service and civic duties; e.g., get more of the citizens interested in running for office, serving their fellow citizens in education, child protective services like CASA, and being actively involved in

Forsan Journalism students visit Big Spring Animal Shelter

By AMANDA DUFORAT
Contributing Writer

That moment when a puppy heart connects with a human's heart, a forever home is found. The Forsan High School Journalism students are working with the City of Big Spring Animal Shelter to help make that connection possible.

"I saw a post from City Councilman Troy Tompkins about searching for someone to do some write-ups for a few dogs that they wanted to get adopted," Ms. Amanda Duforat, Journalism Teacher at Forsan ISD said. "First thing I thought of was, this would be a perfect real life learning experience for my students, and it would be a fun way to step into the media world."

Tompkins has partnered with a local non-profit to get the animals in the shelter spayed and neutered. In addition, he has reached out to the community to encourage donations to the project. According to information provided by Tompkins and the City of Big Spring, there have been 18 dogs fully vetted and ready to be adopted.

"The city shelter has been sitting at maximum capacity for awhile, and the stray animal problem is an issue citywide. Animal control officers cannot pick up dogs if there is no room in the animal shelter to house them," Tompkins said.

The Forsan Journalism students made a special trip to the City Animal Shelter to meet the dogs, gain a better understanding of their personalities and take some pictures. The students are crafting short bios to accompany the photographs in hopes of highlighting the animals in the shelter and bringing their forever family to them.

"I have always loved taking pictures, being able to have this real life experience in our community is a huge deal. Ms. Duforat has opened up so much for not only me but all of the students here at Forsan. Her allowing us to do things like this opens us to meeting new people in our community, and also allows us to open up more opportunities for our future," Emily Allen, Forsan Journalism student, said.

For those wanting to adopt a dog, or other animal from the shelter, call 432-264-2372. The Big Spring Animal Shelter is open from 1 p.m. – 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

3. Becoming a professor of biology has been my most proud accomplishment. I LOVE my job. Anyone who has ever met me knows that I am at my most excited when I get to discuss biological concepts with students, see a research result in the lab, or find a new way of treating a disease. The title is not given...it is definitely earned. Putting in decades of education and research into practice to help others see their world, test claims, and follow evidence is an amazing feeling. I always promised myself that the day I no longer like my job, I'll quit. I've been at it continuously and happily since the first day I stepped into the position. I am eternally grateful for the opportunity to share my passions with the world. When students have that "A-ha!" moment, it just lights me up! When a new experimental treatment is successful and I can move it forward for more trials, I know that in the future, it started with me sitting down with a pen and paper and getting to it.

4 (a). My greatest strength is that I am willing to do the work to help others. It doesn't matter if I need to push a stalled car off the highway so they can be safe from traffic, swing a hammer with volunteer services like Habitat for Humanity, or logging countless hours in a lab to find relief for patients I will never meet. I started my career in a lumber yard, a hardware store, and moonlighted as a waiter. I'm very much effort-driven. I see the progress step-by-step and I see where it helps others. That's why I have been in public service since 2001. I am willing to do the work.

4 (b). My weakness is that I am a quiet person. I don't make much noise or speak too often. It's often difficult to read a situation, so I stay silent until I know what is happening, who is involved, and what is the appropriate topic. As a professor and broadcaster, I speak about subjects that I am passionate about. I know that the individuals who are there are there for a reason. They need the information I have and I am happy to share that information with them. But to speak to a new person I've just met is often difficult but not impossible. I try to find a common ground or a shared experience and work from there. People are wonderful and they are genuinely happy to talk about their lives, their losses, and their passions. I've found that most of the time, what they need is an ear or a shoulder. I have a spare if you ever need one.

5. My top three priority issues are: 1) Build effective working relationships between the citizens of Howard County and the elected officials. Listening to the citizens is the best way to find out what they need and how the governmental agencies can best help them. The citizens control the power and they need that authority to work to serve the public. 2) Work to ensure relationships are between county and city agencies and the community such as the hospital. Please allow me space to explain: Howard county supplies the bare minimum necessary to keep our hospital open. That service is the lifeblood of our community in that they provide a pillar to build on, a service to protect us from harm, and a way to attract others to our area. The citizens of Howard County should not need to leave Howard to get prime healthcare. The State Hospital works with SMMC to provide health care services to their patients, as do the veterans homes, the retirement and assisted living facilities, and the VA. If SMMC is hurting, so is Howard County. There are ways to assist this vital entity and that is with county support and private enterprise. We have both available, we just have to use it. Our hospital was the best of the best for 3 decades. Then in the late 70s, there was a shift in policies and local politics to limit expenditures to only the bare minimum and it has yet to rebound. Others in our immediate area have facilities that are attractive to outside talent to get them employed and stable in their communities. We want to attract talent to our area, have them get established in Howard, and bring in much needed funding to our county. We can do that here in Howard County as well, we just have to put in the work. I'm willing to do that. 3) Develop a fair, unbiased court in Howard County. Everyone deserves a fair trial if ever needed. A court that is able to request, acquire, and allocate opportunities to the citizens as necessary will better our community in every aspect. As Howard County judge, I will do that.

6. When making decisions, it is best to hear all sides if possible and eliminate the extraneous information so that I can focus on the task at hand. I then weigh the costs vs benefits to ensure I am making the most amount of progress with the least amount of negative effects. I rely on experienced individuals and other points of view as well. If there are precedents already known and the outcomes are acceptable, that is a safe decision e.g. I don't need a council meeting to choose dinner. I do need to talk with my family if a person is struggling mentally or physically. I need to discuss with my supervisor(s) if a departmental issue arises. What I have found most effective draws from science...eliminate what you can with experience, set everything equal, then test a single variable. This process makes it easier to see where the effects will be.

7. I am motivated to work because of an internal drive to do so. I have a passion to do what I do in the lab and in the classroom. I get to see the effects of my work come to life and it is personally and professionally fulfilling. When I rise for work each morning, I never struggle with wanting to be there. I get to see students, other faculty, and staff reach for dreams and make them real. I have become part of something larger than myself. One thing that I have found profoundly inspiring is a responsibility to deal kindly with each other as we work to accomplish a massive goal of educating an entire generation and serving the public at large. When a person craves information, there is no force under the sun that will stop them from getting it. That is how I feel each and every day when I walk into the halls of Howard College.

I am here to be of service and it is my joy to do so. Hopefully the citizens of Howard will allow me the honor of doing so as the next Howard County Judge.

Randy Johnson (Republican)

1. I am not aware of any major traffic issues, but I would suggest that, major or not, any concerns should be brought to the attention of the appropriate government entity. Most city road issues would fall to the city manager, mayor, or police department, depending on the cause of the problem. There could be county-related road issues, though, and those should be brought to the attention of a county commissioner, the county judge or the road and bridge department. Let's all work together to make our community better, no matter what the issue is.

2. Generally, I will work to be accessible and listen to concerns, and we should make the public meetings as welcoming as possible. But that isn't enough. I suggest that the county government utilize community input groups on a regular basis. These groups could provide feedback, help communication with neighborhoods, and develop creative answers to challenges. I would suggest rotating members of the committee to allow interested folks to participate in a meaningful way.

3. I am pleased to look back on a 36-year career in education, and have very fond memories of all the students, teachers, parents and staff who have had a powerful impact on my life. I am proud that Forsan ISD has had so many students graduate and go on to be great citizens. Students, with the guidance of incredible educators, had fantastic success, academically, in athletics, and in other extracurricular activities while I was in education. People around me have made me very proud.

4 (a). Ability to get along with people of all backgrounds.

4 (b). I worry.

5. • Financially responsible, efficient government. • Respectful, civil, kind, fair relationships with the people we serve and with the people with whom we work. • Effective government. Let's get the work done for the citizens of Howard County.

6. Listen, gather information, weigh options, then decide. Probably one of the best lists I've run across is the Rotary Club's Four-Way Test: "Is it the truth? Is it fair to all concerned? Will it build goodwill and better friendships? Will it be beneficial to all concerned?" I think that it is tough to make a bad decision if you follow that guidance.

7. I love to set goals and work to accomplish those goals. Checking items off my "to-do" list gives me a great sense of accomplishment. Helping people and serving God gives meaning to life.

I hope my experience as a Chief Financial Officer (Superintendent) of a successful entity is an excellent background for the County Judge position. Working with a group of professionals to positively impact the lives of students and their families gives me a background that will translate well into this elected position.

Tom Land (Republican)

1. I don't see any problems with the traffic. The feeder routes should relieve this problem. In regards to the drag racing on Third and Fourth, I think we need more police who have the proper training. More tickets should be issued to these speeders, and steeper fines. I think the police recognize this problem and are working on it.

2. I would like to see meetings by elected officials open to the public. Some residents have indicated to me that they are intimidated by elected officials. The atmosphere around the Courthouse needs to lighten up. For some just the action of walking into the Courthouse is scary. Elected officials should be a little friendlier and have an open-door policy.

3. A lot of good things have happened in my life. I started my working career when I was a paperboy for the Herald then moved on to working for Safeway. I am the only person who has opened or remodeled the most stores. I was working in California when H-E-B approached me to open a store in Big Spring, since I grew up here, I quickly agreed.

4(a). I am approachable and basically a good guy, also fun. People enjoy working for me. I am not afraid to ask for advice and I don't have a problem admitting when I am wrong. When I make a mistake I apologize. I am a very good manager and know how to handle money.

4(b). I am set in my ways.

5. I want to become very involved in the Ports-to-Plains project. I think if it was explained better to the residents, we could shine through this. I want to work closer with the Probation Department. We need to educate and get these people into the workforce program at Howard College. I think we should buy some more of the roll-off dumpsters and place them around the city where people can throw away their trash instead of just dumping it on the streets. Cleaning up Big Spring will bring in more business.

6. I look at how big the decision is. I make snap decisions on little things. I ask for input from others. I will not be rash in making decisions that affect other people.

7. I retired after 35-plus years of managing grocery stores; however, it is hard for me not to be working. I am 72 years old and currently have two part-time jobs. My parents instilled a strong work ethic in me.

Robert Stapp (Republican)

1. I agree there are times during the day the traffic is terrible. Oilfield traffic with trucks, tankers and a lot of workers keep the roads busy. One thing we can do is post the busiest times publicly so we can avoid them and that area. We now have a relief route that they should be using. Maybe we need to look into ways to make these companies use that route.

2. I believe moving the Commissioners' Court Meetings to 5:30 or 6 p.m. so more people can attend. With all the available ways to get the meetings aired to the public and get them notified of upcoming meetings. Getting people involved is the key to a better community.

3. That is a tough one, 33+ years of being a Firefighter, teaching Firefighter/paramedics, running my own business for almost 20 years, so I would say helping the citizens of Howard County is what I am most proud of.

4(a). My strength is that I give 100 percent at what I am doing. I do and will continue to seek the correct answer, and I am not afraid to seek out the advice of others who have the knowledge.

4(b). My weakness will be always expecting more of myself than I can give.

5. Helping the elderly. Cleaning up Howard County and making officials more approachable.

6. Research and, when possible, go to the sources. I am not afraid to seek advice when needed, especially from the Howard County staff.

7. When I was a little guy, nine or 10, my dad was a manager of a motorcycle shop. I was with him when he fired a mechanic. Later I asked him why, he said "He was lazy" then he looked me square in the eyes and said "Always work hard. The worst thing a man can be called is lazy." Since then, I have always given 100 percent.

The Herald will run the JP candidates on Monday.

SANTA ANNA VISITED

By Tumbleweed Smith

Special to the Herald

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Wallisville is a small community east of the Trinity River just south of Interstate 10 in Chambers County. It is on the site of a former French trading post and was named for the first family that settled the area. Rice and cotton became the major crops. It was once a thriving community with lumber production, ship building, various businesses, a newspaper, hotel, ice cream parlor, skating rink and a busy port for steamboats, since roads were few and waterways were the principal way to get around. Many of the structures in Galveston were built with bricks and lumber shipped from Wallisville, which was the county seat for 50 years. Hurricanes and fires had disastrous effects on the town and in 1908 the county seat was moved to Anahuac.

Sam Houston had a residence there for a while. The Mexican dictator Santa Anna, who Houston defeated at the Battle of San Jacinto in 1836, spent some time chained to a tree in Wallisville while he was being transported as a prisoner to Washington DC.

Because of its abundance of birds, ducks and alligators, Chambers County is one of the most visited places for hunters and birders along the Texas coast. When the Wallis family got to the area in 1925 there wasn't much civilization there. "It was just miles and miles of prairie land," says Marie Hughes of the Chambers County Museum in Wallisville. "They had to keep fires going at night to keep the alligators away. There were also bears and wildcats around here then."

The county's rich history has evidence of Native American, French, Spanish and Anglo cultures. The museum celebrates the county's history on February 5, Heritage Day. It is the museum's main fundraiser. Visitors enjoy raffles, auctions, entertainment and a gumbo cook-off with nearly a dozen competitors.

A school building on the museum grounds built in 1869 has had many different uses. It served as the courthouse for a while after the original courthouse burned. It was also a church and once housed the museum. "It's yellow with blue trim right now," says Marie. "Originally it was built with board and batten, where they had the upright planks with smaller strips of wood to go over the seams."

Chambers County showed its patriotism late last year when the body of Sonny Boy Saunders, a US sailor killed during the attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941, was recovered and brought home for burial at a cemetery in nearby Winnie. "Multitudes of people showed up to honor him," says Marie. "When they left the funeral home the procession went past all the schools where the school children were lined up along the streets waving American flags. It was wonderful to see the support. With all the things going on in the world today I think we were ready to celebrate a hero."

Memorabilia from his military days are on display at the museum. Sonny Boy was laid to rest on December 7th, 2021, 80 years after Pearl Harbor was attacked.

Obituary On the Cheap...

By Dr. Don Newbury

DON NEWBURY

John and Mary Smith had ordinary names, but their extraordinary 60-year marriage was anything but that, ending with her death one year ago.

It had to be a marriage made in heaven, because they hardly had any planning time during a six-week courtship between their initial blind date and wedding in 1961.

They defied norms in many ways, including construction of an octagonal-sided home which has no hallways, and travel that took them to many parts of the world. Parents of two adult sons, they crowded much into their years together....

John tried hard to keep pace, but Mary set a tough course. She was an elementary school teacher for 30 years, sporting a '73 Mercedes convertible as her "school car" for almost two decades.

An accountant, John has busied himself in community service during most of his adult life.

He and Mary spent many hours laughing, often at themselves. One such time was when they wrote "fake" obituaries about each other. He emphasizes they were "fake" in the purest form, unlike "fake news" bandied about so much these days....

Mary's obituary about him was a "cake-taker." Learning that the newspaper ran the first five words of obituaries free, she wrote of him: "John died. Mercedes for sale."

John, who spends several hours each week as a volunteer staffer for the Burleson Heritage Museum, has been providing transportation services since my October heart attack prevents driving for six months....

We discovered many parallels in our lives. I mentioned that I was 84 years of age; he nodded that he also is 84. I asked when he was born.

He gave a bogus answer. "In 1936," he said, balking when I responded that there is no way he could be 84 with a birth date in 1936.

"Just to make sure I haven't lost count, I intend to visit the cemetery," John said. "I've got a tombstone in place, and they've already chiseled my date of birth." He must have determined that he had indeed misplaced one year, since he hasn't mentioned it again....

In my hometown of Brownwood, the Lyric Theatre is going great guns. The theatre first opened in 1918, featuring live shows in the early going. It was a movie house for several decades before TV took its toll on motion picture theatres in the late 1950s and 1960s.

At the turn of the century, several local figures mounted a drive to raise $2 million to restore the darkened theatre. A decade later, they had $4 million in hand, and the theatre now is nothing short of spectacular by all measures.

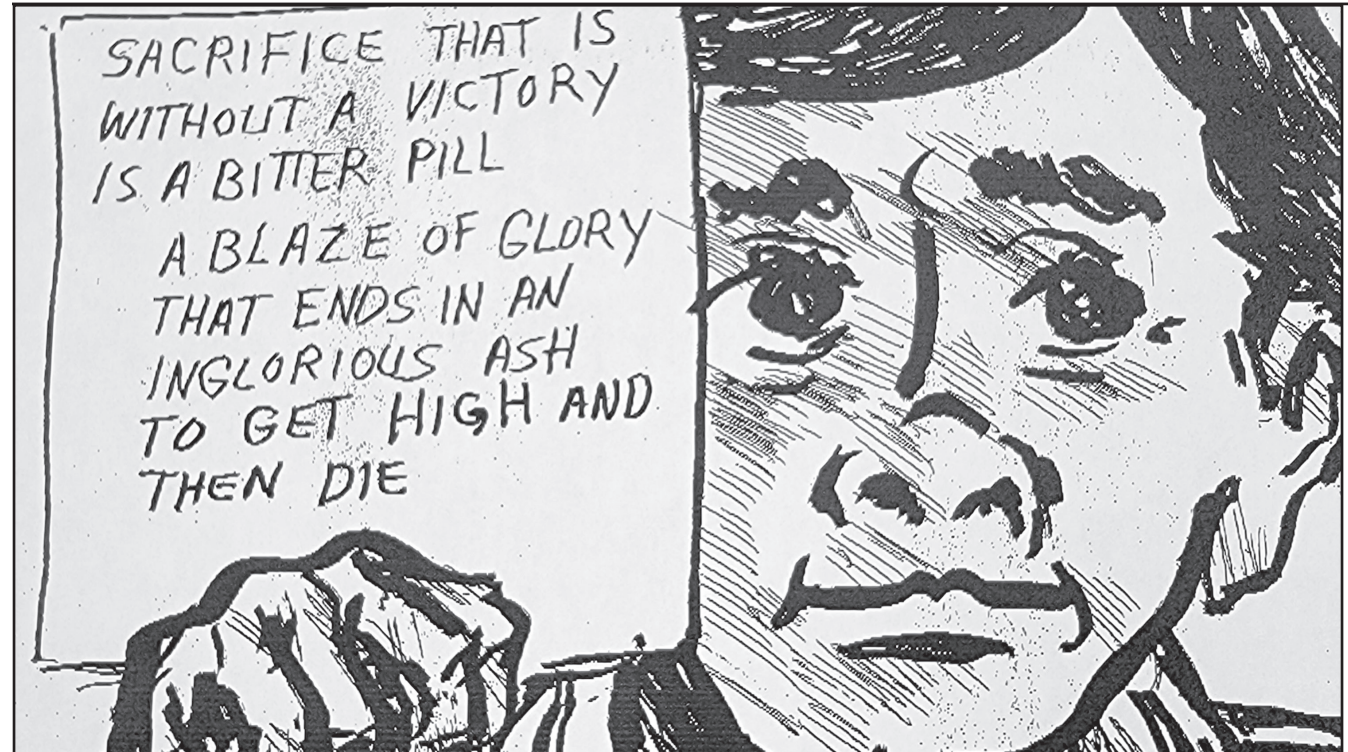

Anyways, Eric Evans is managing director, and he has a now four-decades old email address with America Online. Quite simply, the email address is ericevans@aol.com. Gene Deason, longtime editor of the Brownwood Bulletin and a member of the theatre's board of directors, was bumfuzzled by the email address. He had figured it to read "e-ricevans," and was red-faced when someone pointed out his dividing syllables in the wrong places....

On another note, it was announced recently that aerospace futurists are working on production of a largely-silent supersonic plane. Somehow, this doesn't square with me. It seems to me that some things are expected to be loud, including supersonic jets hurtling through space.

Such an account reminds me of the old farmer on the high plains who decided to visit the Lubbock Airport, mostly because he'd never been to one, since he never intended to fly. He was taken aback by the posted schedule calling for a 10:00 a.m. flight that would arrive in El Paso at 10:05 a.m. (It hadn't occurred to him that they'd gain an hour flying west.)

Whatever, the agent asked him if he'd like to buy a ticket. "No way I'm getting on that airplane," the farmer stiffened, "But I do think I'll hang around long enough to watch it take off."...

Second Time Around

Colorado City High School is the proud owner of something most high schools can't boast about - a Super Bowl ring. Recently CHS received two prize possessions - a Super Bowl III ring and the helmet of Don Maynard. Maynard graduated from Colorado City in 1954, went on to a Hall of Fame NFL career.

He won his Super Bowl ring in 1968 when the Jets shocked the world by upsetting the 18-point favorite Baltimore Colts 16-7. Maynard died last month at the age of 86. This is where the story gets interesting. Colorado City football coach B.J. Graham hooked up with Colorado City resident Ross Williams, who incidentally is a sports memorabilia collector. Now Maynard's helmet is on showcase and ring is locked up in a safe.

Exactly how Williams got these valuable possessions is still unknown. Efforts to contact him were made, but no replies.

Number 13 was a lovable guy approximately nicknamed "Country". for his Texas drawl. He had a way with his words. In 1973 when he retired, he left the NFL in career receptions and receiving yards. He was the first man in NFL history to get 10,000 yards in his career. Of that particular stat he replied - "Others may do it but I'm the first, and only one guy can be the first."

Here are the closing words of Don Maynard's acceptance speech when he was inducted into the Hall of Fame back in 1987. "I played with the best, I think I passed the test. Now it's time for me to rest."

I'm glad people like Graham and Williams reside in Colorado City. That's what I call giving back to your community.

SUPER BOWL WAS WORTH WATCHING

The Rams over the Bengals was a good game. No it didn't have a lot of thrilling offensive fireworks - it was more of a defensive tug of war chess match. In the end it was Cincinnati's playing "not to lose" instead of "playing to win." On the Rams winning scoring drive the Bengals pulled off on the rush against Matthew Stafford in order to put more men in pass coverage. He gave Stafford adequate time to complete short conservative passes to his receivers - mainly Cooper Krupp.

Like in most all Super Bowls the MVP goes to the offense. This being Krupp. He didn't catch 145 passes this season for nothing. I'm an old defensive tackle and they get very little love. My Super Bowl MVP award goes to Aaron Donald, who almost single handily destroyed Cincinnati's last drive. That's a man's man.

Krupp, NFL MVP for the season. Goodbye Brady, sorry Rodgers..

I'm an old man, but the halftime show was epic. I'm not trying to be 30 again, but I like good music. The hip-hop culture brought out the best - "The Queen" Mary J. Blige, Snoop, 50 Cent, Dr. Dree and a little bit of Eminem. What did you expect from a Super Bowl in Los Angeles?

AREA ATHLETES SELECTED TO PLAY IN ALL-STAR GAMES

A fresh Start: New coaches new season for the Big Spring Steers Baseball team

By DUSTIN POPE

Managing Editor

It's the best time of the year. It's time for some baseball! The Big Spring Steers are getting ready to kick off their regular season on Monday, Feb 21. There have been some considerable changes from last year's team, so I'm going to give you a breakdown of this year's group and a glimpse at some fresh faces.

The Steers are coming off of an arduous season last year where they finished 12-17-1 and failed to make the postseason. There have been several noteworthy changes with this ball club throughout the off-season. Most noticeably, last year's head coach Daniel Carrillo has left to take a head coaching job in Copperas Cove, and assistant coach Joe Bogle has moved on to take the head coaching job in Comanche. So with two coaches gone, it was time for some fresh faces to take over for the Steers. So in steps new Baseball head coach Brad Harman. While he may be the new head baseball coach, Harman is not an unfamiliar name for Big Spring or in the coaching game. This year will mark Harman's twenty-fourth year in coaching. He has been the defensive coordinator for the Steers for the last few years and the JV baseball coach. As far as baseball coaching experience, he is loaded there as well. He has been the baseball head coach for the Coahoma Bulldogs and the Monahans Lobos, to name a few.

Michael Felton will come back as an assistant for the baseball team. Felton possesses exceptional relationships with all players and is a remarkable motivator. In addition, there will be two fresh names on the baseball team this year. Mario Heredia and Matt Yanez are new to the team and bring a fresh perspective to this year's squad.

Ok, so now let's dive into this team. The Steers will be laden with an abundance of talent coming back from last year's team. One of the stronger players I have observed will lead them, both with the glove and with the bat. Shortstop Josh Miramontes. This will be his senior season, and after receiving numerous awards last year, the season will be there for him to take over. Another key returner will be lead-off man Maverick Yanez. Yanez is one of the stronger competitors this team has; his time spent on his craft to get better was impressive. His leadership off the field is why he is a leader. Ace pitcher Ricky Escovedo also comes back for his Junior season. Escovedo had an excellent sophomore season and will be the leader of the Steers' pitching staff. A couple of first-year students stood out last year that will be back for their sophomore campaigns. First baseman Isaiah Diaz was a tremendous revelation for the Steers' previous season; the freshman maned a superb first base and was exceedingly productive with the bat. The man behind the plate will be Sophomore Marcos Paradez; Paradez is a natural behind the plate and has the arm to throw out and would-be base stealer in any game. Pablito Dehoyos is a speedster coming off an ACL injury scheduled for 1 p.m. They follow up the Greenwood game with a Pecos and Fort Stockton tournament on Feb 24-26. On Mar 1, they will have their first home game to welcome the Brownfield Cubs to Steer park. After that, a tournament in Levelland is scheduled to take place from Mar. 3-5. They follow that up with another tournament in Greenwood Mar. 10-12. After the Greenwood tourney is when the baseball matters, the Steers begin district play with a home game taking on Lubbock Estacado on Mar 15. The second district game will be in San Angelo on Mar 17 as they take on Lake View. Leveland will be on Mar 19 and will be in Leveland. On Mar 22, the Steers are back home to take on their rivals from Snyder. On Mar 25, they travel to Sweetwater; they follow that up with another road game as they take on Estacado in Lubbock. On Mar 29 they will be on the road as they start back-to-back games against Estacado and then play them at home on Apr 1. The Steers next take on Lakeview in back-to-back game at home on Apr 5, then later on the road on Apr 8. Home and Home games against Levelland follow that up; they will be in Levelland on Apr 12, then home on Apr 14. Snyder will be the next back-to-back game as they will face off against their rivals on Apr 19 in Snyder and play on Apr 22 at home. Finally, they close out the regular season with another home and home against Sweetwater. Apr 26 will be senior night and the last regular-season home game of the year, and then on Apr 29, they close out the season on the road against Sweetwater.

during football season. When Dehoyos gets on base, he will invariably be a threat to steal. Eli Cobos will be another top pitcher on this staff, and he has a bat that can drive in runs as well. Gabriel Baeza will be leaned on. He has the power to take any pitch deep and has one of the best split-finger pitches in all of high school baseball. Baeza will look to have himself a prodigious senior season. Outfielder Braxton Sizenbach is my choice to have a breakout season. Sizenbach has as much, if not more, power in his bat than anyone in this district; he could be one of the key players on this team.

The Steers will open up the regular season this Monday, Feb 21, in Greenwood; the first pitch is

This will be an intriguing season for the Steers. These boys have all the talent in the world to contend for a district title. It won't come easy, but with hard work and their talent on the field, the Steers will be a hard team to stop. With new coaches and a fresh start, I absolutely expect that this will be the year that the Steers will take home a district title.

It's no secret that I care for this group of players. I followed them all season long and looked forward to covering their games this season. They will bring home the title this season, so please come out and support these guys.

The Lone Star State

The Four Regions of Texas

By Judith Tereletsky

HSWCD District Clerk

As we approach the celebration of Texas Independence from Mexico on March 3, 1836, I am reminded of studying our state from my public-school days. Currently 4th and 7th graders study our Lone Star state. One of the areas of concentration is the physical regions. As a conservationist this break down of our state into four regions helps to identify areas that need to be addressed to keep our land healthy.

The Texas Gulf Coastal Plains region begins of course with the Gulf of Mexico extending north to the Arkansas border and in towards the Balcones Escarpment. Contained within this area are the Piney Woods, Post Oak Belt, Blackland Belt, and the Coastal Prairies. The Pine Belt or Piney Woods is the source of practically all of Texas' commercial timber production and is some of the oldest farming areas in the state. The soils and climate are adaptable to a variety of fruit and vegetable crops. Cattle raising is widespread with the development of improved grasses. Iron and steel industries flourishes along with a great oil field discovered in 1931 (remember Spindletop stuck oil in 1901 near Beaumont, another part of our Gulf Coastal Plains area). The Oak Belt area has lignite, commercial clays and some other minerals besides diversified farming and livestock industries. The Blackland Belt developed rapidly as a farming area due to the easily turned soil but quickly grew into a manufacturing area after the 1930's. The Coastal Prairie is covered with heavy grass in the eastern part with short grasses in the western part. This grass supports some of the densest cattle production in the state. The famed King Ranch and other large ranches are located here. Rice, cotton, and grain sorghum are also major industries, but the growth of petrochemical and aerospace technology has been a vital part of this area since WWII. The Lower Rio Grand Valley provides the greatest citrus and winter vegetable production for Texas. The Rio Grande Plain is the final area of the Gulf Coastal region. This part is closer to the prairie construct covered with dense prickly pear, mesquite, dwarf oak and other cactus and wild shrubs so it is devoted primarily to the raising of cattle, sheep, and goats. The Texas Angora goat and mohair industry centers in this area along with the Edwards Plateau to its north.

Laredo, Houston, Corpus Christi, and Waco are some of the largest cities in the Gulf Coastal Region.

The North Central Plains is comprised of the West Texas Rolling Plains, Grand Prairie and Eastern /Western Cross Timbers. It is a limestone-based area adapted primarily to raising livestock and fruit and vegetable crops however most people recognize this region for the cities of Fort Worth and Dallas. Fort Worth is still known for the rich history in the cattle industry and opening the west with the famed cattle drives and stockyards.

The Basin and Range Province is the third physical region including the Davis Mountains, Guadalupe Mountains, and the city of El Paso. Because of its remarkable topography and plant and animal life, the southern part of the Basin and Range Province is home to the Big Bend National Park. The final part of this region is the Upper Rio Grande Valley home to some of the most historical missions and towns in Texas. Cotton is still a chief product of this region.

This brings us to the fourth region of the Lone Star State named the Great Plains. Of course, I am bias, but this is the best region of our state. Covering a vast portion of the state from the Panhandle to the Rio Grande and Edwards Plateau/Balcones Escarpment to the Davis Mountains/New Mexico border, it contains some extremely diverse lands. The High Plains has the beauty of the Palo Duro Canyon along with the wide-open fields of grain sorghum, cotton, wheat, and peanuts. Irrigation from underground reservoirs water much of the crop acreage. Amarillo (part of the original Route 66) and Lubbock (home of Texas Tech University) are two of the best-known cities. Along the eastern edge of the Panhandle is a gradual descent of the land's surface from high to low plains stretching into the Toyah Basin, Stockton Plateau, and Edwards Plateau. This area is of course "home". We have Sandy Loam and limestone-based soil covered with mesquite, cedar, and small oak with a varying growth of prickly pear. Cotton is a major crop but the land supports cattle, sheep, and goat industries along with a considerable variety of wildlife. A large portion of the economy is oil related. The farmers and ranchers work closely with the petroleum industry to protect the land and all the resources impacted by the industry activities. The eastern portion of the Edwards Plateau contains what we Texans fondly call the Hill Country and along with the successions of dams on the Colorado and Llano rivers create large reservoirs such as Lake Buchanan. Cities such as San Antonio, Austin, and San Marcos are the tourist and political centers for the state. I prefer the wide-open space and beautiful sunsets of West Texas than the nightlife and traffic of the eastern portion of the Great Plains. But no matter how your tastes run, Texas is that special state that can provide whatever regional type from seaports to desserts, mountains to prairies, cites to country, and anything in between. So, celebrate the birthday of our Lone Star State and please continue to take care of its natural resources so we can keep its beauty for generations to come.

The Department of the Army recognizes the importance of stakeholder participation in the Defense Environmental Restoration Program. Therefore, USACE Fort Worth District is assessing public interest in forming a Restoration Advisory Board. RAB members would participate in meetings where environmental restoration issues concerning the investigation/remediation of the Waste Lagoon at the former Webb Air Force Base (AFB) (now McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark), Big Spring, Tx are discussed. A RAB provides community members an opportunity to become involved with the restoration process either as a RAB member or through attendance at regularly scheduled RAB meetings, which are open to the public. USACE is currently performing a Remedial Investigations/Feasibility Study on a portion of the former Webb AFB. If formed, a RAB would include members of the local community, USACE personnel, National Forest staff, and employees from the Texas Department of Environmental Quality. The RAB would be jointly co-chaired by the USACE and a community representative. The community members of the RAB would be asked to select the community co-chair. Opening lead — ten of hearts.

Some hands lend themselves much more readily to a mistake by declarer because the correct play is not self-evident.

Consider this deal where West leads a heart against three notrump. The contract seems easy to make, so South wins with the queen and starts to play diamonds. But after he cashes the A-K and West shows out, declarer finds himself in a very uncomfortable position.

What a moment earlier had seemed a certain nine or 10 tricks has abruptly changed to only eight tricks. Even worse, there's nothing

South can do now to make the contract.

But what should he have done, and how should he have known to do it? Declarer's first reaction, after seeing dummy, should be that he has eight unassailable tricks, and that the only reasonable place to try to secure a ninth lies in the diamond suit.

This would be easy enough to manage if the opposing diamonds are divided 3-3 or 4-2, but what if they're divided 5-1? In that case, the contract would be in jeopardy, unless the jack or ten falls on the first diamond lead.

In the actual deal, when South cashes the ace, both defenders follow low. He should then realize he can overcome even a 5-1 division if East is the one with five diamonds.

So declarer crosses to the ace of spades, returns a diamond and, after East follows low, plays the nine. If it wins, South immediately acquires his ninth trick; if it loses, which means the diamonds were divided no worse than 4-2, the eight automatically becomes trick No.9.

As in so many other hands, declarer's state of mind at the outset has an enormous effect on how he finishes at the end. If he blithely assumes a 3-3 or 4-2 diamond division, he quickly runs into a dead end and goes down one. But if he assumes the worst and prepares for it, he can wrap up nine tricks.

Sweet potatoes are the star of this tasty dessert

Many people crave a sweet treat from time to time, even if they don't want to confront the side effects of a little indulgence. However, when healthier ingredients are in the mix, a dessert can fit in with healthy eating plans.

This recipe for "Sweet Potato Chewy Bars" features vitamin-rich sweet potatoes and pecans, which boast heart-healthy fats. You can experiment with the recipe and reduce the sugar content if you want to make this recipe even healthier.

Enjoy, courtesy of the Mississippi Sweet Potato Council.

Here's How It Works:
 Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

A Pisces Sun Prompt

Look around. Unless you're standing in the woods right now, almost everything you see would have been unimaginable just a few centuries ago. Under these Pisces solar vibes, don't underestimate the power of dreaming the impossible dream. Without unrealistic expectations there would be no such thing as the modern world.

allows you to thrive. It's important to remember, however, that the perfect work for you is not necessarily what's needed and wanted in the moment. Be flexible and open-minded.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You strive to have a stress-free day and will largely succeed in doing so. However, some stress is good for you. Too much tranquility will lead to stagnation and boredom.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You have a big assignment coming up. If you have enough time to do it right, you will be satisfied with the endeavor. But if not, you can negotiate to make it so.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You will work on several aspects of a project at once. At first, it won't seem like you're accomplishing much. Work this dispersed is difficult to track. As you build, however, something impressive will emerge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Even those with no idea how to help will be full of advice. It would be laughable if you weren't so polite. Be discerning. Find out who the real experts are and make an appointment with a true authority.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Sunshine, exercise, sleep, laughter, wholesome food -- all these contribute to good moods. In an attempt to cheer someone up, you'll lift not only them but also three other people, one of whom is you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Make sure you have a backup system in place. Besides being an excellent practice, it will give you an idea of how much you've accomplished over time, and the value of your work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It's usually easy for you to read people, even total strangers. But today people will surprise you. Don't make assumptions. Instead, ask questions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Having a strong sense of style isn't just about good taste or bad taste; it's more about specific choices and intentions that are repeated in an identifiable pattern.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Feb. 20). Worries will disappear. You'll be heartened by the mounting evidence of

The first days of the solar journey represent the more impressive side of Pisces energy. It is increasingly important who you associate with. Take heart if you're not always in an environment that is friendly, comfortable and supportive. It is often the case that the people who make us better and the people we'd rather not be around are the same people. The challengers, the irritators, the opposition, the people who threaten our beliefs and our self-confidence, the people who scare us -- those are the ones who make us stronger.

Mars and Neptune indicate anticipation, expectation and the setup for Thursday's drama. A square of Mercury and Uranus keeps the plot interesting. Be wary of assigning meanings to events too quickly. Pisces energy challenges us to match the tone of the room, blur our focus to find our way through a mood and release our need to control too much. Having too many wants and requirements of a situation narrows our focus and limits our experience. A more flexible perspective is not only helpful in gracefully managing ourselves in a situation but it's essential to mental health.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Supernova Rihanna mixed musical influences to produce a style all her own. The soulful Pisces became the bestselling digital artist of all time and an eight-time Grammy Award winner. These days, her beauty and clothing lines share the center stage. Aries moon indicates a passionate and headstrong nature. Natal Mars in Sagittarius signals universal appeal.

A look at Medrano's House of Tees

A look at Medranos House of Tee's

By LACHELLE COBB

Herald Staff Reporter

Medrano's House of Tees is at 1804 Wasson Rd Big Spring, TX. Medrano's has been open and running since June 2020. An essential factor to Medrano is developing ties with individuals in the community. In addition, they provide many services such as Embroidery, screenprint, heat vinyl, and print on the Roland digital printer.

Embroidery produces a homemade presence and feel. The embroidery service will stitch your design directly into your garment using multicolored fiber to add that unique touch to your clothing. In addition, House of Tees offers professionally digitized designs to make your business look professional. Embroider your brand onto your shirts, polos, hats, jackets, and more.

The screen print process is the best in the industry, suggested Mario. They purely employ top-of-the-line materials from apparel to machines to ink. They construct every design with a stencil and then implement broad layers to the printing surface. Later, they apply each color using a separate stencil, layered on one at a time until they all come together to establish the look of your design. Screen printing demands a little extra preparation time and components and thus has a minimum order quantity.

Heat Vinyl transfer is quintessential for basic patterns. With it's a simple process of personalizing a custom t-shirt. This technique takes your image straight from the computer and copies it onto a high-quality, lightweight vinyl. The design is then cut and pressed into your attire. They can print heat transfer on various fabric types, including cotton, poly/cotton blend, and polyester so that you can swiftly put numbers on team jerseys or produce some stylish artwork in a t-shirt.

Roland's digital printer is known for the details, and color, such as photos. However, the Roland printer provides outstanding media adaptability. It allows them to work with numerous materials to produce signs, decals, stickers, car wraps, labels, and many more graphic applications.

So when you choose digital printing, you know you will get the best results down to the very last detail. Mario affirmed they like to go by the expression, "If you dream it, we can make it."

Families of American captives frustrated with Justice Dept.

By ERIC TUCKER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — When relatives of American oil executives jailed in Venezuela met virtually with a senior Justice Department official this month, it didn't take long for their frustrations to surface.

They pressed the official on the prospects of a prisoner exchange that could get their loved ones home but were told that was ultimately a White House decision and not something the U.S. government was generally inclined to do anyway. And they vented about the extradition to the U.S. of an associate of Venezuelan President Nicolas Maduro, an action that inflamed tensions with Caracas and resulted in the American captives being returned to jail from house arrest that day.

The meeting, not previously reported and described by a person who participated in it, ended without firm commitments. But it underscored the simmering frustrations directed by some hostage and detainee families toward the Justice Department, an agency they see as unwilling to think creatively about ways to bring their relatives home from abroad and stubbornly resistant to the possibility of exchanging prisoners.

"The question remains of how to get the Department of Justice to fully engage in the process of recovering hostages and wrongful detainees," said Everett Rutherford, whose nephew, Matthew Heath, is being held in Venezuela on what the Tennessee man's family says are bogus weapons charges. "And there hasn't yet been an answer given to that yet — except for the fact that we've been told that the president himself can direct them to do so."

The Justice Department isn't typically thought of as a lead agency in hostage matters. The State Department, after all, has diplomatic tools at its disposal and is home to the government's chief hostage negotiator, while the Pentagon has authority to launch military raids to free hostages from captivity. The three agencies' interests aren't always necessarily in sync on hostage issues, which can be overshadowed by broader national security or diplomatic concerns — or, in the case of the Justice Department, what the government thinks is best for holding criminals accountable.

The Justice Department said in a statement that it "recognizes that families are put in an extraordinarily difficult circumstance, with unimaginable pain" when Americans are wrongfully detained and that it works with other federal agencies to bring them home in a manner consistent with the government's "no-concessions" policy in hostage matters.

From the U.S. government's perspective, a prisoner swap risks creating a false equivalency between a wrongfully detained American and a justly convicted felon, and could also encourage additional captures by foreign countries.

Mickey Bergman, who as vice president of the Richardson Center for Global Engagement has worked on hostage cases, said he's heard that argument but thinks "the framing is wrong."

"Because it's not about the guilty people that get released, it's about the innocent Americans that come back home," Bergman said. "And so I reverse the question and say: Is leaving ... innocent Americans to rot in prisons around the world worth the insistence of us having criminals, foreign criminals, serve their full time in the American system?"

The issue is newly relevant as several countries or groups holding Americans, including Russia and the Taliban, have floated the names of prisoners in the U.S. they want released.

The families' frustration is less with current political leadership of the Justice Department than with the nature of the institution itself, an agency that across administrations has prioritized its independence and its prerogative to make prosecutorial decisions and sentencing recommendations free from political considerations. The instinct is crucial for democracy, but it can also result in actions that hostage families see as dismissive of their interests.

The October extradition to Miami of Colombian businessman Alex Saab, presented by U.S. officials as a close Maduro associate, agitated relatives of six Citgo executives who've been jailed for years in Venezuela over a never-executed plan to refinance billions in the oil company's bonds. It was a tension point in this month's Justice Department call and in a December meeting between hostage families and national security adviser Jake Sullivan, though the situation may be complicated by the revelation this week that Saab was signed up by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration as a source in 2018.

The reticence to swaps predates the Biden administration, and some of the deals the families seek didn't gain traction under former President Donald Trump, either. Even so, there is a precedent for arrangements that serve a diplomatic purpose.

The Trump administration, seen as more willing to flout convention in hostage affairs, brought home Navy veteran Michael White in 2020 in an agreement that spared an American-Iranian doctor prosecuted by the Justice Department any more time behind bars and that permitted him to return to Iran. Even before then, the Obama administration pardoned or dropped charges against seven Iranians in a prisoner exchange tied to the nuclear deal with Tehran. Three jailed Cubans were sent home in 2014 as Havana released American Alan Gross after five years' imprisonment.

There are roughly 60 Americans known to be held hostage or wrongfully detained, a definition that covers Americans believed innocent or jailed for the purpose of exacting concessions from the U.S.

Families of at least some see fresh opportunities to cut deals.

The Taliban, whose Haqqani network is believed to be holding hostage Navy veteran Mark Frerichs of Illinois, has told the U.S. it seeks the release of imprisoned drug lord Bashir Noorzai. Russia has locked up Marine veteran Trevor Reed, sentenced to nine years on charges he assaulted police officers in Moscow, and Michigan corporate security executive Paul Whelan, imprisoned on espionage charges. Officials there have floated at various times the names of citizens it would like home, including international arms dealer Viktor Bout and drug smuggler Konstantin Yaroshenko, both imprisoned in the U.S.

The U.S. considers Whelan and Reed to be wrongfully detained.

Nine Americans, including Heath and the so-called Citgo 6, are detained in Venezuela at a time when the U.S. is holding two nephews of Venezuela's first lady on drug charges.

Some hostage and detainee families say they're heartened by the access they've had to senior administration officials, including Secretary of State Antony Blinken and Sullivan. But the resistance to a trade has remained constant.

Charlene Cakora, Frerichs' sister, met with White House and Justice Department officials last August and says she was told that Noorzai, a convicted Afghan drug lord, was a "bad guy." She said in an interview that if the government won't "trade for my brother, then I want to know what other ideas are out there."

Paula Reed and Joey Reed, Trevor's parents, say U.S. officials have told them that they'd seek the same outcome if they were their shoes. But though the Granbury, Texas, couple has urged Justice Department officials during meetings to seek a deal now, the officials have said only that they're "considering everything," said Paula Reed.

"They didn't say: 'Oh, we agree with you, that's a great deal. That's a good point.' They didn't say anything like that. They just said: 'We hear you. Thank you very much,'" she said. "They didn't give us indication one way or the other."

Elizabeth Whelan, Paul's sister, said she's been grateful for the U.S. government's attention. She said she's not entirely sure what Russia wants for her brother and said demands by it and other countries seem "stupid" and "over the top."

"But," she added, "I feel my brother is worth whatever Russia is asking for."

In Ukraine's volatile east, a day of shelling, outages, fear

By LORI HINNANT

Associated Press

KYIV, Ukraine — Shells struck by the hundreds along the tense front lines in eastern Ukraine, drones monitoring a fragile cease-fire lost their way when the GPS signal they rely on was jammed, and then the cellphone network went dark.

In a sliver of land where pro-Russian separatists have battled for years against Ukrainian government forces, a group of international monitors tasked with keeping the peace reported more than 500 explosions in the 24 hours ending Thursday midday, around four times as many as an average day over the past month.

As the world warily watches Russian troops massing near Ukraine's borders for signs they're preparing to invade, Western officials have warned that the spark could come from the volatile east: Repeatedly in recent weeks, the U.S. has said the simmering conflict there could provide cover or an excuse for Russia to roll across the border.

The number of explosions eased as the day went on, but by then the village of Stanytsia had already suffered more than its share. One shell crashed into a kindergarten, blasting a hole in the wall that sent soccer balls flying off the classroom shelves just as the school day started. Others blasted craters into the schoolyard and shattered windows of nearby homes.

"We heard the sound of broken glass. The children were very scared. Some kids started crying immediately, and the explosions continued for the next 20 minutes," said Olena Yaryna, the school director.

At Valentyna Melnychenko's nearby home, the explosions filled her living room and hall with smoke.

"I switched off the TV, and there were seven more shellings and then it stopped," she said as she surveyed the damage outside, her hair covered in a bright pink scarf that contrasted with the gray debris behind her.

Three people were wounded and half the village lost power. Oleksandr Pavliuk, a Ukrainian army commander, said the explosions were intended to provoke a response and ultimately a counter-response, echoing the warnings from the United States. Russia denies any plans to attack.

"Our task is to control this abnormal situation in order to avoid a pretext for escalation," Ukrainian Defense Minister Oleksii Reznikov said Friday.

Prince Harry lawyers say he feels unsafe bringing kids to UK

LONDON — Lawyers for Prince Harry told a court hearing on Friday that the British royal is unwilling to bring his children to his homeland because it is not safe.

Harry has launched a legal challenge to the U.K. government's refusal to let him personally pay for police protection when he comes to Britain.

His legal team says Harry wants to bring his children — Archie, who is almost 3, and 8-month-old Lilibet — to visit his home country from the United States but thinks it would be too risky without police protection.

Harry, who lives in Santa Barbara, California, with the children and his wife, Megan, did not attend Friday's preliminary hearing. The court considered requests by both sides in the case for parts of some legal documents to be kept private.

Senior members of Britain's royal family are given taxpayer-funded police protection, but Harry lost that when he and Meghan stepped down as working royals and moved to the United States in 2020. The couple said their decision was due to what they described as unbearable intrusions and racist attitudes of the British media.

Camryn Manheim is among the stars of NBC's revival of "Law & Order," premiering Thursday.

Camryn Manheim helps maintain 'Law & Order' in original series' revival

When Camryn Manheim says that joining the revival of "Law & Order" brings her "full circle," she really means it.

The Emmy winner for "The Practice" had several of her earliest television roles – three different ones – as a guest star on executive producer Dick Wolf's long-running, franchise-spawning drama series. She returns to it as a regular for what NBC is calling its 21st season starting Thursday, Feb. 24, reinforcing Wolf's "Chicago"-show and "FBI" tradition by opening an all-"Law & Order" night that also includes the "Special Victims Unit" and "Organized Crime" spinoffs.

Merging returning cast members and new additions, "Law & Order" now casts Manheim as Lt. Kate Dixon, the boss of the New York police detectives played by returnee Anthony Anderson (fresh off "black-ish") and "Burn Notice" alum Jeffrey Donovan. Sam Waterston reprises his role as District Attorney Jack McCoy, and Hugh Dancy ("Hannibal") and Odelya Halevi ("Good Trouble") also are new to the series as prosecutors.

"I'd just gotten my master's degree from New York University," the friendly Manheim recalls, "and like every New York actor, it was my dream to get a guest shot on 'Law & Order.' I did a lot of Off-Broadway theater, and everyone would write in their program bio who they wanted to thank ... and at the end, they would write how many times they'd appeared on 'Law & Order.' For several years, I couldn't say that, and it was probably one of my proudest moments when I could add, "'Law & Order': One episode.' And then, 'Two episodes.' And then, 'Three episodes.'"

Now, Manheim says, "I'm not going to lie, I'm still in a little bit of shock. I'm moving from Los Angeles to New York, and I would not have done it for any other show. "Law & Order" has such a special place in my heart, and it's not just me, but all of New York. Actors dream to be on it, crew members' lives were made by it, and the city was vitalized by it. It's very profound for me."

Manheim's Dixon effectively is the successor to Lt. Anita Van Buren, played through most of the original show's run by S. Epatha Merkerson (now on NBC's and producer Wolf's "Chicago Med").

"I think it takes a certain kind of woman to hold down this fort and make sure that everything works in tandem," Manheim notes, reasoning that Dixon "has to keep the D.A.'s office happy, she has to keep the police chief happy, and she has to get her detectives to do the work: And I think that with how bossy I am in general, they sensed that I could bring her to life."

Lauren Cohan looks back on 'Walking Dead' as AMC zombiefest nears end

When a long-running series ends, actors like to take home mementos from the set.

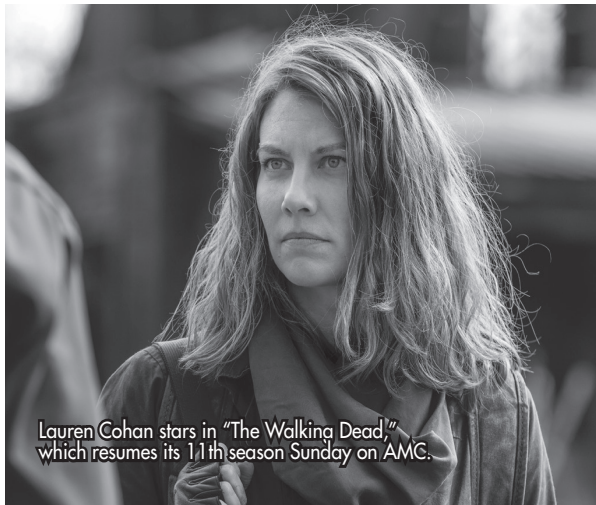

Lauren Cohan is no different. With the finish line of "The Walking Dead" plainly within sight, the actress who plays Maggie Rhee, president of the Commonwealth, on the AMC zombie apocalypse drama, has her eyes on a few items to grab before the lights go out for good on the show's Georgia set.

"Certain parts of the wardrobe that I'd actually like to keep and embellish and kind of like just sort of personalize and Maggie-ize," the British actress says. "And then, I don't know, part of me wants a piece of the wall because it's Alexandria and we spent so much time there. ... My belt and my knife, I think, have been with me a long time, so we'll see.

"You know my other memento?" she continues. "I want all the people. But I have them, I have their phone numbers."

The extended Season 11 resumes Sunday, Feb. 20, with the second of three eight-episode rounds and finds many under Reaper attack while others struggle to survive nature's torrential wrath in Alexandria. Life isn't great in the Commonwealth, either, as some will be pushed past the point of no return while others will have reason for hope. In the end, lives will hang in the balance as every decision proves critical to survival and the future of the community.

As for Maggie, who entered a grudging alliance with reformed bad guy Negan (Jeffrey Dean Morgan) at the close of the first third of Season 11, she appears to have put her hatred for the man who killed her husband on the back burner. The turn of events prompted some fans to wonder if a romance between the two characters was in the offing, but showrunner Angela Kang shot such notions down.

Lauren Cohan stars in "The Walking Dead," which resumes its 11th season Sunday on AMC.

Off camera, Cohan and Morgan are just good friends who at one point actually played spouses Martha and Bruce Wayne in the 2016 feature "Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice" – a far cry from the blood enemies they then had to become when Morgan landed on "TWD" that same year.

"When Jeff and I played Martha and Bruce," Cohan recalls, "we shot only for like a couple of days but it was hard Chicago winter nights and we had just like a long time to hang out and chat and everything, so I just liked him so much as a person. And then when we started with the show, I've never had to summon such vitriol and hatred towards someone."

HBCU student athletes pursue dreams and diplomas in The CW's 'All American: Homecoming'

Set against the backdrop of Historically Black Colleges and Universities, drama unfolds around a group of student athletes in a young adult series upcoming on The CW.

In "All American: Homecoming," premiering Monday, Feb. 21, we are introduced to the students of the fictional Brington University, where Black excellence is a way of life. It is here where Simone (Geffri Maya, "All American") and Damon (Peyton Alex Smith, "Legacies") pursue their respective dreams of playing tennis and baseball while going to class and getting an education.

Peyton Alex Smith and Geffri Maya

Also at this HBCU are Thea (Camille Hyde, "Katy Keene"), the uber-competitive queen bee of the tennis team; JR (Sylvester Powell, "Five Points"), Damon's teammate and childhood friend; Keisha (Netta Walker, "Come As You Are"), the school's unofficial mayor who takes Simone under her wing; and Coach Turner (Cory Hardric, "The Outpost"), who is determined to bring a championship to Brington and to mold Damon into a successful player – and person.

The series comes from the makers of the critically lauded CW series "All American" and it endeavors to spotlight what life is like on a typical HBCU campus.

"It's very much a character on the show, Brington University ..." explains executive producer Nkechi Okoro Carroll. "(It) is very much the life force of the show and the source of home and heart and soul and sort of everything for the students. And so it's a very specific experience at an HBCU, and we wanted to make sure we were bringing that specificity. Because I very much believe that that specificity is actually what's going to make the experience universal for everyone."

For lead actors Maya and Smith, part of preparing for their roles meant making sure they looked at least competent in their respective sports. So that meant seeking out training, Maya with a tennis coach and Smith with a coach from the Atlanta Braves organization.

"(I was) just really wanting to dedicate myself to the sport," Maya explains. "Because at the end of the day, it's such a beautiful sport and it's a sport that is literally full mind, full body and full spirit. ... Especially with sports, you just want to respect it. So I was in them classes every other week, every other day, working out."

"I have a lot more respect for the sport," Smith says of baseball, "cause it is not an easy sport. Those are athletes out there."

'Ghosts' is scaring up a second season

Q: Will "Ghosts" return for another year? - Stephanie Flack, via email

A: It will, and the recent news that CBS has renewed it for a second season came as absolutely no surprise. The Rose McIver-starring comedy has been an unqualified hit with viewers and critics alike since its premiere, so the much bigger surprise would have been if it hadn't been renewed ... which simply wasn't going to happen. Moreover, the show's ratings have kept improving, and that sort of growth is what any network wants to see in one of its series – particularly one with the potential to stay strong for a while. More good news for ViacomCBS is that "Ghosts" also fares extremely well on the Paramount+ streaming service, so rest assured that it will be around for some time to come.

Rose McIver

Q: Now that Lori Loughlin has acted again in "When Hope Calls," will she be making more movies, too? - Marianne Bond, Fruita, Colo.

Lori Loughlin

A: We would expect so, and that likely would be for GAC Family, which picked up "When Hope Calls" after its first season on Hallmark outlets. As is widely known, Hallmark eliminated all Loughlin-related content – to the extent of editing "When Calls the Heart" episodes to remove her scenes – after her connection to the college-admissions scandal became known.

Former Hallmark Channel chief Bill Abbott now runs GAC Family, and he's made a point of luring as much Hallmark talent as he can. Social media has confirmed that Loughlin still has a sizable fan base, which likely contributed to Abbott's decision to bring her into "When Hope Calls," so it seems probable that he also would offer movie work to her.

Phil Keoghan

OF 'THE AMAZING RACE' ON CBS

With "The Amazing Race" now in its 33rd season, what keeps you coming back?

When we started 20 years ago, it was mind-blowing. And I would not believe that we would still be here 20 years later, with a show that feels as fresh as the day we started it. It's never the same. I think if I was doing a studio show and I was going in and doing the same thing over and over again, rinsing and repeating the same format over and over again, I would definitely have gotten stale on the idea.

"The Amazing Race" never feels that way. It feels, honestly, maybe more relevant today. It was groundbreaking 20 years ago, and I still think it's continuing to push boundaries all these years later. And I just love being a part of something that the audience has resonated with.

Production on Season 33 was interrupted for a year by the coronavirus pandemic. How did you find resuming the race so much later?

We had challenges, and I think we adapted and we've come back with some new elements, just because we've freshened up some of the ways we've done things. Certainly, (those involved) the plane (we used) and knowing that everybody was safe. It was a very comfortable plane. It was nice. We didn't have long lines to stand in and all those things that you don't see on the show, but that are very taxing on all of us. It was a welcome change, actually.

You live, you learn, you adapt, and you try to make the best of the situation. I can promise you that this season, it's a special one.

What's your assessment of the teams in Season 33?

You know, we have some very special teams this season. Some of them have made some headlines in the world. We're always looking for unique teams, and I would say definitely this season, you're going to be fully entertained. No matter how good the challenges are, no matter how well we shoot, no matter what we do, if we don't have good teams, we don't have a good show.

Comfort foods are the word on Food Network

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Ina Garten

It's late February and if you're like a lot of Americans, you've been dieting since the calendar turned to 2022.

So after nearly two months of keeping yourself on the straight and narrow, you're entitled to a cheat day. And that comes Saturday, Feb. 26, on Food Network, when the cablenet offers up a morning full of programming devoted to comfort foods.

It begins bright and early with "Barefoot Contessa: Back to Basics," in which Ina Garten shows how to prepare an easy dinner consisting of rigatoni with sausage and fennel, roast chicken cobb salad, risotto and an iced tea. Not a bad way to start.

She follows that up on "Barefoot Contessa" by revisiting flavors from her past and updating them, skewing up a split pea soup with crispy kielbasa, a lamb stew with spring vegetables and fresh raspberry mini corn muffins. Hungry yet?

Also that morning on "The Kitchen," a celebration of comfort foods is in progress as Katie Lee prepares her luscious lobster pot pie and Jeff Mauro makes his melting sweet potatoes. Also on the menu is a barbecue braised brisket with sweet potato and carrot mash. Yum.

Speaking of celebrating, Ree Drummond is doing a little of her own in the first of back-to-back episodes of "The Pioneer Woman." In the first, she pays tribute to the foods from her grandma's house by making retro Salisbury steak in gravy, skillet scalloped potatoes and green beans, plus a dessert of apple crisp. Then in the second show, she recruits help from the ranch to prepare a Tuscan chicken soup, a casserole with cheesy greens, fried crispy potato balls and an easy Neapolitan cake. Who can resist?

In late morning, the crew of "The Kitchen" is back, this time adapting their childhood favorites for the adult palate. This includes a mortadella and fig pizza bagel and a Chicago-style deep dish pizza bagel from Jeff Mauro, Alex Guarnaschelli putting her own spin on pigs in a blanket by adding pretzels and mustard sauce to the equation, and Geoffrey Zakarian topping things off with a peanut butter and jelly creme brulee. Creativity gone to the next level.

Finally at noon, Mary Berg takes viewers to school on "Mary Makes It Easy," teaching a crash course in French cuisine and taking the mystery out of classic techniques. She then sets about making a croque madame (a sandwich with ham, gruyere cheese and eggs) with caramelized onions, steak frites, a peanut butter and jelly mille-feuille (a pastry similar to a Napoleon) and an omelet soufflé. Ooh la la!

Checking in with NOAH BEAN

celebrity scoop
BY JAY BOBBIN

Noah Bean is having a hard time leaving espionage behind.

After his series roles on "Nikita" (on which his co-stars included his wife, Lyndsy Fonseca) and "The Enemy Within," the actor stays in the spy game with NBC's "The Endgame," premiering Monday, Feb. 21. He plays an FBI assistant director whose ambition threatens an agent's (Ryan Michelle Bathe, "All Rise") pursuit of an international arms dealer (Morena Baccarin, "Gotham") who executes a number of bank robberies across New York.

"I do seem to be putting on the FBI and CIA suits more often than not," the amiable Bean allows of his work in the genre. "I'm not sure why that's become a theme in my career, but it's one that I'm happy to be a part of. It's fun to be able to pretend to be a powerful government employee.

That's even the case when said employee has his own agenda, Bean maintains, reflected in the "Endgame" relationship between his character and Bathe's: "We are partners and working as a team, but there is some antagonistic tension between the two of us. This man believes in pursuing justice and following the rules and capturing the bad guys, but some of his tactics are questioned."

Acknowledging that CBS' Tuesday lineup is filled with FBI-agent characters who largely go by the book, Bean credits "Endgame" creator-producer Nicholas Wootton with "really leaning in and allowing us to have doubts and ethical dilemmas. It's been a real joy to play these people who have shades of gray. Not everyone is all good or all bad, but just running on instinct and making decisions that sometimes pan out not the way they would have hoped."

best of... BEST GENE HACKMAN MOVIES

"The French Connection"

"The Poseidon Adventure"

"Hoosiers"

"Bonnie & Clyde" (1967) Hackman made a big mark, and was Oscar-nominated, as the older brother and crime-spree colleague of gangster Clyde Barrow (Warren Beatty, who also produced the film).
"The French Connection" (1971) Cementing his progression from supporting player to leading man with his first Oscar win, Hackman plays New York cop "Popeye" Doyle, determined to bring down a French drug kingpin's (Fernando Rey) operation.
"The Poseidon Adventure" (1972) Hackman leads the charge by survivors through a ship turned upside-down by a tidal wave in producer Irwin Allen's adventure classic.
"The Conversation" (1974) Francis Ford Coppola's intense drama casts Hackman as a surveillance expert who may have heard too much.
"Night Moves" (1975) Hackman reunited with "Bonnie and Clyde" director Arthur Penn for this fine, moody melodrama about a private detective seeking an actress' missing daughter.
"Under Fire" (1983) Hackman, Nick Nolte and Joanna Cassidy all are excellent as journalists trying to do their jobs and stay alive in war-torn Nicaragua.

"Hoosiers" (1986) Hackman is outstanding as an Indiana high school basketball coach who faces his share of hurdles in trying to build a winning team. The drama leads a Hackman triple feature that Turner Classic Movies presents Friday, Feb. 25.
"No Way Out" (1987) A superb Hackman demonstrates strength and flaws as the U.S. Secretary of Defense, who tries to cover up a fatal encounter ... though his newest hire (Kevin Costner) also has ties to the victim.
"Mississippi Burning" (1988) The true story of several civil-rights workers murdered in the mid-1960s teams Hackman and Willem Dafoe as FBI agents trying to overcome their differences in working the case.
"Unforgiven" (1992) The Oscars finally recognized Clint Eastwood for his Western saga of an ex-gunman opposing a corrupt lawman (Hackman, earning his second Academy Award).
"The Firm" (1993) In the John Grisham story, a wonderfully sly Hackman plays the shady mentor to a law-firm newcomer (Tom Cruise), keeping an uncomfortably close eye on his protegee's wife (Jeanne Tripplehorn).

movie review

BY JAY BOBBIN

Brad Pitt goes to 'War' against zombies

For a zombie movie, "World War Z" has less gore than you'd find in an average episode of "The Walking Dead," but it achieves what it intends with great efficiency and effect.

It's actually amazing that the 2013 film – which EPIX shows Sunday, Feb. 20 – emerged that way, since it had a troubled production process that was of somewhat legendary proportions at the time, including reshoots and alleged on-the-set discord. Then again, James Cameron's "Titanic" also was plagued with problems, and look how that turned out.

Based on the same-named novel by Max Brooks, "World War Z" makes a terrific action hero out of Brad Pitt, playing a family man and former United Nations inspector who evidently is the only person able to stop a global infestation of the undead. That's why he jets all over the planet here, a conceit used very well by director Marc Forster (also of the not-so-literal "Monster's Ball").

Forster has not been the most fast-paced of filmmakers, which he even proved with the James Bond caper "Quantum of Solace," so the energy he puts into "World War Z" could be called a revelation. The frantic movement of the film becomes its success, more than close-up zombie horror (but that aspect still does get a few key moments).

Pitt is up to the task he's handed. This is a terrific movie-star turn for him, and his charisma is invaluable in leading us along the trail of crisis and carnage that the zombies build and keep extending. Mireille Enos ("The Killing") makes a good match for him in her scenes as his wife, in a cast that also includes Matthew Fox ("Lost"), David Morse, Elyes Gabel ("Scorpion") and Ruth Negga.

And then, there is the special-effects team behind "World War Z," whose skills rate a separate mention. Movies and television have made zombies such regular characters, you have to do something special to make them stand out. That happens here, thanks in part to visions of many of the undead scrambling together and sometimes piling on top of one another – alarmingly neatly – to get where they're going.

If that sight is not enough to make you lock every door once "World War Z" is over, it's hard to know what is. And that in itself makes the movie a success.

"No Retreat: Business Bootcamp" (CNBC — series premiere, March 8)

Joe De Sena, a former Wall Street broker turned "serial entrepreneur," hosts this new reality series, which challenges managers from struggling businesses to participate in a series of mental and physical tasks at an elite training facility known as "The Farm," in the mountains of Vermont. Drawn in part from ancient Spartan military philosophy, these challenges promise to show each business team how to reach its full potential in facing the future.

RYAN REYNOLDS

Ryan Rodney Reynolds was born on Oct. 23, 1976, in Vancouver, B.C. One of his two brothers followed their father into a career as a Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman, and one of his schoolmates was then-fellow actor-to-be Joshua Jackson.

Disappointed by an early stab he made at acting, Reynolds abandoned that pursuit until an actor friend convinced him to try again with the two of them moving to Los Angeles. There, Reynolds began landing roles in such series as "The X-Files" and "Sabrina the Teenage Witch," and he also had a lead role in a television version of "In Cold Blood." He then landed his own show with the sitcom "Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place."

Reynolds got his big movie break with "National Lampoon's Van Wilder," then went on to appear in the remake of "The In-Laws," but he also proved himself action-adventure-able in "Blade: Trinity." Other features of his from that period included a remake of "The Amityville Horror," "Just Friends," "Smokin' Aces" and "Definitely, Maybe."

Lifetime's 'Girl in the Shed' recounts true kidnapping

Lifetime knows what works for it.

The cable network has had big successes with its cheerleader and "Wrong" mystery-movie franchises, and it also has drawn sizable audiences for its "Girl in the ..." dramas that are based on true stories. It presents the latest of those – "Girl in the Shed: The Kidnapping of Abby Hernandez" – on Saturday, Feb. 26, with Lindsay Navarro in the title role of a New Hampshire teen who was kept in a container by her abductor ("Boy Meets World" alum Ben Savage). Erica Durance ("Smallville") also stars as Abby's relentlessly searching mother.

The real Hernandez gets an executive-producing credit on the film, and she says, "What I want to come out of this is awareness. I guess. I think that a lot of people have that a voice in the back of their head (that says,) 'If I disappeared, it wouldn't matter.' And I learned that it does matter. It affects a lot of people, and it will forever."

Hernandez reasons that I'm telling her story in film form, "We're in a day and age now where it's encouraged to be honest about what's going on. I don't feel as scared anymore."

Canadian actress Navarro acknowledges "there

Lindsay Navarro

Recognizing that "Girl in the Shed" marks a major image shift for him, Savage reflects, "It's such a difficult subject and it's such a complicated story that I think Lindsay and I both wanted to be very careful about how we approached the subject

DeRozan leading Bulls to the top of the East

In the category of NBA MVP candidates for 2021-22, we present for your consideration DeMar DeRozan.

Indeed, the veteran shooting guard is having one of the best statistical seasons of his 13-year pro career in his first season with the Chicago Bulls, who through the season's first three months he has helped lead to the best record in the Eastern Conference.

As of early February, the 32-year-old native of Compton, Calif., was sixth in the league in scoring with 26.4 points per game, to go with per-game averages of five assists and five rebounds and a blistering 50.2 percent field goal percentage.

Furthermore, he's become the go-to guy and a vocal leader on a team that figures to go far in the postseason. People like his former coach in his three seasons with the San Antonio Spurs, Gregg Popovich, have sat up and taken notice.

"He's got great character, and he wanted to get better," Popovich said of his former shooting guard. "And he did."

DeRozan didn't exactly come out of nowhere. He's always been a prolific scorer with an impressive resume from his years with the Toronto Raptors, Spurs and Bulls, including five All-Star Game selections, an Olympic gold medal, a Pac-10 Tournament MVP trophy and his No. 10 jersey retired by his alma mater, USC.

Sunday, Feb. 20, he'll make his fifth appearance and third as a starter alongside Joel Embiid, Kevin Durant, Giannis Antetokounmpo and Trae Young as his Eastern Conference squad meets the West in the 2022 NBA All-Star Game, airing on TNT from Rocket Mortgage FieldHouse in Cleveland.

FULL NAME: DeMar Darnell DeRozan	TEAMS: Toronto Raptors (2009-18), San Antonio Spurs (2018-21), Chicago Bulls (2021-present)	DRAFTED: Selected in the first round (ninth overall) by the Raptors in the 2009 NBA Draft

The STREAM Scene

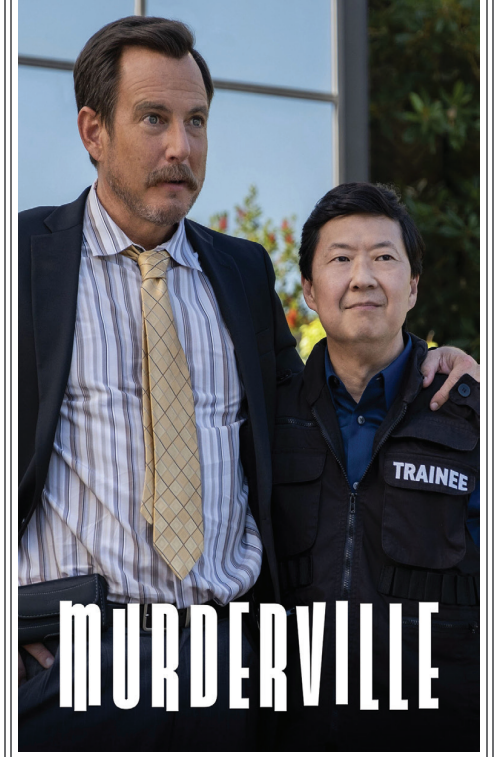

Where all the top choices can be found in one place!

"Movie: Homestay"
 From Japan comes this fantasy drama about Shiro (Kento Nagao), who is informed that he has died and will be given another chance at life in the body of a teen who has recently committed suicide. He's then given 100 days to solve the mystery behind his death, otherwise his life will come to a permanent end. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: Beans"
 Mohawk documentarian Tracey Deer ("Mohawk Girls") made her feature directorial debut with this 2020 Canadian drama that chronicles the 78-day standoff between two Mohawk communities and government forces in Quebec in 1990. Kiawentiio, Violaah Beauvais, Rainbow Dickerson, Joel Montgrand and Paulina Alexis head the largely indigenous Canadian cast.

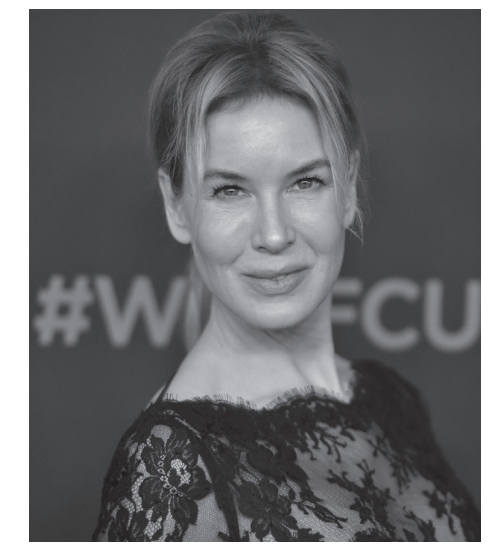

"Murderville"
 This six-episode procedural crime comedy offers up a unique premise: Detective Terry Seattle (Will Arnett) is joined by a celebrity guest star each episode to solve a murder. The catch is the guest isn't given a script and the pair have no idea what is about to happen but they'll have to improvise their way through the case in order to catch the killer. (ORIGINAL)

"Free Guy" (Feb. 23)
 Shawn Levy's pandemic-delayed, sweetly funny 2021 action comedy scored a substantial success when it eventually hit theaters, charming many critics as well. Ryan Reynolds stars in the title role of Guy, a mild-mannered bank teller who discovers quite belatedly that he's actually a non-player character (NPC) in a massive online video game. Jodie Comer, Utkarsh Ambudkar (TV's "Ghosts") and Taika Waititi co-star.

InFocus

"The Thing About Pam" (NBC — series premiere, March 8)
 Renee Zellweger makes her network television debut in the title role of this new limited series, on which she also serves as an executive producer. The story chronicles the true-crime saga of Betsy Faria's (Katy Mixon, "American Housewife") brutal 2011 murder, a crime for which her husband, Russ (Glenn Fleshler), initially was convicted. That conviction eventually was overturned, however, as a chain of events exposed a diabolical scheme involving a criminal, Pam Hupp (Zellweger). Josh Duhamel, Judy Greer and Sean Bridgers also star.
