John F. Parrish In Korea Exercise

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AHTNC) — Specialist Four John F. Parrish III, 23, whose parents live at 1106 Comanche Drive, Burkburnett, Tex., and a member of the 82nd Airborne Division from Ft. Bragg, N. C., is participating in the U.S. Strike Command's Exercise Focus Retina in Korea.

Paratroopers of the 82nd were flown from Pope Air Force Base, N.C., on March 14 and jumped into Korea 31 hours later, approximately 40 miles southeast of Seoul.

Following the parachute assault, the division joined Republic of Korea Army forces and U.S. forces stationed there for ground attacks on simulated enemy units.

City's Summer Recreation For Youth Is Planned

The City Recreational Program is shaping up in remarkable fashion. The school is now compiling information from questionnaires of some 2,500 youths who expressed their desires for summer recreation.

Soccer, a relatively new sport in the area, is now being played by a portion on the Catholic Park by some of the 149 that expressed their desire for that sport.

Golf lessons by Ronnie Phillips, an outstanding pro and teacher, will outline his methods and technique to all 87 boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 18 and all interested adults at the Youth Center, Friday, March 28th at 4:00 p.m.

A search is being made daily for adults to instruct the youth from art to marbles. Adult participation is a definite requirement to success.

LIBRARY CORNER

Texas history must, in fact and fiction, include cowboys and Indians. Here are tales of early Texas days told by Mody C. Boatright in THE GOLDEN LOG.

There are also contemporary legends in the book: "The Petroleum Geologist: A Folk Image" and Roger Abraham's "The Changing Concept of the Negro Hero." Tales of superstition ("Tarantula Lore") and reminiscence ("Work and Play on A Border Ranch") all serve to round out this volume's rich folklore offering. In THE MATADOR LAND AND CATTLE COMPANY, W. M. Pearce writes of the development of the range cattle industry reflected in the business operations of a venture controlled from far-away Scotland. Rumor and legend are often accepted as history. Kent Ladd Steckmesser, in his book THE WESTERN HERO IN HISTORY AND LEGEND, has analyzed the processes by which folk heroes are created. He chose Billy the Kid, Wild Bill Hickok, Kit Carson, and General George Custer to show the significance of legends to history. Early Texas artists tell their frontier story of Texas in a new medium. PAINTING IN TEXAS: THE NINETEENTH CENTURY, by Pauline A. Pinckney acquaints the reader with nineteenth century Texas artists. With Texas the setting and oil the goal, Barland Roark wrote DRILL A CROOKED HOLE. This is a story of a scandal in Texas' oil fields between independent wildcaters and major producers.

American Indian history is our history. These are new on our shelves: THE AMERICAN HERITAGE BOOK OF INDIANS; INDIANS OF THE SOUTHWEST, by M. Jourdan Atkinson; THE MESCALERO APACHES, by C. L. Sonnichsen; and INDIANS OF THE HIGH PLAINS by George E. Hyde. This last book explores many tribes from the prehistoric period to the coming of Europeans — most of it occurring before the Indians had horses.

New fiction are: GALLEON BAY, by Neill C. Wilson, a happy tale of men and women on California's Redwood Coast; A TRACE OF FOOTPRINTS, by Ruth Wolfe, author of I, KETURAH; a suspense novel, HENRIETTA WHO?, by Catherine Aird; and MAIGRET IN VICHY, by Georges Simenon.

CAPT. HARRY SMALL EARNS D.F.C. FOR VIETNAM ACTION

CAMP HOLLOWAY, VIETNAM (AHTNC) — For heroism in combat aerial flight, Army Captain Harry C. Small Jr., whose parents and wife, Brenda, live at 306 W. First St. Burkburnett, Tex., received the Distinguished Flying Cross in recent ceremonies at Camp Holloway, Vietnam.

Capt. Small was cited for action last Aug. 2 while serving as mission commander of a fire team of two helicopters supporting an infantry ground patrol engaged in battle with a strong enemy force.

Unable to locate the enemy positions due to heavy rain, he requested the patrol to pin-point them by firing tracer rounds. He then began to place heavy, accurate fire upon the insurgents and forced them to break contact.

Capt. Small continued to make devastating gun runs on the enemy, despite the intense ground fire directed against him. When he ran low on fuel and ammunition, he returned to his base for resupply and then re-engaged the enemy until victory was assured.

Capt. Small is now a platoon

BURKBURNETT AND FRIBERG VOTERS APPROVE MERGER OF TWO SCHOOL SYSTEMS

School district voters in Burkburnett and the Friberg community overwhelmingly approved consolidation of the two systems in a special election Saturday.

Total vote was 229 for consolidation and only six against. The Friberg vote was 51 for and five against while Burkburnett voters authorized the proposal 178 to 1.

Official canvass of the results will be held at Monday's regular meeting of the Wichita County Commissioners Court in the courthouse.

Consolidation of the two school systems will not become effective until the first of September, however, Boards of trustees for each system will continue to operate independently until that time.

I. C. Evans, superintendent of schools in Burkburnett, said his system currently has about 3,545 students with 924 of these in high school and the remainder in grades 7-12 and 71 in grades 1-6.

Evans said plans call for the Friberg School to continue to serve children in grades 1-6 next fall but high school students in the system would attend Burkburnett schools.

F. T. Felty served as presiding judge in Burkburnett for the election while W. T. Jenne was presiding judge in the Friberg community.

The consolidation of the schools mean students within a 187 square mile area — 127 miles in the Burkburnett system and 60 miles in the Friberg system — will attend the Burkburnett High School.

Burkburnett's school district has an assessed property evaluation of $13 million while Friberg has an evaluation of about $1 million.

BASIS OF GOOD HEALTH

Providing adequate health care for a nation of over 200 million people in an inflationary era, when doctors and nurses are on the short end of the supply and demand equation, calls for nearly superhuman qualities of medical leadership and vision.

One of the first things the public must realize is that there is only one source of good medical care—the medical profession itself. Thus, the remarks of Dwight L. Wilbur, M. D., president of the American Medical Association, are of the utmost importance. Dr. Wilbur discusses five "main areas for action." Heading the list is "high quality care for everyone in America at as reasonable a cost as possible." The other areas he discussed are: "Health care costs. The need for realistic, mature, wise planning of the attainable realities in all facets of medicine. Unity in the medical profession and constructive liaison with other groups. Planning for an orderly and enhanced future."

Dr. Wilbur went into specifics on the matter of rising costs. These included the avoidance of hospitalization unless absolutely necessary. Reducing the length of hospital stays to the minimum, and use of nursing homes and home care services, along with expansion of these services. He offered many other suggestions for cutting costs and concluded that, "to merit the confidence, the understanding and the strong support of the American people, we must make it clear we work not just to advance medicine and the medical profession, but as advocates of the health of all the American people and of our society."

BASIC TRUTHS

In the furor over gun control, the true place of firearms in the lives of U.S. citizens has been, to a great extent, obscured. From the founding of the nation to the present day, gun ownership has been a basic property right almost as inviolate as any other property right. For a long time, a gun was the primary defense of home and family against predators of all kinds—human and animal. A rifle over the fireplace became an emblem of law and order. As organized law enforcement took over the role of firearms in the home changed somewhat, but not nearly as much as people think.

Firearms are still a last ditch source of protection, just as they remain a traditional symbol of independence. Beyond that, firearms have their place in the lives of millions of sportsmen and hobbyists, who have given impetus to massive, organized educational campaigns, such as those conducted by The National Rifle Association. In the course of promoting proper use of firearms, The NRA, for example, has expanded into conservation and antipollution programs. It is working with sportsmen all over the country to promote hunter safety, protection of wildlife and the preservation of the environment. It is demonstrating that ownership of firearms is a mark of responsible citizenship.

Antigun extremists have completely lost sight of those truths in their failure to distinguish the difference between the rights of the law abiding and the criminal acts of lawbreakers.

FACT AND OPINION

Falls, which may provoke mirth in slapstick comedy, are in reality the second greatest cause of accidental deaths, the American Red Cross said today in its annual caution to Americans to avoid this painful and often lethal type of accident in the "slippery season." Falls as a cause of fatal accidents are surpassed only by motor vehicle accidents, according to Mr. Robert M. Oswald, national director of Red Cross Safety Programs.

A release by the Iowa Public Service Company shows that the average age today is not quite 28; in 1950 it was 30, plus. It is likely to go up again with the decline of births.

Mr. S. David Freeman, director of the energy policy staff in the office of Science and Technology is quoted as saying: "Regulation has never been considered the ultimate solution in our American economy; the goal of government policy should be to foster free and open competition in every nook and cranny of our... economy."

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association notes that of each dollar of disposable income the average American spends less than one penny for prescription drugs.

Policyholder Questions Answered by the Health Insurance Institute, 277 Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y., 10017

Q. I was going through my personal papers the other day when I came across my health insurance policy. I noticed while looking it over that it was "guaranteed renewable." What does that mean?

A. This means that the policy stays in effect up to a specified age as long as you continue to pay the premium. Thus no matter how many times an individual might get sick, the premium rate cannot be raised for him alone—only for all policyholders with the same type of benefits.

Incidentally, if you're reviewing your financial affairs, now might also be a good time to check up on the amount of health insurance you have. Medical costs have been rising faster than any other item on the consumer price index. This means that the insurance coverage you purchased several years ago very likely does not now provide the same level of protection you had then.

Q. Although we have never needed to use it, I have a major medical insurance policy for my family, with a "deductible" sum that I have to pay before benefits begin. In case we should want to make a claim, I'm curious to know if each claim for a different illness or injury would have a separate deductible or if it would be set up on a yearly basis, with one amount charged against the total bills.

A. You don't say if you bought the policy as an individual or obtained it as a member of a group. In many individual major medical policies, deductions are made on the basis of each illness or each injury per person. In other words, a certain amount would be paid for each separate mishap during the year. In group major medical plans, however, the deductible is usually satisfied only once during the calendar year.

The best way for you to be sure of what you have is to review your coverage to see exactly how the deductible portion is set up, if any uncertainty remains after checking the policy, ask your family insurance man to look it over—or in the case of a group policy, see your company's personnel department.

THE FIZZLE FAMILY

PLAN AIDS CHURCHES

In a file cabinet at the headquarters of a company that makes hosiery and other wearing apparel, is a drawer of folders bearing the names of churches.

"Our prayer is that the new building will be used in such a manner that we will be worthy of your confidence," says one letter from a minister. All the folders contain similar letters. What are church folders doing in the files of an apparel manufacturer?

They represent one of the most unusual projects in American industry linking a corporation with the churches in communities where its employees live.

Three years ago, Hanes Corporation, of Winston-Salem, N.C. started a program to aid churches in its 13 plant communities, 12 in the U.S. and one in Canada. The company offered to contribute $25 to a new church building for each member who is an employee of the company, and $15 for each employee-member for renovation and additions.

The remarkable thing about this program is that there is only one limitation: no church can participate more than once in a five year period. Requests to the company are made by employees and not by the churches.

How successful has this program been? In three years, Hanes has contributed $36,055 to 306 churches on behalf of 2,164 of its 12,000 employees. Says Board Chairman Gordon Hanes: "We have no financial limitations on this program. We would be just as happy if the amount we've contributed were three times what it has been."

Color It Chic For Fur Fashion Flair

THE THINK-SPRING MINK JACKET: Every-wear fashion, a perfect match-mating of horizontal stripes in striking Azarene Emba natural blue-gray mink by Chambers-Sherwin.

Color it chic. Color it light—as bright as the new beauty of spring fashion. Color it to suit your complexion or your favorite flower—just so long as you paint fresh new color into your fashion palette. It's the story of the season—colorful new luxes for every luxury-lover.

Newest of all is color in fur—marvelous mink with lap-of-luxury charms, plus all-purpose practicality. Best friends for spring are the mini-minks—pared-down furs with just enough coverage to ward off air-conditioned chills, in the color vibrations that are this season's cue.

For the softest of spring and summer looks, blossom out in Lutetia Emba natural gunmetal mink—as delicate and flattering as a clear summer dusk. Or baby a blonde beauty with Morning Light Emba natural blue beige mink—with a creamy luster as glowing as your best string of pearls. Designers shape them up like luxury fabric—turning fine American mink into fashion to suit a lady's springtime fancy.

The new minks match every mood of the moment—every wear elegance for strolling in the Easter Parade, or down to the supermarket. (Show up in your mink—and watch the butcher trot out the center-cut lamb chops!) Just remember that mink is for wearing—not for sealing up in some dark garment bag, to wait for special occasions. No more being stuck with a stay-at-home mink. This spring, the two of you should really go places.

NEW FRONTIERS

We are preparing a completely new way of life for our children. Every day we hear talk of rockets and missiles. This is truly the space age. However, history has taught us that man's need for God is ever present, and new frontiers have never changed this.

TAKE YOUR FAMILY TO CHURCH

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

MOON ROCKET LAUNCHER IS LIKE A GOOD WIFE

Like a good wife who helps to guide her husband's career, helping him in the background yet rarely noticed by others for her contributions, the launcher used to bring America's men to the moon is tremendously important, incredibly complex, yet little appreciated by most people.

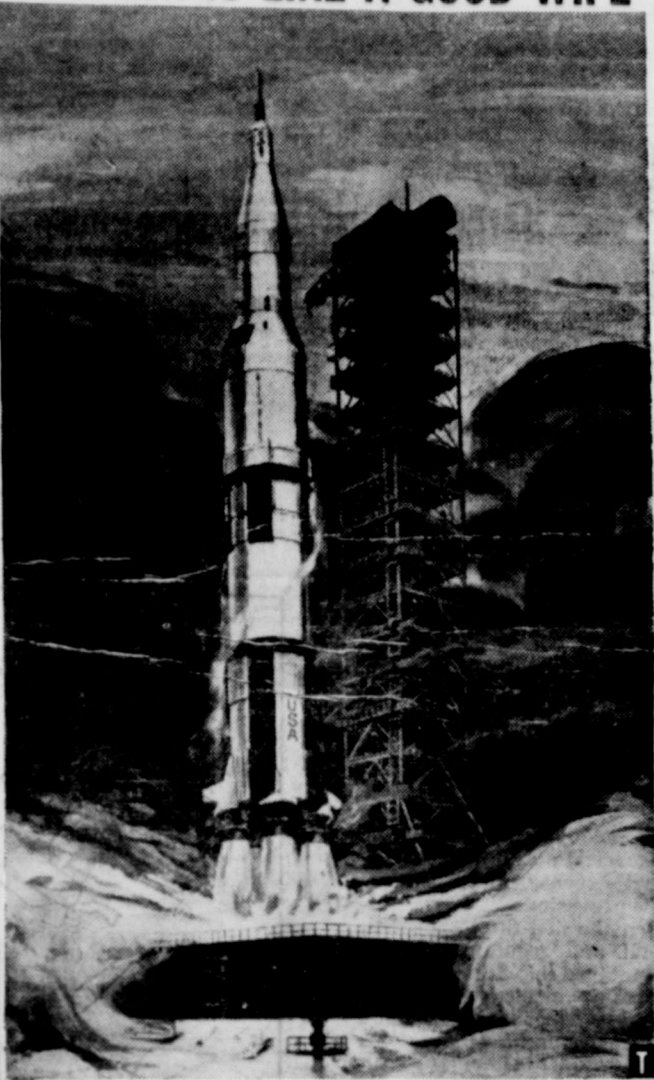

The mobile launchers are two-story platforms 25-feet high by 135-feet wide by 160-feet in length, with an overall height of 445 feet!

Rising 380 feet from the platform is the umbilical tower that contains communication systems, twin elevators, a 25-ton crane at the 17th platform level, and an emergency escape chute that is 200-feet long and made of stainless steel. The chute starts at the mobile launcher level and ends up 40 feet below the pad surface.

In the platform are computers. The interior of the platform is air conditioned by 33 individual remote air handling units. Walls, floors and ceilings are constructed of half-inch thick plate steel, covered with a two-inch thick blanket of Bancroft fiber insulation. Although a whole cubic foot of the insulation would weigh only 4.25 pounds, the two-inch blanket can resist temperatures up to 1000° F.

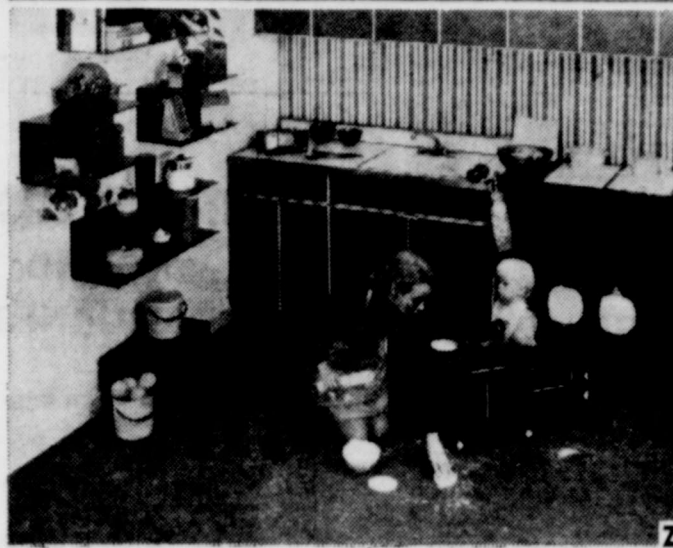

Insulations applied by Johns-Manville include a fiber glass pipe insulation with canvas jacketing for hot water piping, and a foam plastic pipe insulation for chilled water piping.

The steel and insulation are much needed. For unlike good wives who help rising husbands, the mobile launchers in the Apollo/Saturn V project must be ready for a blast up to 3,000° F. May no man ever issue such a blast!!

Artist's concept shows the Saturn V, of which the Boeing-built S-IC is the first stage, lifting off from Cape Kennedy on its round trip to the moon. The 364-foot rocket generates 160,000,000 horsepower on its first 40-mile jump, the distance it is propelled by the S-IC first stage. Mobile launcher is completely engulfed by flame of rocket exhaust, indicating extremes of temperature and noise to which it is exposed. Delicate equipment inside is protected by thermal and acoustical insulations supplied and installed by Johns-Manville.

The Case For Carpeted Kitchens

Guess where all the family action is today? It's in the kitchen. It's all due to the new designer look in kitchen decor, housewares and exciting innovations in appliances. Just as exciting are the new breed of easy care kitchen carpets—as much a part of kitchen planning as the range, refrigerator or kitchen sink.

Here's why:

- Carpeting does away with tedious mopping, polishing and waxing. With modern carpet fibers such as Herculon® olefin fiber, most spills such as milk, catsup and eggs completely disappear then blotted up promptly with paper toweling or tissue, when sponged up with the suds of a light detergent and water. Vacuum and shampoo as needed.
- Makes kitchens safer—prevents accidents from wet and slippery floors. Completely reduces breakage—dishes and glassware bounce rather than break.
- Makes the kitchen a cheerier place to spend long hours—less fatiguing too.
- Keeps out nasty noises and wintry drafts.

Here's what's important to look for in kitchen carpeting:

- A low, dense level pile is recommended. Such styling construction keeps carpets cleaner as crumbs cannot creep between the tufts.
- Consider a stain and moisture resistant carpet fiber such as Herculon. Spills and stains not only stay on the surface for easier cleaning, but it keeps its first-day appearance even with children, pets and hungry husbands romping in and out.

the tufts.

- A mildew-resistant carpet backing for kitchens is a must.
- With glamour as the keynote in today's kitchen decor, carpets in the most contemporary colors and patterns are available. It makes more sense to stay away from pale shades and stick with the more medium and darker tones in solids and tweeds to minimize soil.

* Herculon is the registered trademark of Hercules Incorporated for its olefin fiber.

First Winner Of Olin Safe Boating Award

David J. Nunes, of Peabody, Mass., who is credited with having saved the lives of 37 people over a dozen years—two of them only last summer—is the 1968 winner of the newly established Olin Marine Safety Award. Donald G. Milligan, vice president and general manager for Olin's Energy Systems Division (right center), presided at a special reception honoring the winner, who received a brass presentation model of a ship's clock and barometer combination mounted on a brass and walnut stand. Guests included Rear Admiral William L. Morrison, Chief, Office of Boating Safety, U. S. Coast Guard (left), and Rear Admiral Mark A. Whalen, Commander, Eastern Area, U. S. Coast Guard (right). A panel of judges made up of editors from BOATING, BOATING INDUSTRY, MOTORBOATING, RUDDER, YACHTING and THE NEW YORK TIMES selected Mr. Nunes from nominations submitted by 40 states. Every member of the National Association of Safe Boating Law Administrators (NASBLA) from all fifty states was invited to submit nominees. An individual (not a group or association) is eligible who has "made a contribution in the fields of writing, search and rescue, training or education that advances the cause of safe boating." The company is presenting every NASBLA nominee with a framed engraved certificate in recognition of their efforts and personal dedication to safe boating. Energy Systems produces a variety of marine kits for pleasure boating, including motor and parachute flares with 10,000 and 20,000 candle-light power, smoke flares and hand-held flares.

Family FINANCIAL PROTECTION

Policyholder Questions Answered by the Health Insurance Institute, 277 Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y., 10017

Q. My wife, three young children and I are covered by a group hospitalization plan furnished by my company. Frankly, I'm a little worried that this is not enough coverage. What other kinds of coverage are there?

A. Actually, there are five basic types of protection against health care costs. Besides hospital insurance, there is surgical expense, regular medical expense (non-surgical doctor bills), major medical expense, and disability income protection.

Often the first three—hospital, surgical and regular medical—are combined into the fourth type—a "major medical" program. Disability income insurance helps replace earnings lost when the breadwinner is unable to work because of illness or injury. It provides cash on a weekly or monthly basis to help pay everyday household or extra medical expenses not reimbursed by medical insurance.

With a young and growing family, you are wise to check the adequacy of your coverage since few people completely escape injuries and illnesses.

In 1968, an estimated 168 million Americans had private health insurance protection.
