extended from Minnesota, across Ontario, to Labrador. Nobody but geologists make the statement with confidence. They say these mountains were the oldest mountains on the contiment; that they were old when the Rockies were yet unformed; that the glacial drift and the disintegrating effects of untold millions of years of heat and cold have worn them away until only "the "roots" remain; and they point to the roots ws proof of their theory.

The roots are there. Anybody can see them. Some of them are below the surface, some are above. Over most of the roots are a few feet of earth, but, here and there, a huge shoulder of rock thrusts itself above the surface; here and there a great ledge plows its way through the forests and then disappears in the marsh; and nowhere can one dig far without coming to rock. A singular incident explains, perhaps, why these mountain roots were not permitted to remain untouched for another hundred million years. The incident had its inspiration in politics. The Ontario government felt that it was losing strength with the farmers. Wise men in the ministry looked around to see what could be done. The farmers in the "clay belt" had been clamoring for a railroad. The ministry decided that it would be good politics to give it to them. So it was decided to build a railroad from North bay, on the shores of Lake Nipissing, to connect with the great transcontinental line, under construction farther north. It was wille this railroad was building that

Fred La Rose, a member of the construction gang, blasted his way into an old mountain root, made himself rich, made Cobalt, made more than a score of multimillionaires and caused Canada, which had produced almost no silver, to produce 12 per cent, of the world's output. Two men, in six days, trundled out $57,000 worth of silver with a wheelbarrow. As an indirect result Sudbury became the world's chief producer of nickel.

All of which seemed to be against the rules made and provided by nature. Canada had never been known as a silver country. Near Cobalt there was nothing on the surface to indicate that silver might be near. But no eye had seen below the surface. No mind had dreamed of the gold and silver filled roots of worn-off mountains. An explanation was required-and geologists who examined the formations gave it.

The geological assurance that the entire re-quickly caused the country around Cobalt to be prospected. But prospecting in forest-covered marshes does not proceed rapidly. Not until the summer of 1909 did prospectors push 250 miles northward, to the region of Porcupine lake.

There is about as much uncertainty with retors headed by Jack Wilson, Wilson, or one of his subordinates-no two reports on this point are alike-found the great "Dome" that bears Wilson's name. The "Dome" is a ridge of rock, 550 feet long, 40 to 80 feet wide, 20 to 30 feet above ground, and no one yet knows how deep, that is heavily laden with gold. Pull the moss from it anywhere and there is gold.

Nothing in the history of gold mining better illustrates the eccentricities of gold miners than the discovery of the "Dome." The discovering party consisted of three men, headed by Jack Wilson. The expedition was financed by a Chicago man named Edwards, who was engaged in the manufacture of lighting fixtures. Edwards was to put up all the money in return for a half interest in anything that might be liscovered. Wilson was to have a quarter interest and each of the other two an eighth.

For several weeks they prospected, first to the east of Porcupine lake, in Whitney township, then to the west, in Tisdale township. They found gold and staked some claims. But the great "Dome," although they camped, some of the time, within sight of it, almost escaped them. It was finally discovered, according to the story that is generally believed, only because one of Wilson's subordinates stumbled across it. He was not a miner, knew nothing about geology, but did know enough to scrape off moss. Also, he had eyes. When the moss was off he could not help seeing the gold. The great ridge that was henceforth to be known as the "Wilson Dome" had been found. Stakes were driven and claim laid to the huge boulder.

Perhaps the most remarkable story, however, that has come out of the Porcupine was told by a prospector named "Bill" Woodney.

A mining man whom I believe to be reliable told me that Bill came to him one day and showed him a remarkably rich piece of gold quartz, at the same time asking him where he supposed it came

"Not from anywhere in Canada," was the reply. "I thought you would say that," was the comment, "but you are wrong." Then "Bill" told his story.

He said the quartz was given to him by a widow. Her husband had been accidentally killed a short time before she gave it to him. The widow told him that the quartz came from a vein near Lake Abitibi, a frigid sheet of water up toward Hudson's bay, 300 miles north of Cobalt. Her husband and gion might be sprinkled with precious metals two other men whom she named had found the vein. They had not staked their claims and registered them with the government at Toronto, because such registration would have been a notification to the world that they had found gold in the region. Winter was near when the discovery was made and they wanted to return in the spring, woman who was so soon to become a widow was seriously injured in a mill. In a few days he realized that death was near. He sent for the two prospectors who had accompanied him to Lake

"Boys," said he, "I guess I've got to die. I can't go back with you in the spring to stake the claims. I want you to promise me that if I die you will give the old woman a third of what we found last year." The men promised. The wife heard them. But she didn't believe them. The widow had told Bill who the men were. He knew them. He knew where they were working. Bill hired out in the same place. In the course of a few weeks one of them told him that they were going to quit at a certain time in the spring and take a long cance and hunting trip in the country far to the north.

That was good enough clew for Bill. Two weeks before the announced time for the men to start Woodney quit his job, packed his kit and started for Lake Abitibi himself. When he reached the lake he drew his canoe from the water, hid it in the "bush," as Canadians call a forest, and prepared to wait.

On the eighth day of his vigil, as he was peering out of the bushes, he saw the sight that he had waited so long to see. Down the placid river came two canoes, cutting their ways through the cool waters and leaving flatiron wakes in the rear.

Late in the afternoon Bill saw the two specks disappear in what seemed to be an inlet. The first night there was no fire, but the next day Bill saw a blue spiral of smoke curling from the bushes back of the lake. For five days and nights the fires burned. Then there was no more fire, day or night. Evidently the men had gone. Bill wanted to be sure, so he waited three more days. Then he went down to the lake where his canoe was hidden, put it into the water, took pains to observe that there was on the lake no sign of human life, then slowly paddled his way along the shore, looking for the inlet.

Bill was paddling as quietly as he could when, at the "knuckle" of the water finger-a point where the inlet was not more than 50 feet wide-he suddenly saw on the left bank-the two prospectors! The next instant one of them threw an ax at Bill's canoe that all but cut it in two and sunk it as quickly as a mino could sink a battleship.

Woodney doesn't know yet why he is alive. He seemed to have no chance to live. It was two against one and the one was in the water. So were his food, his weapons and his tools. If he were not murdered during the next second it seemed certain that he would starve during the next month. Not that he thought out all of these things while he was sinking. He thought out nothing. All he did was to act first and think afterward. A few strokes with his hands and a few kicks with his feet put him against the bank. No rabbit ever took a trail faster than Bill took to the brush.

The rest of this story can be told in short sentences. Hunger, within the next forty-eight hours, drove Woodney into the very camp of the men who would have slain him. He crept up to them, late at night, and stole their food. He could not steal much at a time, but he stole enough to keep him alive. He stole, not once, but three times. The next time he went to steal they were not there They had pulled up camp and gone, bag and bag gage. He took his life in his hands the next day and went down to see the claims they had staked He didn't find a stick or a sign of a claim. He couldn't even find anything himself that seemed worth claiming.

The prospectors never returned. Whether they were upset and drowned in one of the many rap ids; whether they fell to fighting and killed each other, no one knows. Nor have they ever filed s claim to ore bodies along lake Abitibl

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is, it would almost seem, to blame for her own wretchedness. Read what this woman says:

Richmond, Mo. — "When my second daughter was eighteen months old I was pronounced a hopeless invalid by specialists. I had a consultation of doctors and they said I had a severe case of ulceration. I was in bed for ten weeks, had sinking spells, and was pronounced to be in a dangerous condition. My father insisted that we try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought me six bottles. I soon began to improve, and before it bad all been taken I was as well and strong as ever,—my friends hardly recognized me so great was the change." — Mrs. Woodson Branstetter, Richmond, Mo.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what another woman says:-

Jonesboro, Texas.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for myself and daughter, and consider it unequalled for all female diseases. I would not be without it for anything. I wish every mother in America could be persuaded to use it as there would be less suffering among our sex then. I am always glad to speak a word of praise for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and you are at liberty to use this testimonial."—Mrs. James T. Lawrence, Jonesboro, Texas.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

ACTS OF THIRTY-SECOND TEXAS LEGISLATURE

Titles of the Laws Enacted During the Session of the Legislature which Adjourned Last Saturday.

Austin: The Legislature wound up with a whoop Saturday at 2 o'clock. The Governor and some of the numbers are "sore" and as irritable as hornets, and the adjournment is to these a genuine pleasure. Among the last acts of the Governor was the veto of the "Lightfoot" bill, and the sending of his final message, an ironical document, not calculated to sooth the general membership. It cannot be said that the Thirty-Second Texas Legsaid that the Thirty-Second Texas Legislature was characterized by any other features so strongly as those of practically political efforts along the lines of Baileyism and anti-Baileyism and prohibition and anti-prohibton, two er features so strongly as those of matters really largely wthout the purview of the Legislature.

The Governor has used the veto in the cases of the (1) Texarkana charter: (2) Daylight bill; (3) Bill to established cotton bagging factory; (4) Bill to lengthen scholastic age; (5) Bill to establish State normal school at Waco; (6) Bosque County road law; (7) Tyler charter; (8) The "Lightfoot bill.

Bills introduced in the House were 615; in the Senate 366. Bills passed. 105 general, of which five have already been vetoed; 177 local, of which three have been vetoed.

The following constitutional amendments were placed before the people to be voted on: For State-wide prohibition; to levy a tax for Confederate pensions, etc.; extending the tenure of office of penitentiary commismissioners to six years; to permit cities to make their own charters; permitting the Legislature to provide that the terms of office of members of the boards of State educational and elemosynary institutions, "and all other boards created by law,' shall be any number of years not more than six. It is believed that under the clause here quoted the Legislature may provide that the members of the Boards of Municipal Commissions and of School Boards may hold for any num-

Too Quick With Scorn. That marvelous story of the British expedition to New Guinea, with its discovery of a new pygmy race, reminds a writer that in the past stay-athome people have sometimes erred in treating travelers' tales with scorp. There was, for instance, the description by James Bruce in 1770 of the barbarous Abyssinian custom of eating raw meat cut from the living animal which was ridiculed by everybody. Yet Bruce has even recently been proved right. When Paul Du Chaillu explored equatorial Africa in 1861 and described the wonderful gorillas and also the nation of dwarfs there he was discredited none too politely by the British Royal Geographical society. Yet subsequent explorers amply vindlcated his veracity.

PHYSICAL WRECK RESTORED TO HEALTH BY GREAT KID-NEY REMEDY

Some time ago I began the use of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root with the most remarkable results. For years I was almost a wreck and was a great sufferer. The doctors who treated me made me believe that tors who treated me made me believe that my great sufferings were due to female trouble. I was so bad at times I would faint away and had sinking spells. Finally a new doctor was called in and he said that I had kidney trouble and gave me medicine, of which I took several bottles. I obtained some relief from this but I. this but I was getting weaker all the time; I could not sleep and suffered so much pain that my husband and children had to lift me in and out of bed. After this time two friends sent me word to try
Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which I did, and I am glad to state that the first dose gave me great relief After taking the third dose I was helped into bed and slept half of the night.

I took saves bettles of Swamp-Root

I took several bottles of Swamp-Root and I feel that I owe my life to this wonderful remedy. The two family doctors said that I could not live three months; my urine was in a terrible condition—thick and slimy—and I would have to be helped in and out of bed ten to twenty times every night. After taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for two days I was entirely free from getting up and could sleep soundly.

WOULD LIE AWAKE ALL NIGHT WITH ITCHING ECZEMA

"Ever since I can remember I was a terrible sufferer of eczema and other irritating skin diseases. I would lie awake all night, and my suffering was intolerable. A scaly humor settled on my back, and being but a child, I naturally scratched it. It was a burning, itching sensation, and utterly intelerable in fact, it was so utterly intolerable, in fact, it was so that I could not possibly forget about it. It did not take long before it spread to my shoulders and arms, and I was almost covered with a mass of raw flesh on account of my scratching it. I was in such a condition that my hands were tied.

"A number of physicians were called, but it seemed beyond their medical power and knowledge to cure Having tried numerous treatments without deriving any benefit from them, I had given myself up to the mercy of my dreadful malady, but I thought I would take the Cuticura treatment as a last resort. Words cannot express my gratitude to the one who created 'The Cuticura Miracles,' as I have named them, for now I feel as if I never suffered from even a pimple. My disease was routed by Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I marry her. shall never cease praising the wonderful merits they contain. I will never be without them, in fact, I can almost dare any skin diseases to attack me so long as I have Cuticura Remedies in the house. I hope that this letter will give other sufferers an idea of how I suffered, and also hope that they will not pass the 'Cuticura Life Saving Station.'" (Signed) C. Cardui Worked Wonders

I had sick headache," writes Mrs. Margaret L. Pheral. of Newburg, Ind., "continuous hurting in my side; was always tired, and, every month, had such pains I could hardly stand. I was treated by the best doctors in our town, for more than a year, without any help.

At last, I took Cardui, and it worked wonders. Before I had taken one bottle, I felt better. Now, I feel better than in two years, and owe it all to Cardui."

LUXURY OF BARBERING.

There is reason in this barbering habit, although it is one of luxury. Many may ask why go to the shop and perhaps waste ten or twenty minutes for one's turn and then pay ten or fifteen cents, and perhaps a tip, for a something one may have at home at comparatively no expense of money or time? The explanation is easy, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. At the shop men wait in the habit of years, for a particular chair, and while waiting discuss the latest news or gossip. There is restfulness in the waiting. Then come the luxury of the chair at a selected angle, the kindly glance and nod weather and events with the lather and the dextrous application of the keen edge, to the end of a "close shave;" then the hot towel and possibly the massage. Yes, this is a habit of lexury, but one justified by the ages, from as far back as the days of the prophet Ezekiel down through the centuries in which "The Arabian Nights" celebrated the function to the times of Edward IV. of England, who Barber-Surgeons; to the days when au sheep is almost irreparable. thor, poet and musical composer recognized the humorous features of the trade that once was a profession in that it united with it that of the chirurgeon. The habit of the barber chair is as old as some of the hills.

The statistics relating to typhoia vaccination, in the army, are both interesting and encouraging. About onesixth of the United States army was inoculated with the typhoid vaccine, and the returns show that only one person in 4,000 had the disease and none of them died, while in the unvaccinated part of the army, one out of 250 had the disease and there were many deaths. These figures are certainly very significant, and indicate that typhoid fever is going the way of smallpox, not again to become a real scourge to the country, says the Ohio State Journal. There will be, however, some serious speculation about this, as so much inoculation and vaccination as the various maladies will require, that | determining the value of the live stock men will undergo considerable change in their general makeup. If a man incorporates into his vital processes the various prophylactics intended to ward off disease, he will become a compound of resisting mediums and occupy so unnatural an attitude as to invite other troubles, for there seems to be plenty of them waiting to avail themselves of every opportunity.

A legislator in Missouri who was a friend both of Hoxsey and Johnstone has introduced a bill, inspired by the one States fighting for the insurgent tragedy of their deaths, making it an cause. Many American men in high offense under the head of "attempted suicide" for an aviator to ascend higher than 1,000 feet, and requiring a bond of $10,000 for birdmen, as a guarantee that they will not violate the law. A penalty of five years in prison is prowided. But it is little likely such a bill can pass, however much lovers of the sanctity of human life may desire it. says the Baltimore American. Experiment is always accompanied with recklessness, and while aviation is in its experimental stage, no amount of threatened punishment will deter experimenters from using their own lives they see fit in its service.

Once more the "didn't know it was loaded" joke has had a deadly result. A young man in New York city picked up a revolver which he says he thought was empty and playfully snapped the weapon at his friend and roommate, and the latter was killed instantly. The frenzied youth ran out of the house and surrendered to a policeman, and is now locked up on a charge of bomicide, says the Troy Times. Probably no one believes him guilty of any intentional crime. But even though acquitted of such a purpose, what a lifetime of self-reproach lies before him in consequence of that hasty and Ill-advised bit of humor!

The better class of Chinese in New York are trying to eliminate queues and "joss" worship from their up-todate life. Evidently, the most hidebound of the ancient nations is surrendering to modern civilization with emphasis.

Precious stones are being imported into this country in large quantities this year, not counting the ones that have been missed by the customs inspectors. It is likely to be a great year for tlaras.

STOCK YARDS FIRE SWEEPS TWO BLOCKS

Two Blocks Swept Clean, but Firemen Save Coliseum and Paking House.

Fort Worth, March 15 .- Fire, which started among the commission men's horse and mule barns on the south side of Exchange avenue, North Fort Worth from the favorite barber, the soothing at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning, swept admixture of comment upon the ten acres of building, pens and sheds as bare as the bald prairie and left the ground covered only with smoldering ashes and the half roasted carcasses of a thousand or more valuable horses, prize winning hogs and highgrade sheep and goats.

No such disastrous fire in connection with the live stock industry has ever been recorded in the Southwest. The financial loss is placed at above $350,-000, roughly estimated. The loss to the owners of the standard-bred stalin 1461 incorporated the Company of lions and the mares, mules, hogs and

Total number of head of horses, mules, sheep and hogs destroyed by the fire is given in round numbers at 1,500-the majority being hogs and sheep. Live horses in the barns numbered about 2,500, live sheep 300 and live hogs 2,000. Most of these escaped. One person claims to have counted 1,-400 carcasses of dead animals in the ashes.

It is believed that the flames were started by a lighted cigarette or cigar carelessly tossed in a pile of hay.

The buildings belonged to the Stock Yards Company and extended a distance of two city blocks. These will be rebuilt without unnecessary delay and it will be recommended that they be made fireproof. The damage to the horse and mule barns and sheep pens is estimated at $175,000, if the paving and plumbing were not destroyed. The insurance thereon will approxiimate $150,000, it is stated. Many of the best horses were also insured in varying amounts, but these have not been itemized. There is no means of that was lost in the fire.

CORPORATION TAX HELD VALID

ration Tax is Pronounced Within the Constitution.

Washington: The corporation tax provisions of the Payne-Aldrich tariff act were unanimously sustained as constitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Justice Day announced that it was within the power of the Senate to insert the corporation tax provisions in the tariff law which originated in the House, and of which the tax provisions are a part.

Justice Day said, as it appeared to thos who listened to him, that the court had the tax as an "excise tax on the doing of business," which is exactly the basis on which the Government has defended the law

Justice Day next seemed to hold that the tax provisions were not the in retaliation the revolutionary forces arbitrary exercise of power. This was urged in argument as one reason why the law should be held unconstitutional.

By regarding the tax measured by income rather than being a tax on income, the opinion seemed, as Justice Day proceeded, to hold that the law was constitutional notwithstanding the law might reach the income of nontaxable sources.

Thereby a source of income of $25. 000,000 annually was assured to the Government.

CONCENTRATION TO BE GRADUALLY BROKEN UP

SENSATIONALISTS MUST HUNT A NEW TOPIC.

NO INVASION CONTEMPLATED

American Troops on Border Merely as a Measure of Policing and in Exegency.

Washington, March 14. Sensationalists received a set back yesterday as developments tend to nulify the whole spectacular military demonstration and makes it now improbable that there will be either an invasion of Mex'co or a threat of invasion.

President Taft again assured the Mexican Government that the mobilization in Texas is not for the purpose of invasion of Mexican soil for any purpose, and he expressed deepest regrets that the anobilization should have been construed as a step toward invasion or as a threat of invasion

On the other hand, the Mexican Covernment and the great commercial intorests appear to have received some sort of assurance as to the Presidential succession in Mexico in the event of the death of President Diaz. This assurance is believed to provide for the succession of either Foreign Minister Creel or Finance Minister Limantour, probably Mr. Creel, by reason of his Mexican nativity and his connections with old and powerful Mexican families.

The order for naval vessels to take station as various Mexican ports has been rescinded and the vessels are ordered to exchange stations with other vessels at Panama and in Central American waters.

The drugs natural to the coffee ber ry affect the stomach and other organs and thence to the complex nervous system, throwing it out of balance and producing disorders in various parts of the body. Keep up this daily poisoning and serious disease generally supervenes. So when man or woman finds that coffee is a smooth but deadly enemy and health is of any value at all, there is but one road-quit.

It is easy to find out if coffee be the cause of the troubles, for if left off 10 days and Postum be used in its place and the sick and diseased conditions begin to disappear, the proof is un-

9. He awakens in lower 7 and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower 10 is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence points to both Blakeley and the man who stole his clothes. The train is wrecked and Blakeley is rescued from a burning car by a girl in blue. His arm is broken. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Blakeley returns home and finds he is under surveillance. Moving pictures of the train taken just before the wreck reveal to Blakeley a man leaping from the train with his stolen grip.
Investigation proves that the man's name is Sullivan. Mrs. Conway, the woman for whom Blakeley bought a Pullman ticket, tries to make a bargain with him for the forged notes, not knowing that they are missing. Blakeley and an amateur detective investigate the home of Sullivan's sister. From a servant Blakeley learns that Alison West had been attentive to her. Sullivan is the husband of a daughter of the murdered man. Blakeley's house is ransacked by the police. He learns that the affair between Alison and his partner is off. Alison tells Blakeley about the attention paid her by Sullivan, whom she was on her way to matry when the wreck came. It is planned to give Mrs. Conway the forged notes in exchange for Sullivan. Mrs. Conway kills herself and Bronson, and the ashes of the forged notes are found in the room.
Sullivan is found and explains how he got in the power of Bronson, who ordered him to steal the forged notes from Blakeley. got in the power of Bronson, who ordered him to steal the forged notes from Blake

"He would probably be accused of the crime. So, although when the wreck occurred I supposed everyone connected with the affair had been killed, there was a chance that you had survived. I've not been of much account, but I didn't want a man to swing because I left him in my place. Besides, I began to have a theory of my own.

"As we entered the car a tall, dark woman passed us, with a glass of water in her hand, and I vaguely remembered her. She was amazingly like Blanche Conway.

"If she, too, thought the man with the notes was in lower ten, it explained a lot, including that piece of a woman's necklace. She was a fury, Blanche Conway, capable of anything."

"Then why did you countermand that message?" I asked curiously. "When I got to the Carter house, and got to bed-I had sprained my ankle in the jump-I went through the alligator bag I had taken from made a proposition to the people of lower nine. When I found your name, sent the first message. Then so > seemed too good to be true, and I was crazy for fear the message had gone. "At first I was going to send them to Bronson; then I began to see what the possession of the notes meant to me. It meant power over Bronson, money, influence, everything. He was a devil, that man." "Well, he's at home now," said Mc-Knight, and we were glad to laugh and relieve the tension.

Alison put her hand over her eyes, as if to shut out the sight of the man she had so nearly married, and I furtively touched one of the soft little curls that nestled at the back of her neck.

"When I was able to walk," went on the sullen voice, "I came at once to Washington. I tried to sell the notes to Bronson, but he was almost at the end of his rope. Not even my threat to send them back to you, Mr. Blakeley, could make him meet my figure. He didn't have the money."

McKnight was triumphant. "I think you gentlemen will see reason in my theory now," he said. "Mrs. Conway wanted the notes to force a legal marriage, I suppose?" The detective with the small package carefully rolled off the rubber band, and unwrapped it. I held my breath as he took out, first, the Russia leather wallet. "These things, Mr. Blakeley, we found in the sealskin bag Mr. Sullivan says he left you. This wallet, Mr. Sullivan-is this the one you found on the floor of the car?" Sullivan opened it, and, glancing at the name inside, "Simon Harrington," nodded affirmatively. "And this," went on the detective-'this is a piece of gold chain?" "It seems to be," said Sullivan, re coiling at the blood-stained end. "This, I believe, is the dagger," He held it up, and Alison gave a faint cry of astonishment and dismay. Sullivan's face grew ghastly, and he sat down weakly on the nearest chair. The detective looked at him shrewd ly, then at Alison's agitated face. "Where have you seen this dagger before, young lady?" he asked, kindly enough.

"Oh, don't ask me!" she gasped breathlessly, her eyes turned on Sullivan. "It's it's too terrible!"

"Tell him," I advised, leaning over to her. "It will be found out later, anyhow ' "Ask him," she said, nodding toward Sullivan. The detective unwrapped the small box Alison had brought, disclosing the trampled necklace and broken chain. With clumsy fingers he spread it on the table and fitted into place the bit of chain. There could be no doubt that it belonged there.

"Where did you find that chain?" Sullivan asked, hoarsely, looking for the first time at Alison, "On the floor, near the murdered man's berth." "Now, Mr. Sullivan," said the detective, civilly, "I believe you can tell us, in the light of these two exhibits, who really did murder Simon Harrington."

Sullivan looked again at the dagger. a sharp little bit of steel with a Florentine handle. Then he picked up the locket and pressed a hidden spring under one of the cameos. Inside, very neatly engraved, was the name and a date. "Gentlemen," he said his face ghastly, "It is of no use for me to attempt a denial. The dagger and necklace belonged to my sister, Alice Curtis!"

I dressed in savage haste finally and was so particular about my tie that Mrs. Klopton gave up in despair. "I wish, until your arm is better, that you would buy the kind that hooks on," she protested, almost tearfully. "I'm sure they look very nice, Mr. Lawrence. My late husband al-

I was late, of course. The drawing room and library at the Dallas country home was very empty. I could hear billiard balls rolling somewhere and I turned the other way. I found Allson at last on the balcony, sitting much as she had that night on the beach-her chin in her hands, her eyes fixed unseeingly on the trees and lights of the square across. She was even whistling a little, softly. But this time the plaintiveness was gone It was a tender little tune. She did not move, as I stood beside her, looking down. And now, when the mo ment had come, all the thousand and one things I had been waiting to say forsook me, precipitately beat a retreat and left me unsupported. The arc-moon sent little fugitive lights over her hair, her eyes, her gown,

"Don't-do that," I said unsteadily. You-you know what I want to do when you whistle!"

She glanced up at me and she did not stop. She did not stop! She

"She said, also, that her father was in our car, and that there would be clared. "I refuse to marry you unless It was probably when my sister tried to get the papers that he awakened lege: she wants to have that to look and she had to do what she did."

It was over. Save for a technicality or two, I was a free man. Alison rose quietly and prepared to go; the men stood to let her pass, save Sullivan, who sat crouched in his chair, his face bur d in his hands.

McKnight saw her, with Mrs. Dallas, to their carriage and came back again. The gathering in the office was breaking up: Johnson had slipped away as unostentatiously as he came. Sullivan, looking worn and old, was standing by the window, staring at the broken necklace in his hand. When he saw me watching him, he put it back on the desk and picked up his hat.

"If I cannot do anything more he hesitated. "I think you have done about enough," I replied, grimly, and he went out. I believe that Richey and Hotchkia led me somewhere to dinner and that, for fear I would be lonely without him, they sent for Johnson. On the morning of the 2nd at the breakfast table my boys informed me that the Students of the Texas University were going to celebrate Texas Independence day, and as my boys had a holiday, we decided to take the celebration in. As soon as we got our breakfast we pulled out for the capitiol where the students were to meet at 8;30 to get a large cannon the Adjustant General had let them have, which was stored in the basement of the Capitol. When we got there 15 or 20 of the students were at work taking the cannon out of the base ment. The cannon was about 6 or 8 feet long. Those boys had a time pulling that little gun out of the basement, but they finally succeeded. By this time the entire student body of young men had arrived.
