FORMAL OPENING OF LEER COMPANY IS HELD HERE

Formal opening and welcoming ceremonies at Leer Company, Berry St., were held at the local plant, Wednesday, February 7, while a cold wind blew chilling breezes in spite of a shining sun. Nearly 150 people heard master of ceremonies Joe Salter; Mayor A. H. Lohofener; and Jack Aaron, president of the Chamber of Commerce, give brief welcoming addresses to the ice-vending machine manufacturing company.

Howard Niles, general manager of Leer, from New Lisbon,

Wis., presented a short history of the company which began from an ice cream business in 1920. The name Leer originated from Lee Roth, organizer of the Leer Company.

Clearing the program, one of Leer's trucks bearing four ice vending machines ready for delivery, was driven through a large, long ribbon bearing the message, "Here Comes Leer Again."

Everyone was invited by Irv Smith, supervisor of the local plant, to tour its facilities.

Following the formal opening ceremonies, the production of Leer Company's ice vending machines were resumed.

Flowering plants were sent to the factory by The Burkburnett Bank; The First National Bank; Lippard Insurance Agency; Hunt Oil Field Supply Company; and the Burkburnett Artists.

A TIME TO REMEMBER

Sunday, February 25, is an anniversary which few people, if any, will celebrate by baking a cake!

On this date, in 1913, the federal government was authorized to levy an income tax. Congressional leaders felt at the time that rates could never reach 10 per cent and, indeed, the first year of tax brought the government only $80 million, or a per capita bite of 82 cents.

By contrast, in 1966 revenue from corporate and individual income taxes totaled $85.5 billion, and the per capita tax yield was $434. While the per capita disposable income in 1966 was $2,584, or 7.2 times the $358 of 1913, the per capita tax payments were 592 times the 82 cents of 1913.

In 1913, a single man earning $5,000 a year paid a $20 tax; in 1966 he paid $671. In 1966 the rates ranged from 14 to 70 per cent, a far cry from Congressional predictions back in 1913.

Of Mr. Taxpayer's total tax bill in 1913, 70.5 per cent went for state and local government and 29.5 per cent for the federal government. In 1965, 66.5 per cent to federal, 17.9 to state and 15.6 to local.

In 1913, people did locally what they wanted done. Today, they give their billions in tax money to the federal government and fight among themselves to see who can get the most back.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

MARYSVILLE, CALIF., APPEAL-DEMOCRAT: "A man who has been following the antics of student protesters and demonstrators with increasing incredulity looked up from his paper the other day and remarked to his wife: 'Some of these kids who are paying for a college education certainly want as little for their money as they can possibly get.' He was referring, of course, to a small but spectacular minority of students. But he was saying what many Americans must be thinking. Perhaps we are overlooking the probability that the campus protestors feel the public attention they are getting is worth the price of tuition — especially when in most cases the old man is picking up the tab."

HARRISONVILLE, W. VA., RITCHIE GAZETTE: "As I read and observe in regard to the progress and events of our time, I am amazed — in the face of all our loud disclaimers — at how gracefully we are accepting what surely will eventually be Socialism in complete detail . . . The national decoy naturally is Federal Money and to get a share of it, most areas and communities will accept practically any kind of project dictation . . . even that which they know will work against them and take all supervision out of their hands. . . . Yet, only once, do I recall having seen where a county in this State has refused a Government aided project on the ground they simply could not afford to deal with the Government. . . ."

THE PUEBLO PREDICAMENT

For the American people, North Korea's seizure of the intelligence-collecting ship Pueblo has been a grim reminder that the cold war is still a reality, no matter how much the liberals may say it is a thing of the past. A U.S. warship hijacked in international waters is an example of the piratical character of the communists.

The Pueblo incident should be seen and understood in its full dimensions. In the first place, the act was unprecedented in modern times. Not since the days of the Barbary pirates has an American vessel been boarded and captured on the high seas. Thus it was an assault on a principle cherished throughout the history of the American Republic—the principle of freedom of the seas. Twice in American history—in 1812 and in 1917—the United States went to war to uphold this principle. In other conflicts in which the U.S. has engaged, freedom of the seas also has been a significant factor in determining American intentions.

The United States, as a great sea power and trading nation, cannot afford to give way to communist piracy on the high seas—least of all from a petty satellite of the Soviet Union. The strongest measures are justified to protect an American warship and those who sail in her.

It would be naive, however, to suppose that the seizure of the Pueblo was a hasty act on the part of the North Koreans. The Russians, who long ago installed a puppet as ruler of North Korea, certainly would not have permitted the seizure without careful thought as to the final objective of such an act. It is ridiculous to think we can get the Russians to help us out of our Pueblo predicament, when they no doubt instigated it in the first place.

Behind the seizure, one can be sure, is a plan to humiliate the United States and to present the American republic to the world as a "paper tiger." Japan attempted the same thing in the 1930s when its aircraft sank the U.S. gunboat Panay on China's Yangtze River. "Here the U.S. is supposed to be a great power," the communists in effect say, "and they can't protect a small patrol craft in the North Pacific."

In addition, Americans can be sure that the communists—meaning Russia as well as North Korea—wanted in this ship seizure to demonstrate their capacity to open a new front and to compel a reduction of naval forces in the waters off Vietnam. Indeed they have been successful in part of this effort, for the ship seizure made it necessary for the U.S. to divert warships to the Korean coast.

How it is that the Pueblo came to be seized in the first place, and why American ships and aircraft did not reach the vessel before it was forced into a North Korean port, must be the subject of intensive congressional scrutiny. The public should realize, however, that, in the McNamara era at the Pentagon, the uniformed commanders in the battle zones have been allowed very little authority to make decisions that in any way touch on political matters. Thus it would not be surprising to discover that decisions such as committing U.S. fighters off the North Korea coast, under McNamara era operating rules, required the approval of Mr. McNamara's office.

However the Pueblo situation is resolved, the American people should learn from it that the struggle with communism is not lessening in seriousness. Nor is the Soviet Union mellowing. The communists believe they are in a fight to the finish. They are determined to extinguish the capitalist nations, and they intend to push ahead in their war against freedom.

The Reds have a capacity to create trouble in many parts of the world, in Korea as well as Vietnam, in Latin America as well as the Middle East. The United States can't deal with each of the present and future threats as it has dealt with the threat in Vietnam—with a vast land army. The communists have the advantage of numbers over the United States and its free world allies. The U.S. in future will have to deal with communist aggression by utilizing its technological-military superiority. Awareness of this necessity is what prompts some thoughtful defense thinkers in the United States to assert that another Korean war, let us say, would make it imperative for the U.S. to use battlefield nuclear weapons to stop the aggressors. Indeed had such weapons been used in the Korean war in the early 1950s, the North Koreans and Red Chinese would have had their power blunted at that time.

The lesson of history is that victory goes to the bold and daring. If the free world fails to use scientific and technological know-how to stop the armed hordes of communism, it may be bled to death by the modern guerrilla war version of the old oriental torture death of a thousand cuts.

FASCHING: FUN AND FROLICK

If you've ever felt like really cutting loose—and who hasn't—you can forget worries and cares and make merry to your heart's content during Fasching, or Fastnacht, celebrated annually in Germany beginning November 11 at 11 p.m. until Ash Wednesday.

Fasching derives from the Feast of Fools, the medieval successor to the ancient Greek welcome to Dionysos, god of wine, and the Roman Saturnalia festival.

During the Middle Ages, Fasching was observed on the three days before Ash Wednesday, from which it took its name "Fastnacht," or "Shrove-tide." It was the guilds, which in those days arranged the Karneval pageants. According to information supplied by researchers at Lufthansa German Airlines, they moved about town performing little plays in front of various houses and, sometimes, in honor of influential patri-cians.

Today, the festivities are preserved chiefly in the Southwest of Germany, in the Frankish area and in the Rhineland, where Cologne is the center of Karneval.

And it's Cologne that sets the pace of Karneval activities in the rural environs, with singing, dancing, "swaying" to the rhythm of popular Karneval songs, marching, balls and fancy dress gatherings.

The whole atmosphere of the city plays its part. The Cologne way of doing things at Karneval time is something that can't be exported. It can only thrive on the native soil of this city and the abundance of optimism, dry humor and love of parody inherent in every citizen. So it's up to all "outsiders" to find their way into this Cologne element with lightness of heart. A carefree, relaxing trip from the U.S. to Germany via Lufthansa German Airlines, many Americans visiting during Fasching have discovered, is one excellent way to arrive in Cologne in the proper frame of mind for fun and frolic.

Starting New Year's Eve, the events gather momentum until the final "Three Wild Days" in Cologne and other cities. High-

LIBRARY CORNER

Not new—but never out of date—although not fiction. Tom Lea's history of the King Ranch reads like a Texas "Gone With the Wind"—and once you've started it you'll hate to put it down. We also have some novels by Loula Grace Erdman, which have the Texas Panhandle as backdrop and—widely known. Room to Grow. And a new novel with a Texas background of the middle nineteenth century. Brothers of Uterica, by Benjamin Capp.

Stop And Swap shelves now in operation — Bring in your paperbacks (good condition) leave at desk, and take your pick.

The latest in the Texas History Series by Texian Press, Battles of Texas, is now on the reference shelves. Previous books were Heroes of Texas, Frontier Forts, Missions of Texas. There's a novel highly recommended in all the book reviews is now circulating.

As the odd warm days arrive and you get the spring cleaning urge remember the FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARY will be having a book sale within the next few months. So put those books you don't want to one side and as soon as plans are definite there'll be publicity on it.

HISTORY OF SCOUT TROOP 155

Boy Scout Troop 155 has had a varied and interesting history. It was first organized in 1940 under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce and met in the basement of the post office. Our first scout master was Rev. Pierce Burns, Central Christian Church. Other early scout masters were Messrs. Levi Garrett, Carlos Baker, Lewis Todd, H. D. Mabry, Sr., Eddie Laxon, Johnnie Ouzts, Dink Lawson and Mr. and Mrs. Andrews.

The troop was reactivated approximately 1950 by Mr. I. C. Evans, who served as scoutmaster until 1958. More recent scout masters are: 1958, Harold R. Curtis; 1960, Richard Puczylo; 1961, Grover Cleveland, R. H. Smith, and Melvin E. Peters; 1962, Tommy J. Hubbard; 1963, J. D. Hart; 1964, Frederick J. Crownover; 1965 to present, Thomas H. Evans.

To receive the Eagle Scout Award is to receive the highest rank in scouting. This is a complete list of Troop 155 Eagles as is available: Hal D. Mabry, Jr., November 26, 1943 and first so recognized in the troop and now serves as Director of Curriculum of Burk Burnett Schools; 1943, D. L. Richardson, Jr., now operating his own studio in Oklahoma City; Donald Brookman, now serving in the Navy; Jonnie and Donnie Ouzts; 1955, Ronald Greely, now a geologist in Mississippi; 1956, Jon Evans, teacher at Hurst, Tex.; 1956, Donald Redman, Government Security Service in Maryland; 1956, James Smith; 1957, Kenneth Durham, student at Midwestern University; 1960, Ricky Landrum, Midwestern; 1963, Oliver McDonald; 1963, Norman Wooten, Navy duty in Vietnam; 1964, Ben McDonald, Midwestern; 1964, Wayne Peters, working in Houston; 1965, Michael Evans, student in Burk Burnett; 1965, Kenneth Mahaffey, High School; 1966, Pat Evans, Bob and Bill McBride, Allen Farris, Eddie Gann, Tai Kreidler, Stephen Hopper, all in high school; 1967, Len Brown, high school; 1967, James Cokendolpher, junior high school; 1968, James Mahaffey, high school, and 1968, Bradley Bellacico, junior high.

Major activities and honors include winning—blue ribbons at the Wichita Falls Scout A-Rama within the last six years; trips to the Philmont, N.M. National Scout Camp by Michael Evans, Tai Kreidler, Wayne Peters, Pat Evans, Allen Farris, Messrs. Hal Mabry, Jr., Tom Evans, Neil Kreidler, among others; National Camping Awards for 1966 and 1967; two boys have been previously awarded God and Country recognition and six will be so recognized during Scout Week on February 11. Scout Pat Evans with five other scouts of the Northwest Texas Council made a report to the Governor of Texas in Feb. 1967.

The present adult leadership of Troop 155 is Messrs. Joe Ray McCluskey, chairman; Page Erown, Institutional Representative; Rev. Don S. Youngblood, Sponsor's Minister; Ken Blankenship, treasurer; Loyd Cokendolpher, publicity; Neil Kreidler, member; Ray Hopper, member; Roy Mahaffey, assistant scoutmaster; and Tom Evans, Scoutmaster.

A Scout Troop would not meet its real objective of developing better citizens without some service to the community.

Here are some projects that we have recently participated in: Establish displays "Enriching Youth Responsibilities and Citizenship"; assisting city-wide clean up and distribution of 3,000 hand bills encouraging participation of others; collection of discarded Christmas trees, in order to prevent littering the city and for use in a conservation project at Perkins Scout Reservation; working to help establish a new city library, including a drive for books; display of "Mr. Trashy" in city park, to convey to the public that it is the responsibility of everyone to keep the community clean; and many similar activities.

Present strength of Troop 155 is 41 scouts.

Advancement Chairman of Eagle Awards of the entire council. Refreshments were served afterward.

Something New— TO MAKE ALUMINUM SHINE

Even aluminum loses its luster and becomes oxidized, especially if left exposed to the weather. The best remedy is a new aluminum and chrome cleaner in paste form. Aluminum storm windows and doors, furniture, chrome appliances, and auto trim are among the dozens of items that respond to this treatment.

The cleaner is simply wiped or brushed on, allowed to set for a few minutes, then wiped off with a damp sponge, followed by rinsing and drying. No rubbing is needed.

Among the articles that can be treated this way are refrigerator racks; chrome trim on household appliances, autos, and boats; cabinet hardware; kitchen and bathroom plumbing; dinettes and other metal furniture; and lighting fixtures. Made by W. J. Hagerty & Sons, Ltd., Inc., South Bend, Ind., the new Aluminum & Chrome Cleaner is sold in most hardware and household departments and stores.

HISTORY OF SCOUTING

Baden Powell grew up in a family which thrived in the out-of-doors and loved nature. The house was filled with books on natural history.

At Charter House School, B-P spent hours watching birds, snaring rabbits and cooking them over an open fire, tracking and stalking, honing his powers of observation and deepening his love of nature and the out-of-doors.

The headmaster gave the boys an unusual amount of independence and personal responsibility, measuring a boys progress in terms of growth as a person.

In 1876 he went to India as an officer in the 13th Hussars—a cavalry regiment, where his outdoor skills were many times of value. He trained his men in small groups, giving them responsibilities, resourcefulness and ingenuity rather than routine obedience.

After the Eder War he organized and trained special forces to fill a clean-up operation. It was during the training of these forces that he developed the method of dividing them into squads of six, each with a leader. He used inter-squad competition to develop skills and build morale. It was during that time, that he also wrote the interpretation of his initials B-P, which was to become the Boy Scout motto—"Be Prepared."

After an experimental camping project to test a plan of his own, for which 20 boys from many sections of society were drawn, proved to be successful, he wrote Scouting For Boys.

It appeared in 1908 and in 1910, he resigned his army commission to devote full time to promote the movement of Scouting For Boys.

Boy Scouts of America was incorporated February 8, 1910, by a Chicago publisher, William D. Boyce. Scouting became very popular during the following years.

Fundamental Characteristics

—Character building, citizenship training and physical fitness are the scouting program to develop citizens of moral integrity; participating members of a community.

—It strives to enlist citizens of good will to serve boyhood.

—It depends on other organizations existing in a community, for leadership, meeting places and some program facilities.

—It serves boys everywhere, regardless of race, creed, economic or social status.

—It recognizes the importance of religious faith, though it is nonsectarian.

—It teaches through doing things which interest the boy. Learning by doing is the basic method of training scouts.

—It works through boy leaders and recognizes both the part that these leaders play in the life of the troop and the need for training in leadership and the democratic process.

—It is fun and educational to become a good scout.

Who is at the Helm?

Who guides our lives? Are we a ship without a helmsman? Are we adrift, going no place?

Thanks be to God, who loves us so, He is willing to guide us, to show us the way over all manner of seas. How glorious to know there is such a One! All of us follow someone, some standard, but the true standard is God and His Word.

Let Him take over the wheel. He doesn't promise smooth sailing all the time, but He promises to guide us through the storm, and show us the way over calm and sweet but sometimes marker-less seas.

"And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water whose waters fail not."

Isaiah 58:11

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

God or State?

DR. S. A. ALUKO, professor of economics at the University of Nigeria, was a delegate to the World Conference on Church and Society at its recent meeting in Geneva, Switzerland. He has made a very significant observation from which I quote: "The time that a man knows that the state is capable of taking care of him from the cradle to the grave, state worship becomes easier to substitute for God worship."

This is a profound truth to which we have many times called attention, but we never have articulated it more succinctly, briefly and accurately than this statement by Professor Aluko. Welfare statism, or socialism, teaches men to forget God and, in effect, pray to the state. It is the devil in his most cunning disguise again seeking to supplant God. How subtle the appeal to help the needy by appropriating more and more public funds! How little noticed, the fact that this is in reality an appeal from Christian charity to the law and police power to dispose some for the benefit of others. It is an appeal from God to Caesar. It is proof that many people no longer trust in God, and are no longer willing to do their Christian duty in aiding the unfortunate, but choose rather to engage in the business of re-distributing wealth. This they do with the thought that they will get more from others than they themselves must contribute. Little do they realize that the process will so retard the production of wealth that there will be much less for all concerned.

4-H'ers Named Best In Texas For '67 Projects

Four Texas teenagers have found out that fulfilling the 4-H Club motto—"To Make the Best Better"—can pay off in a big way. Marilyn Haggard, 19, and Joe Cole, 15, both of Denton, will soon head for the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 26-30. The two have been awarded trips as state winners in their 1967 club projects.

He set up a dark room in his home and learned how to develop and print photos. He decided upon the photography program because he lived in the city and was unable to carry on such traditional projects as beef and garden.

He organized a new photography subject matter group after he got a new camera for Christmas in 1965. Miss Grissom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Grissom, showed the senior and reserve grand champions at the Houston Dairy Show. Last year she was a member of the Erath County dairy judging team that took state honors and competed nationally at Waterloo, Iowa. Her watch was donated by the Oliver Corporation.

She has built up a herd of 11 registered dairy cattle. Earlier this year she was a hostess at the district dairy contest. Miss Starr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Starr, won top honors in the dog care and training contest with a registered Keeshonden named Holly. She won first place ribbons earlier this year at both the Fort Worth and Dallas Dog Shows.

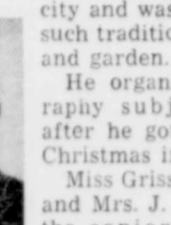

She was chosen to make a 4-H exchange trip to Kansas. Her watch was donated by Ralston Purina Company. The four winners were chosen by the Cooperative Extension Service.

The Living Is Easy In Low-Care Homes

Low-maintenance building materials are making it possible for homeowners to live on Easy Street.

Surveys show a growing demand among prospective homebuyers—and present homeowners who are remodeling—for low-upkeep products and labor-saving appliances. Builders and manufacturers are meeting these requirements with materials that minimize or eliminate time-consuming upkeep and costly repairs while adding to the comfort and convenience of daily living.

Here are some of the areas in which low-maintenance features are popular:

• Heating—The convenience of electric heat is making it a preferential system for new homes and conversions. It's cleaner than other fuels because of the absence of fumes and soot; eliminates furnaces, ducts and storage tanks which have to be periodically cleaned and maintained; permits individual heat control with thermostats in every room; and makes furniture arrangement easier because heat is supplied through baseboard units or ceiling cables rather than bulky radiators.

• Windows—The combination of beauty and easy care in modern wood windows makes them attractive to homeowners.

For example, ponderosa pine units—available in stock sizes at local lumber dealers—are factory-weatherstripped, chemically-treated for protection against weather abuse, and obtainable with insulating glass in all styles (which eliminates the need for hanging and maintaining storm sash). Window washing chores have also been eased with pivot and lift-out sash, allowing the windows to be washed inside the house. Removable grilles snap out to eliminate the washing of many small panes.

Combination Storm Doors—Screens and storm panels are easily inserted or changed. Stock wood doors are preservative-treated for complete weather protection. Pre-priming reduces painting and maintenance. Tight weatherstripping and wood give greatest insulating value. Modern wood combination doors operate quietly and blend in style with the entry door.

Weatherstrip Cuts Down Heat Loss

A window without weatherstripping admits as much air as a hole in the wall the size of two building blocks.

That's the result of tests made to show how lack of weatherstripping or poor weatherstripping allows air infiltration, encourages heat loss and skyrockets fuel bills. Conversely, effective weatherstripping—like that which is factory-applied to stock ponderosa pine window units—was proven to cut infiltration to a minimum and reduce winter heating bills by as much as 24 percent for an average five-room house.

In summer, weatherstripped wood windows guard against heat gain and seepage of warm outside air, and allow air conditioners to operate effectively. The stripping also seals out wind-blown dust and prevents drafts, thereby increasing total house comfort and convenience.

For maximum year-round protection against heat transmission through windows, heating and cooling experts recommend wood sash—a natural insulator—and insulating glass, as well as good weatherstripping.

If you're wondering about the effectiveness of your present weatherstripping, here's how to test it. Hold a lighted candle near the edge of a window on a windy day. If the flame flickers or blows out, your weatherstripping is not effective.

In buying or building a new home you have the opportunity to make certain that the window sash is made of high insulating material and that the windows have factory-installed weatherstripping.

IT'S A SNAP

Snap-in grilles available with all ponderosa pine window styles give an attractive small-pane look and can be removed for easy window washing. Grilles add a Colonial touch to siding patio doors.
