"I think that shows you that scholarships and helping provide a chance to further the education of some of the youth coming out of Howard and adjoining counties – those scholarships go not just to Howard County kids...it's all three schools in Howard County but Garden City, Sands, Borden County, Westbrook...that's our catchment area. Howard County and every county that touches Howard County is our geographical area where we feel like we can make an impact. So we're starting to branch out with scholarships in some of those adjoining counties. So the total this year of all that put together is $570,906. That's how much money we're awarding this year."

Bancroft next called the scholarship recipients to the podium, where they posed for a group photo. The only Garden City recipient not present was Jasmine Jackson. Borden County recipients were not present at the banquet, but included: Allison Buchanan and Ethan Stephens. Westbrook recipients included: Reagan Lee-Ann Hale and Anna Cruces. Grady recipients included: Selia Mercedes Jimenez and Cooper Wallin.

Howard College also received $10,000 to help provide supplemental scholarships for its students.

Following the scholarship awards, Bancroft announced funding for several local agencies, including: Big Spring Symphony, $2,636.69; Hangar 25 Air Museum, $5,776.84; Heritage Museum of Big Spring, $5,977.19; Howard County Volunteer Fire Department, $818.94; and YMCA, $109,196.82.

Capital Grants awarded at the banquet included: Big Spring Y Kids Academy, $50,000; Howard County Fair Association and Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, $48,000; Howard County Resource Center, $25,000; Howard County Volunteer Fire Department, $30,000; and North Side Movement, $35,000.

Foundation, $5,000; Howard College, $9,000; Salvation Army Boys and Girls Club, $20,000; SouthWest College for the Deaf, $8,000; and Victim Services of Big Spring, $15,000.

President of the BSACF Board Drew Mouton said the evening was an outstanding success.

"It was another wonderful evening. It has grown every single year, and this year - it's hard to top the last few years, but I just feel like it gets better every year," Mouton said. "What we try to do is provide funds for things that otherwise would not get done. So if an agency or even a local governmental entity, if they have a project that they just don't have the money for, then those are the kinds of projects we're looking for. We get a lot of applications. We can't approve all of them, but we try to pick the ones that we feel like would benefit the community the most, maybe in some cases, the kids in the community. We're giving away now pushing $600,000, I mean we're making a dent in some of that stuff. The biggest part of our money is coming from the Kimball Guthrie estate, him and Sue his wife. That's not going to be fully funded for another 10 years. By then, we'll be pushing a million to a million and a half dollars a year, each year. We can make a big footprint in Big Spring and Howard County and the surrounding counties with that kind of money."

100 Things To Do in Amarillo

Eric Miller spent 21 years as director of Amarillo's tourist Bureau. He was looking at a list of books titled "100 Things To Do" in various cities like San Antonio, Dallas and Houston. He decided to write one about Amarillo so he called the publisher, told what he wanted to do and got the job. Six months later he handed in the manuscript. His book, 100 THINGS TO DO IN AMARILLO BEFORE YOU DIE, came out in September of last year.

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Eric says he got a legal pad and started writing about things in Amarillo. "They all had to be real quality," he says. "Some are big, some small. I got to about 75 or 80 real quick. My book doesn't mention just the top things to do, just some things to do. At book signings I have a big sign saying 100 THINGS TO DO IN AMARILLO. Some people come up and say 'really?' I visit with them for a while and tell them 100 don't even scratch the surface. I've already started on my next list. I want to do a second edition."

One thing mentioned in his book is The Big Texan Steak Ranch, which serves a half a million meals every year and has done so for decades. The restaurant serves a 5-pound roast and anyone who eats all of it in less than an hour gets it free. If they don't finish they pay $72. One guy ate 2 of them in the allotted time. The thing that draws the most people to Amarillo is an art installation on Interstate 40. "It's just so quirky," says Eric. "Over a million people stop there each year. It's ten vintage Cadillacs from the late 40s to the early 60's buried nose first into a field west of town. It may have been the first real off the wall public sculpture ever done in the US. It'll have its 50th anniversary in 2024."

Eric says the number one tourist attraction in Amarillo is the Palo Duro Canyon, the second largest canyon in the United States. "If you miss the canyon you miss the whole panhandle experience," says Eric. "It's the only canyon where you can drive to the bottom. It's open 35 days a year. It's where the outdoor drama TEXAS is staged."

The biggest sections of his book are history and culture. The city has lots of museums and art activities including symphony, opera, ballet and live theater. "It's all professional and well done and it's right here," says Eric. "That surprises so many folks."

One interesting place is the RV Museum on south Interstate 27. It has a history of RV travel including some early campers made from freight wagons. The portion of highway 66 that runs through Amarillo has become a lively place with shops and restaurants. In 4 years the famous highway will celebrate its 100th anniversary.

Eric says because Amarillo is easy to get around you can do several things in one day. "That's one thing about our little town. It's pure convenience."

And Off They Go...

The collective "whoosh" sweeping across the nation this month is the sound of school leaders exhaling, most of them having awarded diplomas, seen graduates throw caps skyward and watch them depart-ready or not-to face the great unknown.

DON NEWBURY

to the "way we were" pre-COVID. In this piece, I'll zero in on graduation caps....

For a few centuries, square-topped caps--often called mortarboards--have added to the formality of graduation garb, fashioned like caps adorning 15th century Catholic priests.

Perhaps a better reason for keeping caps "on the square" is the removal of temptation to wear them backwards, since such switching doesn't change "the look."

For the past couple of years, though, many school leaders have shortened "thou shalt not" lists, enabling graduates to use their mortarboards as, uh, message boards. Conveyed are futuristic allegiances to whichever colleges or universities have been chosen, whatever pursuits are planned, or depictions just for laughs....

Some laughable messages ride on whether attendees are privy to the graduate's motivation. One sticks out. A graduate's cap was adorned with "tardy slips" collected during her senior year. "I would have included junior slips, too," she lamented, "But that would have meant getting a larger cap."

Two guys conspired with smile-inducing messages. One read, "I did it my way." The second one added, "He thinks he did."....

At one ceremony, the superintendent spoke for several minutes about one graduate's list of academic and athletic honors. A woman seated in the audience whispered into the ear of the person seated next to her, unaware that the latter was the graduate's mother. "I'd give 20 years of my life to have a daughter like that," she said.

The proud mother answered, "Well, you didn't miss it far."...

Having spoken at numerous commencement ceremonies, I learned many years ago about the importance of brevity. Rarely is one ever criticized for a speech being too short. I've also learned that when such events are poorly planned, it is often the speaker who pays the price.

At a long ago engagement, the commencement exercises were held in an old gymnasium. There was no air-conditioning, and several box-like fans did little more than redistribute hot air. The temperature had soared to 101, holding well into the ceremony. Valedictory and salutatory speeches were made, and the new principal made announcements we've all grown accustomed to hearing. When he offered instructions to the 30 graduates, however, he invited parents to accompany them on stage if they'd like to do so....

I pinched myself, making sure I wasn't dreaming. I prayed that the first graduate would cross the stage without accompaniment. Alas, her mother came along, sobbing as she pointed to so many teachers who'd helped her daughter along the way. Two hours had passed before it was my turn. The 10 o'clock hour was at hand.

Babies were crying, attendees--whether standing or crammed on backless bleachers--were weary, and bladders were challenged. There were choruses of groans during my introduction.

I was determined to confine my remarks to three minutes....

Surveying the audience, I spoke thusly: "I know it is tiring for you in the back to stand up, the difficulty faced by bleacher guests to sit up, and how late tonight our graduates intend to stay up. So, I pray God to know that I'll know when to shut up."

Two minutes later, I left the stage, perhaps never more appreciated.

Before I began a two-hour drive back home, the principal apologized. He said he'd learned an important lesson that night....

Second time around

By STEVE BELVIN

Contributing Sports Writer

My Oklahoma Sooners softball team keeps amazing me. The program continues to get better and better. What they've done in the last two College World Series is the stuff sports documentaries are made of. I'm an OU fan, been that way for decades. My main nemesis is the University of Texas. That's just the way us OU fans are. We took great pleasure in winning the the "Red River Blowout" last week.

However, I'm a fair man and while I don't do it much, kudos to the University of Texas softball team. It's a good team with some good players coming back next year. I became a fan of UT's sophomore shortstop Aylassa Washinton, who played ball at Abilene High.

Patty Gasso has built an OU program that's making a great run. OU softball is the '27 Yankees or Mike Tyson in his prime. They're the "85 Bears. It's UCONN womens' basketball 10 years ago. People appear to be afraid of them. The Sooners just beat you in all ways possible. It's irresistible to watch even though you know what the outcome is going to be. OU lost three games all season. Texas, Oklahoma State and UCLA. All of those teams were in the World Series. In rematch games, OU beat them by a combined score of 53-10. The Sooners are one of the greatest softball machines ever assembled, including the UCLA teams in the 80s and 90's.

If you're a softball fan you know the main players on this year's dynasty - Alo, Johns, Jennings, Hansen and Coleman. In closing, this was my theory, a year ago after the Olympic Games. The USA could've sent last year's OU team and came back with a gold medal.

A HIGHER CALLING

The world needs to hear some "feel good" stories. Back in the late 90's I was working for the Amarillo Globe News. One of my beats was high school wrestling. High school wrestling? I'm from West Texas, we don't do that around here. But I'm going on the record - wrestling is the best offseason training a young athlete can get!

Back to the story. I knew nothing about the sport. It was a coach at Caprock High School - Scott Tankersley, that taught me about the sport. I became well versed in the sport of wrestling. Even covered some state wrestling tournaments. Anyway coach "Tank" as he was called, retired after 28 years of coaching. Incidentally, his last game came when Coahoma swept Bushland in the softball playoffs a few weeks ago.

Under Coach Tank's direction, the Amarillo Caprock girls won seven state wrestling titles. I was there for a couple of them. Coach Tank coached at four different schools in the Panhandle area. His teams also won state titles in baseball and girls basketball. Check this out, he's leaving the thing he loves for a better love. He's going to be a pastor at the Amarillo Deaf Church. Oh I forgot to tell you, coach Tank is deaf. One of the easiest people to talk to that I can remember. He's an excellent lip reader and conversations and interviews with him were very comfortable. So glad to hear he's going to a greater calling. I'm getting ready to send him an e-mail right now.

Warriors beat Celtics 103-90 to win 4th NBA title in 8 years

By KYLE HIGHTOWER

AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Golden State Warriors are NBA champions once again, topping the Boston Celtics 103-90 on Thursday night for their fourth title in the last eight seasons.

Stephen Curry scored 34 points and was named the NBA Finals MVP as the Warriors claimed the franchise's seventh championship overall. And this one completed a journey like none other, after a run of five consecutive finals, then a plummet to the bottom of the NBA, and now a return to greatness just two seasons after having the league's worst record.

"We found a way to just get it done," Curry said after the Warriors accepted the championship trophy and celebrated on the court.

With tears in his eyes and hoarse with emotion, Curry struggled to speak as he explained what allowed the Warriors to capture their latest crown.

"It's part of a championship pedigree, our experience," he said. "We built this for 10-11 years. That means a lot when you get to this stage."

For Curry, Klay Thompson, Draymond Green and Andre Iguodala, it's a fourth championship. The first three rings came in 2015, 2017 and 2018, when Golden State was dynastic and made five consecutive trips to the finals.

"They're all unique, they're all special," coach Steve Kerr said of the multiple titles. "This one might have been the most unlikely. ... It takes a group effort to get it done and we had a great group."

Injuries, including ones that sidelined Thompson for 2 1/2 years, and roster changes changed everything. But this season, with Thompson returning around the midway point, the Warriors were finally back.

Back on top, too. Champions, again, denying the storied Celtics what would have been their record 18th championship, one that would have allowed Boston to break a tie with the Los Angeles Lakers for the most in league history.

This tale for the Warriors ended much differently than what was their most recent finals appearance against Toronto in 2019, one that saw Kevin Durant tear his Achilles tendon in Game 5 and then Thompson tear his ACL in what became the Raptors' title-clincher in Game 6.

The aftermath of that loss was exacerbated by Durant's decision to leave that summer in free agency to join the Brooklyn Nets and Thompson's own Achilles injury while rehabilitating his knee injury.

"It all paid off," Thompson said. "It was dog days, a lot of tears shed. ... You knew it was a possibility, but to see it in real time. ... It's crazy."

It thrust a Golden State team into a rebuild that became a reload. The Warriors used their two-year hiatus from the NBA's biggest stages to retool their roster - adding a past No. 1 draft pick in Andrew Wiggins, who excelled in his first finals, along with another rising star in Jordan Poole.

"This one hits different for sure knowing what the last three years meant, what it's been like," Curry said. "Injuries, the changing of the guard, rosters, the young guys. ... Now, we got four championships. Me, Dray, Klay and Andre."

"Finally got that bad boy," Curry added, referring to the MVP trophy. "It's special. ... Everybody mattered in that process."

Yes, it all clicked.

For Kerr, it's a ninth championship overall after winning five as a player. He's the sixth coach to capture four titles, joining Phil Jackson, Red Auerbach, John Kundla, Gregg Popovich and Pat Riley.

Jaylen Brown led the Celtics with 34 points but Jayson Tatum finished with just 13, shooting just 6 of 18 from the field. Boston also committed 22 turnovers, dropping to 1-8 this postseason when committing 16 or more.

It was just the fifth defeat in 22 title-series appearances for Boston, which turned its season around to have a chance at this crown. Boston was 25-25 after 50 games, then went on a tear to get to the finals and nearly claim what would have been just the franchise's second championship since 1986.

It was the third consecutive season where things were affected by the global COVID-19 pandemic, and while things were closer to normal, pictures and video of the championship celebration will serve as a forever reminder that the virus was still an issue.

NBA Commissioner Adam Silver could not be at the game because he remained in the league's health and safety protocols related to the virus. The redesigned Larry O'Brien Trophy - the golden souvenir given to the NBA champions - was presented to the Warriors by deputy commissioner Mark Tatum instead.

Boston trailed by as many as 22 points but battled back and cut the deficit to eight. A Jaylen Brown 3-pointer made it 86-78 with 5:33 to play, but the Warriors never relinquished the lead.

"Just couldn't withstand their runs," Celtics center Robert Williams said. "Messing up. They played harder and won tonight."

Curry sent Boston fans streaming toward the exits with his sixth 3 of the night to give the Warriors a commanding 15-point lead, 96-81 - then clasped his hands against face as he ran back down the court, signaling an end to Boston's hopes of extending the series.

"We've had so many great players," Kerr said, "but Steph, ultimately is why this run happens."

TIP-INS

Warriors: Went 19 of 45 from the 3-point line. ... Improved to 20-1 when Green makes a 3-pointer.

Celtics: Boston's 13-point loss marked the first finals without a single-digit game. ... Former Celtic Ray Allen, a member of Boston's last championship team in 2008, sat courtside. Hall of Famer Robert Parish was also in attendance.

A RUN, AND A RESPONSE

The Celtics came out firing, riding the energy from a deafening TD Garden crowd to take an early 14-2 lead.

Golden State wasn't rattled and responded with a 35-8 run that stretched into the second quarter on the way to building as much as a 22-point lead. The Warriors outscored the Celtics 27-17 for the period and carried a 54-39 lead into the second half as some Celtics fans booed the home team as they left the court.

Boston fought back in the third, but the Warriors found their range from beyond the arc, connecting on six 3s in the quarter.

Duran hits bases-clearing triple in 9th, Texas beats Tigers

By DAVE HOGG

Associated Press

DETROIT (AP) — Ezequiel Duran hit a three-run triple with two out in the ninth inning to give the Texas Rangers a 3-1 win over the Detroit Tigers on Thursday night.

"That kid has ice water in his veins," Rangers manager Chris Woodward said. "The Tigers have a great closer who is throwing 100 mph, and Ezequiel has no fear, even in a spot like that."

Tigers closer Gregory Soto loaded the bases on two walks and a hit batter before Duran hit a ball just inside first base and into the right-field corner. All three runners scored, giving Soto his second blown save of the season.

"I've been dreaming about this for a long time," said the 23-year-old Duran, who is hitting .319 since making his major-league debut on June 4. "I have a lot of faith in myself, and I was ready for anything he threw."

Dennis Santana (3-2) picked up the win with a scoreless eighth inning, and Joe Barlow pitched the ninth for his 12th save.

Soto's collapse, which led to Detroit's fifth straight loss, wasted seven scoreless innings by Detroit starter Beau Brieske.

"Gregory lives on the edge some of the time and today it was a bit too much," Tigers manager A.J. Hinch said. "Beau did a great job of attacking hitters and staying ahead in the counts."

The Tigers have been outscored 36-7 in the losing streak, and are averaging 2.68 runs - the worst mark by any team since World War II.

"There's no secret that we aren't scoring runs, so we have to try to do anything we can to score every run possible," Hinch said.

Texas starter Martin Perez extended his unbeaten streak to 11 games. He allowed one run on eight hits in seven innings.

"The reason I care about that streak is because I don't have to have games where I cost us the game," Perez said. "Today, I kept us close, and the kid did it again. I wish I could have had that kind of poise when I was his age."

The Tigers had the first good scoring chance, as Miguel Cabrera singled in the third with two out and Eric Haase at second. Haase tried to score, but was easily thrown out by right-fielder Adolis Garcia.

"Garcia obviously has a great arm, but again, we have to do anything we can right now to score a run," Hinch said.

Jonah Heim bunted against the shift for a single to start the fifth. Nathaniel Lowe followed with a hit, but Duran lined to shortstop Javy Baez, who doubled Heim off second.

Brieske walked two batters in the sixth, but picked Marcus Semien off first and got out of the inning thanks to Spencer Torkelson reaching deep into the Rangers' dugout to grab Garcia's foul pop.

Baez's ground-rule double gave the Tigers runners on second and third in the bottom of the sixth, and Grossman ended Detroit's 22-inning scoreless streak with a sacrifice fly to right.

ROSTER MOVES

The Rangers activated RHP Jose Leclerc from the 60-day injured list and LHP Brett Martin from the COVID-19 list, with RHP Tyson Miller and LHP Koby Allard headed to Triple-A Round Rock.

OFFENSIVE OUTAGE

The only other team to average fewer than 2.75 runs per game in the last 100 years is the 1942 Philadelphia Phillies, who scored 2.61 while going 42-109.

UP NEXT

The teams continue their four-game series on Friday, with Detroit ace Tarik Skubal (5-3, 2.71) facing Jon Gray (1-3, 4.85).

Man, 71, held in Alabama church shooting that killed 2

By JAY REEVES

Associated Press Writer

VESTAVIA HILLS, Ala. (AP) — A 71-year-old man fatally shot two elderly people and wounded a third with a handgun during a potluck dinner at an Alabama church where he occasionally attended services, police said Friday.

The suspect was subdued and held by an attendee of the event until police arrived Thursday evening, sparing the congregation from further violence at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in the Birmingham suburb of Vestavia Hills, police Capt. Shane Ware said.

"It was extremely critical in saving lives," Ware told a news conference. "The person that subdued the suspect, in my opinion, was a hero."

Ware did not give a motive for the shootings. He also didn't identify the suspect, whom police took into custody at the church. He said the man's name was being withheld until prosecutors formally charge the man with capital murder.

Walter Rainey, 84, of nearby Irondale was killed at the church and Sarah Yeager, 75, of Pelham died after being taken to a hospital. The third victim, an 84-year-old woman, remained hospitalized, Ware said.

He said the suspect and the three victims were all white.

The event was a "Boomers Potluck" gathering inside the church, according to messages posted on the church's Facebook page by pastor the Rev. John Burruss. He said he was in Greece on a pilgrimage with a group of members and trying to get back to Alabama.

Police are still trying to determine the shooter's motive, Ware said. He said the suspect had previously attended services at the church.

Vestavia Hills Mayor Ashley Curry told reporters his "close-knit, resilient, loving community" had been rocked by "this senseless act of violence." The bedroom community is one of the wealthiest cities in Alabama, home to many businesspeople, doctors and lawyers who work in nearby Birmingham. Vestavia Hills is known for top-flight schools and a family-centered, suburban lifestyle. It has nearly 40,000 residents, most of whom are white.

The Rev. Rebecca Bridges, the church's associate rector, led an online prayer service on the church's Facebook page Friday morning. She prayed not only for the victims and church members who witnessed the shooting, but also "for the person who perpetrated the shooting."

"We pray that you will work in that person's heart," Bridges said. "And we pray that you will help us to forgive."

Bridges, who is currently in London, alluded to other recent mass shootings as she prayed that elected officials in Washington and Alabama "will see what has happened at St. Stephens and Uvalde and Buffalo and in so many other places and their hearts will be changed, minds will be opened."

"And that our culture will change and that our laws will change in ways that will protect all of us," she added.

There have been several high-profile shootings in May and June, starting with a racist attack on May 14 that killed 10 Black people at a supermarket in Buffalo, New York. The following week, a gunman massacred 19 children and two adults at an elementary school in Uvalde, Texas.

Thursday's shooting happened just over a month after one person was killed and five injured when a man opened fire on Taiwanese parishioners at a church in Southern California. It comes nearly seven years to the day after an avowed white supremacist killed nine people during Bible study at Emanuel AME Church in Charleston, South Carolina.

Agents with the FBI, U.S. Marshals Service and the Bureau of Alcohol, Firearms, Tobacco and Explosives joined investigators at the scene, which remained cordoned off Friday with yellow police tape as police vehicles with flashing lights blocked the route to the church.

On Saturday, thousands of people rallied in the U.S. and at the National Mall in Washington, D.C., to renew calls for stricter gun control measures. Survivors of mass shootings and other incidents of gun violence lobbied legislators and testified on Capitol Hill earlier this month.

Alabama Gov. Kay Ivey issued a statement late Thursday lamenting what she called the shocking and tragic loss of life. Although she said she was glad to hear the suspect was in custody, she wrote: "This should never happen — in a church, in a store, in the city or anywhere."

US adds $103M for wildfire hazards and land rehabilitation

By KEITH RIDLER

Associated Press Writer

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The U.S. is adding $103 million this year for wildfire risk reduction and burned-area rehabilitation throughout the country as well as establishing an interagency wildland firefighter health and well-being program, Interior Secretary Deb Haaland announced Friday.

Haaland made the announcement following a briefing on this year's wildfire season at the National Interagency Fire Center in Boise, which coordinates the nation's wildland firefighting efforts.

The U.S. is having one of its worst starts to the wildfire season with more than 30,000 wildfires that have scorched 4,600 square miles (12,000 square kilometers).

That's well above the 10-year average for the same period, about 23,500 wildfires and 1,800 square miles (4,700 square kilometers) burned.

About $80 million will be used to speed up work removing potential wildfire hazards on more than 3,000 square miles (7,700 square kilometers) of Interior Department lands, a 30% increase over last year. Another $20 million will be used to bolster post-wildfire landscape recovery.

The money is coming from the $1 trillion infrastructure deal President Joe Biden signed late last year.

"As wildfire seasons become longer, more intense and more dangerous, President Biden's Bipartisan Infrastructure Law is bringing much needed support to communities across the country to increase the resilience of lands and better support federal wildland firefighters," Haaland said.

The firefighter well-being program that includes the Forest Service will address physical and mental health needs for seasonal and year-round wildland firefighters, and will include post-traumatic stress disorder care.

The fire center in recent years has started making efforts to encourage firefighters to seek mental health help after an increase in wildland firefighter suicides.

HEALTH ALERT!

Don't Wait Until It's Too Late

SCIENTIFIC STUDIES

Studies have proven that if hearing loss goes untreated, a condition called "auditory deprivation" occurs. Hearing loss starves the auditory centers of your brain of information, weakening your ability to understand speech.

USE IT OR LOSE IT!

The longer your hearing loss goes untreated, the more likely it is your brain will actually "forget" how to hear.

FDA authorizes 1st COVID-19 shots for infants, preschoolers

By LINDSEY TANNER

AP Medical Writer

U.S. regulators on Friday authorized the first COVID-19 shots for infants and preschoolers, paving the way for vaccinations to begin next week.

The Food and Drug Administration's action follows its advisory panel's unanimous recommendation for the shots from Moderna and Pfizer. That means U.S. kids under 5 — roughly 18 million youngsters — are eligible for the shots, about 1 1/2 years after the vaccines first became available in the country for adults, who have been hit the hardest during the pandemic.

There's one step left: The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends how to use vaccines. Its independent advisers began debating the two-dose Moderna and the three-dose Pfizer vaccines on Friday and will make its recommendation Saturday. A final signoff is expected soon after from CDC Director Dr. Rochelle Walensky.

At a Senate hearing Thursday, Walensky said her staff was working over the Juneteenth federal holiday weekend "because we understand the urgency of this for American parents."

She said pediatric deaths from COVID-19 have been higher than what is generally seen from the flu each year.

"So I actually think we need to protect young children, as well as protect everyone with the vaccine and especially protect elders," she said.

The FDA also authorized Moderna's vaccines for school-aged children and teens; the CDC will review those next week.

Pfizer's shots had been the only option for those ages.

For weeks, the Biden administration has been preparing to roll out the vaccines for little kids, with states, tribes, community health centers and pharmacies preordering millions of doses. With FDA's emergency use authorization, manufacturers can begin shipping vaccine across the country. Vaccinations are expected to start early next week.

Without protection for their tots, some families had put off birthday parties, vacations and visits with grandparents.

"Today is a day of huge relief for parents and families across America," President Joe Biden said in a statement.

While young children generally don't get as sick from COVID-19 as older kids and adults, their hospitalizations surged during the omicron wave and FDA's advisers determined that benefits from vaccination outweighed the minimal risks. Studies from Moderna and Pfizer showed side effects, including fever and fatigue, were mostly minor.

"As we have seen with older age groups, we expect that the vaccines for younger children will provide protection from the most severe outcomes of COVID-19, such as hospitalization and death," FDA Commissioner Robert Califf said in a statement.

In testing, the littlest children developed high levels of virus-fighting antibodies, comparable to what is seen in young adults, the FDA said. Moderna's vaccine was about 40% to 50% effective at preventing infections but there were too few cases during Pfizer's study to give a reliable, exact estimate of effectiveness, the agency said.

"Both of these vaccines have been authorized with science and safety at the forefront of our minds," Dr. Peter Marks, FDA's vaccine chief, said at a news briefing.

Marks said parents should feel comfortable with either vaccine, and should get their kids vaccinated as soon as possible, rather than waiting until fall, when a different virus variant might be circulating. He said adjustments in the vaccines would be made to account for that.

"Whatever vaccine your health care provider, pediatrician has, that's what I would give my child," Marks said.

The two brands use the same technology but there are differences.

Pfizer's vaccine for kids younger than 5 is one-tenth of the adult dose. Three shots are needed: the first two given three weeks apart and the last at least two months later.

Moderna's is two shots, each a quarter of its adult dose, given about four weeks apart for kids under 6. The FDA also authorized a third dose, at least a month after the second shot, for children who have immune conditions that make them more vulnerable to serious illness.

Stocks hold steady on Wall Street at close of a brutal week

By DAMIAN J. TROISE

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks are holding steady in afternoon trading on Wall Street Friday at the end of a brutal week.

The S&P 500 fell 0.2% as of 12:02 p.m. Eastern. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 146 points, or 0.5%, to 29,774 and the Nasdaq rose 0.8%.

Every major index is on a track for weekly losses after suffering several major drops this week as investors adjust to the bitter medicine of higher interest rates that the Federal Reserve and other central banks are using in their battle against inflation. Higher rates fight inflation but they also slow down the economy and can push prices lower for stocks and bonds.

"Any lack of clarity or lack of confidence in the Federal Reserve is going to create a lot of volatility in the market," said Megan Horneman, chief investment officer at Verdence Capital Advisors.

The benchmark S&P 500 is down more than 6% for the week. Worries over inflation, rising interest rates and a recession risk dragged it into a bear market earlier this week, meaning it had dropped more than 20% from its peak. It's now about 23% below its record set early this year and back to where it was in late 2020. That effectively erases 2021, which was one of the best years for Wall Street since the turn of the millennium.

The key concern for investors has been whether aggressive interest rate hikes from the Federal Reserve and other central banks around the world will temper record high inflation without pushing the U.S. and other economies into a recession.

"There's a lot of uncertainty right now about the timing of a recession, but the risks are clearly rising," Horneman said.

On Wednesday, the Fed hiked its key short-term interest rate by three-quarters of a percentage point, triple the usual move. It could consider another increase that big at its next meeting in July. At the same time, the central bank is allowing some of the trillions of dollars of bonds it purchased through the pandemic to roll off its balance sheet. That should put upward pressure on longer-term interest rates. It's another way central banks have been ripping away supports they earlier propped underneath markets to juice the economy.

The effort from the Fed to slow the U.S. economy is happening at the same time that some other measures of economic growth, such as retail sales, have been slowing down. That has raised concerns that the Fed's actions could wind up being too aggressive.

Investors will have a chance next week to again take a measure of the Fed's thinking when Chair

Jerome Powell testifies to Congress. The testimony is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday.

Technology companies rose. Apple rose 1%. Health care companies, retailers and banks were also making gains. Energy companies fell as U.S. crude oil prices dipped 5.3%. Exxon Mobil fell 5.1%.

Bond yields eased. The yield on the 10-year Treasury fell to 3.22% from 3.30% late Thursday.

U.S. markets will be closed Monday in observance of the Juneteenth holiday.

Biden hosts climate meeting amid high gas price pressure

By SETH BORENSTEIN and CHRIS MEGERIAN

Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Equating the oil and gas industry to Big Tobacco, United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres said Friday that “fossil fuel producers and financiers have humanity by the throat.” But President Joe Biden wasn't quite itching for a fight.

With both soaring energy prices and a warming planet weighing on the world at the Major Economies Forum on Energy and Climate, Biden talked about trying to ease the pain of high gas prices while pushing more long-term green policies.

Dismissing the idea of boosting gasoline production, the United Nations' top diplomat threw out traditional diplomatic niceties and bluntly vilified the fossil fuel industry at a virtual session that included oil rich Saudi Arabia, China, Europe and Egypt, which is hosting the next United Nations summit on climate change. It was the first time Guterres compared the energy industry to tobacco interests, saying they use “the same scandalous tactics” to delay action that is good for people and the planet.

Biden reiterated his goal to lower gasoline prices that are averaging a record $5 a gallon in the U.S. while also shifting away from fossil fuels in order to limit climate change and the risks it presents.

“I'm using every lever available to me to bring down prices for the American people,” Biden said. “But the critical point is that these actions are part of our transition to a clean and secure and long-term energy future.”

Biden is also expected to visit Saudi Arabia next month. The White House recently praised the kingdom after OPEC+ announced that it would pump more oil to boost the global supply.

Guterres dismissed more drilling, saying “nothing could be more clear or present than the danger of fossil fuel expansion.”

“Even in the short-term, fossil fuels don't make political or economic sense,” Guterres said.

“Had we invested earlier and massively in renewable energy, we would not find ourselves once again at the mercy of unstable fossil fuel markets,” Guterres said. “Let's make sure the war in Ukraine is not used to increase that dependency.”

The secretary-general decided to amp up rhetoric because of successful efforts by the industry to use the war in Ukraine as an excuse to start drilling projects, said a senior U.N. official who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

“It is very interesting to see the change in tone from the secretary-general. His language is blunter than any secretary general before him,” said Niklas Hohne of the New Climate Institute in Germany. “This comes at a time when we indeed observe a goldrush to new fossil fuel infrastructure... Such expansion is counterproductive to climate policy as it would lock the world into a high greenhouse gas future.”

Today in History

June 19, Senate approves Civil Rights Act

Today is Sunday, June 19, the 170th day of 2022. There are 195 days left in the year. This is Juneteenth. (The federal holiday will be observed on Monday, June 20.) This is Father's Day.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 19, 1964, the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was approved by the U.S. Senate, 73-27, after surviving a lengthy filibuster.

On this date:

In 1775, George Washington was commissioned by the Continental Congress as commander in chief of the Continental Army.

In 1865, Union troops arrived in Galveston, Texas, with news that the Civil War was over, and that all remaining slaves in Texas were free. An event celebrated to this day as "Juneteenth."

In 1910, the first-ever Father's Day was celebrated in Spokane, Washington. (The idea for the observance is credited to Sonora Louise Smart Dodd.)

In 1911, Pennsylvania became the first state to establish a motion picture censorship board.

In 1917, during World War I, King George V ordered the British royal family to dispense with German titles and surnames; the family took the name "Windsor." In 1934, the Federal Communications Commission was created; it replaced the Federal Radio Commission.

In 1944, during World War II, the two-day Battle of the Philippine Sea began, resulting in a decisive victory for the Americans over the Japanese.

In 1953, Julius Rosenberg, 35, and his wife, Ethel, 37, convicted of conspiring to pass U.S. atomic secrets to the Soviet Union, were executed at Sing Sing Prison in Ossining, New York.

In 1975, former Chicago organized crime boss Sam Giancana was shot to death in the basement of his home in Oak Park, Illinois; the killing has never been solved.

In 1986, University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, the first draft pick of the Boston Celtics, suffered a fatal cocaine-induced seizure.

In 1987, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down a Louisiana law requiring any public school teaching the theory of evolution to teach creation science as well.

In 2014, Rep. Kevin McCarthy of California won election as House majority leader as Republicans shuffled the leadership in the wake of Rep. Eric Cantor's primary defeat in Virginia.

FATHER'S DAY HISTORY

Each year, the third Sunday in June is a time to pay homage to fathers and the millions of other men who have stepped into the role of father. While it may seem as though Father's Day has been around forever, it didn't become a nationally recognized holiday in the United States until 1972, when President Richard Nixon signed Joint Resolution 187 into law.

Many thank Sonora Smart Dodd for making Father's Day happen. In 1909, while attending a Mother's Day sermon in church, Dodd felt fathers were equally deserving of praise. To honor her own father, a Civil War veteran and widower who raised six children alone, Dodd petitioned for a Father's Day on June 5th (the anniversary of her father's death) in her native Spokane, Wash. The celebration was deferred to the third Sunday in June. Another account says Grace Golden Clayton came up with the idea for a Father's Day in 1908 in Fairmont, West Virginia. Clayton was inspired to celebrate fathers after 361 local men perished in a deadly mine explosion. Clayton brought the idea up to the minister of her local church.

Historians say that Father's Day may even be a much older idea. St. Joseph's Day, which was celebrated each year on March 19 in Catholic nations of Europe since the medieval era, and later elsewhere around the world, commemorates Joseph, the husband of Mary and father figure to Jesus. It was said that Joseph should be held up as the ideal example of fatherhood. The Coptic Orthodox Church celebrates St. Joseph's Day on July 20. In the Orthodox Christian Church, the second Sunday before the Nativity is celebrated as the Sunday of the Forefathers — celebrating all of Jesus' male ancestors, with an emphasis on Abraham, the patriarch of the Jewish faith.

FATHER'S DAY GIFT IDEAS FOR ALL TYPES OF DADS

This Father's Day, families will gather to thank dads for all they do. Gifts often are part of Father's Day celebrations, and here's a list of gift ideas for dads with various interests.

Gaming Dad
The draw of popular video games doesn't abate for some men as they get older. If your dad is at home with game controller in hand, then gifts that feed his hobby can be ideal.

Virtual reality has made great strides. Devices that enable VR game play and other entertainment may appeal to Dad. There are a few options on the market, like the Oculus, Pico Neo, HTC Vive, and Valve Index.

Another option is to gift the Nintendo Switch Console, which enables your dad to play at home connected to the television or on the go with the handheld controller and screen combination so he never misses a chance to engage in game play.

Sports Dad
Tap into your father's love of sports with gifts tailored to his passion. Baseball and soccer are played during warm months, so tickets to a game is something dads and their children can do together. You also can cheer his team on in front of a new big-screen television he gets for being such a great dad.

Outdoorsman Dad
If your dad is most at home with a fishing pole and tackle box, kayaking a nearby body of water, or hiding in a tree stand during hunting season, then gifts that cater to his love of the great outdoors are perfect. Insulated thermoses, waterproof bags for storing phones or wallets, multitools, backpacks, and hiking boots make great gifts.

Techy Dad
Does the idea of the latest "smart" offering get your father all revved up? Then purchase gifts that cater to his love of gadgets. Maybe he can use a new tablet or laptop that bridges the gap between home and office. Could it be time to upgrade his smartphone? A doorbell camera or home security kit can help Dad keep an eye on the comings and goings around the house when he's away. Or help him create surround lighting effects that can react to content on the screen or music being played with LED smart lighting strips.

Practical Dad
Some fathers don't want flashy gifts, instead preferring ones that can be used everyday. Think about a new paper shredder or identity block roller stamp to keep sensitive information safe. If Dad takes long road trips, then he might be able to use a car visor extender or a smartphone holder. Shelving, racks or storage straps for the garage also may put a smile on Dad's face.

This year, make Father's Day a smash hit with gifts that cater to Dad's interests.
