THE NEW OPPORTUNISTS

While the Nixon administration is trying to bring order out of chaos created by the New Frontier and the Great Society, political elements that formed and supported those mistaken schemes to restructure the United States are laying plans for regaining power in 1972.

New Frontiersmen and Great Society advocates have a built-in advantage that should not be overlooked. During the time they were in power they managed to pack the federal service with adherents and give them Civil Service status. Thus the Nixon administration is severely handicapped in introducing reforms or changing policy. Middle-echelon "liberal" elements still control many of the levers of power in Washington and in regional government offices.

Unfortunately, the New Frontiersmen and Great Society types have allies in the ranks of the opportunists, some of them in Southern states that long have been a bulwark of conservatism and good government. Some office-holders apparently have concluded that mass enrollment of new voters in their states has decisively changed the character of the electorate and the balance of political power. They are beginning to trim their sails accordingly.

In plain language, the opportunists believe that the influence of the conservative white collar and blue collar citizen is on the decline, and that the real political strength in future lies with herded masses of voters, many of whom are getting organized in welfare and public employee unions.

It is tremendously important, therefore, that responsible voters keep a close eye on those office-holders. The politicians' response to the overblown non-issue of the day, hunger, bears close scrutiny. If formerly conservative Congressmen start making noises about "hunger," if they begin to urge their fellow-countrymen to take part in an orgy of emotionalism on this issue, then it is safe to say that these politicians are on a new and dangerous tack.

Politicians who cater to the extremists of the welfare unions can't be for responsible government, and don't deserve support of thoughtful, middle-of-the-road voters.

Now, more than ever, the country needs level-headed leadership. The lack of progress by some elements in the country is indeed a serious problem, but this lack of progress has to be considered in strictly realistic terms. Where there are pockets of poverty, they have to be dealt with realistically, not emotionally. More and bigger federal handouts aren't the answer. Free food stamps won't uplift backward people.

If backward people are to be effectively aided, if they are to be brought up to the point where they help support the country instead of being supported by it, they must acquire social discipline. They must be tutored to the point where they don't insist upon instant gratification of their appetites. Giving them more money isn't a substitute for the discipline they need.

Political opportunists aren't thinking about the real needs of the poor or of society in general. They simply want to find a new formula for getting elected, for winning the support of the "gimme" element in the electorate. They intend to ride the "hunger" horse into office. Indeed opportunists can be expected to develop a series of related issues between now and the 1972 presidential election.

Opportunists undoubtedly see Senator Edward Kennedy (D-Mass) as the leader of the new movement growing out of a combination of campus militants and welfare unionists in the cities. Senator Kennedy's recent speech favoring recognition of Red China, has link with defense abolitionists in opposing the anti-ballistic missile, and his continuing emphasis on catering to welfare elements — together give an accurate picture of his intentions. It could be politically advantageous to Senator Kennedy to have a "liberal" running mate from the South, an officeholder who has taken to lecturing his own people for alleged neglect. It will be interesting to see whether opportunists in this region will try to fit themselves to a Kennedy design.

FARMERS WANT OUT

Untold billions of dollars have been spent over the years in an effort to "help the farmer." Far from being helped, the farmer is faced with ever-mounting costs of operation on the one hand, and a mountain of red tape and restrictions on the other. Hopefully the end of this bureaucratic nightmare may be in sight. The largest farm organization in the nation, representing about 1.8 million families, has gone on record in favor of dismantling government farm programs and replacing them with devices to help successful farmers move gradually into a market-oriented economy free of federal controls and payments.

Mr. Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, believes, "The general public is finally beginning to recognize that a government-planned agriculture is a costly exercise in futility." Farmers have had a longer experience with government planning and subsidies than any other group in the country. The significance of their wish to be freed of massive government intervention in their affairs should not be lost on those who have more recently entered into "partnership" with Uncle Sam.

A release by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions observed that the "father of the war on poverty" has charged it with having made things worse. He is Mr. Michael Harrington, author of "The Other America," a book published in 1962 which is credited with convincing the late President John F. Kennedy he should begin the antipoverty program. Although the condition of the poor "is not quite as evil as it was" before the federal program began, "politically and morally it is worse than ever."

The American Red Cross reviewed the fact that last year 1,200 persons choked to death on foreign objects lodging in their throats. A warning was issued which declared small children and denture wearers as being especially prone to this kind of fatal accident.

A SPECIAL DIET FOR ARTHRITIS?

Are there foods that cause or cure arthritis? Is there a special diet for arthritis?

This question is raised with physicians regularly and may be one of the most confused areas of public misunderstanding. Almost every family has someone suffering from arthritis. And the disease itself is a great source of revenue to the quacks and charlatans among us. It is a frustrating disease — one about which we know far too little. Thus, falsehood and stories of "miracle cures" abound.

What food, if any, should you avoid to prevent arthritis from striking you? Or what can you eat, or avoid eating, to help cure your arthritis?

No Miracle Diet

There is no diet that will prevent or cure arthritis. That statement is true in the sense that we cannot tell you specific foods that will make a difference by themselves. But we do know that a proper, balanced diet is an important factor in successfully treating arthritis.

In the past, arthritic patients were deprived of protein, on the false assumption that too much protein was partly responsible for arthritic changes. They were also deprived of calcium, on the ground that changes in the bones and joints were necessarily due to over-supply rather than to faulty body utilization of this nutrient.

Now, specialists dealing with arthritis emphasize that a fundamental principle in dealing with this disease is good nutrition, including adequate supplies of calcium, protein, minerals, vitamins and, indeed, all good nutrients — the four basic food groups we keep emphasizing in this column.

Avoid Overweight

Overweight is to be avoided to minimize stress on the weight-bearing joints but good nutrition is to be maintained by balanced diet.

This puts an end to the elimination of meats, fish, eggs and cheese from the diets of arthritic patients. It ends the banning of milk and its products for fear of too much calcium.

It recognizes the protein contributions of dairy products as well as their calcium content. It recognizes that the cause of arthritis, as yet undetermined, has certainly not been demonstrated to be dietary. It recognizes the clinical experience that well-nourished arthritics who are not overweight do better than poorly nourished ones suffering from dietary insufficiencies on top of their arthritis.

The diet for any and all arthritics is that prescribed by their attending physicians in the light of their weight, their dietary requirements in relation to general health, and such special needs as may be determined by allergies, racial and religious customs, and other factors known only to the attending physician.

COUNTY H-D AGENT NEWS

Education is still a paying proposition. Latest Census Bureau figures confirm that it pays to get an education.

While income of all segments of the population has grown in recent years, Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent, reports that the biggest increases have occurred at the higher education levels.

For example, between 1961 and 1966 the annual income of an average elementary school graduate 25 years old or older rose from about $4,200 to $4,900; that of a high-school graduate from $5,900 to $7,500; and that of a college graduate from $9,300 to $11,100.

Estimating that lifetime income of men by years of schooling completed, the Census Bureau experts came up with these figures:

Eight years of elementary school, $247,000. This amounts to about $8,175 a year.
Four years of high school, $341,000 for the total lifetime income, or about $8,525 a year.

Four years of college, $508,000 or an annual salary of about $12,500.

Five or more years of college, $587,000 or about $14,675 a year.

An average college graduate can look forward to half again as much income as a high-school graduate who fails to enter college. A person who has done post-graduate work in college can anticipate three times the income of an elementary school dropout.

However, Miss Wirges points out to many exceptions. Educational attainment does not guarantee the financial success of everyone. Many intelligent people get ahead without a great deal of formal education. However, figures indicate that the number of years spent in school does have an important effect in future earning power, she notes.

If college is in your future plans but finances worry you, check aids the Federal Government offers, suggests Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent.

Students in college and other advanced training will receive financial aid totaling more than two billion dollars in the current school year under federal programs, she says.

The figure includes direct payments, subsidized loans from federal and college funds, loan guarantees, veterans' benefits and payments for college to children of deceased workers who were covered by Social Security. More than three million students receive aid and many students get more than one type of assistance.

The agent explains the program:

National defense student loans, with the Federal Government paying 90 per cent and colleges 10 per cent, a total of $183.7 million to 546,000 students.

Guaranteed loans by private lenders of $630.7 million to 750,000 students.

Federal work-study program, $149.7 million in wages to 360,000 students.

Educational opportunity grants by the Federal Government to students from families with low incomes, $136.3 million to 293,000 students.

Social Security payments past age of 18, normal cutoff date, to children of deceased or totally disabled workers, $479 million to 466,000.

Benefits to children of veterans who died or became totally disabled as a result of service, $38 million to 56,900.

Vocational-rehabilitation training for veterans, $31 million to 600.

These estimates do not include about $330 million in financial aid which colleges provide from their own funds or many millions more from states, corporations and other organizations.

WHAT AMERICANS REALLY EAT

For years nutritionists have been plagued with a lack of knowledge of what people really eat. We have had massive statistics on the amount of each food that "disappeared" from the marketplace, presumably eaten by humans. But we all knew that in home food preparation there is waste, such as fat cut off, amounts that go in the garbage, and so forth.

When you got right down to it, no one had national statistics on precisely which foods, and how much, are consumed by which individuals. You could not, for instance, pin down the "food actually eaten" by adolescent girls, or women 55 to 64, or whatever. The best figures we had nationally were mere per capita consumption amounts, but these are the broadest of averages and who is, after all, "average".

USDA Survey

Now the U. S. Department of Agriculture has come up with a survey that does reveal some information. The data are limited since only a 24-hour period was covered. But 14,500 individuals in 6,200 households nationwide were questioned. We now have the results including quantities of foods eaten at home, away from home, and between meals. The survey was part of USDA's regular household food consumption survey which was done in 1965-66 as part of a series conducted by the department since 1936.

From 22 groupings of individuals the USDA has announced that various sex-age groups are not getting the recommended amounts of some nutrients. Validity of the conclusion is based on the fact that if average consumption of a nutrient was below the Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA), then some persons in that group are getting the nutrient in even less amounts than the group average.

If such deficits persist over periods of time, then dietary improvement is clearly indicated for the following:

- Adolescent girls and women ranging from age 9 through 64. Calcium intake failed to meet recommendations by at least 20 percent in all female groups in this age range, in some cases by 30 percent. Levels of iron were 30 percent or more below the RDA's except for women of ages 55-64. These groups were also from 1 to 10 percent below in thiamine.

- Older men and women. Women 65 and over had diets under the allowances for more nutrients than the younger age groups, being more than 30 percent below recommendations for calcium and also under the allowances for thiamine, riboflavin, iron, and vitamin A value. Men 75 years and older averaged 24 percent below the allowance for calcium and their diets also averaged somewhat under the recommendations for riboflavin, vitamin A value, and ascorbic acid.

- Infants and children under three years. Iron in the diets of this age group averaged 50 percent under the recommended allowance although other nutrients were found to be above the RDA's.

In summary, USDA says the survey reinforces the need for increased consumption of milk and non-fat milk products, fruits and vegetables. The department stressed, however, that the survey does "not suggest a need for indiscriminate fortification of foods with vitamins and minerals or self-prescribed supplementation of individual diets."

DO YOU RECALL.....

THOSE WONDERFUL YEARS...

They shall abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness... The Lord has blessed us with children and now grandchildren. Our lives, and now theirs have been molded in the church. One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts. Pass on this priceless heritage to your children and grandchildren.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death, and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

MANUFACTURING PAYROLL IN BURKBURNETT ON INCREASE

A half-million dollar increase in manufacturing payrolls was cited as evidence of the progress made in the past year by Burkburnett firms by Jack Aaron in speaking to the luncheon meeting of the Burkburnett Chamber of Commerce Monday.

George Horensky, administrative manager of CIBA Pipe Systems, told the group that his company anticipates manufacturing 6,000,000 feet of pipe in 1969, double production of the past year.

An expanded search for new products and new users is under way at Texas Reinforced Plastics, according to a report given by Billy Smith, company representative.

Sales of the refrigerated self-serve units assembled by Leer Manufacturing Co., have more than doubled in the past year, Irv Smith manager of the company, told the luncheon group.

Aaron, chairman of the industrial development committee of the chamber, announced the formation of a new industrial team with specific duties for each member. Jim Frye will have charge of information on resources and service; Billy Smith, public relations; C. J. Lippard, taxes; Jack Mathis, sites; Bill Vincent, utilities; Irv Smith, transportation; Larry Blodgett, labor; I. C. Evans, education, and A. R. Hill, finance with Bill Donnell and James Pearson as alternates.

Applicants Being Taken For DPS School In May

Specialized training in an elite field and a rewarding career are the opportunities being offered by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

A call was issued today for applicants to fill a 120-man class beginning May 6 in Austin. Because of the short time remaining to test applicants, immediate inquiry is urged for area young men interested in becoming a member of the Texas DPS.

Applicants must be between 20 and 35 years old, at least 68 inches tall, weigh not less than two pounds or more than 3 1/2 pounds per inch of height, and be in sound physical condition. They must have a high school education or the equivalent and their record must be able to stand a rigid examination pertaining to character and citizenship.

Those selected will take their training at the Texas DPS Law Enforcement Academy in Austin. This training period will last for an approximate period of four months. Upon graduation, the patrolman will be assigned to one of the four field services — Highway Patrol, License and Weight, Motor Vehicle Inspection and Drivers License.

For complete information concerning the position of patrolman, training and benefits, young men are encouraged to contact the nearest DPS patrolman or DPS office. Hurry — for the time is short before the start of the May 6 training school.
