Wheat Market Jumps Four Cents Locally Midwest Reports

Takes Heavy Toll In States That Have Too Much Rain

LOCAL HARVEST DELAYED

This section is experiencing the biggest crops of many years. The reports have emanated from the midwest that the rust in the section is taking a terrific toll on the grain crops. This section that is affected was the portion of the territory that was stricken with rust last year. The local harvest has been delayed by the recent rains, and the wheat is not of as high a quality of yield as was first expected.

However, there has been only a ten percent loss according to reports of experts from states in this section last week. This is represented in the field that is affected by the recent rains. The local farmers have proceeded with a rapid day and night schedule in this territory during the last few days of dry weather. At the present time the wheat has been cut and shocked. There is a large portion that has been threshed and baled and brought through the mill. The high point of cutting and threshing is expected to be reached in the next few days.

With the market up there will probably be a rush for the dumping of the local area of large amounts. The experts agree that the population in the end of the month markets, and that there will be a drop. However, others are of opinion that there will develop a shortage in the middle states and the rise will be a permanent character.

Burk To Try For Memorial Parkway

In an attempt to interest the highway commission in the proposition of bringing the American Legion memorial highway through Burkburnett from Wichita Falls, the members of the highway committee of the Chamber of Commerce met at the city hall and formed a resolution to be sent to the governor and highway chairman.

The resolution emphasized the fact that the local Legion post was one of the most active in the state and had won the activity prizes for several years. Further emphasizing the fact that the local bridge was a free bridge. The committee also had planned a committee to attend the hearing of the highway and Legion officials that will be held in Wichita Falls next week.

This hearing will determine the official route that at the present follows the highway 66 from one end of the state to the other. It is not the plan of the committee to take the highway designation but merely to assure that one of the Legion post memorials will be set aside in this area.

The committee was working on the plan for the securing of a plot for the park. There are several acreage under consideration by the organization, and these will be examined in the near future.

Arrest Clears Up Local Robbery Fri.

Theft At Band Box By Negroes Is Solved When Police Catches Two Negroes

N. H. Harris, assisted by Jim Turner, arrested two negroes, a man and a woman in Burkburnett Friday afternoon at five o'clock to clear up the theft of 27 pairs of hosiery from the Band Box, owned by Mrs. Hudson Meadors. The hose were valued at about $40.00, and they were pilfered from the shop two weeks ago last Friday at about seven o'clock in the morning when four negroes entered the store. While one of the negroes engaged the clerk's attention the remainder allegedly stole the hose.

The negroes came to Burk again Friday and were loitering near the same store when they were noticed by the manager of the establishment. Mrs. Meadors called the police. As the police approached the pair who were standing near the alley on C Ave. the negroes broke into a run, attempting to escape. They halted when Harris drew his gun. On being arrested they protested, but their identity was established by other negroes in the city and by the workers at the store. They were questioned at the city hall and lodged in the jail until a representative of the sheriff's department called for them. They will be held in the Wichita jail until grand jury meets.

The application for the allotment was made on May 20, and since that time it has been under the consideration of the state board. The announcement was released by the county administrator, M. A. Bundy.

According to the project the money will be used to employ 40 men and will allow a total of 16,880 working hours on the project. The city will expend $6,143.00 for construction materials and $1,617.00 for skilled labor and supervision of the project.

The new municipal plant will call for the expenditure of $32,000.00 on papers issued by the vote that was held at an election early in May. Oil Rig Fire Causes Fire Department First Run Of Month

The oil well pumping rig of the Boley Pilkerton rig at Ave. F. and Cottonwood street, caught fire from the friction of a slipping belt and caused a heavy smoke and fire at the well Saturday. The Burkburnett department made a run to the scene, but the damage was negligible and the fire was extinguished before any damage could be done.

Boyd's Store Has Slight Blaze Sunday

The fire department answered a call after an alarm had been entered to the Boyd's Store on Ave. B and Main street, Sunday, to extinguish a small fire that started in the refrigerating apparatus. The fire caused much more smoke than blaze, and the only damage was the slight burning of the motor in which the smoke started. This was the second run of the department after a three months lay-off.

Bill Stapp, Cotton County farmer and peace officer of many years of experience, has been chosen by the city council as chief of police of Burkburnett to take the place of the late Mr. Bill Garland who was killed in line of duty May 18. Since Mr. Garland's death N. H. Harris has served as temporary chief.

Mr. Stapp has served for the last four years as the chief deputy of Cotton County under Cleve Hooper, and he comes to Burk highly recommended as an enforcement officer and a man. He has 15 years of experience as a peace officer in Walters and Cotton county.

He will take charge of the position as chief Saturday morning. He is engaged in farming at the present as well as an enforcement officer and is a citizen of the Burkburnett trade territory. The recommendations that he sent or were sent in his behalf have stated that he is a man of real integrity.

He is a married man and has a family, and is 51 years old. His size is impressive enough to put fear into the heart of the offenders of this area. He is six feet and one inch tall and weighs 225 pounds. With an impressive dignity and forcefulness of bearing.

There were about 30 applicants for the position of chief and the city council examined every applicant and his qualifications very carefully. During the wait for permanent appointment the city council and officials were able to give adequate time to the choosing of the man for the position.

The filling of the vacancy was difficult. Mr. Garland had made the city an excellent detective and peace officer. During the last year of his office he arrested 152 men and women on major charges, and of this number about 50 were for crimes of theft of over $50.00 valuation. The late Mr. Garland had been chief of the city for 14 years at the time of his tragic death.

Mity Nice Defeats Barrow-Grace Team First Game Thursday

Magnolia Measure Thaxton In Tight Game After Wild Start

TUCKER, MAGS LEAD

The Mity Nice team buckled down to work last Thursday and took the Barrow-Grace team down a notch in one of the wildest played contests ever staged at the stadium. The Knee-action boys jumped into a lead early in the game and seemed to have the contest iced away, but the Bakers showed real stamina by coming back in the sixth and seventh innings to tie and win. The score was 9 to 8. The game was full of quarrels and disputes, and even umpires decision brought protest due to the intensity of the playing.

The win gave the Mity Nice a distinct advantage in the race for second half. They will be a game up on their strongest rivals. The Magnolia team started the half right by taking the Thaxton game in the second game of the double header. The game was also a one point victory. The score was 6 to 5.

Magnolia vs. Barrow-Grace

The Bell defeated the Skelly and the Tucker defeated the Texas in the other game of the first opening meetings. The ig game of the next week will come on Tuesday night when the Magnolia and Barrow-Grace teams meet. These two teams have a game left over from the first half that may decide the title. But the game Tuesday will be on the second half standing. A double header may be arranged to take care of both games.

The surprising strength of the lowly Tucker team has given them the lead for the first two games of the season. They defeated Texas Friday by a score of 18 to 2. Then Monday they overwhelmed the Thax-

MISS FRANCENIA MCGARITY AND S. S. SPENCER MARRIED SATURDAY

POPULAR BURK COUPLE MARRIED IN BELTON AT HOME OF BRIDE

According to a news service story released from Belton, Texas, Miss Francenia McGarity, daughter of Mrs. W. B. McGarity of that city became the bride of Samuel Selden Spencer of Burkburnett at 8 o'clock Saturday night in an elaborate wedding at the home of the bride. The ceremony was read by Dr. V. A. Copass, head of the Hebrew department of the Southwestern Theological seminary of Ft. Worth, Texas. The minister was a school mate of the bride's father the late W. B. McGarity.

The bride was one of the most attractive and popular members of the faculty of the Burkburnett high school. She has been instructor in the primary department here for four years. She is a graduate of the Belton high school and Mary Hardin Baylor of Belton. Later she specialized in primary and kindergarten work in which she holds her degree.

The bride groom is a graduate of the Burkburnett high school and formerly a student of the Texas university. He has lived in Burk for many years and is associated with the Darby Oil company of Burkburnett.

The ceremony was performed in the large living room of the home of the bride. A green and white color motif dominated in the decorations for the nuptials. The marriage took place before the French doors, back of which, in the Sun Parlor there was a bank of greenery. White flowers were used for the mantle piece.

Exquisitely Gowned

The bride wore the wedding gown worn 65 years ago by her grandmother, Mrs. Thomas D. Osborne. In addition to the ivory satin wedding dress, the bride wore a veil of Brussels lace, which was worn by her aunt, Mrs. A. Thurston of High Point, N. C., who was at the wedding at Belton. The bride carried a showery bouquet of tailsman roses to tone the lovely gown.

The music for the event was by Mrs. C. E. Hillyer, instructor at Mary Hardin-Baylor and Miss Isabel Johnson of Ft. Worth, who sang "Oh Promise Me." Miss Christine McGarity, sister of the bride was the only attendant of the bride.

Before the wedding the bride was feted in many lovely parties and was the guest of occasions planned for her honor. The couple left for Austin after the wedding, and will be at home near Burkburnett in the near future.

Burk Girls Play Excellent Game To Hold Wichitans

State Champions Given Real Scare By Local Lassies Tuesday Night

SCORE 10 TO 7

In one of the most interesting softball contests played at the stadium this year, the local girls playing for the benefit of the PTA came nearer upsetting the Red Jackets of Wichita Falls, last years consolation champions of the state, by leading for the first five innings of the game 6 to 1. The final score, after a rally in the last inning was 10 to 7.

The local girls have no alibi to give, they played one of the finest girls teams in the Southwest, and were defeated by a superior team, but the local team had organized only the day before, and had only one practice. The team is determined to get revenge when they play the Red Jackets at Wichita Falls.

The Burk club got away with a flying start when they made six runs in the early innings. The ace pitcher of the Jackets, Grozier, went the route for the stars. Burkburnett used Fulk and Hill on the mound. Fulk pitched an excellent game, and held the visitors until the last inning. In the last inning she went out for a pinch hitter and was replaced by Hill.

Going into the last inning with the score 6 and 6 the Wichita team bunched three hits and three errors for four runs. In their half the Burk team rallied to score another run and had two on bases.

PTA Thanks Girls

Hellen Fay Bennet hit a home run for Burk. Gafford, Bradberry, Gabler and Johnson hit circuits for Wichita. The Parent Teachers association wished to thank the girls of both teams for their game here. The receipts for the evening added much to the organization.

The girls playing on the Burk team were: Carrie Stonecipher, Helen Bennet, Juanita Shuffler, Mildred Morrison, Maurine Inman, Hazel Pinkston, Wilma Fulk, Elizabeth Fulk, Mrs. Mae Chesney, Vella Mae Goodlet, Madone Pinkston, Elva Stimpson, Grace Eubanks, and Marcella Foster.

Plans are being made to bring the Rookies, another excellent team of Wichita Falls to meet the local girls in the near future. That game will be even more interesting than Tuesday contest.

Carl Morrison Tells Rotarians About The Mexican Convention

Reports International Meeting Of The Club At The Mexican Capitol

PROTEST MILD

Dr. Carl Morrison, local dentist, reported the International Rotary convention which met at Mexico City, at the luncheon of the organization Tuesday at noon. Dr. Morrison was accompanied by his wife to the meeting, and they drove to Monterrey and went to the capitol via rail way from that point.

The report indicated the widely heralded revolution was mild thing compared to the play that it received in the papers of the United States. The religious faction were protesting for rights to the Cardenas government. There were 5,800 paid delegates and probably 10,000 delegates in all at the meeting.

The feature speech of the convention was that of the president of Mexico, Cardenas who asked the delegates to understand that the present policies of the government were for peace and assistance of the average man of the state. He also asked the men to try to understand the reason for the political status of Mexico.

President Hill of the International club spoke on "One's Obligation to Rotary and International Peace." The subject international good will was the theme of the convention. Allen D. Arthur, past president spoke in a masterful address on "Man's Right to Live" also on the subject of "Peace."

One of the most interesting points of the convention was the wonderful music and entertainments. The welcome party that demonstrated the people and customers of the nation was in the lovely Mexican park of the capitol.

The visiting Rotarians were W. C. Duncan, Herbert Voelker of Wichita Falls and George Backus of Vernon.

"Wedding Night" Stirring Drama Makes Debut of Cooper-Sten Team

A stirring and romantic drama, the love story of a sophisticated New York author and a New England farm girl comes to the screen Sunday and Monday at Palace Theatre in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Wedding Night," in which Gary Cooper and Anna Sten appear for the first time as a romantic team.

Cooper proves that he can be just as convincing and thrilling a lover as he is a soldier and fighter, and the fair Anna sheds all trace of her Russian birth and training, emerging as a full fledged American star. Cooper is the author and Helen Vinson his wife. Together they return to his country home in Connecticut because his finances are low and he vainly is seeking an idea and background for a new book.

Finds Theme For Novel
He finds, unexpectedly, the color and theme for his manuscript in the lives and customs of the neighboring tobacco farmers. After he sells a tract of land for $5,000, his wife insists upon returning to gay New York but he, following a quarrel with her, remains in the country because he is eager to write his book and thereby regain his fame and recoup his fortunes. Then to add to his troubles, his Japanese servant deserts him, leaving him alone.

He meets a neighboring farm girl, played by Anna Sten, and she offers to care for his material wants, cooking his meals, tidying the house. Each finds keen interest in the other because they are from entirely different worlds. He is sophisticated, urbane, highly educated, modern and she, while born in America lives in the shadow of traditions, customs and habits they emigrated from Europe.

Against this background of the less conflict of the old and the constant struggle of the newer generation to live in accordance with the more liberal social of America, is told the dramatic story.

ferent worlds. He is sophisticated, urbane, highly educated, modern and she, while born in America lives in the shadow of traditions, customs and habits they emigrated from Europe. Against this background of the less conflict of the old and the constant struggle of the newer generation to live in accordance with the more liberal social of America, is told the dramatic story.

Father Arranges Marriage
The girl's father makes a "riage bargain" for her and demands that she wed a man of her choice. She realizes by the she loves the author and she loves her. But both know the wide social chasm between that he is married and she and his wife will not willingly relinquish him.

Siegfried is a thoroughly original as the harsh, stern father, clinging blindly to the traditional native land and his ancestors. Bellamy is perfect as the young tiller of the soil who marries the girl, and Helen plays the role of the fastidious luxury loving wife with ease. "The Wedding Night" through United Artists, is a entertainment. See it by all means.

CHILDHOOD TRAINING INSPIRED TIM MCCOY TO ARMY CAREER

The term "fighting Irishman" must certainly apply to Colonel Tim McCoy, he-man star who appears in Columbia's "Fighting Shadows" at the Palace Theatre Friday and Saturday. Not that he is a pugnacious fellow always eager to swing his shillalah with devastating effect, or one who takes an impish delight in cracking unsuspected skulls with construction bricks. To the contrary, he is an even tempered man with a legion of friends.

But from childhood militarism was instilled in his blood. His father, Timothy H. F. McCoy was an army officer, and his parents expected him to carry on the family tradition. Largely because of this McCoy pursued a soldier's life, serving in the cavalry, artillery and infantry, and emerging after the World War as a brigadier general.

Later as captain of an army cavalry post in Wyoming, McCoy supervised the Indian reservations, gradually becoming the only white man who is as proficient in Indian sign language as the natives themselves.

Firecrackers

There is some doubt in the minds of a few enthusiastic celebrants as to whether or not shooting of a fire cracker is an offense against the law. It is a state offense. The law reads as follows:

Article 480 page 100 of Texas revised criminal statutes of 1925:

"Shooting in Public: Any person who discharges any gun, pistol, firearm of any kind or discharges a cannon crackers or torpedo on a near any public place, square, street or alley, of any town or city in the State or within one hundred yards of any business house within the state, shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars."

Donehoo Observes Birthday Saturday

The seventh birthday of Gene, Mr. and Mrs. Donehoo entertained Saturday afternoon with a lovely birthday party given at their home on the Campus at Firview. Interesting games, under the supervision of Mrs. Loy Nichols provided the entertainment for the afternoon. Later the guests formed a circle around the heavily laden table of gifts and as the young host prepared to open them, they all sang "Happy Birthday." After displaying the many useful and beautiful things he received, Gene then led the guests in a march, ending at the refreshment tables. These were beautifully decorated in crepe streamers of pink, white and green. Gay balloons, alternating in the same colors, were flying at each plate, while ferocious animals of every description and hue, pranced over the individual plates and formed a complete circle around the pink and white birthday cake, which graced the center of the table and was adorned by seven pink candles. At each guest plate was a tiny pink candle inserted in a white marshmallow. After the candles were all lit, each one made a wish and as Gene blew out the candles on the cake, each guest blew out the candle on their plate.

Big Rabbit Creek

June 30, 1935. More rain, more rest. It's a sure thing all of the farmers are getting lots of rest as well as the threshermen. It's sure working a hard-ship on all of the threshing machines, due to so much rain. There is lots of threshing machines over on this side, threshing grain this year. They are charging 5c per bushel for oats and 10 cents per bushel for wheat. Wheat is selling for 71 cents per bushel. About all the farmer will get out of his bumper crop will be his expense and lots of hard work. He don't deserve anything else, as he has been the goat for the grain market for years, and will always be until they organize, and that will never be, as they haven't got backbone enough to do something for their own good interest.

Mrs. Geo. Stringer's daughter, Miss Helen was taken to the hospital a few days past down at Wichita Falls. The last report from Mrs. Stringer was that her daughter, Miss Helen was in a serious condition. Mrs. D. L. Alexander received a telegram from Gritley, Calif., to the effect that her father, a Mr. Rhoads, had a stroke and wasn't expected to live, and for her to come at once. The message came through the Owens family phone and was delivered by Mrs. Ed Owens.

H. while over in Burkburnett Saturday at something in town that gave him ptomaine poison. At this writing the writer isn't able to state how W. H. is getting along.

Cotton chopping has started up over on this side of the big pond in full blast. The farmers are paying $1 to $1.25 per day and their dinner. There is a demand for cotton choppers.

NEW MYSTERY FILM LOADED WITH SUSPENSE AND LAUGHS

A mystery story replete with suspense, loaded with laughs and sprinkled with a delightful romance marks Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's current comedy-drama "One New York Night" which opens Wednesday at the Palace Theatre.

Introducing a new team to the public, Franchot Tone, romantic leading man and light comic, and Una Merkel, pretty comedienne, are co-featured in this film.

Cross-Section of Life
The story revolves around a mysterious murder which takes place in a cosmopolitan hotel where a unique cross-section of life is reflected in the various guests who become involved in the crime.

Mystery enters when the body of a wealthy broker disappears under unusual circumstances, thus catapulting several people into a scandal. A cowman from Wyoming bent on finding a brunette to marry in the big city, joins a blonde telephone operator in endeavoring to clear the name of a beautiful Russian Countess. His ultimate success is crowned by falling in love with his pretty assistant despite her light tresses.

Franchot Tone is cast as the man from Wyoming, Una Merkel as the blonde telephone girl who "gets her man," Conrad Nagel as the private secretary to the deceased broker, and Steffi Duna as the Russian Countess. Also prominent in the cast are Harvey Stephens, Charles Starrett and Louise Henry.

Rainbow Girls Hold Initiation Meeting

With all the impressive beauty of the ritual of the organization three new candidates were initiated into the order of the Rainbow Girls at the meeting of the club at the Masonic Hall Tuesday night. The association that is sponsored by Mrs. Barnes admitted to membership Misses Doris Pinkston, Melba Clark, and Betty Jo Gilchrist. There were about thirty members of the organization present for the ceremony, and the club participated in the exercises. The installing officers were Martha Kate Alexander. The ceremony featured a song by Edna Cropper, and refreshments were served to the guests and members of the society.

Library Rebinds Old Volumes For Readers

The Library received 26 books that were recently sent to the Dieter Bookbinding company in Denver, Colo., for re-binding. The books were returned last Friday, and they were very attractively bound. The finishing of the top pages with a rainbow colors adds much to the beauty of the volumes. The books are in colors that make them very noticeable on the shelves of the library. The large volume of the patronage has made necessary the old books be remade.

Clever Car Exhibited In Burkburnett Sat.

Emory Kent, inventor and mechanic of Grandfield, Okla., brought an airplane car to Burkburnett last Saturday and drew large crowds of curious spectators all over the city. The car developed a new motive power of an air lane propeller. The prop is arranged at a 60 pitch in front of the car on a twin Indian motor of seven horse power. The engine is capable of 3000 revolutions per minute, and attains a speed that is amazing.

The car was built on a model T chassis and cleverly streamlined from end to end. It was built entirely piece by piece by the inventor who claims it to be the only practical successful car of its type. It has been driven for three months and took six months to construct. The original cost of construction was $500.00. It has been given every type of road test, and handles very satisfactorily. There are no gears, but the prop is on the crankshaft.

Hardin Club To Hold Achievement Day

This meeting was scheduled for May but was postponed during the flood.

Garden Club Makes Annual Pilgrimage

The Garden Club made the annual pilgrimage Friday, June 28, starting at 9 o'clock in the morning at the home of Mrs. C. J. Morrison. The club had been studying gardening for several months, and had inspected a series of beautiful yards, but according to the report of the members the loveliness of the gardens in Burkburnett surpassed the expectations of the persons on the trip in their beauty.

As the members visited the different plots, the owners in each case acted as hostess and escort, directing the guests in order to demonstrate the beauty of the garden. The yards inspected were those of Mesdames Ray Hill, Jim Pogue, Paul Browning, C. J. Morrison, A. B. Sandler, J. C. Adams, Al Lohofener, R. C. Tevis, F. R. Flannigan, B. Westfield and W. P. Sims. The party returned to Mrs. Tevis' at 10:45 for adjournment.

Romantic History Of First Oil Well Recalled Here

Most Important Event In Annals Of City History In Discovery Well

SCHMOKER NO. 1

Excitement ran high in Burkburnett, but not even the most optimistic thought that the small well Schmoker No. 1 would mean that ultimately over one hundred million dollars of wealth would be drawn from the earth in this area, and that many millions would be spent and acquired by the people of the city. Many things have happened that have changed the history of our city, but no single event ever meant more to us.

All the romance imaginable is in the story of the struggling group of pioneer oil men that opened the territory for the first time. The epic started back in 1911 on Christmas day, when J. R. Sullivan, local farmer and geologist accompanied the superintendent of the Corsicana Oil company to a small farm west of the city along with the field superintendent, Mr. A. B. Smith and Elmer Davidson, and drove down the stake for the location.

The stake was driven on a cold Christmas morning in 1911, and 20 days later, January 14, only one day before limit time, the men started drilling. The historic hole was one of the most difficult that has been drilled in this area. It was in the early days of petroleum history, and modern efficiency was not known.

In the last month of the drilling the drillers lost the bit of the cable tool outfit, and were delayed. For a few days the well seemed to be a Jonah. Ed Rampin and Jack Shaffer were faced as drillers with trouble galore. They conceived the idea of dynamiting the hole below the bit. The charge of 20 pounds was set off, and the casing was broken in several places, but the bit fell out.

The casing, 8 inch in ten inch hole was reset, and the last few feet of six inch placed. The well then developed a spell of salt water, and seemed doomed to disappointment for the drillers. After three attempts the water was plugged, and the salt water removed.

The well sat over night and just at day break the next day the head of gas formed and blew the well, the oil spouting forty or fifty feet above the derrick. The flows came three times a day and about 40 barrels a flow. Mr. Sullivan is quoted as saying that he was present alone when the well came in, and as soon as the news of the flow spread a great host of people trekked to the lease.

Oil, black sticky fluid. Life blood of industry. The source of most of the worlds power, transportation, fighting forces of the navies, the whole world system of wealth balanced in the black blood of the earth. Still after twenty three years this little well flows. Other spectacular wells have caused the attention of the world to our city. They have lived a spectacular life and died and are empty mocking skeletons of the wealth they produced, but faithfully day by day the first well, Schmoker No. 1 pumps a barrel a day. Like a constant heart its pump still beats reminding us of the debt we ought its discovery. It is probable that no one would have thought of our field for many years had it been a failure. It was not a failure, and the result is that all the good and evil of the oil boom has come and gone.

From a quiet village we grew to a large city, and settled back into a quiet town making our place in the world. All because a faithful little well spewed out its wealth and still pumps.

Short Hints On Care Of Furniture

Wood Finish That Has Turned White
The first method is application of turpentine. This usually restores the surface and softens the finish.

Second method is to pour alcohol in either case the surface should be rubbed dry with linseed oil.

Another method is to use and iron and wolen rag. Place wolen rag over the spot with a not too hot iron, touch the spot with a circular motion. Never let the iron be still or the cloth will stick to the furniture. That would leave the print of the cloth on the varnish.

One of the best ways to clean furniture is to wash it. A standard product available at most drug stores is known as green soap. It looks like vaseline. Take a soft cloth, soak it in warm water, put a teaspoonful or two on surface. Run it over the polished until it gets frothy. This will remove finger prints, butter, grease and food marks.

Whether he's for that share the wealth movement or not, the average citizen is of the opinion that if someone would invent a way to share common sense the country would be better off.

Weekly News Summary

The gain in the price of wheat of about four cents is the most important story of the week so far as Burkburnett is concerned. The recent rains all over the Mid-west broke the long drouth that had caused such discouragement last year. This year the rain was estimated to have been worth a billion dollars. However, there has been such heavy falls of moisture that a rust is beginning to develop in the middle states. That will work to the advantage of this section. There has been some rust here but not a great amount.

Wagner Bill

The Wagner bill that has been called "labor's Magna Carta" went to the president last Friday. The bill guarantees labor the right to organize, list five unfair practices, and sets up a national board of arbitration. It also limits the hours in certain classes of work. This bill has been sponsored by a man that has a reputation for being the best fighter in the Senate of the national congress.

Some of the industrial leaders are of the opinion that the bill will cause more strife than the sponsors thought possible. The labor leaders say that it will be a God send to the employee. At least it will give a basis for all the disputes.

New Money Law

The President asked for new money law that will establish the right of the government to prevent suits on basis of the gold clauses in the contracts. This would eliminate the uncertainty of the situation. The supreme court approved of the gold clause ruling, and prevented collection on the basis of the original contracts. However, the President wishes to make the ruling permanent. This would also prevent suing the government of the United States. At the present, with consent of congress any individual may enter suit against the government.

Bonus

The question of Bonus in cash popped up again last week. The Patman house committee passed to the floor a bill demanding action on a cash bonus. The original cash bonus may have received the approval of the president, if it had omitted the "green-back" clause. That was the clause asking for issuance of new money. The president was allowed to have excuse of veto.

The plan this time is to tack the bonus on the tax bill as a rider. The president in order to raise taxes will have to approve the bonus rider. The sponsors ought to have political acumen enough this time to omit the inflation part of the bill.

Poll Tax

There has been developing a very strong movement for the repeal of the poll tax law. This law was passed originally for the purpose of keeping the negroes from voting after the reconstruction period. This law has served its purpose very effectively, but the agitation has been growing, since it has become apparent that the act also excluded the poorer whites from the polls also.

The law that was recently introduced was defeated, but the word has come from Austin that a stronger organization will be made for the next session of the legislature.

Italy's Division

Italy has tried to ring in England and France on the proposition of the African invasion. They have asked the two countries to establish protectorates along side of the Abyssinian countries. They would solve what now appears will develop into a nasty mess. If France and England saw how they could gain, they might forget their indignation at Italy's invasion of the Abyssinia kingdom.

A Trick For Summer

With warm weather at hand, perhaps this would be a good time to drop a refreshing note about the dining room. Why not put away the full length table cloths? Then surprise the crowd with colorful woven raffia dollies, shellacked to make cleaning easier? Or browse through the department store for this years offering in large water proof cloths which come in pastel and in gay colors.

At the same time a change to summer rug or matting and to light draperies will complete the picture. Still more miracles can be worked in the kitchen. Cool colors in curtains, table oil cloth, small decorative objects, and even kitchen towels may be substituted for the warm winter shades.

Just be patient. When the white man has civilized the heathen he may start in on the white man.

What has become of the old fashioned Burkburnett man who thought a fellow was highly educated if he used big words?

You've probably noticed that those cousin-kissing fellows never feel under any obligation to kiss the homely ones.

The Selection And Use of Furniture

"I sold the furniture," exclaims the salesman to his chief. "I ordered the furniture," exults the home maker to her mate, that evening. "I think we have just the things we need to make a comfortable, beautiful, useful, and livable home."

Two points of view, both natural and understandable. To the salesman it is a sale and a commission. It may also yield the feeling of satisfaction in honest service rendered in making another home beautiful and an asset to the community.

But to the woman it is an investment for the home, for the place where she will spend the most of her time. Into that investment may go the savings of years or a mortgage of the future income of years to come through instant payments.

The three things to consider are color, suitability and cost. Becoming colors are as important as home furnishings as they are in clothing. Some people, especially Latins, in a gay color scheme. Others are more sedate in personality, and should let the tones interpret this mildness with subdued coloring.

One of the most important considerations in furnishings is the exact knowledge of the dimensions of the rooms. Wall spaces, and principal pieces of furniture already in the room should be measured. Since furniture should fit into its space as accurately as clothing on the body, it is inadvisable to purchase without the exact knowledge.

Secure the advice of an expert. Let him measure and balance your room. But approach the problem as carefully as you would the study for a serious examination in the class room. After the furnishings has been planned, put the preliminary survey on paper. A floor plan will save much pushing and shoving after the van has left.

Furniture Needs Water

It is surprising, but like all other organic materials, wood actually needs water to live for a long period. In artificially heated houses, dry air over long periods cause furniture to crack when a house is heated. The best device is a automatic humidifier with heat system. But in a tight house where no automatic equipment is available, the evaporation of water on a stove or radiator aids. From 40 to 60 points is best control area for humidity in furniture rooms. Don't over do it. Furniture doesn't need as much water as a fish—just a little humidity.

Eliminating The Insects And Pests

There are two types of insect infestation which are particularly damaging to furniture. One is the dry-wood termite or the so-called white ant, which thrives in the tropics and extends as far north as Virginia Texas, and Southern California in the United States. It is particularly malicious in Panama, and in the Philippine Islands. The other type is the Lyctus or so-called powder beetle.

Perhaps the best remedy for the termite is to saturate the infested furniture with orthodichlorobenzene. If this treatment is not practical use dry Paris Green. It should be blown into the holes that penetrate the galleries of the ants. If the Paris Green becomes caked the treatment should be repeated. The orthodichlorobenzene should be used in a room that is open because the odor is quite disagreeable. It is painful too, in the eyes.

Powder Post

The Powder Post Beetle can not enter wood in which the pores have been sealed, so the best preventative for this type of attack is to wax or varnish this part of the unprotected wood. Linseed oil is another protection to keep out this pest. In old furniture it is wise to dip the entire piece in kerosene before finishing it. When the desire to strengthen a furniture so damaged, pour molten parafin over the damaged section and wipe off excess before refinishing. This will give more body.

Thirty Members Of Local Band Play At Craterville Rodeo

Thirty members of the Cowboy Band were invited to play at the rodeo presented by the American Legion at Craterville this week. The musical organization played each day of the affair, and took in the celebration there the 4th of July. The rodeo was one of the largest ever presented in this territory. The promoters and field managers were George Counter and Buster Morgan of Burkburnett.

What Fans Ought To Know About Football

By Coach Volney Hill

(Editors note: This is the fourth of a series of articles in which the coach of the local team explains to his players some of the fundamentals of football.)

On Forward Pass

When your team passes:

If you are not on the end of the line, or at least one yard back of it, you are ineligible to touch the pass and should not go into defensive territory unless in blocking with opposing lineman.

If you are eligible to receive the pass, don't interfere in any way with any opponent behind the defensive line; this applies from the moment the ball is snapped until the pass is touched by either team.

If you are eligible, don't go out of bounds, as you are then ineligible.

If you are ineligible (either ineligible at start of the play or ineligible because you went out of bounds) don't touch the pass as it will cost your team the ball.

Even though you are ineligible and one of your eligible teammates touches the ball, you are still ineligible to touch it until a defensive player has touched the ball. It might be better under these conditions to catch the ball or bat the ball to the ground than allow an opponent to catch it, unless it is fourth down, since the penalty is only a loss of a down.

When any member of the defensive team touches the pass, any player of the passing team may then catch the ball.

Never intentionally ground a pass, you lose not only distance but a down. If you were trapped in your own end zone with the ball and a safety was imminent, a pass grounded in the field of play would result in your team retaining the ball (unless it was on a fourth down) although the penalty might take the ball very near to your goal line. Throw it out of bounds.

The fact that a pass does not cross the line of scrimmage does not permit offensive players to interfere with opponents beyond the line of scrimmage.

Under the 1934 rule, one incomplete pass over opponents goal line may be made without penalty and a second pass results in touch back to opponents.

When your opponents pass—you may cut down or interfere with (but never hold) opponents until the pass is thrown.

Never interfere with an eligible opponent behind your own line of scrimmage after the pass is thrown.

If you are a lineman, don't hold an opponent on or behind the line of scrimmage. Drive him back.

Never make a flying block or tackle at the player who is in the act of making, or has made a forward pass.

If you make a legal block or tackle on the passer, don't hold him down.

Fumble and Backward Pass

Your team is eligible to recover an advance the ball. However, if you fall on the ball it is dead and cannot be advanced nor recovered.

If you can't recover the ball before it goes out of bounds try to touch it before it goes out, as the ball is awarded to the player who touches it last.

By Opponents:

If the ball has touched the ground, fall on it—you can not advance it any way. If the opponents are returning the ball (a kicked ball) and fumble, you cannot advance it, even if you do intercept it before it strikes the ground.

If you can't fall on or recover the ball try to touch it before it goes out of bounds.

Capitol News Letter

by W. D. McFarlane

Taxes, government finances, and the redistribution of wealth have been holding the center of the stage at Washington during the past week.

Monday last week the House passed by a vote of 247 to 117 the bill extending the so-called nuisance taxes. . . . These extended taxes are estimated to probably bring the Treasury additional receipts during the next year of approximately $500,000,000. The major revenue producers of these taxes are automobiles, trucks, accessories and fuel and oil for these, and the taxes on telegrams and phone calls, and also the increases in postal rates. The Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee stated that while undoubtedly these taxes should be repealed when the Treasury could bear the loss of these additional receipts, at the present time there was no choice except their extension. He did however, state further that this measure was the only general legislation planned at this session.

Chairman Doughton was referring to the increases in inheritance and gift taxes proposed by the Secretary of the Treasury. Whether this attitude still persists is highly questionable now for late in the afternoon of Wednesday, June 19th, the president, in a surmise tax message, requested the enactment of not only these increases in gift and inheritance taxes but also increases in the tax on incomes in the higher brackets. Basing this request on the desirability of a more equitable distribution of the national income, the President made three suggestions.

Firemen Win Water Fights Electra

Burkburnett Volunteer Firemen achieved their stride in the big celebration at day and took both ends of a water fight. The team headed by John Musick, won from Electra in the first fall, winning the first two falls. The Chillicothe team won the first fall, and after a terrific struggle, Chillicothe took the second fall. Then the last fall developed into a real battle. The ball saw-sawed back and forth for the entire eight minutes. The victory was awarded to Burk on the ruling that the ball was in Chillicothe territory as the fight ended. The Burk team was John Musick, Neal Allen, Robert Dunn, Frank Kelley and Jack Kelly.

I Buy From The Merchants Who Contribute to the Upbuilding of Burkburnett

- Because my interests are here
- Because the community good enough for me to live in is good enough to buy in
- Because I believe in transacting business with my friends.
- Because I want to know with whom I trade.
- Because I know that a friendly interest is worth more than just a commercial interest.
- Because every dollar I spend at home works for the community in which I live.
- Because the man I buy from stands back of the goods.
- Because here I live and have my home.
- Because the man I buy from pays his part of town, county and state taxes
- Because the man I buy from helps support my schools, my lodge, my church, my home.
- Because when ill luck, misfortune or bereavement comes, the man I buy from is here with kindly greetings, his words of cheer and his pocketbook if need be.

The 2nd Community Nite Program Is Hit Huge Gathering

A Crowd Of 2,000 Present At The Program Presented At Rodeo Stadium

GEORGE TAYLOR POPULAR

With a large crowd responding to the inimitable leading of George Taylor of Wichita Falls and popular radio and choral singer, the second community night entertained the stadium full of people Friday night. The singer won applause of the crowd when he started his section of the program with a series of ballad songs and old time western music. The crowd then responded to his leading in choral singing with enthusiasm that made the program a success.

The program for the evening started when the cowboy band held a concert for half an hour. The crowd gathered to the strains of the popular local musical organization. By the time they had completed their numbers, the stadium was filled to capacity. People from every section of the trade territory were represented at the gathering. The hit of their selection was the "Old Gray Mare". There must have been some Hardin-Simmons students in the crowd from the response to the number.

The run of the program included a piano duet by Marginelle Chambers and Blanche Butler. Piano solo was played by Howard Clement, Norma Jean Cannon and Peggy Kemp presented a clever tap dance skit. Leroy Wilburn presented a series of song and guitar numbers by himself, and Jack Grant played a piano solo. The vocal duet was sung by Leona and Arlene Reed. The string band won the applause when the four members played several numbers. The members included E. Willet, Leon Reed, E. Russel, and C. Reed.

The program will be continued throughout the summer and presented at various intervals this year. There will also be representative selections from these programs to be sent to the various towns in the trade territory of the city.

New Spiders In Star Office Last Sunday

Just when the editorial staff of the Star had been getting uncomfortable about the presence of the large number of spiders that had been brought into the office, one of the black widows became the proud mother of approximately 500 other little widows. The blessed event happened at the Star office Sunday afternoon, when the little creatures hatched in the jar.

The process of hatching was really interesting to watch. The mother spider built a ladder of web for the tiny insects, and as they emerged from the eggs they distributed themselves in more or less uniform pattern across the almost invisible strands. The latest report is that the mother and babies are doing fine—thank you.

Police chief Nat Harris has been in Archer City the last two days testifying at the trial of two boys that were charged with theft. The two boys were caught by Mr. Harris several weeks ago in Burk Burnett.

Compliments

On the occasion of their anniversary, the Owens-Brumley store has received compliments from all over the Southwest in this week's issue. The manufacturers of diverse supplies that they have used have taken this opportunity to express the appreciation and congratulations to the store. This widespread approval of the local store is a compliment to our whole city. That a firm in the city can gain such a widespread reputation indicates the challenge of the standard of the materials and work that they have produced. The congratulations have come as far as from New Orleans in the South and East, and Abilene, Texas, in the West. The whole state join us in our good wishes to this firm.

ness until the greater part of the rush drilling of the boom was completed. It was thirteen years ago that the first furniture store was started. The owners tell of the experience of buying a small stock of second hand and new furniture and placing it in a small cubby hole across the street from their present location. That cubby hole for all its smallness cost $125.00 per month. That was boom day rent.

R. D. Owens came to Burk Burnett for the first time when the town was organized in 1907. He has tilled some of the soil on which the greater part

Great Variety Of Woods Are Used In Furniture Making

One of the most interesting things about furniture is the history back of each piece of wood that makes up the finished product. Real romance lies in the story of the processing and finishing of the materials of the house hold products. The Wood in Owens-Brumley furniture is indicative of this romance.

American walnut is recognized as the premier cabinet wood of the world. Its leadership is due to the fact that, combined in single species are the many desirable and necessary characteristics that make up the perfect wood for fine cabinet work. The tree that produces this wood is often called Black Walnut, although in American and foreign markets the wood is usually designated as American walnut. Botanically, it is known as Juglans nigra.

Solid American Walnut throughout—This is a piece of furniture made entirely of walnut lumber inside and out and does not admit the use of veneers of any kind of wood. Solid American Walnut Exterior—This is a piece of furniture in which all the exposed parts are of solid walnut lumber. Veneers or other woods may be used for unexposed parts and interiors. American Walnut Exterior—Usually termed genuine walnut, this is a piece of furniture in which all of the exposed parts are of solid walnut or of walnut plywood panels. The unexposed parts and interior may be of other suitable woods.

American gumwood is a dependable hardwood of highest importance to the furniture industry. American gumwood has been whimsically called the "last of the substitutes." Masquerading for many years under various devised form its finish in imitation of other hardwoods, it has at last come into its own and has been accepted as one of America's finest cabinet woods. It stands today proudly on its own feet—as gumwood.

Birch

Birch, or beautiful birch, has won its place as a fine cabinet wood because of its special qualities. The first quality that must be possessed by cabinet wood is beauty and it is the attractive finished appearance of birch which has given it its common name "Beautiful Birch." A birch board or veneered panel, sanded smooth but unfinished, is a beautiful thing within itself. It is without coarse pores or startling variations of shade. It has a characteristic grain which softly reveals the beauty of wood structure in those subdued effects now preferred by careful decorators.

Mahogany, the original king. It has a romantic history. In 1597, Sir Walter Raleigh floored the deck of one of his vessels with lumber procured from the trees in the West Indies. After his return to England, Queen Elizabeth noticed and admired the beautiful strange reddish-brown wood used to repair the decks, whereupon she ordered the mahogany planks removed from the ship and had it fashioned into a table. Thus Mahogany came to grace the chambers of the good queen and in one stride came to take preeminence among all other cabinet wood of the world. It truly converts the house to a home.

The romance of plywood and veneers dates back to the dawn of time. "All roads lead back to Home," is a saying old but true and by the same token we may observe that history of nearly every subject under the sun carries us straight back to the days of Egypt.

The story of plywood, veneer and of veneered furniture is no exception. It is surprising to most of us but it is actually true that the chests, beds, chairs and tables of the period of King Tut were decidedly up to date in style and finish, even as compare with the latest and finest production of the modern world.

In King Tut's Day

Veneered furniture from King Tut's tomb and from the tombs of many other Egyptian kings have proven a veritable astonishment to the student of furniture. A mural decoration of wallpainting made 3,000 years before Christ, shows in detail how they made plywood furniture 49 centuries ago. It was discovered in the tomb of Rekmara at Thebes, dating from the reign of Thothmes III, the Pharaoh of the Exodus described in the Bible.

Roman furniture was costly and magnificent. Roman taste despised solid block pieces as being essentially barbarian and crude. They loved the beautiful effects of cross cut veneers; some of their table tops resembling the spots of the leopard, others a swarm of bees, some the tawny lion or the stripes of the tiger.

Cicero is said to have paid $45,000 for averaged table of citrus wood and we have the historical statement of 2,000 years ago that the proudest possession of Caesar was a table beautifully veneered.

Coming to America, we find the great art of veneered furniture still in evidence. The desk of George Washington was plywood and veneered. He used this desk from 1789 to 1797. It is now the property of the United States, purchased by Congress, April 23rd, 1880.

History Of Furniture In U. S. Dates Back To 1675

Furniture history in the United States begins, not with Captain John Smith's company of gentlemen adventurers in Virginia nor with the Hollanders who swapped nineteen dollars worth of beads, hatchets and rum for Manhattan Island, but rather with the austere, non-conforming Englishmen who settled New England. It was they who brought the trade of furniture making from old England and in these new environs were, by 1675, making tables, chairs and chests of distinctly American design.

In fact, furniture making in New England can with certainty be said to date from that bleak December day in 1620 when the Pilgrim fathers with their families, numbering one hundred persons all told, forsook the Mayflower and assembled onto Plymouth Rock and dry land. Their ship was only of 120 tons burden and had to carry their provisions and supplies for the colonizing expedition as well as for two trips across the uncharted Atlantic.

The Mayflower was 82 feet long, 22 feet beam, and 14 feet from keel to main deck. Into her old Christopher Jones, master of the ship, had to stow the casks of provisions, the supplies and the Pilgrim Father's chests of household gear.

John Alden

What room was left for all the antiques that are now reputed to have come over in this historic vessel? The answer is obvious, likewise careful study of these reputed Mayflower relics disclose the majority to be either of American make or of English origin of a later date. But these very casks of food and drink which precluded bringing much of any furniture, required under the Tunnage Acts then in force that somebody be aboard the ship who could make casks to be sent back on the return voyage. To comply, so that they might sail from Southampton, the Pilgrims added John Alden of "Speak for Yourself, John" fame of their number. He was a cooper of twenty-one years. This is how governor William Bradford, in 1650, in his History of the Plymouth Settlement listed him:

"John Alden. Mr. Alden was hired at Southampton as a cooper. Being a likely young man he was desired as a settler; but it was left to his own choice to stay or return to England; he stayed and married Priscilla Mullins."

Thus it happened that the first trained woodworker came to an English speaking colony on the American Continent. Moreover, Alden prospered and seems to have devoted the 67 years before his death to office holding, farming, trading with the Indians and doing a little furniture making. Occasionally he is referred to in colonial records as a "joiner". This does not mean that he devoted himself to the affairs of Plymouth's Chamber of Commerce, Rotary club or lodge of Elks. Instead it was the style of the day for a man who did cabinet work.

A & Plymouth

Four years of the founding of Plymouth, Alden moved to Duxbury, eight miles from Plymouth. This was America's first suburban development. Here he cleared a farm of 169 acres and in 1653 built the house that is still standing. By 1665 Alden, after many years of membership in the Colonial council, was appointed deputy governor. Not bad for a man whose only reason for sailing on the Mayflower was to care for the casks of salt meat, beer and water. When he died he left 33 shillings worth of furniture, to wit: one table, one form (i.e., bench) one cupboard, two chairs, bedsteads, chests and boxes. Probably most of these pieces were of his own make but unfortunately none of them has survived that can be identified as genuine John Alden furniture. On the other hand, it is fairly safe to consider that what he did make was just about like the pieces of American furniture made prior to 1687, the year of his death.

John Alden was not the sole citizen of Plymouth trained to furniture making. About 1629 there arrived from the Old Country Kenelm Winslow, brother of Governor Edward Winslow, who played such an important part in the affairs of the Pilgrims even from the days of the Leyden sojourn. Kenelm was one of the youngest of the five Winslow brothers all of whom left their native Droitwich in Worcestershire, England for the Plymouth settlement. He was born on April 29, 1599, and thus was 30 years old when he reached the New World. Evidently he had learned his trade in the home land and did not adopt a new calling on reaching Massachusetts, for there is an entry dated January 6, 1633, in which he is styled "joiner." It also shows that he was prosperous enough to have a helper for it concerns the indenture to him of Samuel Jenny as an apprentice.

Edward Winslow

Further study of this second Plymouth furniture maker discloses him to have been chosen, in 1640, town surveyor. The next year for neglect of highways he is fined ten shillings. Then he quit Plymouth and betook himself to Marshfield where in 1637, he had obtained a grant of land. With this shift of abode Kenelm seems to have abandoned his trade for thereafter the records refer to him as a planter and sometimes interested in shipping. On September 13, 1672, while on a visit to Salem he died and was buried there.

Like Alden, with whom he may have worked for all we know, Winslow did not mark the products of his hand. So we do not know for a certainty just what furniture he made. There is a possibility that a sample of his skill may still survive. In Pilgrim Hall, Plymouth, is Governor Edward Winslow's wainscot chair. This the catalogues describe as "made in Cheapside, London in 1614," but careful students now question this statement. They are prone to feel that instead of being made of English oak the wood is New England light oak. If this be true, then quite possibly it was made by no other person than the Governor's brother, Kenelm. To prove or disapprove this beyond doubt is a task that should be undertaken by some qualified student of old furniture. It is a challenge not to be overlooked.

But while Alden was quietly going his way on his Duxbury farm and Winslow was concerning himself with crops and ships at Marshfield, things were happening in other parts of New England and hap-

Household Goods Should Be Useful

Furniture must have a practical utility. It may possess every decorative asset for which the home maker has longed, but unless it serves a useful purpose, it does not belong in the usual home. A sideboard, for instance, must hold the table silver and linens, and without a capacity for this, it lacks justification. The well furnished home is not a museum.

Size must also be considered. If each piece of furniture appears to fit into the complete picture formed by the room, as though it were built to its measure as is the fixed background—walls, floors, ceiling, fireplace and doors, a correctly proportioned or scaled room is inevitable. At Owens and Brumley you will find that standardized sizes have been produced to meet the needs of the typical modern house. In the olden days before any but the gentry lived in houses or mansions, the scale was much greater than today. An interesting development is the period furniture, adapted to the small line of the modern room. This line and form used by the masters is followed meticulously, but the scale or proportion has been reduced to conform more completely to 20th century back grounds.

A well chosen piece of furniture may be used when a family that has prospered moves from a large house to a small one. This is particularly true of chairs, but it is also true of all other articles. For example a drop leaf table with gate legs or pedestal base may become a reading table when a full sized dining room suite is purchased.

Use polishes sparingly. After all elbow grease is the best polisher of them all.

Control of Moths In Upholstering

There are a number of insect which have a taste for upholstered furniture. Two of the principal ones are the clothes moth and the tobacco beetle. The clothes moth eats the fabric, the tobacco beetle destroys the stuffing of the furniture. The latter is called the book lice which swarm from the stuffing are more annoying than the former.

The new mohair furniture for moth is protected for the most part. The safest method is to give the furniture often to prevent the moth from getting on it. Give the cloth a stiff wash with a whisk broom. The even newly hatched larvae are crushed by this process. Attention should be paid to the pockets, in dark corners as well as to the part of the wall.

When moths in adult form appear, which are seen flying about the house, particularly in the late summer. They damage furniture. However, they lay as many as 200 eggs which hatch in 5 or 10 days into tiny larvae. These larvae have developed jaws and feed on mohair is their special food.

Tobacco Beetles
Beetles usually injure material only to get to the stuffing. While destroying the stuffing is not noticed and is not harmful to the moth. The best treatment after is to send for an expert fumigate. Baking is effective.

Decorating A Young Girls Own Room

Our young girls usually like furniture with straight, slender lines made of some light colored wood or painted one of the soft, silvery grays, blues or lavenders. Blush-pink is sometimes used on youthful furniture and apple green delights young girls, if you are sure to give them curtains pink gingham, linen, or taffeta, with pure white net or scrim against the sash—and an apple blossom effect!

We know of daffodil rooms in which a lovely yellow and stem green are combined. In fact one mother with half dozen daughters, in the spring of their years has taken a flower for each room and the family always says "You will find it in the Primrose room or Rose room" meaning the room of the girl choosing the flower as a motif.

One modern girl—ultra modern—whose room is much discussed has used colors of the more sophisticated sort. She goes in for crimsons, royal purple, orange and emerald green and shade her lamps with plain natural colored parchment paper, which she drops over square of chiffon, a hole cut in the center.

Every young girl likes a three winged mirror on her dressing table. We think her very wise. The hair most carefully arranged is going to look most attractive and the hat put on at an angle of most charm if the girl is able to inspect herself at all directions.

As to the wood of your girls furniture. That depends on the style of the season. These styles change and the alert young lady will follow style by getting some friend who is handy at saw and hammer to keep the room in best taste. Any girl who is keen can keep an intelligent view of the furniture problem.

Those who live with young people know that half of the battle of order is won when the room is provided with a place for everything. But a new room in order starts the task with a pride that can be maintained.

Saws Have Played Important Part In Making Furniture

No one knows definitely where saws were first used, but they are along with the wheel one of man's greatest inventions. With out the simple cutting tools, furniture, houses, and most other products of civilization could not be made. It is established, however, that they are one of the first tools used by man. Man used saws before the discovery of metal, and it is generally conceded that nature provided the inspiration for the use.

The first saw used in making furniture was in the Grecian period when Perdix used the jaws of a serpent or fish and then produced an imitation by iron.

In modern furniture, the most important instrument is the saw. The thing that gives beauty and form to the products are the small steel bands that shape and mold all types of household goods.

Chippendale Was Master Craftsman And Real Seller

Best Furniture Maker of All Ages Took Advantage of Print To Sell

SETS STYLE FOR TODAY

Picture if you can, an exclusive furniture shop on Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D. C. Along the curb are parked a goodly number of automobiles of the most costly make; each with its liveried chauffeur and footman and its crest of arms on the door.

While chauffeurs and footmen lounge and doze outside, in the shop their masters and mistresses, representing the elite of Washington's social life, are sipping tea and discussing the latest gossip, viewing meanwhile the newest furniture creations.

Picture this if you can and you have some idea of the shoppe of Master Thomas Chippendale of 60 St. Martins Lane, London about the year 1760. For Chippendale's "The Greatest English Cabinet and Furniture Maker" was not only a master artist at his trade, but he was a master-salesman.

To be a master salesman, he not only made good furniture, but also made choice gossip of the day and was equally good at both. When he advertised, his cards were objects of envy; and on the occasion a duel to death was fought over the possession of a card or invitation to one of his exclusive exhibitions.

He is credited as being one of the first men to advertise furniture. His first catalogue "The Gentleman and Cabinet Makers Director" is generally considered one of the forerunners of modern furniture advertising.

Clever a psychologist as he was he realized that people love to hear gossip. When he published this book it added much to his reputation. His shoppe became a veritable club for belles beaux and dandies of the day. They did not realize that they would be forgotten, and this insignificant little man would be remembered as long as English civilization lived.

He was a man who made furniture tradition, and a man who can make modern furniture men proud of their trade. To his receptions came the lords and ladies of the land. It is said that many of an important event in the history of England was decided in his parlour. King George III according to tradition developed his campaign against the rebellious colonies in America while sipping Chippendale's tea. Some historians even claim that he used to meet the lovely lady Sarah Lennox there, had not a broken leg and Court diplomacy intervened he probably would have married her, and never have been so harsh with the colonies.

Chippendale was kept busy creating new designs for his wealthy patrons. Men vied each other in purchasing his latest designs. And like a good salesman and advertising agent, he catered to their tastes, no matter how weird or fanciful they might be. Yet in spite of this his furniture never partook of ornateness and ginger-bready effect which characterized some of the contemporary designs. The styles are reasonable and artistic.

Today it is extremely difficult to label a chair or any other furniture as an authentic Chippendale. Authorities differ in opinions, for that reason they classify the style as "After the style of Chippendale" unless the records are absolutely worthy.

Chippendale was first of all an artist, a member of society of Arts; and, in each piece of furniture that he was permitted to design unhampered by client, he displayed that love of the flowing line which makes the word Chippendale synonymous with beautiful.

His styles fall into three styles: Gothics, French and Chinese. Each over laps a little representing a current fashion. The chair have there characteristics. They are Riband back, Ladder Back and all-over patterns. The first take their name from the cabriole or bandy leg and the splat or center bar was pierced or scrolled. The second resembled the ladder-hence ladder back, they are popular today. The all-over style is the most used now. It has parallel bars and Fretted or Chinese patterns, and usually straight legs.

Wood Turning Is Old Trade In West

Wood turning is one of the oldest trades on record. However, it is fast disappearing through the use of modern machinery, machinery designed for quantity production. The are probably originated in Egypt, and was brought from there to the East, to Greece and then to Rome. Among all the trades, furniture men boast that it is the only one that was ever consistently practiced by kings. During the 17th century, Kings and princes—even queens took great pride in their craftsmanship. The example of the furniture made by royalty is a great premium today.

The making of furniture by wood turning is done by two distinct methods—cutting and scraping. The cutting method is used by professional wood turners, and preferred by cabinet makers. It is faster than scraping and used in most modern furniture.

The scraping method is easier to learn and safest for the amateur furniture maker. The furniture of the Owens and Brumley Store is the product of professional and probably the best example of the ingenuity of modern turners of machinery made woods.

It is true that teachers receive little pay, but think of all the good moral advice they get from the school board.

Old timers had more get-up. No modern youth can clerk for five years at $30 a month and then start a store of his own.

What's in a name? A man by the name of Damrich has just been admitted to a poor house in Illinois.

Fortunate is the farmer who can look to a couple of husky sons and a sensible wife and willing daughter for relief instead of to the government.

of the resident section now stands. Like his partner, he has witnessed the surprising growth of this small village. He watched all the trials and struggles of the community, and as one of its pioneers he helped along in all of the trials that faced the city.

In the early days, when water was a problem more severe than it is at the present, he helped to dig the well that was in the city square and erect the windmill that pumped water into the city trough. After the start of the oil boom that swept the city from its feet in a few weeks, Mr. Owens entered the business as an oil operator. It was during this boom that he organized the Vaughn Oil Co.

This company was one of the most successful of its type during the high part of the boom. The company once controlled a large acreage in and near the city.

Mr. Owens and his associate Mr. Brumley, are capable business men. They have demonstrated this by the continuous expansion of their business, and by their interest in the things that have always made for a better Burkburnett. The spirit recommends them to the people of the city.

Employ Nine People

The firm has on the payroll nine persons, including the two owners who act in an executive and managerial capacity. These persons are all citizens of Burkburnett and expend the income that they receive in this city. This salary lists averages more than $200.00 per week, and more than 25 persons in the community depend directly on this income for a livelihood.

The firm maintains and uses eight motor vehicles in the city. These vehicles include two hearses, two ambulances, two furniture trucks, and spend on an average of more than $150.00 per month on the up-keep and expenses on the vehicles. This expense is with local firms and independent dealers that are supporting the city. Amounting to more than $1,800 per year the firm contributes to local enterprise in its own business expense.

Service and Advice

There are hundreds of interesting and vital facts concerning furniture which consumers may learn, just as they have learned about vitamins and calories in food. If these facts become generally known, the results will be greater discrimination and the economy in buying and more charming, suitable and comfortable furnishings in the home.

The home expresses the personality of its occupant and reveals far more about the occupant than most people realize. It stamps a person as possessing or lacking taste. The development of good taste is a matter of instinct plus education.

For that reason the Owens and Brumley firm have year after year offered their services to the clients in the best of their knowledge about furniture and hardware that goes to make up the home. In addition to this service they have not been content to give only their own opinions. Many experts such as home economists and decorators and interior experts have been brought to Burkburnett at their expense, so that the women of the city might have the best of expert advice in making a home and maintaining that home at an optimum of efficiency.

Thinking men and women want backgrounds that interpret them to their friends, and they prefer that the interpretation be worthy. They also want them correct for their own personal satisfaction.

The factors in the composition of a buying plan for a home include suitability, appropriateness of color scheme, relation of the furniture to architectural background, and the amount of money available. The average person has very little knowledge of how to balance these factors into a satisfactory whole.

That is why the Owens and Brumley firm have operated for your convenience. They will be more than willing to help any one take all the factors into consideration and help you achieve the best results. Good furniture means satisfaction. Since most structural fault and detail is hidden from view, the integrity of the dealer is more than merely an advantage—it is a necessity. That is why it is necessary to enlist the aid of the most intelligent and responsible merchant in your community. If you consult such a merchant you know his integrity guarantees you results.

Oak Is Sturdiest Of All Furniture Woods In History

"Sturdy as an Oak". What school boy doesn't know this monarch of the forest as the symbol of strength and character? In a multitude of hal- loved associations, Oak has rooted itself deep in the affections of man, and from the earliest days of recorded history, has been highly valued for its utility and beauty, with the widest range of use of any known wood.

There was even a law in the ancient "Twelve Tables" concerning the ownership of acorns, should they by any chance fall upon another man's ground. Scattered throughout the countries of the old world are individual Oaks, preserved and treasured through centuries because of some incident or ceremony that took place beneath their wide spread branches.

The extraordinary strength of Oak made this wood most servicable to primitive man, and as civilization refined itself, and found room for expressions of beauty, this same durability led woodcraftsmen to trust their finest inspirations to the staunch fibre of Oak. In the middle age, Oak Shrines, halls, churches and public edifices of matchless beauty were created that still stand in good preservation today.

When the famous London bridge was stricken down in 1827, Oak piles from the old foundation were found, apparently as sound as when driven over 600 years before that time. Breakwaters in the Severn England, are still in use, whose Oak piles were driven by Romans 2000 years ago. Ancient shipwrights found that elbowed branches, knotted, gnarled made excellent ship timbers, to protect brave men who "went down to sea in Ships."

From the time when massive furniture and beams of Oak graced the halls of mediaveal nobility, through periods of more delicate design, to the present day, dominated by the demand for utility, Oak remains the wood you can trust, and the wood by which others are judged. As strong as Oak, as beautiful as Oak, and enduring as Oak are expressions that are common. You never grow tired of Oak. It never mars by scars, rather scars seem like marks on a man point of character.

But in the good old days around Burk the horse and buggy didn't run out of gas five miles from a filling station.

When you see glass in the street it is difficult to say whether there has been an auto crash or some kid dropped a milk bottle.

America is said to be holding its own in foreign markets, although there has been some evidence that she is only holding the bag.

Many a Burkburnett man who has had to pay dearly for experience thinks the price was boosted on him.

ing was the Gothic period, 100 to 1500. Then the Italian Renaissance, rapidly followed by the French Renaissance and then the Spanish Renaissance. Later the Dutch and Flemish styles which originated in Holland and Flanders, followed rapidly by Louis XIV, XV and XVI, which brings us to about 1830. At that time, we have the Empire period inspired by Napoleon Bonaparte of France. Then the Elizabeth period, sometimes called the Tudor style. Then we have the early Jacobean period and William and Mary period along with the Queen Anne period, followed later by the early Georgian period, a style similar to Queen Anne. In this we find the most admired Georgian or canopy bedstead with its four posters which reach almost to the ceiling and is highly decorated with unique hand carvings of birds and beasts and animals of pre-historic origin. The last of the great designers is Thomas Chippendale and George Hepplewhite.

Care For New Furniture

One of the problems that the modern house wife in this area of the state meets constantly, is "How to keep furniture New." The dust and smut of the area make this almost impossible. However, there are a few things to remember.

Varnish finishes should never be dusted with pressure. We can assume that ninety percent of the present day pieces are flat or "dull rub" finishes. If using so called, dustless duster, always wipe of the furniture with the grain of the wood. If dusted with a down duster, then do the same. Remove finger marks with moist cheese cloth rag on which a few drops of some good furniture cleaner has been applied.

Stroke or wipe with the grain until the surface will appear smoky from moisture. Then clean off with new, soft, but absolutely clean rag. Remember that too much friction brings back polish, and in a few months the furniture will be almost a high polished as possible instead of mat surfaced.

Open pore finishes, as a rule, are shellac and wax or wood lacquer and wax. Clean these by putting a bit of wax on a turpentine cloth and wiping the same, and then rub briskly back to polish.

In cleaning upholstery vacuum cleaners should be used. But down filled cushions should not be cleaned this way. One half of cake of neutral soap and a quart of boiling water will provide a good scrubber for some cloth surfaces, tapestry, rep, denim, and others.

When joints become loose from excessive moisture, it is well to remember that glue sticks to wood better than to the harden glue left on surface. Therefore all glue should be scraped off before repair starts.

Copper Is Most Used Metal In Home Today

One of very first metals that you and I became acquainted with in our early days was copper. The pennies that we beg from mother and father and all other willing victims were made of this ductile metal. It had mysterious power then. We just went into the store and trade it for an all day sucker or stick of candy. We thought the store owner was mighty crazy to do such a thing.

In earlier days than that we had contact with the metal in the form of safety pins, but we don't remember much about those days. There is a real thrill to be had in the knowledge, however, that every thing from pins to Paris Green, from cathedral roofs to the bottom of ships is made from copper.

At the side shows of carnivals you will see a flea pulling a toy cannon with a human hair—get wise the hair is a small strand of copper wire. Yet this is one of the oldest and most valued metals in the world. It was beaten and molded into jewelry and dishes before the days of written history. Even today it is the highest prized metals among the savage tribes. We remember the Africans at the Chicago fair that had the tall strands of copper wiring around their neck.

Go to the Owens-Brumley store and look around at the things that you use in your home made from copper. Hot water tanks, the electric door bells, bronze screenings, brass rods for draperies, Sheffield silver, coffee urns, bird cages, snake drains, stoves, irons, beds, water spigots, dishwashers, cloth washing machines.

Thousands of other daily necessities are made from the bright red metal. Even the gold in your jewelry the metal in the nickel and silver money. Where would the marble machines be without it? There are 309 varieties of brass and copper, and 550 alloys including those of aluminium, manganese and nickel.

Living In Gardens And On The Lawns

Living out of doors is more and more a matter of course, and each year offers more exacting standards of comfort and ease. The old garden bench with its narrow seat and ridges that ate into the back is a thing of the past, and the lawn swing even the dear old joggling board dear to Southerners, have been supplanted by furniture that is no one bit less than the furnishings of one's living room.

Yet modern outdoor furniture has all the ability to withstand the vagaries of the weather. The most luxurious of all these developments is the addition of wheels to lawn furniture. Any patch will serve on a good lawn, but the sun may change places in morning and evening.

The modern habit of making the furniture of aluminium means that a derrick is not required to move the fixtures. This has added much comfort and health today.

These garden spots may be used for eating, sleeping or parties. They form a delightful setting for such activities, especially the party. But we don't want our party to be uncomfortable. The temporary arrangements we have made in the past are no longer necessary.

The garden can become as permanent a part of our home as the dining room. For instance the so-called cabana or garden seat has a generous canopy and wide bridge table. The settees are available that have soft water proof cushion. Swing can be comfortable hammock like forms with much more stability than the hammock. Enjoy life this summer in your garden.

Bird Houses Increase Beauty and Health of Community Homes

While the community is thinking of the special event in celebration of this week, there is one subject that might aptly be discussed that might add both to the beauty and health of our homes. Birds appeal strongly to the interest and affection of man kind. Not only do they charm by their graceful forms, harmonious colors, sprightly actions and usually pleasing notes, but they have a more important claim upon our esteem.

Because of the birds great economic value, they should receive our attention. Birds feed upon practically all insect pests. They are voracious, and able to move freely from place to place and therefore constantly keep down the swelling of insect life. Where methods have been taken to attract and protect birds, there has been an increase several fold in their population, and losses from insects greatly reduced.

Therefore the affection for bird should manifest itself in the provision of homes for them. The origin of the nest box idea places the date many centuries back. Even in the cradle days of the human race, we find Asia Minor using the dove and pigeon carrying messages. The early colonists in America found the Indians stripping the trees to their bare trunks and swinging gourds for nesting.

In 1926 we had the average of one pair of birds per acre in the United States, but through an experiment it was found they could easily increase the number in suburban, residential, and park areas to about 100 pairs. This is partly done through correct housing and protection from enemies.

Construction of Bird Houses
A well built bird house should be durable, rainproof, cool, and easily accessible from clearing. Wood is the best material. Cypress, pine or yellow poplar are preferable. Rough slabs with bark furnish cheap, satisfactory material for rustic houses. Metals should be avoided. It is an excellent conductor of heat.

Where rustic affect is not sought, paint is unobjectionable. Modest tones, brown, gray or dull green are preferred. Martin houses and other ones that are placed in exposed situation may be painted white to reflect the heat. The pitch of the roof should be made so that it will shed rain water readily, and they should be ventilated properly. That is open and clean.

The protection includes location. Study the birds of your area, and from their habits locate your houses. Keep them protected from the severest weathers, and you will find that their presence adds to the beauty of your home.

PLANT A TREE

Furniture of Tomorrow Will Be Made From Tree You Plant Today

One of the many national problems that confronts us today is reforestation. What are we going to do when the magnificent forests that are now rapidly dwindling away under the lumberman's ax, are exhausted.

Where will the people of 2035 get their wood for furniture? No one wants to live in a civilization of cold stone and steel. We must plant more trees.

Any one that plants a tree, no matter where, is a public benefactor. Perhaps you have no place where you could plant a tree. But you can give support to the movement. Along the highways of Texas there will be planted thousands of trees next year. Why not help in this movement?

We are living in the brass age. People have brass enough to ask Uncle Sam for anything.

For antique pieces a mixture of two parts turpentine and one part linseed oil is recommended. This should be applied with a soft cloth and rubbed or polished until arms are exhausted.

Ink and rust stains can be removed by a solution that includes tablespoons of biocarbonate dissolved in a pint of boiling water. Then add water to neutralize.

Refrigerators Play Important Parts In Modern Homes

Food Preservation One Of The Most Valuable Functions Of Home Maker

MORE CONVENIENT

Refrigerators with built in convenience is one of the most modern developments of the furniture maker of this day. It is a long reach to the old days when a spring or a dampened cloth provided all the refrigeration for the home.

Not long ago an automatic refrigerator offered merely shelves, to set things on and trays for freezing ice cubes—with of course, the proper for freezing ice and keeping food cold. The exact temperature was determined when the refrigerator was installed, and could not be changed without calling the service man.

Deserts and ices froze slowly. You made tomorrow's frozen deserts today—and it took hours to replace the ice cubes used for this afternoon's bridgeparty. There were no containers for foods—you simply put most of the foods on wire shelves.

Today there must be trays to put food in. No refrigerator is complete without them. If they are not with the box, you must shop around and find them. Automobiles were once that way. You bought a car and then you looked around for speedometers, horns, and tire racks. But now the car comes equipped.

Complete Units

Much the same thing has happened to the refrigerators. The essentials are made into your refrigerators and made to fit that particular box. The temperature control made it possible for you to get your deserts and ices frozen quickly. If you are to be away for a week you turn the switch to the proper point, and it keeps the temperature at the proper point with a minimum of operation, and greatest economy.

Further, instead of buying various holders for foods, you have these units in the box. This means an orderly refrigerator. It means saving space and the best possible care of food. The storage space is carefully planned, and with protection of the food arranged according to the needs of that type of food.

If your refrigerator is not conveniently located, it will cause you a lot of extra steps. Call in an expert kitchen planner, and he will help you find the best place in your kitchen. The kitchen is the woman's kingdom, she should make it a place to be proud of at all times.

Making A Summer Home Comfortable

If you are one of those individuals whose vacation period will make it possible for you to go to the great lakes and spend weeks in lazy programs of recreation on mountains in more strenuous exercises, you should not read this article. But if you have only a week or two to slip away from town, and must live in your home most of the summer, this article is for your comfort.

To start with in the summer, dispose of all superfluous furniture. During the hot months, you want plenty of space. Such articles as pictures, bric-a-bac and etc. Create a sense of coziness in the winter and heat in the summer. Then buy a lot of flower containers. You can't have enough flowers in the summer. They create a psychology of fresh coolness.

Living Room

We will begin with the living room. Roll up the rugs. Store them in a good place. Then buy long strips of Chinese matting. Put this in two long strips up and down your room. Or put down inexpensive summer rugs from your local store. Then remove the heavy draperies. Put up cool chintz or leave only glass containers.

Not many of us can store the upholstery, but place over it covers of green or white. Slip on the pillows that you feel you must leave in the room, bright colors of red or striped turkish toweling. They are smart.

Lamp shade of parchment will make everyone think you a sophisticate and be neat, cool looking. But green cellophane is the best type. Take down the long paintings. They are too heavy for the summer mind. Put a piece of famed chintz back in its place.

Dining Rooms

After you have completed the living room. Make your dining room a place for lingering by cool suggestiveness. First remove the display silver. Bare dark wood of a side board appears very woody and suggests coolness. If there is a rug there, store it also. The coolest dining rooms have perfectly bare wooden floors. Take away the draperies and invest in some of those cool porch matting curtains. If possible light summer tables and chairs will add more to coziness than all the swimming pools in the state.

History of Furniture—

pening with startling speed. Between 1629 and 1640 there was a mighty wave of migration from the western counties of old England to the Massachusetts Bay colony and other parts of New England. Well to do merchants, land owners, artisans and professional men left the mother country in alarming numbers. In 1643, the United colonies of New England made up of thirty-nine towns with a total population of 24,000 came into being. Soon their settlements reached from Greenwich, Conn., to Saco, Maine, and coastal New England was a region of boom towns with work and opportunity for everybody who would abide by the strict meeting house dominated oligarchy that was the law of the land.

Prosperous Days

By 1650 the probate courts were handling estates as large as two thousand pound sterling, relatively as much money as half a million dollars today. Skilled laborers were paid 16 shillings a day and prosperous joiners were coming over from England with their families and apprentices. Roger Mason arrived in Boston in 1635 with his wife and four children and in 1637, Samuel Dix, Joyner, and his wife, two children and two apprentices, William Storey and Daniel Lindsey. This same year Edward Johnson of Canterbury, England, reached Boston with his wife, seven children and three servants. Quite evidently Johnson was a cabinet maker of definite worldly wealth.

So it went. The records are full of the arrival of furniture makers of this sort. Sometimes, like Sergeant Stephen Jacques, the man who built the meeting house at Newburyport, these men are described as builders as well as makers of furniture. Unfortunately what pieces they made out of the oak, maple, pine, chestnut and ash that grew, so to speak, right beside their workshops, can only be determined by those examples that are now preserved in museums. These include tables, chairs, stools, benches, settles, chests big and little, as well as writing boxes and Bible boxes.

Although bedsteads were in common use in New England from the start they were evidently very simple frames, for in 1633, in Plymouth old bedsteads are valued as low as two shillings each, and none of these early examples seemed to have survived. The earliest the writer knows of, is the folding bedstead dating from about 1700, now in the metropolitan museum in New York. It is made of maple with two tall posts and a framework at the head to support the voluminous hangings that were considered part of every well furnished bed. A study of the antique shows one how the lower part swung up under the framework that supported the headboard draperies. In the Metropolitan there is also a cradle of American make, of oak with paneled sides not unlike the chests of the period. It dates from 1625 to 1675 and shows how simple were the tastes of the day. Except for the turnings of the corner posts and parallel lines of beading on the rails it is without ornamentation.

Simplicity

Simplicity again is the keynote of the oldest known American table. It dates from about 1650 and may also be seen in the museum. The top is a single plank of pine, twelve feet long and the three part under-structure connected by a long pinned in single stretcher is of oak. It is not known just where in New England this table was made, but it can be considered a typical of the dining table in use for a long time thruout all of the American colonies. It is distinctly Elizabethan if not Gothic in line and its execution is simplicity itself.

Simplicity also ruled in the matter of the stools, benches and settles that took the place of chairs in the average New England house before the dawn of the 18th century. The stools were simple three or four legged affairs of the general sort that had been used in England for several hundred years. The benches and settles were plain board structures, the latter with high backs and side pieces designed for warding off the chill drafts that were prevalent in those illy built and inadequate heated New England homes.

Of chairs there are two varieties. The "great" chair, a carved wainscot constructed piece of furniture elaborately ornamented, was evidently only possible for a man of means. Such is the one known as the Brewster chair, a veritable archiepiscopal throne for the man who ruled the Plymouth colony for a generation. Then there were the simple arm chairs made of turned uprights and spindle backs, with either a rush seat or one of woven splints. Later slats replaced the spindles of the backs and the seat back chair came into being. This typically American type continued to be made throughout New England until about the time of the Mexican War.

Chests

Chests because of the manifold uses to which they were put, were the chief pieces of furniture in New England homes for the first 75 years. At first there were many that were brought over from the old country, but the frequency with which the earliest of the New England homes burned down seems to account for the rarity of English-made chests of this period. At first the this-country-produced chests were practically like those from the old home land, only simpler. Then suddenly in the hinterland of the Connecticut River Valley, chest making along lines that were distinctly original commenced. For many years it has been known that two distinct types of these chests were made. One was called the Connecticut and the other Hadley. Careful study of the carved ornamentation of these two examples led to the belief that they were the work of two different men, but who they were or where they lived remained unknown until but a half dozen years ago when Luke Vincent Lockwood of New York obtained possession of a two-drawer chest ornamented with an elaborately carved all over design on the front. On the back of the lower drawer of the chest is written in seventeenth century handwriting.

First Furniture

"Mary Allyns Chistt Cutte and Joyned by Nich Disbrowe."

This is the earliest piece of American furniture of proven origin. Mary Allyn, for whom this chest was made was the daughter of Colonel John Allyn, secretary of the colony. She was born in Hartford in 1657 and died in 1724. In 1686 she married William Whiting.

Of Nicholas Disbrowe we can only find the following data: He was born at Walden, Essex County, England, in 1612-13 and was a property owner in Hartford, Conn., by 1639, where he lived at the north end of Burr street, now North Main street. He married Mary Bronson in 1640 and 20 years later obtained permission to vbuild a 16 foot square shop on the highway. For service in the Pequot War on May 11, 1671, Disbrowe was granted 60 acres of land. Likewise he held the office of "chimney viewer" in 1647, 1655, 1663 and 1669. In 1665 Disbrowe was surveyor of highways, and on March 6, 1672-3 at the age of 60, he was freed from military service.

In Mr. Lockwood's opinion, Disbrowe was no ordinary carver and his design is distinguished by undulating bands of carved tulips flowing from stiles to rails without breaking. In writing about the Allyn chest in his book, "Colonial Furniture in America," he points out that Disbrowe's designs were carefully worked out to fit the individual piece and no two pieces are identical.

Hadley Chests

Of the Hadley chests, Mr. Lockwood states that they were made by Captain John Allis of Hadley Mass., Capt. Allis' mother was a niece of Nicholas Disbrowe, thus the maker of the Hadley chest was Disbrowe's grand-nephew. The Hadley chests were similar to the Disbrowe style and quiet possible. Allis saw the Mary Allyn chest as well as others made by his mother's uncle. Allis survived Disbrowe by only six years, and then his widow married Samuel Belden, and his son Ichabod not only married his step-father's daughter but went into partnership with him, forming the firm of Belden and Allis, builders, in 1702, of the meeting house at Hadley, Mass.

Thus the first American furniture of identified craftsmanship is more or less a family affair and produced in a region which, less years previously, had been less wilderness. At the time that these two men were making and carving their unknown were making some improvement. Under their chest was becoming a chest of drawers of oak with ornamentation covering the ends is in the Metropolitan Museum was made sometime between 1650 and 1700.

LUCKY THIRTEEN

Folks are saying how lucky the firm of Owens and Brumley is in celebrating its thirteenth year of successful operation.

A lot of factors go into making so-called luck of this kind. It is not difficult to understand the type of luck which has brought this company to the top rank, for the members of it have ever been ready to back their home town and its citizens.

As the utility company which serves its electrical needs, we congratulate Owens and Brumley on its success.

It is with extreme pleasure that we take notice of the Thirteenth Anniversary of Owens and Brumley

We feel a pride in the fact that we have been serving them for the past eight years. Their business integrity has never been questioned, and we are looking forward to many years of pleasant business dealings.
