GS Troop 19 Prepare Exhibit

Junior Girl Scout Troop 19 said goodbye to their leader, Mrs. Marie Evans, when she came by the meeting to lead equipment with Mrs. Hartwell.

Mrs. Evans is moving to Oklahoma. The girls expressed regret at her leaving.

The cookie chairman, Ann Bacon, will be the new leader and Mrs. Hartwell will remain as co-leader.

The Tuesday morning meeting was to take place outdoors. Each girl had two 50-pound lead cans to scrub and clean for day camp.

Naturally, the rains came, and the girls had to go indoors fast, with nothing to do inside.

Mrs. Hartwell then got a box of cake mix, and gave each girl a part of the cake baking job to do.

For their efforts, each girl got eight cupcakes.

Mrs. Hartwell helped with the icing, when they were finished there was still icing left in the bowl.

The girls promptly proceeded to remove the icing from the bowl with their fingers.

Soft drinks were served with the cupcakes.

The next get-together will be June 11 at 2 p.m. at 513 Rosewood. Here they will help decorate a truck for the rodeo parade on June 12.

Parade To Open Rodeo

No less than 11 riding clubs, and 12 other units, will be taking part in the gigantic opening parade Thursday for the Boomtown Rodeo in Burkburnett.

Three of the clubs will enter their sweethearts in the contest for Rodeo Queen.

Contestants are Jeanine Walker, Sweetheart of the Jim Bowie Riding Club of Bowie, Elaine McAda, Sweetheart of the Clay County Saddle Club, Laurene Hass, of the Duncan Riding Club, and Thelia Ann Grigsby, Chisholm Trail Riding Club of Nocona.

Three widely scattered impartial judges will determine the Queen.

Other riding clubs who have already accepted invitations to take part are the Seymour Rumba Club, Walters Roundup Club, Santa Rosa Palomino Club, and of course the host Burkburnett Riding Club, The Saint Jo Riding Club and Wichita County Mounted Patrol.

Each club will also be judged, with the best appearing club winning the honors of leading the grand entry at the opening performance Thursday night, and setting the pivots.

Thus far, the parade will include the Texas Star Twirling Corps of Wichita Falls. This group, composed of 25 girls from the ages of 8 through 18, is instructed by Miss Judy Bristow.

The parade will include, a truck float from Sheppard Air Force Base, the Burk Junior High Band, Rhea Howard, publisher of the Wichita Falls Times and Record News in his 1907 Cadillac, Tim Eysen in his 1915 Model T Ford, the Sheppard Drill Team, Bill Pickell in his Model T, the Marine Recruiting section, the Air Force recruiters, the Maskat Temple Clowns, the American Legion Auxiliary, Wichita County Mounted Patrol with the Sioux Doe Indians Princess Cindy Lu Schenk and Chief Betty Alexander, and the host Burkburnett Riding Club will bring up the rear.

Floyd Marten, chairman of the rodeo committee, promised three nights of thrilling action for all who enter the gates, either as spectators or contestants.

Saturday morning, a Kiddie Parade will be held, with cash prizes awarded.

These divisions will be judged in four divisions—the best decorated tricycle, the best decorated bicycle, the most unique costume, and the best horseman and horse.

Advance tickets for the rodeo are now available at First National Bank, First Savings and Loan, Texas Electric Service Company, Corner Drug Store, and possibly a few other locations.

A sizeable savings in price is offered to those buying advance tickets.

WHY COMMUNITIES DIE

Visiting a community where the business or industries that were major sources of employment and tax revenue have moved away is a depressing experience. Fortunately, there are not many such communities in the U.S., thanks to the vitality of our competitive, free market, free choice economic system, under which business entrepreneurs are constantly discovering opportunities to develop and expand needs for goods and services of all kinds. Newcomers keep established firms on their toes, and the endless process of growth continues with every business ceaselessly searching for ways to attract customers.

In a sense, this whole system rests on what we are pleased to call promotion and advertising. Yet the would-be regulators of promotion and advertising never seem to see the connection between these all-important features of the marketplace and rising employment. Promotion, itself, is a big business that makes jobs for a lot of people. A short time ago, the state of Connecticut was considering a legislative measure that would punitively restrict the use of trading stamps in the state. In the course of testimony on the measure, representatives of Connecticut industry reveal that a single large stamp company bought $7.4 million worth of merchandise from Connecticut industries, paid rents totaling more than $200 thousand and paid salaries totaling more than $600 thousand.

In microcosm, this incident illustrates how overregulation can kill jobs and dry up community progress. The consumer-oriented, free choice system may have its shortcomings, but it is far better than any yet devised—and we should never forget it.

AN EMPTY BOAST

Remember more than 10 years ago when former Premier Khrushchev boasted that the Russians would bury the U.S. economically? Khrushchev predicted that the burying would take place within 7 years. Those who remember Khrushchev's boast may wonder how the Russians are doing. As columnist Roscoe Drummond puts it: "... The Soviet economy is not headed to burying us, is not surpassing us, and is not even beginning in any significant way to equal us. If anything the gap is growing wider..." In 1967, Russia's gross national product totaled $361 billion, which was only 46 per cent of the U.S. total of $789.7 billion. In electric power, the Russians produced 589 billion kilowatt-hours as compared with the 1,396 billion kilowatt-hours of the U.S. Russian passenger car production totaled 251 thousand as compared with 7,437 million in the U.S. Russia produced 10 million metric tons of meat, and the U.S. produced 15.5 million metric tons. Here is a good illustration of why people should take the words of a political braggart for what they are—hot air.

BULL RIDING provides Rodeo's most harrowing moments. Boarding his ugly, hump-necked Brahma, the cowboy takes a one-handed grip on the manila rope wrapped around the bull's belly. For eight interminable seconds he must stay astride the half-ton of furiously twisting, turning, kicking, high-jumping beef. He may spur to increase his score, but must touch nothing with his free hand. The bull is also scored on performance. Rodeo's unsung heroes—clowns in oversize Levis—are constantly alert to distract an angry Brahma away from a fallen rider.

CITY RECEIVES LOADER FOR USE IN FILL OPERATIONS

A new front end loader, at a cost of $19,000, has been delivered to the city of Burkburnett.

The loader will be used at the city's trash dump, which will be converted into a land-fill operation.

As of July 1, state law forbids the burning of trash by cities of the size of Burkburnett, no matter how far they are located from the city or the residential areas.

The loader was purchased from Darr Equipment Company of Wichita Falls after bids were opened at the regular meeting of the city commission Monday night.

Under the land-fill operation, huge ditches are scooped into the earth, trash dumped in, and the load then covers the trash with a layer of dirt.

The system is not new, and has been in use by many cities for some years. However, it will be mandatory as of July in Texas.

Another bid opened Monday night gave a $24,556 paving contract to R. B. Swinford of the Superior Asphalt Company of Burkburnett, who submitted the apparent low bid on a half mile of street construction. The work includes new curbs and gutters and construction on several blocks of Avenue B, Berry and Sycamore.

The city tax equalization board, which has been in session for several weeks, will hold hearings from property owners on June 17.

The traffic signal at the intersection of College Street and Avenue D, which has been inoperative, will be replaced by a new signal light.

STEER WRESTLING is a joint-rattling sport requiring considerable timing and leverage, as well as sheer strength and courage. When the steer bounds into the arena, the "hazer" keeps him running in a straight line, enabling the contestant to throw himself from his own fast-moving horse onto the animal at exactly the right moment for a fast, clean stop. Misjudgment can cause a rolling wreck, known as a "hoolihan." Seizing the horns and using his body as the pivot, the contestant must quickly twist the steer down on its side, with all four legs extended in the same direction. Fastest time wins.

WHAT'S "COOKIE-ING"

School's out and the heat's on when your youngster has just brought home his teammates for high tea. In "childreese"—a snack!

What do you do? Many parents are "cooling" it with a new lemon-flavored cookie by Sunshine, appropriately called "Lemon Coolers". They're sugar dusted, lemon wafers, and busy Moms with a hungry baseball team waiting expectantly in the kitchen have discovered that this summer-flavored cookie is perfect with fruits and drinks.

Their tangy taste is the perfect complement to a sherbet, especially if the third baseman is a bit of a sophisticate.

Of course, the entire family can enjoy this treat on an outing because "Lemon Coolers" are packed perfectly for a picnic basket with a conveniently reclosable top.

Here's a cookie that's no lemon!

'Burketts' Ball Team Wins Game

"Burkettes," the Burk Burnett young ladies softball team played their first league ball game on June 2nd. The "Burkettes" defeated Iowa Park 12-2.

The girls played well in their first game and were able to hold Iowa Park when their opponents reached scoring positions.

Pamela Hensley hit a two-run homer.

This is their leagues first year.

Surprise Family Reunion Honors Mrs. J. H. Brumley Here Recently

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Van Loh entertained at their home in Burkburnett on Saturday, June 7th with a most unusual party honoring their mother, Mrs. J. H. Brumley, also of Burkburnett. Copeland relatives on Mrs. Brumley's paternal side of the family gathered from four states and one foreign country to surprise Mrs. Brumley and enjoy an all-day reunion.

Mrs. Brumley nee Dell Copeland, daughter of William Leander and Hannah Elizabeth Copeland, was born in Crossville, Ala. A clipping from a Crossville paper gives a capsule history of Mrs. Brumley's forebears. Written by the newspaper's columnist, Will I. Martin, the article is headed: "Copeland Family's Exceptional Record" and reads in part:

"While driving around in DeKalb County a few days ago the writer visited the Copeland Bridge community which got its name from James A. Copeland who came to Alabama from North Carolina in the 1830's and became one of the largest landowners and most influential pioneers of Northeast Alabama. His numerous descendants spread over Marshall and Etowah counties and to distant states to carry on the family tradition of good citizenship. He cleared the land for miles around him and cut out a primitive highway from Crossville on San Mountain to Rising Fawn, Ga., in order to provide a mail route. He carried the mail himself in the Forties. Later he moved to Dawson on Sand Mountain and accumulated several thousand acres of this fine land from Dawson to Crossville. It is said that he gave 160 acres of this valuable farm land to each of his four sons and five daughters. He operated a ferry across Big Will Creek and then built what has been known as Copeland Bridge across that stream for more than 100 years. For a time it was a toll bridge but the county eventually took it over. He led the movement to build a Cumberland Presbyterian Church, the first in that section. It was later moved to Dawson and was burned some years ago. Services are now held once a month by the congregation in the Dawson school house. All of James' children were born and reared at Copeland Bridge. He was buried in Copeland Cemetery at the age of 67 years. Ever since any of the family can remember an all-day singing has been held at Copeland Bridge on the Fourth Sunday in each May. It is a yearly occasion for homecomings and family reunions. The descendants of James were among the best people wherever they may be. That is a tradition and a rule without a single exception. From the 1830's on down to the present day they have modestly but firmly followed the example of their hardy, honest and patriotic forebears."

Mrs. Brumley's own father, W. L. Copeland, son of James, owned among other properties in DeKalb County a lumber mill and grist mill. After these mills burned, Copeland with his family of eleven children came to Texas and settled at Alvord. Dell Copeland was nine years old at the time.

In 1911 Mrs. Brumley came to live with a sister, Mrs. Pearl Reynolds in the new Town of Burkburnett where her brother-in-law was publisher of The Burkburnett Star. She recalls working with the family at the newspaper office where the four-page weekly was hand-set and printed.

While living in Burkburnett Dell Copeland met and later married Jasper Hodge Brumley.

Mrs. J. H. Brumley

They established a home in Oklahoma where their only child, a daughter was born.

The Burkburnett Boom brought them back to this area, and they settled here permanently. Mr. Brumley formed a partnership with R. D. Owens in the establishment of a furniture store. At the time, many furniture stores carried a line of caskets. This sideline eventually became the core of the Owens-Brumley chain of funeral homes, with the parent organization in Burkburnett. Other units are in Bowie, Fort Worth and Wichita Falls.

In 1935, a subsidiary insurance company was formed to increase the scope of Owens-Brumley Funeral Home Services.

Mr. Brumley died in 1943 and was interred in his home town, Burkburnett.

Over eighty guests, descendants of W. L. and Hannah Elizabeth Copeland, came from 21 different cities to pay tribute Saturday to Dell Copeland Brumley, last surviving member of the Copeland's 11 children.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Loh were assisted in their host duties by their sons, Jerry of Dallas and Ken of San Francisco.

Mrs. Jerry Van Loh of Dallas registered the guests in a special book compiled for the occasion.

Highlight of the day was an informal luncheon served in the garden of the Van Loh home. Napkins with the Copeland name and date of the family reunion accented the theme of the day.

Out of town guests present for the Copeland reunion included: Mrs. C. E. Biggerstaff and son, Craig and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Damic, Harlingen, Tex. Mrs. Alma Byrd, Mrs. Buck Meeks and Becky, Mrs. Tom Rattiff, Bill Copeland all of Hollis, Okla.

BURK RESIDENT World Champion Bareback Rider

Clyde Vamvoras

Despite Clyde Vamvoras' breezy way of going — he's never claimed to be profound — there lies within the hard-twisted little guy a deep and personal pride in being the national bareback riding champion. Queried once about it he, typically, hid behind the reply, "You sure don't get one in a crackerjack box." But if you care to read between the lines of that bit of repartee you'll find a long 10-year climb the hard way through junior rodeo, high school competition and finally the ranks of the pros. Vamvoras didn't make that run in a Cadillac.

Writing about someone who has won championships back-to-back as Clyde has now you can find yourself being repetitious. Actually, competitive-wise, there wasn't a lot of difference between his first title year, '67, and the one in '68. He placed at more rodeos in '67, fifty-seven to be exact, but he won more in '68, placing in 52. Separating the two titles for Clyde is the fact that the last one topped the event's money mark for a single season set by Iowa's Paul Mayo in '66. Clyde wanted that record.

Late last October Clyde called the Association office in Denver to see if he needed to enter the last two rodeos of the regular season for a better shot at the mark. Tired and road-weary he wanted to freshen up at home. It turned out he did need them and he went, but the $848 he won at the Finals was the icing on the cake. Without that NFR loot he wouldn't have made it.

Born in Lake Charles, La., 27 years ago, Clyde "cowboy-ed" from the time he could walk; "stick" horses and a toy pistol strapped to his side were part of his daily attire. His father, George, a plumber, sighs, "I must have spent a fortune buying guns for that boy." But Clyde never had a real horse of his own and his mother, Olivia, tells people now, "He learned to ride on my hip." At 14, unknown to his parents, Clyde was helping (See BAREBACK, page 3)

PRESENTING
BOOMTOWN RODEO

Rodeo today, since its dusty beginnings over a hundred years ago in the cattle country of the old West, is a lusty, growing, multi-million dollar sport, prevalent in thirty-seven states and four provinces of Canada.

Western history records no one locale as birthplace of the cowboy contests. First records of contests for roping and throwing was made in 1295, 230 years after the Spaniard first brought the Andalusian horse to Santa Fe, N.M. In 1869 at Deer Trail Colo., rivalry between cattle outfits ended in a matched bronc riding with the winner declared "champion bronco buster of the plains."

In 1883, at Pecos, Texas, the contest was brought into town by the merchants. Cowboys roped loughorn steers down the main street, climaxing the July fourth celebration.

A few years later, cowboy contests were being held at a score of other towns. Rodeo was taking its first steps into the future.

----- BEHIND THE SCENES -----

A tremendous amount of expense, work, and planning have gone into the rodeo you are seeing soon.

The major costs of producing a rodeo are the prize money advertising budget, rodeo stock, the specialty acts, and maintenance of rodeo grounds and arena.

The committee responsible for the rodeo here in Burkburnett has planned each and every fall of the show for months in advance. First of all, a stock contractor or producer must be engaged to supply the rodeo stock. There are several competent stock contractors in the business today, and contracts are usually decided on competitive bids. Your committee has given considerable thought to the selection of a contractor and has been careful to choose one whose stock and ability fit the particular needs of this rodeo. Stock contractors usually work for a guaranteed price, although they sometimes agree to a percentage of the gate receipts or perhaps a small guarantee, plus a percentage.

Contract performers or specialty acts are paid on a flat rate basis. This group includes the announcer and the people who provide the colorful entertainment between contest events.

Much thought is given to their selection in order that you may see the tops in the profession and also that you may have the opportunity to see something new and different every year. In some instances the stock contractor books the acts himself, with the approval of the committee, and includes the cost in his contract with the committee.

The rodeo judges, who score the riding contests, are also paid a guaranteed rate for their services. In the same category and working in close conjunction with the judges are the timers who hold the stop watches for all the timed events.

One of the most exacting jobs at the rodeo is that of the arena secretary. The secretary records all the entries in the various events, keeps the pay books, issues prize money to winners, and records all stock draws for each contestant. Much of the secretary's work is done in the small hours of the night long after rodeo fans are in bed.

The local committee's job is to arrange and coordinate all these operations and create a fast, smooth-running rodeo for your entertainment. It is a difficult task with little reward except the fans' appreciation.

Champion Bareback Rider

the rodeo team at nearby McNeese State College try out bareback horses. A year later he hitch-hiked to Littleton, Colo., to enter the Little Britches rodeo there and won the bareback riding. His parents, against the project and loath to turn a 15-year-old loose that distance, put him on the train but Clyde rode only to the next town, cashed in his ticket and from there "rode his thumb."

Two years after that, in 1960, Clyde took another big step up the road he had chosen to travel, winning the all-around title in high school rodeo competition. A year later, after an unhappy semester at McNeese college, he joined the Association. His name began appearing regularly in the year's top 15 winners from '63 on but it wasn't until three years after that he climbed into the top five for the title. He was fourth in 1965, fifth in '66.

Clyde now lives in Burkburnett, where he and C. R. Boucher own 200 acres of fenced pasture land across the Red River, near Devol, Okla. Just last November, Clyde started stocking the place with cattle, $10,000 worth. So the man, who as a boy almost defiantly wore a six-inch brimmed black hat — looking, no doubt, like an ant carrying a cracker — around the house so much that his mother, in desperation, burned it, is attaining another of his ambitions.

World Champion Steer Wrestler

Jack Roddy

In winning his second such championship Jack Roddy, now 31, literally ran off from the rest of the field. His margin of victory, some $11,040, is the widest spread ever posted in the event between first and second place in the year-end standings. To accomplish this Jack entered some 80 rodeos and placed in 56 of them, including the NFR at Oklahoma City.

Because of the everlasting miles down the highway and the detail involved—you'd be surprised at the time spent just trying to get up right at two rodeos the same weekend—a cowboy's decision to go all out for the big buckle generally hinges on some turn of good fortune. In Jack's case it may well have been the coarse check, for $4,726, he earned in one whack at Fort Worth in January. Finding himself with a total of $6,358 already won before 1968 really was well underway gave him the incentive to pick up the reins—so to speak—he'd laid down so happily after winning the title in 1966. That year, Jack remembers as a full one, interrupted only by an enforced two weeks vacation, after Albuquerque in September, to allow torn rib cartilages to mend.

Jack's cowboy career started at 10 when he began entering junior rodeos around home at San Jose, Calif., a town in which he still lives. His father, John Roddy, a rancher, always liked the sport and helped put on rodeos in the San Francisco bay area for many years. Looking back now, Jack remembers the late Pete Dixon — a man who virtually ignored a great, natural talent as a caricaturist to ride bareback horses and rope steers — as one who helped him a lot at the start. Later, while attending Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo, Jack won the National Inter-Collegiate Rodeo Association's all-around and steer wrestling crowns for 1959; and even today he'll occasionally enter the bareback riding and the team roping.

A rangy six, five and 195 pounds, Jack looks like a cowboy. Dedicated to the game in which he'd been so successful, Jack is a willing ambassador for rodeo wherever he goes; and such is his personality that rodeo gains further stature from his whole-hearted efforts.

Roddy's '68 Finals — he only placed twice in the go-rounds for $630 — didn't compare to his other title year when he won the NFR average and $1,745, "going away," as the racetrackers say. But Jack explained afterward, "Walt (Linderman) could have caught me there in '66, the race was that close, and I stayed "revved" up pretty well. This year, after the Cow Palace I just let down. By then I knew no one could overhaul me."

How Do You Drive?

The average driver makes 2½ errors for each mile of travel, according to a random survey of 11,000 drivers by the Kemper Insurance Company.

The sample showed that the average driver, who drives about 10,000 miles a year, makes about 25,000 driving errors in the process.

Common errors noted are failure to look in all directions at intersections, placing hands in an unstable position on the steering wheel, shifting gears while turning corners, following too closely and overrunning crosswalks at stop signals.

SADDLE BRONC RIDING

This event forms the cornerstone for all rodeo competition. Though the identity of the first man to tackle a bucking horse has been lost in history, many of rodeo's most famous cowboys have been saddle bronc riders.

Upon leaving the chute, the rider attempts at once to find timing with the bronc's action. Properly executed, his feet hit a rhythmic stride, spurring the animal's shoulders as it kicks high behind and stroking back toward the cantle as the bronc jumps.

Losing a stirrup, touching animal or equipment with free hand, failing to spur horse first jump out of the chute or bucking off serve to disqualify the rider.

World Champion Saddle Bronc Rider
 Shawn Davis

The 1968 season set a new prize money mark ($3,685,629) for Association sanctioned rodeos and it also was the first year anybody can recall that four cowboys won back-to-back championships. Shawn, 27, was one of them; the others being Glen Franklin, Clyde Vamvoras and Moneybags Mahan. This is not earth-shaking news but it does point up the quartet's competitive spark. "It ain't easy" to earn one title in this game, much less two in a row.

Shawn, from Whitehall, Mont., joined the Rodeo Cowboys Association in '62 after working on a permit a couple of years while he was winning riding titles in inter-collegiate competition. Three years later he won the pro's saddle bronc riding crown with $25,599 (for '65) a figure which still stands as the event's money record for one season. He was fourth in the '66 bronc riding standings and then came back to the throne again in '67.

While the five, eight, 150-pounder, nicknamed "The Bish" as a follower of the Mormon faith, didn't equal his other bronc riding title years in winning the '68 crown, he did earn enough more in bareback and bull riding to chart the best overall year of his career, some $27,014.

It's been said before, but Shawn is not exactly the care-free, swinging bachelor he appears to be at first glance. Underneath that rakish sombrero there lurks a pretty good think tank. The idea of a bronc rider being a good businessman may convulse the cynical set but you try arranging a schedule to make four or five rodeos over the country on the same weekend — as Shawn does often — and you might not be so inclined to giggle. He makes these distant jaunts by flying his own plane, though quite a few of his cohorts were dubious he'd ever get a pilot's license. He even hates to drive a car.

But his airy junkets, so far, have been marred only by one belly landing — the landing gear refused to function, Shawn explains — and he slid her in with comparatively little damage. He only had to use a loaner about a month. He remembers that landing now with much the same feeling he reserves for Reg Kesler's bucking horse, Freddy.

There are 52 weeks in the year and Shawn picked up saddle bronc riding checks at 70 rodeos and collected 16 more in his other two events. A couple of the checks were pretty coarse, one for $2,461 from (See SADDLE BRONC, page 6)

STEER WRESTLING

Steer wrestling, like bareback riding was developed in the rodeo arena and was never a part of ranch work.

This event is a series of practiced movements executed by a team of two men and two horses. The contestant, aided by another mounted cowboy called a "hazer", leaps from a running horse to the steer's horns, brings the animal to a stop and throws him to the ground. Time is taken from the scoreline flag to the field flag.

The hazer, whose duty is to keep the steer running straight, is paid an eighth of the steer wrestler's winnings. Cowboys owning a "team" consisting of a steer wrestling mount and a hazing horse receive a fourth of the wrestler's winnings for their use, the owner serving also as hazer.

Rules call for two or more timekeepers, a field judge and scoreline judge. Contestant and hazer must wait until steer crosses scoreline. A ten second penalty is assessed for breaking barrier. Steer must be stopped on its feet before being thrown. Running falls do not count. Steer must be flat on its side, all four legs extended before throw is considered complete.

BRAHMA BULL RIDING

One of rodeo's most exciting events, and probably the most dangerous, bull riding is responsible for more injuries in the arena than any other event.

Brahma bulls used in the event are fast and powerful and most weigh in excess of 1500 pounds. They are prone to gore or trample a fallen rider and are dangerous in the chutes as well.

Rodeo rules give a degree of leniency to the bull rider. He is not required to spur during the ride, but may receive additional points from the judges for doing so. If the rider is still holding some part of his rope when the timer signals the end of the ride, the cowboy may qualify even if he is in the air.

Disqualification comes from hitting ground before the end of the eight-second ride, touching mount with free hand during the ride or failing to have bell attached to rope.

Pickup men are not used in this event so the rider has to dismount on his own. He depends on the ability and courage of the bull-fighting clown to hold the animal's attention while he makes a safe escape from the arena.

World Champion Steer Roper

Sonny Davis

There's a number of things which made 1968 a rodeo year to remember for this 33-year-old roper-rancher from eastern New Mexico. Most important was his "comeback" after 10 months layoff from injury, to nail the third steer roping championship of his career, climaxing that feat with a couple of Finals' records at McAlester, Okla., in October.

The year before, at Vinita, Okla., on Labor Day, and within easy striking distance of the '67 steer roping title, Sonny had a wreck in the calf roping. Getting down in a hurry as he always has, Sonny's bulk — he's six, four and weighed around 230 — came down just wrong on his right knee and the ligaments popped like bowstrings. A week later after surgery he came out of the hospital in a cast from hip to toe.

For an outdoor guy used to the active life on a cow ranch, being plinned down in the house with TV operas for day to day entertainment, can only be compared to the old Chinese water torture; but Sonny made it even through the agonies of getting the knee to flexing again after the cast did come off.

By early spring Sonny was back on horseback only to have misfortune clip him once again. Cutting cattle in a feedlot Sonny's horse slipped and fell flat. Naturally, it was Sonny's right leg that caught the weight of the fall. Yet somehow the patched up knee escaped injury. Broken was the small bone in his leg below the knee and ligaments were pulled in his ankle. Back went Sonny for another plaster of paris job, this one a mini compared to the other.

The cast was still on when Sonny paid his entry fees for Cheyenne the last of June, 30 days before action in Frontier Park got underway. Doctors removed it two weeks later giving the big man from Kenna a chance to rope four practice calves and a couple of steers before loading his horses for the trip north.

Sometimes a long lay-off gets a veteran up pretty high for the competition. Sonny placed in (See STEER ROPING, page 10)

BAREBACK BRONC RIDING

Developed in the rodeo arena, bareback riding is the youngest of the three riding contests. The event is strictly competitive as it has no connection with ranch duties. Bareback riding draws one of the heaviest entry lists of all rodeo events.

The rider keeps his feet forward at all times, at the same time trying to stay close to his handhold on the rigging and keeping his legs flailing in time with the horse's jumps. The higher and wilder the rider spurs, the better score the judges will give. A fine sense of balance and a strong hand are required in this event.

The rigging, a double-thick leather pad, cinched on the horse's back, is the only equipment used. It is fitted with a leather handhold on top and slightly off-center.

A rider is disqualified if he fails to spur over the animal's shoulders the first jump out of the chutes, touches the horse or equipment with his free hand or is bucked off.

all three steer roping go-rounds and won the average for a neat $3,521. He even won part of a go-round in calf roping, wearing a high laced shoe to bolster his still weak ankle.

And, for those steer roping aficionados who didn't get to Cheyenne last July Sonny's run on his second steer was as smooth as any made there. Over that 30-foot score he coursed one down past mid-way in the arena and was 19.2.

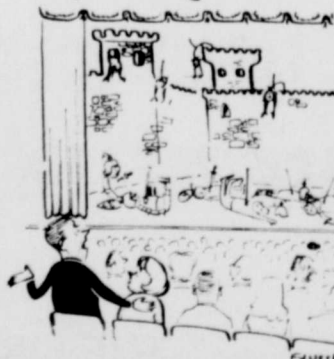

By the time the Finals rolled around 10 weeks later Sonny was sporting a $1,466 edge on the second man in the title race, Wyoming rancher Nick Harris. In the arena at McAlester, Sonny placed on five out of six steers — winning three go-rounds — a feat no one else had accomplished before and won the average for a total of $1,755, which also stands as a record for Finals steer roping take.

The rope trip and tie event's big money winner over the last 10 years, Sonny had qualified for nine of the 10 steer roping Finals which have been held each year since 1959 but he had never before won the average there. To do it he had to come from behind, tying his last one in 15.7 to beat out Jim Bob Altizer and Harry Lynn in that order. They'd all three been a second apart on five head.

Sonny wound up with $6,438 for the year, a figure that came within $120 of tying the event's all-time money record which Sonny himself set in earning his first steer crown in 1964. (The big man's second championship was in 1966.)

Crossing between intersections was responsible for 40 per cent of the pedestrian deaths in 1968. More than 9,600 pedestrians were blamed for their own deaths last year.

CALF ROPING

Calf roping is a combined effort of man and horse against time. It has reached such a high competitive state that winners are determined by only tenths of a second.

The roper should have a dependable, true-working horse in this event as each move is planned to coincide with his mount. Any break in the pattern costs valuable time.

Calves used may not average over 350 pounds. After catch, roper must throw calf by hand, tie any three legs and signal for time by raising his hands. The field judge must then approve the tie.

Watch the horse, rating the speed of the calf, stopping on cue, then backing fast to keep the rope taut while the roper runs to the calf. The efficiency displayed by the horse in carrying out these duties can be the difference between winning and losing. Because of their natural, early speed, quarter horses are the most popular breed used for roping mounts.

First Public Hanging Open To Public

The first public hanging in Texas was the execution of John C. Quick and David Jones, and from all accounts it was some event.

One hundred and forty deputies escorted the two prisoners to the gallows and, according to an eyewitness, "a concourse of some 2,000 persons viewed the hanging without a tear being shed."

The judge who pronounced the death sentence did so in typical early Western fashion.

"The court intended to confine you to prison only," His Honor told the prisoners, "but the jail is in such bad condition and prisoners can be allowed only one blanket each, so to sleep soundly would be out of the question. In consideration of these circumstances, and wishing to lessen your sufferings as much as possible, the Court, in humanity and compassion, orders you to be executed tomorrow morning, as soon after breakfast as may be convenient to the sheriff and agreeable to you."

Yacht Race Set U.S. to Ireland

A trans-Atlantic boat race from Brenton Reef Light, Rhode Island, to Daunt Light Vessel, Cork, Ireland, gets under way on Sunday, June 22.

Ireland, Italy, Argentina, Finland, Holland, as well as the United States, have entered the 2,750-mile race in celebration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of the Royal Cork Yacht Club in Ireland.

The race, which is being held by the Cruising Club of America, will require a minimum of five persons on each boat; the master and navigator have to be amateurs. In line with current ocean racing practice, ten entries are sloops and the remainder yawls.

Almost 70,000 motor vehicles were involved in fatal highway crashes in 1968. Of these, more than 55,200 were private passenger cars.

World Champion Bull Rider
George Paul

"If he rides this last bull, Beutler's 27, I think he'll have been on about every rank bull in the country this year . . ." so said Jim Charles, summing up George Paul's Incredible 1968 season, just before the last go-round started at Oklahoma City where "Charley Jim" was one of the NFR riding event judges.

Needless to say, George did make the whistle on No. 27, one of the rankest bulls in the business, and earned the contest's high marking, 87 points. You couldn't have written a more fitting finale to a year that saw George ride 79 bulls in a row — a fantastic record in itself — before coming to the Finals to win the nine-head average and $2,054; and end the season with more money than any bull rider since 1954. That year Oklahoma's Jim Shoulders set the record haul of $28,700. Actually, George wound up just $878 short of that mark.

Maybe no one but an iron-muscled 21-year-old like George could handle a year such as his and come up smiling. He traveled over 125,000 miles, most of it in the air, and entered, he figures, 150 rodeos. He knows he won money at 73 of them before the series got underway.

To begin with, George came out of Del Rio, Texas, to pranks at the last of '66, from junior rodeo where he had topped the field for two years in both bareback and bull riding. In '67, his first full season in the Rodeo Cowboys Association he ended up 13th in the all-around title race with $18,318, and by then other contestants were watching the newcomer.

Normally when a guy wins nearly $28,000 in an event he's posted some over-size wins along the way. George, instead, collected only four checks for over a thousand during the regular season, $1,366 at San Antonio, $1,136 at Phoenix, $1,024 at Omaha and $1,168 at San Francisco. The rest he ground out in small chunks such as the $389 he won at San Diego or the $505 he collected at Great Falls. This is rodeoing the hard way and the measure of George's ability to keep going and winning may have been explained by Freckles Brown, who said after the Finals, "This guy's in a class by himself right now."

The accolade might well have stemmed from George's riding record during the series. Out of nine bulls he rode eight in a row and the one that "got" him was his first draw. About the third or fourth jump out of the chute the bull snatched George forward and hit him in the jaw with his upflung head. George came to when he hit the ground.

Nobody else qualified on more than six head and if you're thinking Mr. Paul drew around "the impossibles" you are wrong. Along with No. 27, he rode Shoulders' big, yellow Typhoon, unriden for three years; Big Bend's Little Smoke, and Kerby's No. 1, both unriden previously in '68; Kinney Brothers' No. 25, tried 16 times during the year and ridden once; and last but not least, Steiner's famed head-hunter, No. 107.

The latter was one bull George admits hoping he would miss. The animal had a far better batting average, having been ridden only once in six years, and already had flattened Larry Mahan in the first go-round. But when George and the bull tangled in the fifth go, it was George who emerged the winner, with a 79 marking.

George's bull riding total, bolstered by $2,921 earned on bareback broncs during the season, brought his overall earnings to $30,742, and fifth place in the All-Around title

OIL BOOM DAYS RECALLED

BOOM . . . The Schmoker No. 1, which blew in on July 1, 1912, was the first oil well in the Burkburnett area, but it was not until the Fowler No. 1 came in as a gusher in 1918, that the town became a forest of derricks. The northwest extension of the field caused phenomenal population growth of Burkburnett and Wichita Falls and mushrooming of a number of boom towns.

In 1918, S. L. Fowler persuaded a few men to back him with small sums to drill on his land. An independent driller, W. D. Cline, put his rig to work for shares in the venture. On July 29, 1918, "Fowler's Folley" blew in, a 2,200-barrel gusher from sand at 1,734 feet. The boom that followed was one of the wildest ever seen in Texas.

Measured by total production, the Burkburnett field is not one of the major fields . . . However, the excitement, color, glamor, and high financial dealings of the Burkburnett boom were equal to, if not greater than those same elements of any other oil field.

Almost from the time the first barrel of oil was taken from the ground, there have been forecasts that by the year so and so our oil reserves would be gone. These forecasts, luckily, have never come to pass. And petroleum has grown progressively more essential as its uses have multiplied.

Oil is used in everything from clothing to fertilizers—in addition to its main function as a primary source of energy. Thus, a talk by a leading oil company executive, titled "What's Down the Road for Oil," is of unusual significance. On the all important question of supply, he had reassuring words. Technology is adding billions of barrels of recoverable petroleum to our reserves every year. For example, the industry spokesman said: "Today we're developing new techniques of thermal recovery . . . thermal recovery, in the last four years, has added almost 23 billion barrels to the nation's potentially recoverable reserves of crude oil."

He also called attention to developments in other sources of petroleum energy — tar sands and oil shale. Production from tar sands in Canada is now flowing to market, and these sands are believed to contain as much crude oil as all the conventional proved reserves in the world.

The greatest threat to future petroleum supplies does not lie in lack of oil in the ground, but in public policies that might fail to take into account the competitive nature of the oil industry itself and the need for preserving the incentives that are encouraging oilmen to risk capital in the never ending tasks of finding and developing new reserves.

Prospecting For Oil A Risk-filled Venture

Prospecting for oil is a risk-filled venture.

In fact, an average of only three out of every 100 wildcat wells ever produce enough oil or natural gas to become profitable, according to Petroleum Today.

If oil is hard to find and produce under favorable circumstances, consider the problems involved with the Camp Hill field near Palestine, Texas.

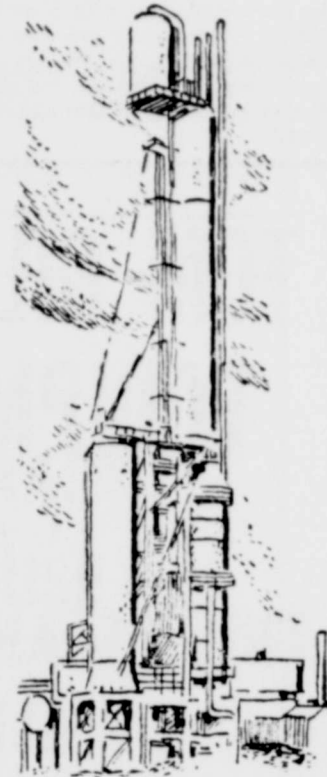

Just 450 feet below the red-rust topsoil lies a 60-foot-thick bed of sand saturated with 50 million barrels of top-quality petroleum. The oil would seem to be there for the taking. But, while many have tried, no one yet has been able to make this field surrender its oil in any quantity, the publication points out. More than 100 wells costing over $5 million have been drilled without success.

Camp Hill's oil is thick and heavy like chilled molasses, and it floats like a bubble on top of water. To get one barrel of this oil, you may have to pump out 200 barrels of water.

Oilmen have mustered all sorts of devices to free the trapped petroleum. They have used water, steam and fire to flood the reservoir in the hope of releasing the oil, but to no avail.

There is even hope that scientists may find a way to use atomic energy to break out the oil. But, until some genius appears with a method for making Camp Hill truly productive, this Texas petroleum deposit will retain its undisputed claim as "the world's stubbornest oil field."

Glen Franklin . . . $33,252 (Another Record)

Most people are interested in hearing about money Any kind, theirs or somebody else's. Glen, 32, from House, N.M., has won a bunch of the stuff with his ropes in the last twelve years. Through '68, the figure comes to $226,137; and when you also know he's been the champion three times in the last four years—setting a new money record for a single event each time—and been title runner-up four other seasons, you begin to get a pretty clear picture of this quiet, unassuming six-footer's talent.

There are a lot of guys around today who can rope up a storm but many of them lack consistency. Glen's the opposite. He's developed a roping pattern, or style if you like that word better, and never deviates from it. Along with that important factor he probably misses fewer loops through a season than anybody and he can flank calves with ease other ropers can't begin to lift off the ground. Flanking is an art and Glen's developed it to the nth degree.

Several years ago, wanting to try out a horse he was thinking of buying, Glen phoned a friend, Jack McKinley, at Albuquerque to ask if he could rope some of Jack's practice calves. While waiting for his arrival, Jack, who is six three and weighs 240, got in a discussion with Olin Young over Glen's ability to handle cattle. There was a soggy Brahma in the practice herd Jack was sure nobody could flank. Olin maintained that if anybody could it was Glen.

So to settle the point, when Glen rode in the roping box, they ran in the educated Brahma without saying anything. Glen sailed on out after the calf, roped him and waltzed on down to where the calf waited, all four legs braced and his belly nearly touching the ground. Glen simply reached over, picked the calf up, laid him on his side and rolled on the tie. Jack couldn't believe what he saw; so silent again, they ran the same calf back at Glen the next time around. It was the same story and as Jack said, "he made a believer outa me". McKinley was joining quite a congregation of those who have watched Glen go over the years, a group that includes another famous New Mexico roper, Troy Fort, who coached Glen his freshman year ('56) in the Association.

As a youngster, Glen wanted to rope from early boyhood—his mother, Mrs. Bert Franklin says he carried a rope in his hand constantly like most kids pack a favorite toy—and in high school he was New Mexico's state roping champion and named on the all-state basketball squad the same season, 1955.

In '68, by the third week in March Glen knew he was off and away to the best start he'd ever had, either his '65 title or the one in '67. He'd earned $11,867, marked by such bountiful bites as $2,727 at Denver, $1,907 at Fort Worth, $2,794 at Houston and $1,442 at Phoenix, in "the Valley Of The Sun."

Eight months later he arrived in Oklahoma City for the Finals with $31,896, a tally that topped his record '67 total by $628; and edged his nearest rival for the '68 crown by $8,314.

Save $100 a month for 15½ years and we'll pay you $100 a month for life.

An independent income that never runs dry! Sound impossible? It can happen with an Independent Income Account at North Texas Federal.

How? You simply decide on the amount of money you want to save each month — say $100 — in your North Texas Federal Independent Income Account. Your money builds and builds — the interest grows — plus added interest on the interest.

By saving $100 a month for fifteen and a half years, you'd have $27,475.10 in your account. This is based on the interest rate North Texas Federal is now paying

You could then start receiving $100 a month for the rest of your life — with out ever having to touch your $27,000 plus principal.

If you want an independent income that never runs dry, do something about it now. Start your Independent Income Account at North Texas Federal Savings and Loan.

These figures are based upon saving $100 a month for fifteen and a half years at our current annual rate of 4½%, paid quarterly.

TAYLOR-ALLEN NUPTIALS READ RECENTLY IN OKLAHOMA CITY

Mrs. T. W. Allen

Miss Gwynneth Leigh Taylor became the bride of Texas William Allen II, in nuptial rites performed at the Crown Heights Christian Church of Oklahoma City Saturday evening.

Officiating were Rev. Kenneth Forshee of Oklahoma City and Rev. Edwin C. Taylor of Tulsa, at the 8 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Taylor of Oklahoma City, while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Texas W. Allen of Ft. Smith, Ark.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in white organza with long sleeves and lace appliques down the sleeves and from the dress. Her veil and headpiece were of white lace bow with organza rose buds encrusted with pearls and crystals.

Her flowers were daisies, pink miniature rosebuds and baby's breath miniature carnations.

The church was decorated with pew candles, four candelabra, and two wicker baskets filled with giant daisies.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Robert Folger. She wore an aqua chiffon floor length dress with daisies at the neck and sleeves.

The bridesmaids carried white wicker baskets filled with mixed spring flowers.

The maid of honor was Miss Sherry Taylor, attired as the matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Carol Kitzmiller, Janice Shelton, Linda Wolf, Penny Taylor, all of Oklahoma City.

Brenda Taylor, daughter of Rev. Taylor, was flower girl. Her brother, Brice Taylor, was ringbearer.

Candlelighters were Jeff Sailer and Dale Brown, both of Oklahoma City.

Phillip Ray Allen of Ft. Smith served as best man for his brother. Groomsmen were Dayl Baxter, Steve Biggers, Cary Homsey, John Stober and Dale Knox, all of Oklahoma City.

Usher were Bill Hoage, Gary Fincher, Chuck Sughru and John Bishop, all of Oklahoma City.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church, with Candy Kane, Jan Edwards, Theresa McElyea, Marsha Standifer, Robin Leach, all of Oklahoma City assisting. Presiding at the guest book was Mrs. Bob Soper of Oklahoma City, sister of the groom.

The couple will make their home in Oklahoma City.

The groom is the grandson of Mrs. J. W. Allen and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stimpson, and nephew of Dr. and Mrs. Philip A. Carpenter, all of Burkburnett. They all attended the wedding.

TINY CIRCUIT CONTROLS PICTUREPHONE CAMERA—Almost 600 electronic components in less than a square inch make up this integrated circuit for the Bell System Picturephone set. Developed by Bell Telephone Laboratories, the module controls operation of the set's camera. It also provides an electronic circuit that improves picture clarity and eliminates flicker. A Bell Labs technician uses the close-up lens on the Picturephone set to show the tiny circuit on the screen. AT&T recently began a Picturephone service trial between Westinghouse Company offices in New York and Pittsburgh.

BAROMETER for the FUTURE

Webster says that a barometer is an instrument measuring the weight or pressure of the atmosphere, foretelling and measuring changes of weather and altitude.

If God were to place a barometer on our lives, would we be cold, lukewarm, or on fire for the Lord. The past we can not change... the future is up to us.

"... what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all His ways, and to love Him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul." ATTEND CHURCH REGULARLY

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

ROY SPARKMAN

Sparkman Wins Rotary Award

Roy Sparkman, graduating senior of Burkburnett High School, Class of 1969, has been named recipient of the annual Burkburnett Rotary Club scholarship award.

The selection was made after careful screening by a club committee on character, ability and scholastic standing.

Sparkman told The Star yesterday that he plans to continue his position with the First National Bank of Burkburnett until the fall session opens.

He plans to enroll in a night English course at Midwestern University this summer, and become a fulltime student this fall.

The award was presented by the club in two installments, with the second installment to be paid at the end of the fall semester.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Sparkman of Burkburnett.

Policyholder Questions Answered by The Institute of Life Insurance, 277 Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y., 10017

Q. I'm a young widow with three small children. When my husband was killed he didn't have any life insurance and things were pretty hard for us financially. Now that I'm back on my feet and working I've been thinking I need some kind of protection in case something should happen to me. But I don't know how to select a life insurance company or an agent. Can you tell me what I should look for?

A. You are foresighted to realize the importance of providing for your children in the event something happens to you. In choosing a company, you will want to consider its reputation — both nationally and in the community where you live. You'll also want to know who the local representatives are, if they are well regarded by friends and neighbors, and if the company has a reputation with policyholders in your community.

To find out more about the company, you might want to look over its latest annual report to policyholders, which you can get by writing to the company.

Inquire among your friends about a competent life insurance agent. Bear in mind that as a client you will be dealing with this agent through the years and you will want someone you can trust as a friend and as an advisor.

In all states both the company and the agent must be licensed before they can sell life insurance in that state. A check with the State Insurance Commissioner at your state capital will answer any questions you might have about this.

Q. I am 63 years old and my wife and I plan to retire when I am 65. I'm wondering how the cash values in my $50,000 straight life insurance policy can be used to set up additions to my retirement income?

A. You haven't said how long you've had your policy, but assume that the cash value at age 65 of a typical straight life policy runs about $500 or $600 per $1,000 of the face value of the policy. This cash value may be used to purchase a life annuity if the policy isn't needed for death protection anymore. In your case the cash value would probably provide you with a guaranteed income for life of about $170 or $180 a month — or if a joint and survivor income is wanted, and you and your wife are about the same age, about $130 monthly will be paid for as long as either of you lives.

BAREBACK BRONC RIDING, one of the most rugged events in Rodeo, is also one of the newest. A non-competitive exhibition "filler" until about 15 years ago, this event today may bring a championship rider over $10,000 a year—but he earns it the hard way. The rider is separated from his horse only by his Levi's and a heavy, leather-rigged cinch with a one-hand grip. Scoring starts for horse and cowboy the instant the horse's front feet touch the ground outside the chute. After the first jump is completed, the contestant may spur to increase his score throughout the long, 8-second ride.

Midwestern will be one of 2,100 centers which will administer the test, and 99 colleges and universities in Texas participate in the program.

Teacher Exams Slated At M.U.

Wichita Falls — National Teacher Examinations will be held at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, July 19 in Room 110 of the University Center at Midwestern University.

C. M. Hagler, director of testing, said the tests are designed for college seniors preparing to teach and for teachers applying for positions in school systems which encourage or require applicants to submit their scores.

Bulletins describing registration procedures and containing registration forms may be obtained from the Office of Student Personnel at Midwestern. Hagler urged those who plan to take the test to obtain the test to obtain these bulletins as soon as possible.

The examinations include tests in professional education and one of 15 teaching area tests.
