BULLDOG COMEBACK FAILS; BRECKINRIDGE WINS, 14-13

By DEE UNDERWOOD

A missed field goal, with 58 seconds to play, stopped a brilliant comeback effort by the Burkburnett Bulldogs, after earlier miscues had dropped them behind, 14-13, in a 4-AAA conference battle with the Breckenridge Buckaroos, Friday night, at Breckenridge, evening the Bulldog's district record at 3-3.

The kicking attempt came on fourth down and one and a half yard to go from the three. It was a very good call for several reasons. Reason number one was because they needed two points to win. Number two was because it was fourth down and the Buck's defense was stiffening. Probably the best reason was because extra point kicker Lynn Attwood had only missed four of eighteen point after kicks, for a 77.6 percentage. And while this was not an extra point kick, with the ball placed on the 2½, it was but a half yard further out at the 3 yard stripe.

There may be many reasons why the kick failed. Perhaps the pressure was to severe for a high school athlete. Perhaps the slight northerly wind against it caused the boot to falter. We feel that the right angle differed enough from extra point attempts to cause the miss.

The fact remains that it missed. The thing that counts is that the Bulldogs had confidence in the play, a calculated risk. They played hard right down to the wire, taking the loss like men, shaking hands and congratulating their conquerors the minute the final buzzer sounded.

The fired up and very capable Bucks had come from behind in the third quarter themselves. After a seesaw first stanza, in which both teams made some impressive gains but failed to scratch, the Bulldogs lit up the scoreboard.

The Bulldogs had made a sustained march from their own territory to the Bucks two. Calling his own number, quarterback Jeff Beaver did what he had been doing successfully all night, quarterback sneaked. He plunged across the double stripe for the six pointer to give them the lead. Attwood kicked the extra point with a perfect boot, making it 7-0. It was the fourth touchdown the slender signal caller has run over for the season. He has also passed for twelve more.

After the Bulldog defense threw the Bucks deep into their own territory, Billy Echols booted what has to be a record for high school punts. The 167 pound Buckaroo half-back dropped back to kick, the ball at his own 15. He sent a tremendous kick that sailed far over the deep man for the Bulldogs. Including the kick and its bounce, it was good for 83 yards, dying on the Bulldog two.

It appeared that the Bulldogs were in deep trouble, but on third down and nine, Allen Willett broke loose around left side, going for 50 yards to the Breckenridge 47. But just as he tackled, a Bulldog player apparently clipped. Set back 15 yards to their own 38, they found themselves facing first and 25 from that point. Then came their biggest and most costly miscue of the night. Jeff Beaver and Charles Hicks failed to connect on a pitchout, the ball going toward the Bulldog goal. Buddy Hamilton pounced on it at the 22 for the Bucks.

After losing a yard in two attempts, quarterback Lynn Roy Farmer hit halfback Robert Flatters at the one yard line for a first and goal. On the next play, Farmer went in for the score. Benny Elder attempted the extra point kick, but a fierce Bulldog rush blocked it, leaving the score at 7-6.

The second half began on a sour note for the Bulldogs. On the first play after the kickoff, they fumbled and Breckenridge recovered on the 50. A 15 yard penalty failed to dim their spirits, as they marched all the way to the one. From there, David Toliver, 171 pound fullback, who gained 88 of the Buck's 129 yards, blasted over to paydirt. Then came the big play of the night on the conversion attempt. Rolling right, Farmer shot a pass to Danny Hand in the left side of the end zone for two points and the winning margin.

Finger Pointing Won't Help

When it comes to assessing the blame for the continued decline in the dollar's purchasing power, the view varies greatly according to which end of the telescope you're looking through. Mr. Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, observes that, "Steel is our single most important industrial material. General stability of industrial prices is difficult to achieve if steel prices are rising." Mr. Ackley also recognized that wage demands far in excess of increases in productivity have been inflationary.

When you get right down to it, all this is largely beside the point. The primary cause of inflation continues to be federal deficit spending for nonessential domestic programs on top of war and defense costs. The primary blame for continuing increases in the price of nearly everything we buy can be laid directly on the doorstep of federal fiscal policy. No amount of official finger pointing in other directions can change that fact.

Modern Business Leadership

How far a business should go beyond its primary obligation to stockholders, in participating in the solution of broad social and economic problems of the whole community, has long been a question in the minds of many managements.

In the words of Mr. L. W. Moore, president of the American Oil Company, "I . . . believe . . . that without the conscientious involvement of business and industry the activities that are undertaken are rather apt to be palliatives instead of cures. This is not said critically, but simply because the only real long-term solution to the problem is employment; productive employment that will enable men who are now unskilled, uneducated and unemployed to achieve a sense of dignity. . . . Business must become involved because it is the ultimate source of these jobs, and the process of preparing the unskilled to assume them is one in which it must have a role. . . . we must help government, the schools, and the social agencies find ways to prepare people for the kind of work that we will be able to provide."

Senator Wayne Morris of Oregon cites the fact that the nation's trade surplus is at its lowest level since 1959 and that steadily declining U. S. gold reserves are the cause of mounting concern in the U. S. banking community and on Capitol Hill.

The more money the taxpayers part with, the more the government spends — a situation that is likely to continue until the public is aroused to demand drastic cuts in spending.

The only trouble with life is you're halfway through before you realize it's one of those "do-it-yourself" deals.

The Arizona Farm Bureau Federation says: "Studies now show that the economies of large-type farms can be achieved by modern and fully mechanized one-man and two-man farms. In three specific cases, economists found that efficient one-man farms could keep costs down as low as any larger operation. These studies covered production of cling peaches in California, irrigated cotton in Texas and wheat in Oregon."

Dean Edward W. Barrett of Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism says that newspapers must upgrade their business and financial pages "to meet the rising expectations of a population whose financial literacy is growing rapidly. What we need," says Dean Barrett, "is a new breed — the economics reporter — who has the skills of the business financial reporter backed up by a thorough understanding of the basic economic currents which dominate so much of today's news."

What do Americans think of when Canada is mentioned? Mounties in red coats who always get their man? Vast areas of wilderness and timberland? The locale of Expo 67 and other places to visit? If the limit of our concern about Canada is such thoughts as these, our knowledge of our neighbor to the North is typical but hardly forgivable.

BABSON'S POINT OF VIEW

Babson's Point of View On: AMERICAN LIFE IN THE YEAR 2000

Babson Park, Mass., November 9 — The year 2000 no longer looms like an imaginary time in science fiction. In fact, most people 45 years old or younger have a very good chance of still being active by the year 2000 — and beyond. It's only about 32 years distant, but the changes between now and then will be spectacular in a great many ways.

What Workers May Expect

A new study of the year 2000, supported by the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the Carnegie Corporation, and the Corning Glass Works Foundation, takes more than a casual view of what the workers of the nation and their families can anticipate for the beginning of the next millennium. Many of the projections are worth contemplating, especially by those young enough to become socially and economically involved in what lies ahead when the 20th century gives way to the 21st.

First off, family income is expected to be substantially higher, with enough people in the upper brackets to create a kind of "gentleman's" class. . . . those with sufficient means to lead a life of leisure. Even those who do work may be on the job only four days a week, and for a lot shorter day. This will come as a shock to the businessman of today who is so high-pressure that he doesn't even take time off for vacations. But the study figures that by the year 2000 employees will be working 147 days a year getting 218 days off!

Time And Money To Burn

Disposable incomes will continue to be the key to the degree of one's prosperity and level of living standards. While we have seen tremendous advances in this factor in recent years, far more solid gains are likely by the end of the century. Disposable income per capita by the year 2000 may range from $4,900 to $9,000. Import of this forecast is that the typical family is expected to be as well off then as the relatively high-income family is today.

Filling up leisure time to advantage will be a big problem, and youngsters will be encouraged to take up interests outside their career choices. Sports, music, theatre, and art will be widely pursued. It is even implied that museums, theaters, and other cultural centers may be at such a premium that time will have to be rationed to make them available for all interested.

Cash Already on the Way Out

So much has been seen in the way of transferral from a cash retail economy to a credit-card system that the study's projection in this line may not be so surprising. Housewives are likely to have pushbutton houses making wide use of computers. Department stores and supermarkets will accept the housewife's credit card by computer and the bank will pay her bills the same way. Women will make up a higher proportion of the labor, particularly in view of the availability of innumerable pleasant part-time jobs.

There will be big jumps in transportation, far beyond even the supersonic jet travel already on the horizon. Flying platforms could be in use for local trips, even for calls on neighbors. It may be easy to take a half-hour rocket trip to Europe. Travel wardrobes—as well as "street wear"—will be largely made of paper, to be thrown away after a few wearings. This is already being tried out, but will be prevalent by then.

Life Span: 155 Years?

Wide immunization against more and more diseases will have lengthened the life span even further. Health programs and dietary controls will be workaday, plus the more frequent resort to artificial or transplanted organs and automatic heart devices. People could be living to the age of 150 by the year 2000, or very soon thereafter; and the population of the U.S. may well total 318 million persons.

A JOHNNY HARTFORD SCHOOL SAFETY TIP

Going Home After School —

Never accept gifts or rides from strangers. Go home promptly after school and don't loiter along the way. Stick to your safety route and stay away from dark and lonely streets. Check in with your mother to let her know if you plan to play elsewhere. Then come home promptly at the time she sets. (This safety panel, one of a series for JUNIOR FIRE MARSHAL, has been prepared as a public service of the Hartford Insurance Group.)

EVENTS OF YESTERYEAR

From the Burkburnett Star 10 Years Ago

10 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Glen R. Moody of LaRoche, France announce the arrival of a baby daughter on Oct. 2. Glen is stationed in France with the Army.

The already slim disappointing cotton crop has been further delayed and damaged by rains. One and one-quarter inches fell Monday night. To date, only 136 bales of cotton have been ginned at the Farmers Co-Op Gin. During "good" years the local gin has ginned more than 3,000 bales.

Hot on this year's fashion front is the pocket.

For extra zip to a pattern dress or last season's holdover, choose from the African "bush," the Western, the Cobbler, the slot, flap, triangle or patch. What's good news is you can make them all yourself if you master such easy tricks as these. If you're doing a curved patch, the clue is to cut out a cardboard pattern. For rectangular pockets, a cutting board will keep you on a straight grain. Treat the African "bush" (center-pleated with a flap) just like a rectangular patch. As for the perennial slot, make it easy for yourself with a

African Bush near-automatic slot pocket maker. The same holds true for triangular pockets. They'll make themselves with (surprise!) a triangle button hole maker.

STEP-BY-STEP LESSON:

Fitting a Pantdress
 Is that new pantdress pattern you plan to buy short and sporty or long and lounchy? Both styles are quick and easy to sew, but require careful fitting.

Purchase pantdress pattern in same size as your dress patterns. Because of pattern shape make all needed adjustments on pattern before cutting out fabric.

The vertical or lengthwise adjustments are most important. Specific instructions for measuring and adjusting crotch, back waist and finished length on a one piece pantdress (no waistline seam) follow.

Step 1

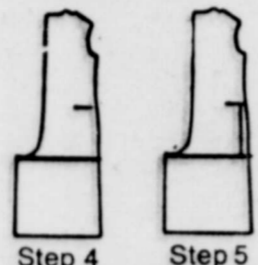

First, use a ruler to measure your crotch length while seated on a hard chair. Tie a cord at your waist and measure from chair seat to point of ruler level with your waistline (Step 1).

Step 2

Step 3

Secondly, measure your back waist length, from prominent bone at base of neck to cord at waist. (Step 2). Then continue measuring down to desired finished length (Step 3). Record these measurements.

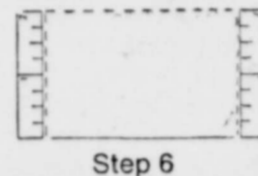

Step 4

Step 5

Next measure pattern crotch length. Draw a line across pattern back from widest part of crotch to side seam, at right angles to grainline (Step 4).

Measure down to this line from natural waistline marking (Step 5). This should exceed your crotch length by 1 inch. This inch of ease permits comfortable fit while standing or sitting.

Step 6

If pattern needs to be shortened, tuck out necessary amount using Easy-Rule guide. To lengthen, cut along dotted line; spread (Step 6). Adjust front, too.

Refer to pattern envelope for back waist length. If it differs from yours, adjust using Easy-Rule guide.

The finished garment length is also on envelope. If you have adjusted pattern for waist or crotch length, add or subtract amount of adjustment from given measurement. If remaining length is not same as desired finished length, alter the leg length. Add to or cut off necessary amount at lower edge of pattern. Be sure to leave recommended hem width.

If you have sewing questions, write to Meg Carter, McCall's Patterns, 230 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10017.

SODA POP KID

By Red Smith

The question was put to Ray Graves over the phone: "Was Larry Smith going to be the first back to make All-America on soda pop?"

"It's a cinch it won't hurt him," said the University of Florida's football coach. "He's a big boy, 216 pounds and 6-foot-4 and as much as he carries the ball and runs pass routes, too, he needs all the stamina he can get."

"You know he drank a measured gallon and a half of the stuff in the Orange Bowl, set a Bowl record with a 94-yard touchdown run from scrimmage, and was picked as the outstanding player of the game. And he was as fresh in the fourth quarter as in the first."

"The stuff" is a new soft drink. My father who had the gift of graceful phrasing would have called it "rattle-belly," but the trade name is Gatorade and the manufacturer cuddles the notion that it is going to change the drinking habits of American athletes, which is more than Alcoholics Anonymous have done.

It is neither a stimulant nor a sedative nor a wonder pop, not a substitute for pep pills, pot, or LSD. Matter of fact, it's only a substitute for water, but it is supposed to make a boy like Florida's Larry Smith smile when stomped on by Miami's monolithic tackle, Bob Taterek.

Coach Graves said, "which was always the problem. We used to let 'em sip lime or lemon, which leaves cotton in the mouth, or suck an ice cube or chew a wet towel. Now we don't care how much they drink during a game."

DROUTH IN GEORGIA

Starting out on the sauce last year, the 'Gators stomped Northwestern 43-7, trampled Mississippi State, Vanderbilt, Florida State, North Carolina, Louisiana State, and Auburn in order. Then somebody goofed.

A student manager forgot to ship the tippie with the cleats, when the team went up to battle Georgia. After a close first half, Georgia rattled the unbeaten, unslaked 'Gators down, 27-10.

"And up till then we'd been a second-half team," Graves mourned, "getting better as the others wore down. Of course, I wouldn't say not having the stuff to drink was the whole story. That Georgia team had something to say about it, too." After whacking Tulane, 31-10, Florida hooked the University of Miami. "They had us down, 21-0, at the half," Graves said. "Then we bounced back to make it 21-16 and were on our way to score when time ran out." That made the season's record eight victories in ten games, and in the Orange Bowl Florida horsewhipped Georgia Tech, 27-12.

SWEATY SCIENCE

As everybody knows, football players sweat. Indeed, in the cozy climate of Gainesville, seat of the University of Florida, the prom queen sweats. A team of university doctors studying the physiology of thirst kept tabs on ten freshman football players and found that in a two-hour practice session they sweated off an average of 7.7 pounds. Along with the fluid, the body loses salts, phosphates, and other minerals.

Physical trainers have always been leery of letting athletes drink water freely during competition, for fear of cramps and nausea. The researchers developed a series of test beverages and from these came the formula named Gatorade, after the Florida 'Gators. It is a non-carbonated solution, lime-lemon flavored, which is absorbed into the body 12 times faster than water.

Besides quenching thirst, it's supposed to restore the squandered minerals speedily. Apparently it does, for the guzzling 'Gators lost little or no weight during last year's games.

"They don't get water-logged."

JOE WILLIE COCKTAIL

Having no wish to tangle with the Food and Drug people, the manufacturer makes no claims that his product has therapeutic properties that give fast, fast relief of any condition. The stuff is being peddled simply as a thirst quencher.

Still, it stands to reason that if a guy doesn't sweat himself down to a shadow during a game he's less likely to suffer fatigue and if the fatigue factor is reduced there should be a corresponding reduction in injuries.

Jerry Quarry, the young heavyweight who used to peter out after five rounds, has been slugging the stuff and thinks he's slugging opponents more solidly now in the late rounds. A raft of other colleges are adopting Florida's poison this season.

There's still plenty of room to promote the potion further, however. If the Open End bar in New York could be induced to stock the stuff, Joe Willie Namath might develop a taste for it. It could make life beautiful for Weeb Ewbank and sports editors of newsweeklies.

Teenagers Make Chamber Of Commerce Members Ponder

Two teenagers were guest speakers at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon, Monday, Nov. 6, and gave the members something to ponder.

John Mitchell and Rusty Todd, president and vice president, in that order of the High School Student Council, proved to be eloquent orators and teenagers unafraid to say what was on their minds.

Sharing the topic, Community Development, they stressed the fact that young people recognize the advancements the town is making and appreciate being allowed to help it grow and prosper.

The community is on the move, they said, but must continue to move, even if it means a need for more taxes, if young people are to be encouraged to return to Burkburnett when they finish their education.

The building of a cultural center, civic center and perhaps a radio station, were some of the projects suggested by the boys, as ideal for consideration in the years ahead. The statements that teens want the truth and not patronization; that they want to know adults are really interested in their education, by actions and not merely word of mouth; that they don't believe people who profess this interest and then neglect to vote in school board elections; reached many red ears.

The very frank talks were very enlightening and there was much discussion as members left the hall. The reactions to the speeches were of pride and awareness that our young people do take an interest in their hometown and its future.

Another highlight of the program was the presentation of a plaque to Mrs. Mary Veach, as Employee of the Month.

Mrs. Veach was accompanied by her employer, Mr. R. B. (Dick) Johnston, of the Famous Department Store.

Mr. Ted Roark made the award presentation.

Fire Destroys Airmen's Club

Sheppard AFB — The Airmen's Open Mess at Sheppard Air Force Base was destroyed by fire Monday, Nov. 8.

Units from the Sheppard Fire Department as well as Wichita Falls, fought the fire for more than two hours before bringing it under control. Each department sent six units to the scene.

The fire was reported to have started in the kitchen of the 25,000 square foot structure. An estimated loss of the building was set at $630,000.

Medical personnel from Sheppard's U.S. Air Force Hospital were on hand to assist the injured. In addition to the medicals, 200 student airmen volunteered their services to work the hoses and aid the medicals. The only casualties reported were ten persons suffering from smoke inhalation and one broken arm.

Col. Robert Stephens, chief of the Department of Civil Engineering Training at Sheppard, has been appointed as chairman of the inquiry board established to investigate the fire.

Local Contractor Is Low Bidder

A. J. Morris, president of the Archer City Independent School District, announces that a bid contract submitted by Virgil Mills Construction Co. of Burkburnett, was low bidder on the gym-cafeteria for the school. The contract bid accepted by the board was for $347,600.

Local Minister, Family Attend Washington Meet.

W. DWYANE DENNIS

W. Dwyane Dennis, Minister of the Church of Christ of Burkburnett, and Mrs. Dennis returned this week from a Campaign for Christ in Alexandria, Virginia, just across the Potomac River from Washington, D. C. Mr. Dennis directed the song service during the Campaign, and Mrs. Dennis was in charge of three full-time secretaries along with others who assisted in the Campaign office. There were sixty workers from all over the nation who worked in this effort to promote religious unity on the basis of the Bible alone. Among these sixty workers was Mrs.

Alice Woods of Burkburnett. Campaigns for Christ are under the direction of the 25th and Geraldine Church of Christ in Oklahoma City. Three Campaigns are conducted each year in the United States and throughout the English-speaking world.

After working in the Alexandria of the Dennises began their vacation which they spent in awe of the beautiful New England foliage and enjoyed the last week of Expo '67 in Montreal, Canada. On their return they visited relatives in Kentucky, Oklahoma and Texas. The Dennises have worked with the Church of Christ here since February 1. Mr. Dennis previously served as the Minister of the Hillcrest Church of Christ in Okalahoma City. He is a native of Abilene, Texas, a graduate of Abilene Christian College, and has begun post-graduate work in that institution.

The Dennises have plans for working future Campaigns in Sydney, Australia and Port Elizabeth, South Africa. Mrs. Mary Joy Hagstrom of Burkburnett has committed herself to work in the Hawaii Campaign in 1969. The Church of Christ here has promised to send at least one worker on each Campaign in the future. Each Campaigner raises his own funds, including the Campaign Speaker.

Hawks Control Rodents

Here's one reason why some hawks should not be killed: A pair of meadow mice, the hawk's favorite food, will produce more than a dozen litters a year. And they average a half-dozen per litter.

County H-D Agent News

A name brand appliance maker unveiled a portable clothes dryer which will hold about half a load of a standard size dryer. It operates on a 15-volt outlet, weighs 77 pounds, can be rolled about on casters set on counter and requires no outside venting. The company is aiming at the apartment-mobile home-town-house market.

The Wichita County Adult Leaders Association met last week at Kamay. Adult leaders from all sections of Wichita County belong to the association and meet quarterly to discuss and work on the total county program. Mr. Gad Gardner is chairman of the association.

Many consumers judge the quality of fresh fruit and vegetables by "what looks good." But in the industry, more than human judgement enters the picture in determining quality. A refractometer is often used to measure the interior sugar and solids of melons. A mechanical thumb performs a classic pinch test of tomatoes and peaches. Apples and potatoes get the hortispect test. This is a noopy machine that looks inside without cutting and contains electronically if it sees an apple with a watery core or a potato with a black or hollow heart.

Wichita County Home Demonstration Clubs are having programs this month on Organization of Foods Information. A place for everything and everything in that place is the first clue to a well organized home. Visit a club in your community.

Talcum powder, rubbed on and left overnight, often removes soap spots and others of a greasy nature from ties. When the powder is brushed away, the spot usually goes with it.

Ice cream packed in ordinary craved cardboard cartons will keep quality longer in a home freezer if the carton is wrapped in heavy aluminum foil, says our home demonstration agent. Also make sure the freezer is holding a temperature of 0 degrees F. or below.

Dust and dirt on light bulbs can cut down the light in your home by 15 per cent. Light bulbs, tubes and diffusing bowls should be cleaned regularly. Soapy water removes insects, dust and oily film from diffusing bowls.

Although many think of teenage girls with an image of long, frizzy hair and eccentric clothes and ideas, recent research has pointed out that the values of young females tend to be fundamental and classical, even somewhat conservative.

The girls tend to rank their values, in order of importance, (1) companionship, (2) compassion, (3) maternal duty, (4) independence, (5) achievement, (6) morality, (7) physical concerns, (8) creativity, (9) prudence, (10) adulation (a personal desire for flattery, esteem and admiration indirectly associated with decency and virtue.)

The annual 4-H Achievement Banquet will be Tuesday, November 21 at 6:30 p.m. in the Hirschi High School Cafeteria. The annual event where awards are given to outstanding 4-H boys and girls is sponsored by the First-Wichita National Bank.

Should electric blankets be dry cleaned? No! Also its best not to use dry cleaning fluids on electric blankets because the fluids can damage the insulation on the electric wiring. Follow laundering directions that come with the blanket. They usually suggest short wash, rinse and spin cycles. Use cold or warm water and don't dry the blanket in a dryer.

If you are going on a hem-raising spree this fall, remember some basic rules for sewing cotton, Cotton knit and swede can be hemmed with a raw edge which has been pinked. For corduroy and other bulky fabrics, use a tailor's hem.

Excess frost on the surface of the home freezer makes it less efficient. It limits the space available as well as causing the temperature to rise. Higher temperatures than recommended can cause loss of quality in stored food.

Nameless Element
After ten years of world-wide effort, scientists at the University of California have succeeded in creating element 102, which does not exist in nature. It has no name yet, but "nobelium" has been suggested.

HAVE A FIESTA

Are you having a tough time keeping your "pantry banditos" happy? Here are a few eating tips from Patio Foods home-economists that will keep that hungry hombre satisfied and ransom you from the kitchen. Try a Mexican food fiesta and you might even have time for a well-deserved siesta.

CHICA DE FRUTAS
6 Tbs. sugar
1 cup water
2 sticks of whole cinnamon
10 cloves
7 cups pineapple juice
1 1/2 cups orange juice
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup lime juice
Mint sprigs
Combine sugar, water, cinnamon and cloves and simmer over low heat for 30 minutes. Strain. Add juices and mix well. Refrigerate until very cold. Garnish with sprigs of mint. Result: A "fiesta-de-resistance"!

or cheese, that will make even the toughest hombre throw down his "pistolas". Also, the new Patio Nachos, tarted corn chips topped with cheese and jalapeno peppers, are sure-fire hits with hungry little chicos. Both of these treats are easy on mother because they come ready to heat and serve in new easy-open Anaconda aluminum foil trays. Should the kids have bigger eyes than appetites the new containers are easy to reclose. For good measure, add a pottery bowl filled with bean dip surrounded with crispy tostados, toasted corn tortillas. This zesty combination should hold off another raid until you have time to regroup and plan another menu.

An ideal thirst quencher to soothe the caballeros' parched throats is a tangy Chica de Frutas - Mexican fruit punch.

Here's one final idea. The piñata is traditionally associated with Christmas in Mexico, but it can be fun any time of the year. To make it, cover a light frame of wood and wire with paper-mache in the shape of a pumpkin or simple animal. Then trim with crepe-paper. Fill the piñata with nuts, candies and so forth, and hang it from the ceiling. Blindfold a bold bandito, give him a long stick, and have him try to break the container - Now's the time to grab that siesta.

Keep Essentials Handy
One of the handiest ways to fish is to keep a fairly large plastic box, say with a half-dozen compartments, on the boat seat beside you. It should have your most used lures, so that you don't have to open the big tackle box every time you change baits.
