ROAD TO PROGRESS

Jeddah, Saudi Arabia—(HK) —The winding roadway which resembles a Grand Prix circuit, could probably be more aptly described as a "road to progress." It symbolizes the giant strides toward modernization now taking place in the rapidly-developing nation of Saudi Arabia.

The 55-mile long highway, linking Mecca, the Moslem spiritual capital, with the mountain resort of Taif, cuts to one hour a journey which formerly took two days.

A recently-published official document, the "Statistical Summary" issued by the Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency (SAMA), reports that there were some 3,200 miles of constructed roads in the Kingdom at the end of 1967, of which about 1,000 miles were completed in the past year alone.

The SAMA summary also points out that a marked increase has taken place in Saudi Arabia's foreign trade in the last five years. In fiscal 1961-62, exports totaled $939.2 million and imports $256.5 million. Five years later, in fiscal 1966-67, exports had increased to $1.7 billion while imports nearly doubled, rising to $508.5 million. The United States took 5.4 per cent of Saudi Arabia's exports in 1966-67, while supplying nearly 22 per cent of total imports—representing about $111 million.

For the full year 1966, according to the report, Saudi Arabia was the largest producer of oil in the Middle East. It also ranks first in proven crude oil reserves in the world with 74.7 billion barrels.

The report also includes the Kingdom's budget estimates for the 1967-68 fiscal year. Both revenues and expenditures are balanced at $1,097.1 million—only 1.8 per cent below the record-breaking figure of $1,116.9 million a year earlier, and more than double the figure of five years ago.

A CAPITAL IDEA

CUT FEDERAL SPENDING

The American public's concern about inflation has reached a new high point. Six out of ten families report that they have been hurt by inflation, and the rising prices of many necessities are causing a change in shopping habits, according to the latest nationwide poll conducted by Opinion Research Corporation.

The proportion of people who are "greatly concerned" about inflation has jumped from 44 per cent last August to 54 per cent today; 86 per cent reported some concern about the problem.

A majority of the families polled (52 per cent) said higher prices have caused them to change their habits when they go into the market place. This feeling is shared by a broad cross-section of the public, regardless of age, occupation, education, region, or political affiliation.

There is one way that this public concern can be translated into positive action. If the American people tell the members of Congress to curtail federal spending now, if sufficient grass-roots reaction is registered in Washington, expediency will give way to long-range prudence. The voice of the people must be heard!

The Administration's proposed tax on foreign travel would intensify the trend toward government controls which seriously damage market economies both here and abroad, says the National Association of Manufacturers. The NAM said a policy of fiscal and monetary discipline would be "far preferable to a jerry-built structure of controls and tax restrictions." Specifically, the NAM opposed the travel tax measures on the grounds that they: 1. Represent another step in the drift toward foreign exchange controls and restriction on the market economy; 2. Are inconsistent with the government's own policy principles regarding international trade, could invite retaliatory measures abroad, and in many cases involve illusory balance-of-payments savings; 3. Risk a marring of a good record of voluntary compliance with the tax laws; and 4. Do not relate to the basic cause of the balance-of-payments problem.

Many small employers are economically unable to hire and train teen-agers under the federal minimum wage of $1.60 an hour which went into effect in February, according to the National Federation of Independent Business.

The Northern States Power Company owns most of the land on both sides of the St. Croix River running through Minnesota and Wisconsin. The company has reserved 30,000 acres of this land in natural virgin wilderness to protect the nest sites of the bald eagle which uses the St. Croix River system as an important migration route.

OUTBREAKS OF SAVAGERY

The tumultuous days through which this nation has been passing make good Americans fear for the future of the Republic. Assassination of Martin Luther King Jr., a deed shocking to believers in law and order, has been followed by an orgy of mob violence unprecedented in this country's history. Great cities, including the nation's capital, have been the scene of mass looting and fearful crimes of arson and violence. The protest leader, who espoused what he called a philosophy of "non-violence," has left behind a heritage of violence among his followers and admirers.

The United States has much to mourn these days. Innocent people, including young children have been killed in the firebombings and in unprovoked attacks on the streets. Truly, it is fitting that flags should be flown at half-mast, not for the reason given, but because the nation has been shamed by savagery never believed they would see in this proud nation. The murder of Dr. King was a dreadful deed, but the death of one Negro soldier in the ranks of the U.S. army in Vietnam fighting the enemies of his country deserves flags at half mast a thousand times more than Dr. King ever did.

To be sure, the roots of the violence lie much deeper than the death of Dr. King. They lie in the philosophy of civil disobedience that he and others encourage for more than a decade. The people of the United States are paying a bitter price for the lawlessness that has been advocated and excused over so many years. The bitter fruits of years of demagoguery by "civil rights" advocates can be seen in the burned-out homes and stores of America's cities.

Clear-thinking Americans also have reason for being deeply concerned about the orgy of emotionalism that preceded the riots and that actually may have helped set the stage for them. When faced with the ugly fact of crime, the way of public leaders to proceed is with steady calm and determination to apprehend the criminal.

It is imperative that a single crime, no matter how shocking and barbarous, not be overblown or that public statements about the victim not become a vehicle for incendiary emotionalism. Unfortunately, this sensible approach was not followed in recent days.

The first duty of all government bodies is to restore peace, to protect life and to guard property. The disorders that broke out in early April may recur again during the long, hot summer ahead. Every city and state, and chiefly the federal government, has a responsibility to enforce the law in a stern manner and to avoid emotional entanglements.

If riots recur, and God forbid that this will happen, the way to deal with them is with maximum firmness at the beginning. The Washington riots apparent-er who is trying to steal a mink coat doesn't mind a whiff of gas. Traditionally, looters have been shot if they failed to stop on orders. This procedure has been used in countless civic disorders and after natural destruction caused by hurricanes and tornadoes. Shooting looters is the only way to stop riots, and stop them in a hurry.

Property as well as lives need a better defense than has been available in recent days. Every wrecked and gutted store is a personal disaster for its owners. Building up a mercantile establishment often takes years and decades. The goods placed on display in stores have to be paid for, even though looters take them away. Stores have to be rebuilt or repaired, often with cash. Thus it is intolerable that the institution of property not to be fully protected by the agencies of the government.

If rioters believe that they can engage in acts of savagery, including attacks on police and firemen, they will riot again and again. Only if rioters understand that they will be crushed will they be deterred from committing violence and from burning and looting. The time is long overdue when rioters and potential rioters are made to understand that a "get tough" policy is the law of the land. The death of Dr. King brought to the surface the savage instincts that lie just below the surface in many of our cities. All the power of public opinion must be harnessed to prevent America's towns and cities being turned into jungles by wild bands of lawbreakers.

HEALTH & SAFETY

Mainly for Mothers

by Carol Hart

Follow Your Toddler and Learn

If one of the great pediatricians found it useful to know the workings of a child's mind, surely a mother would find it worthwhile, says the Council on Family Health.

Dr. Bela Schick was past his 90th year when he died in 1967. During his life he developed the famous immunity test which helped in the conquest of that dread children's disease, diphtheria. He learned the value of playing with children to win their confidence.

So be a little childish yourself, advises the Council on Family Health, a non-profit organization sponsored as a public service by members of the drug industry to promote home safety and family health.

Notice how a youngster loves to explore, to touch, to test — and perhaps to taste — everything new to him. You may find that following in his footsteps will show you many things that may be harmful to him — especially commonplace things you use every day.

Follow him to the bedroom. Have pins, hairpins and cosmetics been put away where he cannot get at them? Are medicines forgotten on the night table? Remember to put them in their proper storage place, out of his reach.

In the bathroom you may notice that your toddler is a climber. The possibility of his climbing up to explore the contents of the medicine cabinet should remind you to move potentially toxic things to a storage area which he cannot reach.

In the kitchen, if he makes a bee line for the stove, you may compliment yourself for having turned all pot handles toward the back. Your little explorer may open the door to the cabinet under the sink. This should remind you to store potentially harmful household chemicals such as bleaches, polishes, lye and kerosene base liquids, and powders on the high shelves of a cabinet, or in a closet that a child cannot get into.

One day of following your toddler, Mom, and home may be safer for your whole family.

Sheppard AFB Library Held Open House Sun.

SHEPPARD AFB, Texas — Sheppard Air Force Base's chief librarian, Mrs. W. D. Owens, announced that the local facility kicked off National Library Week Sunday with a special Open House.

All base personnel were invited to attend the program which included a tour of Building 716, which houses the main library and technical branch. In addition to the tour, visitors were treated to refreshments, favors and free paperback books.

Sheppardites took advantage of the special occasion to browse amongst over 35,000 books making up the library branch collection.

In addition to the facilities in Building 716, a special patient's branch in the hospital basement carries over 5,000 books.

An interesting statistic was released in conjunction with the seven-day library observance. The average attendance at the libraries since January, 1968 has been 7,600 patrons per month.

Mrs. Owens also stated that the Juvenile Department of the main facility would be open for inspection by the public. Geared for the smaller reader, shelves are especially built so that the youngsters can get at them. In the motivation department, special book displays are set up to encourage reading at the earliest possible age.

Eight stereo and two mono record players are available in the listening area of the library. Over 1,500 albums, ranging from folk to classical music are contained in this section.

The theme for this year's week-long observance is "Be All You Can Be—Read."

The base facility will join libraries throughout the nation, to alert Americans to the sources of recreation, information, and service obtainable at their local library.

All Senior Citizens of the Burkburnett area are invited to attend a meeting in Town Hall, Thursday, April 25, 2:30 p.m., at which time there will be a discussion of the possibility of setting up a Senior Citizens' organization. Please come and bring someone with you.

How's your Fashion I.Q.? Rate yourself a style-setter if you know what makes Junior Gallery's version of the all-time-favorite spring ensemble new. Ready? First, the belt. Unlike belts of bygone days, this one barely touches the waist — never tightens it. Next, the high rise pockets. They're Paris-inspired and strictly '68. And third, the go-together feeling of unmatched colors in the jacket and sleeveless dress. Now, try your hand at your Fabric I.Q. Do you know what makes one bonded fabric different from another? Strict quality control standards, that's what. When Coin International joins one fabric to another, you can be sure that the bonding will be permanent. Unlike many other bonded materials, a COIN bonded fabric won't pucker, pull apart, sag or lose its shape. That's why this ensemble will keep its fine lines and fresh fit, wearing after wearing. One more question: Do you know who else knows the difference a COIN bonded garment makes? Your dry cleaner! He'll tell you to look for the COIN hanging to guarantee your getting a "no problem" fabric. After all, it's the one bonded fabric with all the answers!

Family FINANCIAL PROTECTION

Policymaker Questions Answered by the Health Insurance Institute 277 Park Ave., N.Y., N.Y., 10017

Q. The group insurance plan where I work is pretty good. I think. We have a major medical policy, for example, that pays as much as $15,000 toward hospital and medical bills for me and for each member of my family. The deductible amount is only $50. There's also a basic hospital plan to help pay for less serious hospital confinements. One thing our group plan doesn't include is a disability income plan which would give me a cash income if illness or injury prevented me from working for any length of time. I think I need such a policy but for how much. I don't know. Can you give me some ideas on this?

A. The first thing you should do is list all the sources of income you might have if you should become disabled, such as sick pay from your employer, workmen's compensation (if injured on the job), Social Security, union benefits and the like. Next look over your past bills, check stubs and budget records and estimate how much money your family would need to carry on without serious financial disruption.

A disability income policy covering as much of the difference as you can afford, will help your family maintain its standard of living in the event you are disabled.

Some policies provide weekly or monthly cash payments from the very first day you are unable to work, others have waiting periods ranging from a week to 90 days or more before payments begin. These payments can last from six months to a lifetime, depending on your policy.

These two elements — the waiting period and the benefit period — are key ones in determining the cost of the policy. If your employer will pay your salary for, say, three months, then your policy could have a three-month waiting period, making for a lower premium than if the benefits started after one week. Premiums also can be reduced by electing a shorter benefit period, if that is practical for you.

Youth Can Enlist In Regular Army For Shorter Time

A chance to enlist in the Regular Army for two years instead of the usual three-year "hitch" is part of a new enlistment opportunity announced today by Sgt. Larry Wilkins, the U.S. Army Recruiter in Wichita Falls. Expansion of the Regular Army enlistment program is designed to permit young men to choose a two-year enlistment in the Regular Army in order to satisfy their military obligation.

In order to be eligible for this special enlistment program, applicants must be between 18½ and 26 years old, registered with Selective Service, but not yet received orders to report for induction. Applicants also must meet the required mental and physical standards, Sgt. Wilkins said.

While three-year enlistees are permitted to have only one dependent, there is no restriction on the number of dependents a two-year volunteer may have.

Young men interested in the two-year enlistment program may contact Sgt. Wilkins for full details. He also has information on other program which permits individuals to choose their training and receive a written guarantee of acceptance before enlistment. Sgt. Wilkins may be contacted at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station, Wichita Falls, telephone 766-1663.

A locked and guarded "Value Room" is maintained by Air Express at every major airport for shipment of high value awaiting delivery.

COMMUNITY HEALTH FORUM

Dr. James Q. Simmons, Jr., director of medical programs of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, answers your questions on multiple sclerosis.

Q What is known about multiple sclerosis?

A Multiple sclerosis is a disabling disease of the central nervous system. Called the great crippler of young adults, it attacks the substance which sheathes nerve fibers causing nerve messages controlling movement, vision, speech and balance to be distorted, often blocked.

Q Whom does MS strike?

A MS strikes most often at young adults in the 20 to 40 age range, during the years when they should be most vital, most productive. An estimated 500,000 Americans suffer from MS and related diseases.

Q Does MS lead to total physical disability?

A Though MS can be progressive, often leading to total disability, with proper medical supervision, most MS patients continue to be active, vital people.

Q Is there a cure for MS at the present time?

A There is no specific known medical management which alters the natural unpredictable course of the disease which is one of worsening, followed by periods of improvement achieving a plateau where no change takes place. The National Multiple Sclerosis Society recommends good general medical care devoted to the prevention of intercurrent infectious illness and directed toward the control of the more distressing symptoms as they appear.

FEMININE FISHING FUN

When my wife, Barbara, advised me she wanted to learn how to fish I greeted the news with a certain lack of enthusiasm. If teaching her the art of angling was to be anything like teaching her to drive — forget it. But two factors convinced me that I had to try. First was the national trend toward increased participation by women in man's favorite outdoor sport. Today, nearly 30 percent of the 30 million fishing folks in the U.S. are ladies. Second, Barbara declared that if she couldn't share the thrill of a catch, her kitchen would be closed to any delicious string of fish I might bring home.

I learned a few things about exposing a neophyte to fishing while taking my sons on their early outings. The initial trip must be comfortable and successful.

On a warm, sunny Saturday morning in May, Barbara and I made the short drive from our home to nearby Sprout Lake in Peekskill, New York. This quiet, sheltered pond, surrounded by lush shade trees, held an abundant supply of panfish — yellow perch, blue gill, crappie.

For Barbara, I selected an Abu-Matic 120 spincasting reel filled with 8-lb. test Bonnyl and a Conolon 2504 light action rod. Such light, easy-to-use and easy-to-maintain tackle is largely responsible for the tremendous influx of women to fishing.

For myself, I chose a Mitchell 408 fast retrieve spinning reel with 6-lb. test Bonnyl and a Conolon 2503 rod. This ultra-light rig would turn those panfish into respectable gamefish for me.

Barbara and I discussed the operation of her tackle the night before, and after a few apprehensive casts she relaxed and felt quite secure with her pushbutton reel. So far, so good. Next, I introduced her to our bait — worms.

Being the mother of two boys who have brought home for "adoption" every species of animal and insect that crossed their paths, Barbara was not disturbed by a face-to-face meeting with a garden variety worm. After one lesson she could bait a hook with the most seasoned angler. All that remained now was to catch a fish.

Barbara began casting from shore, retrieving very slowly. Panfish are not rapid swimmers, and quick movements scare them. King Neptune, or Isaac Walton, or both, must have been smiling down at us that day. Within five minutes a small, but ambitious yellow perch took the bait. But he was no match for my determined student.

Once she stopped jumping up and down, Barbara held the perch in her hands and stared at it. "Fishing fever" had struck again. She landed three more panfish before we called it a morning. For the rest of the day, Barbara was on the phone recounting to her friends every cast she made.

I had been so busy watching Barbara, I never picked up my rod and reel. Still, it was one of the most rewarding outings in memory. After all, how often do you develop a lifelong fishing companion?

Dick Wolff's useful and unique handbook, "Fishing Tackle and Techniques" is now available to readers of this column. The 190-page book is a complete guide to the purchase, use and maintenance of every kind of rod, reel and line for both salt and freshwater fishing. ## Austin Is Named Top Ford Seller

DALLAS, Tex.—T. E. Austin of Wolfe Ford Co., Burkburnett, has been selected as one of the nation's leading Ford dealership salesmen during 1967 and will receive Ford Division's Sales Award at a banquet at the Statler Hilton in Dallas on Saturday, April 27.

W. H. Coleman, Dallas district sales manager, said the Sales Award winners had substantially exceeded requirements for membership in Ford Division's 300-500 Club, which recognizes "excellent retail sales performance."

Mr. Coleman said the average 300-500 Club member sold nearly $500,000 worth of automotive merchandise in 1967 to qualify for the national honor.

Dealership salesmen qualifying for 300-500 Club membership are Ralph Garbell and Danny Mulligan.

Hoing Weeds With Chemicals

Robroy Fisher W. R. Wade Jr. Virgil Sandifer

Increasing numbers of cotton and soybean producers are discovering that hoeing with chemicals is a practical answer to weed control. A key element in successful weed control programs is a continuing season-long program incorporating the best of the field-tested specialty compounds formulated specifically for preemergence, early postemergence, and late postemergence applications in cotton and soybean fields. High among recommended herbicides that can play an important part in weed control programs is Glytac, a nonselective weed killer certified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for spot control of Johnson grass in cotton and soybeans. Developed by Hooker Chemical Corporation, Glytac came through its second full season of grower use in the Delta last year with widespread effectiveness and now has unrestricted label approval for both cotton and soybeans.

"I have cleaned up fields that were infested with rhizome Johnson grass by spot treating with Glytac," reports Robroy Fisher who operates the Marathon Plantation at Glen Allan, Mississippi. "I didn't have any success with any product for this purpose until I used Glytac," Mr. Fisher said after using this product last season.

Virgil Sandifer, a fellow grower from Hollandale, Mississippi, says: "I am sold on this product because it gives the results that are needed. Glytac is a chemical tool that all Delta farmers need to clean up rhizome Johnson grass clumps."

To another Washington County cotton grower, W. R. Wade, Jr., also of Hollandale, chemical hoeing with Glytac is a reality.

"We use a tractor with a 55-gallon drum on it for the spray mixture and have two women riding on seats built on the front of the tractor to do the spraying," Mr. Wade reports. "They stop and get off as necessary to do the job. They spray everything green in the field except the cotton! In other words, we are hoeing with Glytac. We planned a complete chemical control program and we did not have a hoe in our fields all last season. Glytac has done a wonderful job for us and definitely has a place in a chemical weed control program."

'SAM TING'

A sign reading, "Ole Oleson's Chinese Laundry" bothered a curious tourist and finally he went in and asked to talk with the proprietor. Finding him to be a genuine Chinaman, the tourist asked how he had acquired such an unlikely name. The reply: "When I came to this country I lined up behind a Norwegian at the immigration window. When the Norwegian was asked his name, he replied, 'Ole Oleson.' When I was asked my name, I said, 'Sam Ting.'"

SUNDAY MORNING . . .

What a wonderful day . . . what a wonderful time. This is a time to be happy . . . this is a time of joy . . . this is a time to worship the Lord in His house. This is a time for all of the family to enjoy being together. Today, the sun shines bright . . . next Sunday it may rain, but all are days of joy for this is the day to be with the Lord in His house.

"I was glad when they said unto me,
Let us go into the house of the Lord."
Psalm 122:1-10

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

County H-D Agent News

"Manage Your Freezer" the second in a series will be presented by Mrs. Amy Walker in the Burkburnett Reddy Room from 10 until 12 Tuesday, April 23rd.

The series is sponsored by the Wichita County Program Building subcommittee on Foods and Nutrition and open to all interested homemakers.

Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent, will present the third session Tuesday, April 30th.

Dried fruit such as peaches, apricots, and plums will keep a year or so when stored in a dry, cool, dark place.

Here are some food preservation tips from Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent. Select about six pounds of fresh, ripe and firm fruit. Wash and drain and peel them if you wish. Then cut them in halves and remove pits.

To prevent discoloration, soak fruit 15 minutes in a solution of three and one-half tablespoons sodium sulfite to one gallon of water. A druggist can supply this chemical.

Arrange fruit on trays and place in 150 degree oven with the bottom tray three inches from the oven floor. Don't use the top unit in an electric oven. Prop the oven door open one-half inch if your oven is electric or eight inches if it is gas to let out moisture. Alternate the trays every one to two hours.

The fruit is dry when pliable and leathery. Usually about six hours is required. Pieces around the edges of the tray will dry first. Remove these as soon as they are dry.

Cool the fruit and package at once. Pack the dried fruit in glass jars, plastic, metal or heavily waxed cardboard frozen food containers. Use a tight seal.

You can't beat frozen turkeys for good protein values these days and large toms offer the most for the money. Except for "specials" frying chickens will cost you a bit more this week than last. There are bargains by the dozens in egg cartons with large sizes the best value by weight.

There's variety in cottage cheese styles; large curd or small curd; dry or creamed; plain or with vegetables and fruits added. One-half cup of creamed cottage cheese contains only 120 calories, but the same amount of protein as three ounces of meat, fish or poultry. Why not include cottage cheese as a part of basic menu plans?

For shoppers interested in stretching their food dollars here's some buying suggestions from Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent.

Even though fryers have increased slightly in price and are not as plentiful as a few weeks back, they remain an economical protein choice. Large, plump, stewing hens and all kinds of frozen turkey items are good choices.

Round, sirloin, and T-bone steaks, rib, chuck and boneless rolled roasts of beef are worthy of your consideration. Pork chops are well supplied with reasonably priced cuts including loin-end roast, shoulder roast and steaks, picnics (whole or sliced), and bacon.

Asparagus is in peak supply but the season is short and price is never low on this item, says the agent. Cabbage, carrots, radishes, green onions, potatoes, celery, collards, mustards, turnips, and greens are among the quality items at economical price levels.

Cantaloupes, most from Mexico, are medium to small in size and generally rusty in appearance, but the sugar content is high. Fresh strawberries are more plentiful and are now featured in many produce departments. Pineapples, oranges, grapefruit, and apples are other fruit choices. Canned peas are offered at attractive prices in many stores.

Woman's Forum Garden Club Sets Flower Show

The Woman's Forum Garden Club of Wichita Falls is having its annual Spring Flower Show April 25-26 at the Forum Club House, 2120 Speedway. The show theme "Flower's the Home's Crowning Glory" will be seen in artistic arrangements created by club members as they enter the different divisions. In the Artistic Class are intriguing titles such as "First Glimpse," an arrangement for entrance halls; "Day's End," an arrangement for the bedroom; and "Kitchen Aid," using a container not usually seen in flower arrangements. Horticulture divisions will show roses, iris, flowering shrubs, vines, perennials and annuals. Potted plants are also in a class. Several commercial exhibits featuring complete room furnishings, draperies, glass and silver in addition to nursery exhibits that will show plantings and patio furniture will also point up the show theme. Seventeen Wichita Falls Business firms are participating in the show. Visitors will be able to visit a new home and the Wichita Falls Museum and Art Center on a pilgrimage which is part of the show. Mrs. Erton F. Tate, president of the Forum Garden Club cordially invites all Garden Club members and any other interested persons to attend the show April 25 from 2 to 8 p.m. and April 26 from 2 to 6 p.m.

IT STARTED WITH A WOMAN
While fishing is usually thought of as a man's sport, the first fishing expert was really a woman.
A printing of a bit of outdoor writing penned on parchment around fourteen, twenty-five has been credited to a sweet little English nun named Dame Juliana Berners.

Juliana was born of a royal family in England and did some fishing and hunting as a girl with some of her sporting cousins and friends. Later on, she entered a nunnery at St. Albans and wrote the first known works on fishing. Juliana wasn't any slouch concerning the art of angling, say the fishing experts at Mercury outdoors. For instance, here's how she recommends making a fishing rod.

First you cut a smooth six-foot staff of willow or aspen. Heat it in an oven, get it good and straight, and let it dry for four weeks. The next trick is to get a piece of plumber's wire, heat it red hot, and burn a hole clear through the staff. Then store it in a smokehouse for a while.

Now you take a stroll in the woods and cut a slender slip of hazel the same length. Soak it thoroughly, straighten it out, and let it dry in the smokehouse too. The next step is to trim the hazel whip so it can be inserted into the butt section. Now, fashion a metal pin to hold the two together, and you have a two section fishing rod.

Juliana advocates such a two section rod because it forms a good walking staff for a Sunday afternoon stroll, and can easily be transformed into a fishing rod if you happen by a good fishing hole.
For a line, Juliana advocates the long horsehairs woven together and colored with a mixture of ale, crushed walnut leaves and alum. Such a line, she says, blends with the water and fools the fish more readily.

In her tips for anglers she recommends not casting a shadow on the water, fishing below waterfalls or in deep pools, fishing when the wind is west and using a wire leader either out of the south or the west when fishing for pike.
She makes one more recommendation which is just as true today as it was five hundred and forty-three years ago. Choose your bait with care, she says, "for you cannot bring a hook into a fish's mouth unless there is food on it that pleases him."
Fishing wasn't and isn't the exclusive male sport that some people think it is.

Fruit—Bacon—'n—Cheese Snacks

However you decide to serve "Fruit-Bacon-'n-Cheese Snacks," you've got a culinary winner working for you.
Bite-size pieces of popular canned fruit cocktail are added to a tasty mixture of cream cheese, mayonnaise, chipped bacon and sliced green onion tops. From that point on, the way to enjoy this appetizing filling is up to you.

Fruit-Bacon-'n-Cheese Snacks
1 can (1 lb. 1 oz.) fruit cocktail 2 tablespoons sliced green onion tops
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese Small cucumber or celery sticks or canned Boston brown bread
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
4 slices crisp-cooked bacon

Drain fruit cocktail. Cream together cheese and mayonnaise. Chop bacon and stir into creamed mixture along with fruit cocktail and onion. Serve as stuffing for cucumber "boats" or celery sticks or as spread for round slices of bread—or with all three. (To prepare "boats," pare cucumber; cut lengthwise into halves, then crosswise into quarters, removing seeds.) Accompany with choice of juices for snacks or serve with salad course.
Makes about 2 cups.

Lazy Day Breakfast
by Betty Crocker

Take one leisurely Sunday morning, one hungry family and one extra smart mom who plans ahead—and what's cooking at that household? A pancake pajama party, that's what. Just for the family. Guests come as they are, in their bathrobes, and sip Sparkling Orange Juice while they read the Sunday comics. (Two parts orange juice to one part chilled lemon carbonated beverage, with a slice of orange float.) Everybody takes his turn at the griddle—flips his own pancakes, rolls them up with lots of brown sugar or jam—helps himself to the pork sausages staying warm in the oven. No alarm clocks, no rules, nobody's counting. It's a family holiday.

BELGIUM PANCAKES
1 package active dry yeast
2 tablespoons warm water (105 to 115°)
3 eggs, separated
3 cups New Blauw
2½ cups lukewarm milk
3 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ cup butter, softened
Brown sugar
Jam or applesauce

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Beat egg whites to soft peaks; set aside. In large bowl, mix New Blauw, half the milk, 3 tablespoons sugar, the butter, egg yolks and yeast. Beat on medium speed 3 minutes or vigorously by hand, scraping side and bottom of bowl often. Stir in remaining milk; beat 1½ minutes. Gently fold in egg whites. Let rise 1 hour in warm place. Do not stir down. Lightly grease an 8- or 9-inch skillet.

For each pancake, pour ¼ cup batter into hot skillet; tilt to coat bottom of skillet. Cook until bubbles appear and edge is dry. Loosen edge with spatula; turn pancake gently and finish baking. Keep warm in low oven while baking other pancakes. Spread each baked pancake with brown sugar or jam; roll up like jelly roll. Serve warm. Makes about fourteen 8-inch pancakes.

Sizzle the sausages in the oven. Bake in 400° oven for 20 to 30 minutes, turning once. Serve sausages for the kiddies with multicolored mini marshmallows.

Another lazy day, by another menu: cantaloupe balls in orange juice . . . scrambled eggs and bacon . . . hot gingerbread with seeds of butter. Pull up the chairs and have a family brunch in front of the fireplace.
