Tesla charging station coming to Big Spring

By ROGER CLINE
 Managing Editor

Big Spring’s first Tesla charging station is being built in the parking lot adjacent to Porter’s Grocery Store and the College Park Shopping Center. The station is set to open in November.

Work has begun in Big Spring on a charging station for Tesla electric vehicles. According to Big Spring Economic Development Corporation Executive Director Mark Willis, the station will be located in the parking lot next to Porter’s Grocery Store, and is set to open for business in November.

“They moved faster than we thought they were going to. We talked to them a couple of months ago and told them, ‘Here’s how the process works for getting permitted and stuff,’” Willis said. “We basically said, ‘Here’s how stuff works in town,’ and they took the ball and ran with it from there.”

Willis said the location, on the east side of Big Spring near the intersections of Birdwell Lane and Interstate 20, had already been picked out by Tesla when

State Sales Tax revenue totaled $3.7 billion in September

Special to the Herald

Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar today said state sales tax revenue totaled $3.69 billion in September, 17.2 percent more than in September 2021. The majority of September sales tax revenue is based on sales made in August and remitted to the agency in September.

“State sales tax collections continued to climb rapidly in September, with solid growth in receipts from all major economic sectors,” Hegar said.

“Surging receipts from nonretail sectors indicate that the exceptionally strong spending by businesses in recent months continued unabated. Spurred in part by inflation in building materials and other business input prices, the mining, construction, manufacturing and wholesale trade sectors have each exhibited double-digit growth in sales tax remittances for 10 or more consecutive months.

“Receipts from retail trade and restaurants grew moderately and at less than the rate of consumer price inflation, reflecting potentially higher shares of household budgets being allocated to rent, groceries and transportation expenses — items not subject to sales tax — in response to inflation. Receipts from online shopping, building material and home improvement stores, and automotive dealers and parts stores all had double-digit increases compared with last September. But receipts from clothing, electronics and appliance, and furniture and home furnishings stores were little changed, while receipts from general merchandisers and sporting goods and hobby stores were down from a year ago.”

Total sales tax revenue for the three months ending in September 2022 was up 14.9 percent compared with the same period a year ago. Sales tax is the largest source of state funding for the state budget, accounting for 56 percent of all tax collections.

Texas collected the following revenue from other major taxes:

- Motor vehicle sales and rental taxes — $616 million, up 13 percent from September 2021;
- Motor fuel taxes — $328 million, up 2 percent from September 2021;
- Oil production tax — $552 million, up 41 percent from September 2021;
- Natural gas production tax — $480 million, up 91 percent from September 2021;
- Hotel occupancy tax — $57 million, up 11 percent from September 2021; and
- Alcoholic beverage taxes — $138 million, up 13 percent from September 2021.

For details on all monthly collections, visit the Comptroller’s Monthly State Revenue Watch. For an extensive history of tax policy developments and fees since 1972, visit our updated Sources of Revenue publication.

James Clair Epley, Jr

James Clair Epley, Jr (Jim), 71, of Pueblo, Colo., passed away on Sept. 23, 2022, after years of debilitating health issues. Jim went by many names, Jim, Jimmy, Big Jim, Jimbo, Ep and Grampy. He was loved by many, perhaps most notably, the SHS Class of '69.

Jim was born in Paris, Texas, on June 21, 1951, to Augustine Hough (Gussie) and James Clair Epley, Sr. (Snooks). In 1947, Snooks moved the family from Martin County to Valliant, Okla. where they owned and operated a ranch. Snooks declared that no child of his would be born in Oklahoma, so they drove 50 miles to Paris, Texas, to welcome their only son into the world.

Jim attended college at Sul Ross University & Texas A&M. After college he farmed and managed a chemical and feed store. He is most known for his gentle spirit and kind smile.

Jim is survived by his only child, Courtney Poitevint and husband, Harrison, of Stanton; grandchildren, Benjamin Crockett, Jordyn, Neeley and Claire Poitevint, and many special friends that are like family.

Jim is preceded in death by his parents, Gussie & Snooks Epley.

Donations can be made to Martin County Historical Museum, PO BOX 929, Stanton, TX 79782 or to a charity of your choice.

Coalminer's daughter and country queen, Loretta Lynn dead at 90

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Loretta Lynn, the Kentucky coal miner's daughter whose frank songs about life and love as a woman in Appalachia pulled her out of poverty and made her a pillar of country music, has died. She was 90.

In a statement provided to The Associated Press, Lynn's family said she died Tuesday at her home in Hurricane Mills, Tennessee.

"Our precious mom, Loretta Lynn, passed away peacefully this morning, October 4th, in her sleep at home in her beloved ranch in Hurricane Mills," the family said in a statement. They asked for privacy as they grieve and said a memorial will be announced later.

Lynn already had four children before launching her career in the early 1960s, and her songs reflected her pride in her rural Kentucky background.

As a songwriter, she crafted a persona of a defiantly tough woman, a contrast to the stereotypical image of most female country singers.

The Country Music Hall of Famer wrote fearlessly about sex and love, cheating husbands, divorce and birth control and sometimes got in trouble with radio programmers for material from which even rock performers once shied away.

Her biggest hits came in the 1960s and '70s, including "Coal Miner's Daughter," "You Ain't Woman Enough," "The Pill," "Don't Come Home a Drinkin' (With Lovin' on Your Mind)," "Rated X" and "You're Looking at Country."

She was known for appearing in floor-length, wide gowns with elaborate embroidery or rhinestones, many created by her longtime personal assistant and designer Tim Cobb.

Her honesty and unique place in country music was rewarded. She was the first woman ever named entertainer of the year at the genre's two major awards shows, first by the Country Music Association in 1972 and then by the Academy of Country Music three years later.

"It was what I wanted to hear and what I knew other women wanted to hear, too," Lynn told the AP in 2016. "I didn't write for the men; I wrote for us women. And the men loved it, too."

In 1969, she released her autobiographical "Coal Miner's Daughter," which helped her reach her widest audience yet.

"We were poor but we had love/That's the one thing Daddy made sure of/He shoveled coal to make a poor man's dollar," she sang.

"Coal Miner's Daughter," also the title of her 1976 book, was made into a 1980 movie of the same name.

Sissy Spacek's portrayal of Lynn won her an Academy Award and the film was also nominated for best picture.

Long after her commercial peak, Lynn won two Grammys in 2005 for her album "Van Lear Rose," which featured 13 songs she wrote, including "Portland, Oregon" about a drunken one-night stand. "Van Lear Rose" was a collaboration with rocker Jack White, who produced the album and played the guitar parts.

released in 1960.

She also teamed up with singer Conway Twitty to form one of the most popular duos in country music with hits such as "Louisiana Woman, Mississippi Man" and "After the Fire is Gone," which earned them a Grammy Award. Their duets, and her single records, were always mainstream country and not crossover or pop-tinged.

And when she first started singing at the Grand Ole Opry, country star Patsy Cline took Lynn under her wing and mentored her during her early career.

The Academy of Country Music chose her as the artist of the decade for the 1970s, and she was elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1988.

She won four Grammy Awards, was inducted into the Songwriters Hall of Fame in 2008, was honored at the Kennedy Center Honors in 2003 and was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 2013.

In "Fist City," Lynn threatens a hair-pulling fistfight if another woman won't stay away from her man: "I'm here to tell you, gal, to lay off of my man/ If you don't want to go to Fist City." That strong-willed but traditional country woman reappears in other Lynn songs.

In "The Pill," a song about sex and birth control, Lynn writes about how she's sick of being trapped at home to take care of babies: "The feelin' good comes easy now/Since I've got the pill," she sang.

She moved to Hurricane Mills, Tennessee, outside of Nashville, in the 1990s, where she set up a ranch complete with a replica of her childhood home and a museum that is a popular roadside tourist stop.

The dresses she was known for wearing are there, too.

Lynn knew that her songs were trailblazing, especially for country music, but she was just writing the truth that so many rural women like her experienced.

"I could see that other women was goin' through the same thing, 'cause I worked the clubs. I wasn't the only one that was livin' that life and I'm not the only one that's gonna be livin' today what I'm writin'," she told The AP in 1995.

Even into her later years, Lynn never seemed to stop writing, scoring a multi-album deal in 2014 with Legacy Records, a division of Sony Music Entertainment.

In 2017, she suffered a stroke that forced her to stop touring, but she released her 50th solo studio album, "Still Woman Enough" in 2021.

She and her husband were married nearly 50 years before he died in 1996.

They had six children: Betty, Jack, Ernest and Clara, and then twins Patsy and Peggy.

She had 17 grandchildren and four step-grandchildren.

"Our precious mom, Loretta Lynn, passed away peacefully this morning, October 4th, in her sleep at home in her beloved ranch in Hurricane Mills, Tennessee."

Lynn family statement

Born Loretta Webb, the second of eight children, she claimed her birthplace was Butcher Holler, near the coal mining company town of Van Lear in the mountains of east Kentucky.

There really wasn't a Butcher Holler, however.

She later told a reporter that she made up the name for the purposes of the song based on the names of the families that lived there.

Her daddy played the banjo, her mama played the guitar and she grew up on the songs of the Carter Family.

Her younger sister, Crystal Gayle, is also a Grammy-winning country singer, scoring crossover hits with songs like "Don't It Make My Brown Eyes Blue" and "Half the Way."

Lynn's daughter Patsy Lynn Russell also was a songwriter and producer of some of her albums.

"I was singing when I was born, I think," she told the AP in 2016.

"Daddy used to come out on the porch where I would be singing and rocking the babies to sleep. He'd say, 'Loretta, shut that big mouth. People all over this holler can hear you.'

And I said, 'Daddy, what difference does it make? They are all my cousins.'

She wrote in her autobiography that she was 13 when she got married to Oliver "Mooney" Lynn, but the AP later discovered state records that showed she was 15.

Tommy Lee Jones played Mooney Lynn in the biopic.

Her husband, whom she called "Doo" or "Doolittle," urged her to sing professionally and helped promote her early career.

With his help, she earned a recording contract with Decca Records, later MCA, and performed on the Grand Ole Opry stage. Lynn wrote her first hit single, "I'm a Honky Tonk Girl," the company contacted the EDC.

"They had already decided that was a good spot for it. That parking lot fit for them," Willis said. "I'm not sure they had gone very far with their talks with Porter's yet, but for them they thought it was a good spot. I'm not sure what their criteria is."

Really it's just one more thing that puts us on the map. People who drive Teslas and electric cars are the kind of people who are generally in leadership positions. Knowing that we're up to date, that's a good thing. We know that they have charging stations in Sweetwater and Midland. For us, it's just another traveler amenity and local amenity that's necessary.. Particularly for people in Big Spring that might want to buy and electric car. It makes it handy. But again, it gets people stopping here that wouldn't stop here otherwise."

Willis said he's hopeful the charging station might spur development in the College Park Shopping Center and the area around it.

"Hopefully it will drive business to Porter's and over in that area. I'm hoping so. People who can afford to drive electric cars have disposable income. I'm hoping that perks up that whole area a bit."

Woman convicted of killing a woman to take her unborn baby

NEW BOSTON, Texas (AP) — A Texas woman was convicted of capital murder Monday for killing a pregnant woman to take her unborn baby.

A Bowie County jury in northeast Texas deliberated about an hour before finding Taylor Rene Parker, 29, guilty of the October 2020 murder of Reagan Michelle Simmons-Hancock, 21, and the abduction of the daughter cut from her womb who later died.

The verdict of a jury of six men and six women came after three weeks of sometimes grisly testimony.

Parker's attorneys argued that the baby was never alive and moved to dismiss a kidnapping charge, which would have lowered the capital murder charge to murder.

"That's why in opening statements we spent so much time on definitions. You can't kidnap a person who has not been born alive," said Jeff Harrelson in his final argument to the jury.

Prosecutors said, however, that several medical professionals testified the infant had a heartbeat when born. They also recounted Parker's actions leading to the day Simmons-Hancock was killed.

"We have methodically laid out what she (Parker) did, why she did it, all the moving parts, and all the collateral damage. The best evidence the state of Texas has that baby was born alive is that Taylor Parker said it wasn't," said prosecutor Kelley Crisp.

Follow prosecutor Lauren Richards recounted all of the masquerades Parker performed for different people, including the pregnancy she faked leading up to the killing.

"In the past two weeks, the evidence has never been more clear," Assistant District Attorney Lauren Richards told the jury. "She's a liar, a manipulator, and now she's gonna be held accountable for it."

She reminded the jury of how Reagan was beaten in the head at least five times with such force that the blows compressed her skull into her brain.

"The pain Reagan must have felt when Taylor started cutting her abdomen, hip to hip ... indescribable," Richards said. "When Taylor had the baby and Reagan was still alive, that's when Taylor started slashing and cutting. She can't leave her alive. It was no quick death. She just kept cutting her. I guess Reagan would not die fast enough for Taylor to get out of there and get on with her plans."

The punishment phase has been scheduled to begin Oct. 12. Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty, although jurors may opt for a sentence of life imprisonment without parole.

Saban: Bryce Young day-to-day with shoulder sprain

By JOHN ZENOR
AP Sports Writer

Alabama quarterback Bryce Young's sprained throwing shoulder has usurped the offseason coaching spat as the big story heading into the top-ranked Crimson Tide's grudge match against Texas A&M.

Alabama coach Nick Saban called Young day-to-day on Monday and said he didn't have any substantive update on the status of last season's Heisman Trophy winner. The top-ranked Crimson Tide face the Aggies, the only team to beat Alabama in the 2021 regular season, on Saturday night.

"Really, there's no updates on Bryce," Saban said. "You know, he's got a little bit of a shoulder injury. It's not a long-term type injury."

"He's gonna be day-to-day when he can get back to throwing, and we'll just wait to evaluate it day to day. So I can't tell you if that's going to be today, tomorrow, or the next day."

Saban spoke before practice, which is closed to the media. In fact, both quarterbacks are labeled as day to day by their coaches.

Texas A&M's Max Johnson sustained a hand injury late in last week's loss to Mississippi State. Pushed on whether Johnson, who got the job after Haynes King was benched following two subpar starts, would start this week, Texas A&M's Jimbo Fisher was cagey. "I don't know," he said. "We'll go day-to-day ... what do you want me to do? Call Nick and tell him?"

Young's status especially is overshadowing the juicy offseason back and forth between Saban and Fisher that drew a reprimand for both from the Southeastern Conference.

Saban called out Texas A&M and other schools while talking about the need for regulating NIL in college sports. Fisher shot back and called his former boss at LSU "a narcissist."

If Young can't go, Alabama will turn to Jalen Milroe, a dual-threat quarterback who played most of the way in a 49-26 win at then-No. 20 Arkansas.

Young landed on his right shoulder on a scramble, throwing the ball away on his way down. He didn't return.

Saban said that play was "a teaching moment" for his star quarterback, who could have just let himself be tackled or gotten rid of the ball earlier.

"The thing about great competitors, and Bryce is a great competitor, is they always want to make a play,"

Saban said. "They're going to go to the last nth degree to make a play."

"But sometimes you've got to know when there's no play to be made. And now it's time to not put myself at risk."

Young has passed for 1,202 yards and 14 touchdowns against three interceptions this season. He has also run for 154 yards and three scores.

Milroe is a redshirt freshman and former four-star recruit from Katy, Texas, about 85 miles from College Station.

Alabama switched gears with him in the game against Arkansas, relying more heavily on the running game.

Milroe was only 4-of-9 passing for 65 yards but set up a fourth-quarter touchdown with a 77-yard run. He finished with 91 yards on six carries.

"Jalen did a great job stepping up, knowing what he needed to do, make plays for us to win," tailback Jahmyr Gibbs said.

Alabama has had a package installed for Milroe, who was the nation's No. 4 dual-threat quarterback prospect out of high school, according to the 247Sports composite rankings.

Milroe, who has passed for 151 yards and rushed for 163 this season, got little action in four games last season before redshirting.

He completed 3 of 7 passes for 41 yards and a touchdown while gaining another 57 on 15 rushes.

"I just know as a coach what we try to do to prepare him so that they feel like at least, psychologically, they're in the right place to go out there and read things and make the right choices and decisions," Saban said. "That's why we practice. That's why we give guys experience. We've been fortunate that Jalen got a pretty good bit of experience in these first few games."

Gibbs ran for 202 yards, including touchdowns of 72 and 76 yards in the fourth quarter. The longest run came from Milroe, though.

Gibbs said he's never raced the Tide's backup quarterback but that Milroe did run against receiver Kendrick Law over the summer.

"It was a tie," he said.

Added linebacker Will Anderson Jr.: "He is very hard to tackle. He can move really well, has great feet. He can escape the pocket."

Saban said defensive end Justin Eboigbe, who missed the Arkansas game, has a neck injury and will see a specialist.

"We're not going to allow him to play until we can get the exact, most expert, plan of action for him and his future," Saban said.

Former Texas standout and WNBA player Jackson dies at 37

By JIM VERTUNO
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tiffany Jackson, a former standout at the University of Texas who was the No. 5 pick in the WNBA draft in 2007 and played nine years in the league, has died of cancer, the school announced. She was 37.

Jackson, who was first diagnosed with breast cancer in 2015, died Monday. She was hired as head coach at Wiley College in April.

Jackson was a three-time All-Big 12 selection and was voted the national freshman of the year by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association in 2004. She finished her Texas career ranked in the top five in career points, rebounds and steals. She is the only Longhorns player to reach 1,000 points, 1,000 rebounds, 300 steals and 150 blocks in a career.

"Tiffany had a great career and was an impact player," former Texas coach Jody Conradt said. "She was recognized for her all-around game and the fact that she was tremendously mobile and could play multiple positions. She was beloved by teammates, and we share in the sadness of her passing."

Jackson was drafted by the WNBA's New York Liberty. She also played for the Tulsa Shock and the Los Angeles Sparks. Her best pro season came in 2011 with Tulsa when she averaged 12.4 points and 8.4 rebounds.

After her cancer diagnosis, Jackson managed to return to the court to play a final season with Los Angeles in 2017 before retiring at age 32. She was an assistant coach at Texas for two seasons.

"We are deeply saddened to hear the news of the passing of Tiffany Jackson, one of the greatest players in the history of Texas women's basketball," Texas coach Vic Schaefer said. "I know she was so excited to be the head coach at Wiley College for the upcoming season. She will be sorely missed by so many. Our deepest sympathies go out to her family."

Herschel Walker paid for girlfriend's abortion, report says

DUNWOODY, Ga. (AP) — Herschel Walker, who has vehemently opposed abortion rights as the Republican nominee for U.S. Senate in Georgia, paid for an abortion for his girlfriend in 2009, according to a new report. The candidate called the accusation a "flat-out lie" and said he would sue.

The Daily Beast spoke to the former girlfriend, who asked that her name not be used out of concerns for her privacy.

In the report published late Monday, the news outlet said it reviewed a receipt showing her $575 payment for the procedure, along with a get-well card from Walker and her bank deposit records showing the image of a $700 personal check from Walker dated five days after the abortion receipt.

The woman said Walker encouraged her to end the pregnancy, saying that the time wasn't right for a baby, The Daily Beast reported. As a candidate, Walker has characterized abortion as "a woman killing her baby" and has played up his opposition to the procedure in the wake of the Supreme Court ruling earlier this year stripping a woman's constitutional right to access abortion services.

In a statement, Walker said he would file a lawsuit against The Daily Beast on Tuesday morning.

"This is a flat-out lie — and I deny this in the strongest terms possible," he wrote.

As of late Tuesday afternoon, Walker had not taken any legal action, according to a campaign spokesman.

Matt Fuller, the politics editor for The Daily Beast, tweeted in response to Walker's initial denial: "I can tell you we stand behind every word and feel very solid about the story."

Later Monday night, Walker appeared on Sean Hannity's program on Fox News, where Walker was asked if he recalled sending a $700 check to a girlfriend.

"Well, I sent money to a lot of people," he said. "I give money to people all the time because I'm always helping people. I believe in being generous. God has blessed me. I want to bless others."

Former President Donald Trump, who encouraged Walker to run for Senate, said Walker was being "slandered and maligned."

"Herschel has properly denied the charges against him, and I have no doubt he is correct," Trump said in a statement.

Walker and Democratic Sen. Raphael Warnock are engaged in a tight contest that is key to the balance of power in the U.S. Senate.

The chamber is now divided 50-50, with Vice President Kamala Harris holding the tie-breaking vote to give Democrats control.

Warnock won the seat in a special election runoff on Jan. 5, 2021, prevailing by 2 percentage points over then-Sen. Kelly Loeffler, a Republican.

The allegation against Walker is the latest in a series of stories about the football legend's past that has rocked the first-time candidate's campaign in one of the most competitive Senate races in the country.

Earlier this year, Walker acknowledged reports that he had three children he had not previously talked about publicly.

Walker has often boasted of his work helping service members and veterans struggling with mental health.

Yet The Associated Press reported in May that various records showed he overstated his role in a for-profit program that is alleged to have preyed upon veterans and service members while defrauding the government.

"I have a profound reverence for life. I have a deep and abiding respect for choice. I believe a patient's room is too small and cramped a space for a woman, her doctor and the United States government,"

district director

The AP also has reported that a review of public records detailed accusations that Walker repeatedly threatened his ex-wife's life, exaggerated claims of financial success and alarmed business associates with unpredictable behavior.

Walker himself has at times discussed his long struggle with mental illness.

Republicans targeted Warnock as perhaps the most vulnerable of the Democratic Senate incumbents. But they were also skeptical about Walker's viability as a statewide candidate, especially through the spring and summer as Walker's past was aired publicly.

In recent months, Walker found his footing by attacking Warnock for backing President Joe Biden's agenda in Washington. Biden won Georgia narrowly but has seen his approval ratings in the state fall significantly since 2020.

But Walker also has made abortion an issue.

During the Republican Senate primary, he openly backed a national ban on abortions with no exceptions for cases involving rape, incest or a woman's health being at risk — particularly notable at a time when the 1973 Roe v. Wade Supreme Court precedent has been overturned and Democrats in Congress have been discussing codifying abortion rights into federal law.

"I'm for life," Walker has said repeatedly as he campaigns.

When asked about whether he'd allow for any exceptions, he has said there are "no excuses" for the procedure.

As the Republican nominee, Walker has sometimes sidestepped questions about his earlier support for a national abortion ban, a tacit nod to the fact that most voters, including many Republicans, want at least some legal access to abortion.

Walker instead tries to turn the issue against Warnock, who supports abortion rights.

Walker often says he doesn't understand how Warnock, a Baptist pastor, can support the procedure being legal.

Campaigning in Dunwoody, an Atlanta suburb, on Monday night, Warnock stressed his support for abortion rights.

"I have a profound reverence for life. I have a deep and abiding respect for choice. I believe a patient's room is too small and cramped a space for a woman, her doctor and the United States government," he said, emphasizing Walker's support for a national ban. Warnock was dismissive when told of The Daily Beast story and when asked whether it might affect the outcome in Georgia.

"I'll let the pundits decide," he said. Walker's son, Christian Walker, criticized his father in a series of tweets late Monday, saying his family "asked him not to run for office."

"I don't care about someone who has a bad past and takes accountability," Christian Walker tweeted. "But how DARE YOU LIE and act as though you're some 'moral, Christian, upright man.' You've lived a life of DESTROYING other peoples lives. How dare you."

For now, Republicans in Washington are standing by Walker, with a spokesman for the Senate GOP's campaign arm dismissing The Daily Beast story as "nonsense" rooted in desperation by Democrats.

"They and their media allies are doing what they always do — attack Republicans with innuendo and lies," said Chris Hartline, a top aide at the National Republican Senatorial Committee.

Acclaimed Native American flute player, hoop dancer has died

By GRETCHEN EHLKE
Associated Press

Kevin Locke, an acclaimed Native American flute player, hoop dancer, cultural ambassador and educator, has died in South Dakota at age 68, according to his family.

A member of the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe and from the ancestral line of Lakota and Anishinabe, Locke died Friday night after returning to his hotel room in Hill City, his son Ohiyesa Locke said Monday.

The younger Locke said his father, who had been performing at the Crazy Horse Memorial in the Black Hills, suffered an asthma attack and died while he was being taken to the hospital.

Ohiyesa Locke said he had been video chatting with his father several hours before he died.

"He was walking through the Black Hills and telling me how beautiful they were, and he talked about some of the history of the Lakota people," he said.

According to his website, Locke performed for nearly 40 years to hundreds of thousands of people in more than 90 countries at performing art centers, festivals, schools, universities, conferences, state and national parks, monuments and powwows.

As a folk artist, Locke used his talents to teach others about Native American history and especially enjoyed working with children on the reservations to ensure the survival and growth of indigenous culture, the website said.

"He had an amazing gift to touch people's hearts and was very generous with his time," said Ohiyesa Locke, who lives in Killeen, Texas.

"Through my music and dance, I want to create a positive awareness of the Oneness of humanity," Kevin Locke once wrote on his website.

The Native American Music Awards issued a statement Saturday after learning of Locke's death.

"Kevin Locke was undoubtedly one of the greatest flutists, hoop dancers and teachers the world had ever seen. He will be greatly missed.

The Native American Music Awards would like to extend their deepest condolences and sorrow to his family," the statement read.

Locke attended high school at the Institute of American Indian Arts in New Mexico.

He also earned a bachelor's degree from the University of South Dakota and a master's degree in educational administration from the University of North Dakota, his son said.

Locke was a fluent Lakota speaker and served as a board member for the Lakota Language Consortium, a nonprofit organization dedicated to preserving the language.

Since 1982, Locke, who played the Northern Plains flute, has recorded twelve albums of music and stories, most recently "The First Flute," "Open Circle," "Keepers of the Dream," and "Dream Catcher," according to his website.

"I have always been in admiration of him, and he wanted me to follow in his footsteps. But his shoes were too big to fill," his son said.

"He was walking through the Black Hills and telling me how beautiful they were, and he talked about some of the history of the Lakota people."

Today in History: October 5, Truman speaks on TV. Today is Wednesday, Oct. 5, the 278th day of 2022.

Today's Highlight in History: On Oct. 5, 1953, Earl Warren was sworn in as the 14th chief justice of the United States.

In 1947, President Harry S. Truman delivered the first televised White House address as he spoke on the world food crisis. In 1958, racially-segregated Clinton High School in Clinton, Tennessee, was mostly leveled by an early morning bombing.

by members of a secret religious doomsday cult known as the Order of the Solar Temple; five other bodies were found the same week in a building owned by the sect near Montreal, Canada.

In 2001, tabloid photo editor Robert Stevens died from inhaled anthrax, the first of a series of anthrax cases in Florida, New York, New Jersey and Washington.

In 2011, Steve Jobs, 56, the Apple founder and former chief executive who'd invented and master-marketed ever sleeker gadgets that transformed everyday technology from the personal computer to the iPod and iPhone, died in Palo Alto, California.

Donald Trump staged a dramatic return to the White House after leaving the military hospital where he was receiving an unprecedented level of care for COVID-19; Trump immediately ignited a new controversy by declaring that despite his illness, the nation should not fear the virus.

Ten years ago: A month before the presidential election, the Labor Department reported that unemployment fell in Sept. 2012 to its lowest level, 7.8 percent, since President Barack Obama took office; some Republicans questioned whether the numbers had been manipulated.

Five years ago: Hollywood executive Harvey Weinstein announced that he was taking a leave of absence from his company after a New York Times article detailed decades of alleged sexual harassment against women including actor Ashley Judd. The National Rifle Association and the White House expressed support for controls on "bump stock" devices like those that apparently aided the gunman behind the Las Vegas attack; the NRA later said it was opposed to an outright ban on the devices.

The Moon's Proclamation

The moon forms a lucky angle to the sun first, then Mars, proclaiming that we have all we need to do remarkable things. "People are so busy wishing for more time and better resources that they fail to make the most of the time and resources they have. Be great in small ways and you may be surprised by what you've achieved within a year or two." -- James Clear

ARIES (March 21-April 19). People will pay you based on the pricing you establish, so be mindful and deliberate. You can take cues from what others are doing, but don't copy them completely. Your offering is unique, so price accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Self-discovery is the theme and it's a fine day for a check-in. Tune in to different aspects of your life and relationships. Simple questions will give you insight. What are you looking forward to? What are you dreading?

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You are about to turn the page on a new chapter. Tie up whatever loose ends you can, but if you can't quite manage to get them into a bow, don't stress; the story weaves on...

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Kudos to you for making the effort to learn something new. By now it's a lifestyle and you've many skills to show for it. Each of your talents brings with it a circle of people who need or share that talent, so your network grows.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). By doing it alone, you would be stealing others' chances to help you, an interaction that has value far beyond completing the task at hand. Through helping people learn about themselves, you gain skill, confidence and strong bonds.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). It will be important to reach a certain state of relaxation. Believe it or not, it matters less what actually gets done and more the manner in which it's approached and the feeling and mood the work creates.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Recommendations abound and will both annoy and comfort you. Knowing what's good saves you from having to go find it yourself. But the list of gems is so long no one could possibly consume it in one lifetime. How you'll try!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Smiles, sunshine, hugs, hot showers, cold ice cream... the key to today's happiness will be simple creature comforts, perhaps a bit corny but as effective as any highbrow effort if not more!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You don't have to work in traditionally named artistic mediums for what you're doing to be considered an art. Love is an art. Walking is an art. The response of like minds will guide your process.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Self-respect makes it easy for you to respect others. You'll model the concept as you act as a liaison between people who might otherwise have trouble relating to one another. You'll control the tone by staying cool.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You put care into the little things, so people trust you with the big things. From the way you dress to how you put together projects, attention to detail makes the difference. Choose your words carefully. Semantics matter.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You appreciate agreeable people but you're more likely to trust those who disagree. It takes nerve to disagree with someone as strong as you. Though it may not change your mind, you'll respectfully hear their argument.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 5). The solar return gifts you with the power to transform a part of your life. You decide where to focus it. Your compassion and warmth will melt away the obstacles blocking your path. More highlights: You'll teach what you don't know and quickly become an expert; generosity marks your financial sector; a certificate will be your freedom. Cancer and Taurus adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 9, 1, 6 and 10.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: When she's not rescuing people from house fires or setting the big screen aflame with a performance, Kate Winslet is like most Libras, cherishing the tranquility of a balanced and harmonized life. Upcoming projects include an "Avatar" sequel and the role of Lee Miller, a fashion model who became an acclaimed war correspondent for Vogue Magazine during World War II.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Official Game Rules:
Find this week's games between the merchant's ads on this page. Choose the teams you think will win, and fill in the official entry form on this page with your team choices. Clip the entry form out of the page and drop it in the Pigskin box at one of the listed merchants.
Do not drop your entry form at the Big Spring Herald office.
*The entry with the most correct picks will win $50!
You must be 18 to enter. No photo copies accepted.
*In the event of a tie, the tie breaker will determine the winner. For the tie breaker, the entry with the correct team will win. If both entries have guessed the same team, the second tie breaker will be the one closest to the total points.
*Decisions of the judges are final.
*Employees and family of the Big Spring Herald are ineligible.
*All entries must be received at one of the participating merchants by 1pm Friday of the week played.
*Winners will be announced on the next week's Pigskin Contest Page.
