JUDGE AND MRS. A. C. FOSTER CELEBRATES 25th ANNIVERSARY

A most enjoyable social event was given Rule society on last Thursday evening May 4th when Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Foster threw open their spacious home to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. Some one hundred and fifty guests assembled during the evening to join congratulations and good wishes for long life and happiness for the happy host and hostess who seem to have gained youth, rather than to have lost, during the passing years.

The guests were met at the door by little Miss Actina Foster bearing card tray and Mrs. W. H. Wilson who gave them welcome, and Mrs. J. F. Jones who passed them from the hall to the receiving line composed of Mr. A. C. Foster, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. J. N. McFatter, Mr. J. L. Jones, Mrs. Jones and Mr. J. H. Lee. The whole house had on its gala attire and shone with light and beauty, the scene was one long to be remembered by the fortunate participants. White and green was the color scheme of the library where the receiving line stood under the chandelier which shed its light through a bower of honeysuckle and white roses. A beautiful jardiniere of lilies with their green foliage stood in its innocent beauty between the doorways leading to the punch room and roses in profusion every where. Sparkling vases of cut glass shone from every nook available filled with white American beauties and bride roses, vying with each other in their rare beauty. The corner mantle was a bank of delicate pink and white roses causing exclamations of praise from each and all passing. Large feathery ferns held the white draperies which separated this scene of beauty from the out side world. From the library the guests were passed by Mrs. J. B. Ragan to the punch room resplendent in green and yellow. The old square piano with its beautiful drawn work cover displayed more glittering vases filled with yellow cochet roses and added its melody of sound to the hum of merry voices. The yellow filmy festoons intertwined with fragrant honeysuckle hung from curtains and chandelier, and from the three of the room hung the honeysuckle tied with lovers knots of yellow. The punch corner was one of beauty. Under its yellow and green arch stood the punch table presided over by Misses Mildred Foster and Nell Jones, daintily sweet in white lingerie, attracting the attention and dispensing delicious fruit punch to the thirsty throng; This added the only touch needed to complete the pretty picture.

From this the guests were invited by Mrs. A. B. Mason to accompany her to the dining room. Here again the color scheme changed to pink, and the admiring gaze passed from the rose wreathed mantle, to the buffet opposite where roses and cut glass mingled and sparkled; over this two rings of pink intertwined with feathery ferns symbolized the happy occasion.

In the centre of the beautiful dining table with its cluny lace centre piece on which rested the beautiful cut glass bowl filled to the brim with pink roses reflected by the mirror beneath, over this the chandelier, from which the frilly pink radiated to the four corners of the table ending in large lovers knots. On the lovely cluny doilies were composes of bonbons which were leisurely enjoyed while waiting to register their names in the beautiful hand painted guest book, after partaking of the delicious cream and wafers served by: Misses Madge Ragan, Leudelle Flowers, and Martha Spier, Mrs. R. E. Ellis most graciously presiding.

Here again roses nestled in every conceivable place, even peeping out from behind the glass doors of the china closet, causing nature and art to hold close contest. During the evening the host held a fascinated audience while he displayed his many souvenirs and curio's gathered while touring the Holy Land last year.

Beautiful music interspersed the hum of conversation. Mrs. W. W. Rogers, Miss Boatner, and Miss Jessie Martin each lent their charm and harmony by their well rendered vocal solos which were greatly enjoyed, and Miss Ruby Fitzgerald furnished the beautiful strains of melody that rose above the merry voices and which were found lingering in the heart long after all was still. Notwithstanding the restrictions placed on the sending of presents, several beautiful gifts were received showing the heartfelt friendship that would not be suppressed. Among the out of town guests present were Judge and Mrs. Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Sherrill, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Martin, Mrs. J. N. McFatter, Misses Eula and Alice Poole, Miss Jessie Martin and Miss Ruby Fitzgerald from Haskell.

Rev. J. N. Alvis and wife from Rochester and Mrs. A. B. Mason from Sweetwater.

Winner's Day.

The losers of the Magazine club had quite a pleasant surprise in store for the winners. Last Friday Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Scott invited the club and their husbands and a few friends to a fish fry on their ranch 12 miles east of town. It is an ideal place for a picnic, plenty of shade, water, and a large rocky hill for the enthusiastic ladies to climb.

Our magnanimous host had some men go down two days before and they had plenty of fine fish and bread. The club ladies demonstrated their culinary skill by the many dainties they contributed. The children were so delighted with the boating they kept Mr. Scott rowing most all of the afternoon. Those of the party were, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Fields, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Key, Mr. and Mrs. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Fields, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Posey, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Morton, Mrs. Smith and Kennison, Mrs. Bruce Bryant, Mrs. A. M. Getz, Mrs. Lena Guest of Lockney; Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Colbert, Mrs. and Miss Penick, Mrs. Halsell and Mrs. Teakly of Stamford and Mrs. Dawson of Maybank. Every one went away indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Scott for a most delightful outing.

The Trustee election last Saturday excited no little interest. Messrs. J. J. Chitwood, C. T. Cahill and N. McNeill were elected by a large majority.

Woodson Wilrow, of New Jersey is being mentioned for democratic nomination for 1912 more than any other man. Harman of Ohio seems to be losing ground.

Socialism is picking up all the old time populists. The party may never come into power in Texas, but if it is growing all over the state like it is in this section it is making wonderful progress.

The Insurgents in Mexico have forced a promise from Diaz that he would resign as president of that republic. This old man no doubt would sacrifice half the people of Mexico or all of them rather than resign, but he sees his doom. He is the first old man we know of to give up an affair.

The Steel Trust threatens to shut down its construction of a $3,000,000 plant at Corey near Birmingham, Ala. so as to control the vote of its laborers and force the m to vote against Congressman Underwood of the Birmingham district, if they can not intimidate him otherwise. This is more of Mark Hanna's dinner pail politics. Before the American people will submit to the Trust they will either turn to socialism, abolish all private cooperations or disfranchise the labor vote by which the trusts have controlled legislators. With out the laborer vote the trusts would be powerless to elect congressmen. The dinner pail argument controls the labor vote. This condition can not last always if there is any patriotism in America.

Senator Bailey is quoted in a late interview as follows:

"Yet I will say this that if the extreme policies advocated by radicals are to dominate the democratic party and that it is to stand for the substitution of direct democracy for the representative provided in the constitution, if it is to advocate the initiative and the referendum, the right of recall and the other ideas favored by fanaticism, then Mr. Bryan will be the logical candidate of the party for president and is bound to be nominated next year. These policies are his, and it is only right to admit he has for the fourth time taught them and impressed them on the people. If the actual form of our government is to be changed and direct democracy is to take the place of our present system of representative government Mr. Bryan is honestly entitled to the leadership."

We want to compliment Mr. Bailey on this frank statement. It is a pity that his devotees are not as candid. This is one of the most sensible, frank and commendable statements Mr. Bailey has made for a long time.

The Fort Worth Record and The Farmer's Journal, a socialist paper published at Abilene, have gotten into a controversy over the right of one generation to sell municipal or government bonds to be paid by the unborn generations to follow. The Record's attitude affirms and the Journal negatives. The Journal in support of its doctrine quotes Thomas Jefferson as follows: "The question whether one generation of men has a right to bind another, seems never to have been started, yet it is a question of such consequence as not only to merit decision, but a place among the fundamental principles of every government. That no such obligations can be transmitted, I think capable of proof. I set out on this ground, that the earth belongs in usufruct to the living; that the dead have neither powers nor rights over it. No man can by natural right oblige the lands he occupied to the payments of debts contracted by him, for if he could he might eat up the usufruct of the earth for several generations to come, and then the earth would BELONG TO THE DEAD. The conclusion then is, that neither the representatives of a nation, nor the whole nation itself assembled, can validly engage debts beyond what they may pay in their own time."

Every business man in Haskell should have an advertisement in both of the papers. If you can't run a large advertisement, run a small one. Both papers are doing what they can to help the town and deserve your support, besides being able to help your business. —The Haskell Herald.

One good paper circulated all over the county and all over the state as well as out of the state, would be one of the best paying institutions Haskell could invest in. There is not enough patronage in the town of Haskell to support two good papers. For several years the Free Press has been so handicapped with competition, that the owners were unable to employ the necessary help to put out such a paper as would do credit to this splendid place. It has taken the closest financing and the most careful management on our part to make the printing business pay, even when we sacrificed the journalistic and mechanical standard of the paper to do so. The business men are the people who foot the bills, whether we have a dozen little sheets or one well edited paper that is a credit and a benefit to the town. The present editor of the Free Press has no ambition to run a little sheet on a division of the patronage in Haskell. We would be delighted to have such undivided support that it would pay to put in about $10,000 more in the plant we already have, and enable us to employ without loss the help to get out a paper that would be a credit to our town, or if we do not measure up to the standard, we would be glad for the town to buy us out and put in a man who can fill the bill, but by all means, Haskell ought to have but one printing plant, if she wants to get the best service editorially and mechanically.

After years of struggle with a division of patronage we confess that we are loosing our youthful enthusiasm, as well as hope that we can ever gain the undivided support of these people in the publication of a good paper that stands for something we consider worthy of our effort, and if those who come after us get about what they may reasonably expect, may the Lord pity them. We feel sure that with our past experience, we would not want to invest any more money in our plant than we find necessary to take care of a division of patronage, and in saying this we feel fortunate, for the history of a score of competitors for the past 25 years has been a sad one.

The fact that we have not gone with the rest, is no doubt due to the fact that we have always had the support of a large majority of the best people, and we have always stood for civic righteousness, and have never hesitated to stand for the right and never compromised with any element that stood for the wrong. If this is true we feel like we ought to have the undivided support of the business men, and we confess that when it is lacking we are sorely disappointed. We know we have made mistakes, but we believe that we have been guided by high ideal and patriotic motives, and if we do not receive some recognition for this, we will be disappointed. We have not been disappointed in the past either. The people in both town and country have on more than one occasion shown us their appreciation and esteem, and have held up our hands in the hour of trial.

SENATOR BAILEY ON HARMONY.

Senator Bailey complains that Mr. Bryan went to Washington and disturbed the harmony of the senate! Think of it, disturbing a harmony already so disrupted that one senator tried to resign because he could not get along with his party associates! However, this is not the first instance in which a disturber of harmony has charged an innocent party with being a disturber. If Senator Bailey is interested in the subject he is invited to peruse the 17th and 18th verses of the XVIII chapter of I. Kings (old version.)

"And it came to pass, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said unto him, 'Art thou he that troubleth Israel?'"

"And he answered, 'I have not troubled Israel; but thou, and thy father's house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and thou hast followed Baalim.'" — Bryan's Commoner.

If Mr. Bailey had any respect for the intelligence of his friends he would not give Mr. Bryan the opportunity to squelch him on every occasion. This one paragraph from the Commoner is a complete answer to Baileyism.

Martin's "Honest Antipathy."

The Wheeling (W. Va.) Register intimates that Mr. Bryan opposed Mr. Martin's election as senate leader because "Senator Martin seems to have held an honest antipathy against anything smacking of Bryanism," and the Register then adds "and there are others." When it is remembered that the Denver platform contains the latest definition of "Bryanism" the Register would have been more candid if it had said that Mr. Bryan protested against the leadership of a man who held an antipathy, however honest, against the democratic platform. The republican leaders are very nice men—at least most of them are—and we may assume that their antipathy toward the democratic platform is honestly held, but Mr. Bryan would protest against making any of them leaders of the democratic party—he protests just as strongly against putting a republican democrat in charge of the democratic organization in the senate. If Mr. Martin had lived in a northern state he would have been a republican, and a republican of the standpat variety at that. The fact that he voted with Aldrich EIGHTEEN TIMES in spite of the fact that he lived in Virginia gives us some idea as to what he would be if he were free to follow his inclinations.

During the revolutionary war there were some Tories in Virginia—men who held "an honest antipathy against" independence, but they were not put in charge of the American army—although they would have had as much reason to aspire to leadership as Senator Martin had to ask for the minority leadership in the senate.—Bryan's Commoner.

Haskell, Wm. WELLS, Mgr. Texas.

Dallas Chamber of Commerce Visit Haskell.

Eleventh Trade Excursion of Dallas Chamber of Commerce arrived Tuesday evening at 5:45, being more than three hours behind their schedule on account of a break down of the engine pulling their train on the G. & N.W. R. R. This delay caused a curtailment of the stop here from 50 minutes to about 35 minutes and flustered, to a large extent the plans arranged by Sec. Poole of Board of Trade for the entertainment of the visitors. It had been planned to take the party on a 15 minute drive around town and land them at the band stand on the public square and autos and surreys were in waiting at the depot for that purpose, but on their arrival Secretary Babcock stated that they much preferred to march up town headed by their band and this was acceded to and the party marched in double ranks, the band playing, to the square, where Mayor H. S. Wilson from the band stand made a brief address welcoming the representative business men of the greatest and most progressive city in Texas within the gates of the Concrete City, the Queen of Central West: the town without a vacant business house, but building additional ones; the only town with unlimited water to use and to divide with its neighbors; a town located in the heart of the largest and finest body of agricultural land in West Texas in a county 90 per cent tillable and that made the largest population gain (516 per cent) in the last census and produced more cotton last year than any other western county.

The mayor then introduced Mr. W. H. Murchison, who for about five minutes, in glowing terms pictured the resources of our splendid county and the substantial character of our town, not neglecting to drop a witticism or a bit of pleasantry here and there. He told the Dallas business men that we wanted to get better acquainted with them and do more business with them and were glad to have them meet our business men at their places of business, see the character of the stocks carried and the volume of business done by them, which he was sure were as up to date and as great as they would find anywhere. We would like to report Mr. Murchison's speech in full but were not in position to take notes and can't do so, that it was all right and made a hit was evidenced by the frequent applause it brought from the visitors.

When Mr. Murchison concluded Sec. Babcock of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce introduced J. E. Farnsworth who replied to the Haskell speakers. Again having no notes we can not report his remarks, but he expressed appreciation for the hearty reception accorded them and of the nice things said about Dallas. He explained the purpose of their trade excursion, invited the Haskell people to visit Dallas and said some handsome things about our town and splendid western country.

At the conclusion of Mr. J. E. Farnsworth address Sec. Poole announced that it was desired that a few minutes before starting time the excursionists round up at the Elks' hall, which was on their route to the depot, and that they wouldn't be detained there but a moment.

The party immediately started on their return to the depot, pleading they hadn't time to stop at the hall but must catch their train. Perhaps a dozen of them, however, did go into the hall where they ran into a large bevy of young ladies, who had patiently awaited their coming for more than two hours, and who proceeded to pin bouquets on their coat, and where sat several boxes of good cigars, however, in the hurry were untouched. As the few who went into the hall came down they called to the others who had passed on chiding them for what they had missed.

Sec. Poole had prepared a souvenir which he planned to hand each member of the party as they emerged from the hall, in the form of a neat illustrated folder showing some of the principal points of interest in the town and to which was attached a small statistical map presenting a comparison of Haskell County with surrounding counties. Failing to deliver his souvenirs as planned and not to be defeated Sec. Poole got into a passing vehicle and went to the train where he succeeded in giving a folder to nearly every member of the party.

Sec. Poole said that other features of the reception and entertainment planned had to be abandoned on account of the delay of the train and curtailment of the stop, but his chief regret was the lack of time for the visitors to stop at the Elks' hall and the consequent disappointment of the young ladies and those who had planned and executed this novel feature to carry it out, he, however, realized that it was inevitable on account of the break down and delay of the train.

WHY, YES, SHE GOT 'THE NOTE'

Beautiful Roses Appreciated, but There Was a "Fly in the Ointment."

A young man whose gallantry is in excess of his means sought to remedy this defect and to save the expense of the money required for the purchase of flowers for his lady loves by arranging with a gardener to let him have a bouquet from time to time, in return for his cast-off clothes. So it happened that one day he received a bunch of beautiful roses, which he at once dispatched to her house. In sure anticipation of a friendly welcome he called on the young woman that evening. He got a frosty reception.

"Did—er—did you get my flowers today?" he was finally forced to ask.

"Yes, and the note that went with them."

"Note? Why, did I send a note?"

"You did. A disgraceful note, scrawled with a blunt pencil, on dirty paper. Here it is. I don't understand it, and I don't think you are very humorous."

The note read as follows: "Here's your flowers, but you owe me a pair of pants for 'em."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Most Beautiful Thing.

A newspaper recently invited its readers to state in a few words what they considered the most beautiful thing in the world. The first prize was awarded to the sender of the answer: "The eyes of my mother." "The dream of that which we know to be impossible" suggested an imaginative person, and this brought him second prize. But the most amusing thing was that which read: "The most beautiful thing in the world is to see a man carrying his mother-in-law across a dangerous river without making any attempt to drop her in."

Time Saving.

A new version of the new long familiar "while you wait" sign is found in an uptown avenue where a barber shop and a tailoring shop stand side by side. THE LURE OF NEW YORK BY ALLAN L. BENSON

COPYRIGHT BY PEARSON PUBL. CO.

To ride into New York on a freight train is a heinous offense. The law says so. Railroad companies suggested the law and secured its enactment. They prefer to handle their passenger traffic in the regular way. Fares cannot so easily be collected from passengers who are secreted around the trucks. Besides, freight train travelers have gained the reputation of being uncertain persons. They sometimes steal small things that rich persons would not think of stealing. Yet, against them as the law is, patrons of the box-cars pour into New York at all seasons of the year.

An Ohio boy, one morning last winter, was in court for beating his way into the metropolis. He was only sixteen years old, and rather small for his age. His coat fitted him a little too soon and axle-grease was on it. Hadn't had time to slick up since he was pulled from the trucks. Still, he was cheerful. Answered the court's questions as if it were a pleasure. Told all about the folks at home, and why he left home.

He and another boy craved the big life. They wanted to be in the midst of something and be something. Only the other boy had a little hitch to his ambitions. He wanted to go to Chicago, where he had an aunt who, in an emergency, might be induced to provide food.

The boy who stood before His Honor waved his comrades away.

"I told my chum," he said, "that I would rather be in New York broke and hungry, than be in Chicago with a meal ticket at every restaurant. I left my chum right there. I paid my fare as far as I could and beat it the rest of the way."

THE GREAT WHITE WAY

BROAD STREET

The court, some years back, having broken into town in substantially the same way, did not hear the boy's story without feeling. During the recital, the judicial mind had gone back to that other day, now long gone, when he, a penniless lad, had said good-bye to his native town. So he said to the boy:

"My son, let me commend your judgment. Any boy who will ride the trucks to New York, in preference to going to Chicago and living with his chum's aunt, has the right spirit. I think this town needs boys like you, and I am going to let you stay. Discharged."

Nothing can illustrate better than this incident the lure of New York. Perhaps no other city ever had so large a percentage of the world's population bluffed. A bigger word than "bluffed" is needed here, but it does not come. The point is that the city has the power to cast a great spell, and casts it. She makes no comparisons. To make comparisons would be to admit that there are others in her class. She says only: "I am the wonderful city—come."

The call goes north to the edge of the frozen world; east to the point where the east is west; south as far as a white man lives, and west till the west is east. Not everybody comes, but everybody hears. Millions would like to come, but can't. Everybody would like at least to see the siren city. And, untold thousands do come. One railroad thinks nothing of dumping 100,000 strangers into New York in a day.

The reason for so much coming is plain. Everybody likes to be mixed up with a success. The bigger the success, the better. New York is universally regarded as a big success. It has the tallest buildings, the richest men, the whitest "White Way" that ever cut a streak through the night, and some of the most prodigious disbursers of the circulating medium that ever dazzled any community.

In a variety of ways comes the message to mix with this great success—to become a part of this wonderful bigness. Perhaps the newspapers and the stage do the most to spread the lure. New York date-lines appear over the most important items of news. There seems to be only one place in which anything worth while can happen. Has Mr. Morgan bought an old master or formed a new trust? Where did he do it? New York. Has Mr. Rockefeller paid his annual visit to the office of Standard Oil? Yes—a New York dispatch says so. Has Mr. Carnegie slipped in the icy park and sprained his ankle? What park? Why, Central Park, in New York, of course. And, when ever an Italian opera singer, a Russian revolutionist, or an Irish patriot comes to this country, where does he land? At New York. What city sends out the news? New York.

As an advertiser of the glories and splendor of this great town, the stage is second only to the press.

Twenty years ago, a Nevada youth went to see a show in Carson City. The show was that old classic, "The Two Orphans." In the cast were extremely few persons besides the orphans themselves, as railway transportation and board were both high. But the show made up in scenery what it lacked in cast. One scene, in particular, appealed to the chaste-faced youth. It was a scene in which the two orphans were sitting on the steps of Trinity church. The snow was drifting down over their thin shoulders. Broadway was thronged with pedestrians. Horse-cars flew along at eight miles an hour. Nobody looked at the orphans. But the orphans, silent as little sphynxes, looked straight ahead—straight up the street. There was Broadway! The infinite still of the scene painter seemed to have carried the street clear to the horizon. Nothing but buildings and people and people and buildings till they blended, at the finish, into an indistinguishable haze of paint.

The Nevada youth could hardly keep his seat. The painted scene had fired his mind with an intense desire. He must be off to New York. All during the show, which he saw not, though he looked straight at the stage, he kept his eyes riveted to the splendid vista of Broadway. The whole thoroughfare seemed to him to be a treasure-house of opportunity. And, at dusk, when the lights begin to blaze up along the "Great White Way"—ah, it is all just as he had dreamed it to be! All grand! All surpassingly great!

But, kind friends, he dines at no lobster palace that evening. Nor do his magnificent jewels glitter in the "horshoes crescent" at the opera. With the money that he can spare for his evening meal, he couldn't buy a lobster's tail, and a drygoods box in an alley would fit him better than a box at the opera. So, he dines poorly for sixty cents at a side-street restaurant, gets a glassy eye from the waiter for not giving a tip, finds a room in which there is no light by day, nor pure air night or day—and goes to sleep to dream of home and mother.

The next morning, he is awakened by a miscellaneous assortment of noises, ranging from elevated car wheels to horses' hoofs. As he puts on the shirt that mother laundered for him, his heart takes a sudden lurch back to the old roof. He calls his heart back. He is in New York to make good. It is up to him to do it. And, by the time he is ready to go out to hunt for breakfast, his nerve is all back.

With nothing to do but get a job or starve, he looks for work. He hears that motormen are wanted on the subway. Half afraid to offer his services, he nevertheless decides to do so. On the way to the company's offices, he considers all of the situation's glorious possibilities. Never in the country did he dare dream that some day he might make a battery of motors bite off 2,000 horsepower of electricity and snatch eight loaded cars through the subterranean night.

The good news goes home to the old folks that their boy is going to run a train in the New York subway. Oh, if the boy could only see the mingled sorrow and pride that light up his mother's eyes when she reads the letter. It breaks her heart to have her boy away, but it mends it to know how emphatically he has made good in the big town. Going to run a train driven by electricity! Going to run a train bearing fifteen hundred human beings, each of whom has put his life, for a time, in her son's keeping! Such confidence as the company must have had in her boy to intrust him with so grave a responsibility. Oh, it is such a comfort to her to know that her son, whom she has loved since she felt his first heart-beat; for whom she has toiled and suffered and denied herself—it is such a comfort to her to know that he has been recognized at what she knows to be his true worth, by the most wonderful city in the world.

A year later, what rejoicing there was in the little home when the boy wrote that he was coming back on a vacation. Mother could hardly read the letter, she was so excited. Ran to the fields to tell father. Ran back to get dinner. Could hardly cook—burned the eggs to a crisp, something she had not done in thirty years, and had to fry some more. In such a hurry to put on her "other dress" and run over to Mrs. Pratt's to tell her: "My boy is coming home."

The boy came home. When he took mother in his arms and held her for a full minute, she couldn't speak. All choked up. So glad to see him, she couldn't say a word. And, when she did speak, the first thing she said, as she looked up into his brown eyes, was: "Oh, my boy, how pale you are!"

He was pale. He knew it. Subway air makes no red blood-corpuscles. Kills some of the red ones that exist. Nor does the electric light of the subway brown the cheek as the sunlight browns the cheek of the farmer. All the year that he had been away, mother had carried in her mind the picture of her farmer boy. Never had dreamed that her farmer boy would come home with a grayish-white face. Didn't need to say she was shocked. Looked it. The boy caught the message and laughingly replied:

"Oh, mother, all city folks are pale." During the week that he remained at home, the boy was kept talking. Father and mother constantly asking questions. Seemed to mother as if she couldn't ask questions enough. Wanted to get first-hand information about everything of which she had read.

Six months after he returned to work, his mother had an opportunity to see for herself, just how big was New York. A telegram told her that her boy had been hurt. She and father found him in a hospital, with his head banded until they could barely see his eyes. At the end of his run, he had tried to cross the tracks to catch another train back and get to dinner more quickly. Didn't see a train running in the opposite direction. Car struck him. Picked up for dead. Seemed to have a fractured skull. Fortunately, did not. Revived in the hospital and would get well.

Oh, but the mother's heart was glad when she heard the best instead of the worst. Glad until she and father went to the boy's room. Not his room in the hospital, but his room in a lodging-house. Glad until she saw how miserably he had lived. A dirty street. A dirty house. A dirty hall. A cheerless room. Little light. Bad air. A skimpy bed. A frayed counterpane. Not a decoration, save her own picture, stuck in the edge of a mirror.

Her boy could afford no better place to live. His pay was only $2.25 a day. That is, his pay from the company was only $2.25 a day. The lure of New York made up the rest that was needed to induce him to stay. Such is life for millions in New York. Not life as the newspaper dispatches describe it. Not life as the stage pictures it. Life as it is. A few draw colossal prizes. A few more draw good prizes. But if only those should come to New York who can earn a better living here than they can elsewhere, a headcar, running once a day, would almost bring them in. Ninety-two per cent. of the population have not drawn enough prizes to enable them to own their own homes. Yet people come. Come from every state in the Union. Come from every town in every state—every hamlet. Come from Italy, Norway, Sweden, Turkey—come from everywhere.

KIDNEY CHILLS AND BACKACHE

If, when you get wet or take cold, it "settles on the kidneys" and there is a shivery, chilly sensation in the back, it shows kidney weakness which is often the beginning of a serious disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills should be used persistently until the backache and other symptoms disappear. Mrs. D. K. Jeffers, Colfax, Wash., says: "For two weeks I had to be propped up in bed and I lost 50 pounds in weight. I was in terrible condition, in fact, I came very near dying. As a last resort I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Since then I have gained back my lost weight and feel wonder fully improved."

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Breaking a Hobo's Heart. Manager Gus Hartz was standing near the opera house box office when one of two panhandlers who had entered the lobby approached him, and, holding out an addressed and sealed envelope, begged for the price of a postage stamp.

"It's for me mudder, boss," he pleaded. "You wouldn't turn down er guy fer de price er de stamp, would youse?"

"Never," said the manager, dilly grasping the envelope and throwing it through the box office window. "Here, Fred," addressing himself to Treasurer Fred Conn, "stamp this and have it mailed."

The velocity of the proceeding fairly took the panhandler's breath away. Then, backing away to where his partner awaited him, he whispered: "Nothin' doing, bo—the guy's wise."—Cleveland Leader.

The Lesser Evil. Gresham college in 1719 was the scene of a famous serio-comic duel between two celebrated doctors, Dr. Mead and Dr. Woodward, both of whom were lecturers at the college. While walking down Bishopsgate street one morning they quarreled over some medical question and adjourned to the square of the college to fight it out with swords. Woodward fell, wounded in several places, whereupon Mead magnanimously said, "Take thy life." "Anything but your phrase" hissed back the chagrined Woodward ere he swooned away.—London Chronicle.

A Classic Note. "Archimedes," read the pupil, "leaped from his bath, shouting, 'Eureka! Eureka!'"

"One moment, James," the teacher says. "What is the meaning of 'Eureka!'"

"'Eureka' means 'I have found it.'"

"Very well. What had Archimedes found?"

James hesitates a moment, then ventures hopefully: "The soap, mum."—Christian Intelligencer.

Out of Date. "I am going to ask your father to fight for your hand in marriage."

"How dreadfully old-fashioned you are."

"In what way?" "Don't ask him; tell him."

His Effort. "Now, Johnny," said the teacher "you may try your hand at writing short story."

A few minutes later Johnny handed up his slate on which was written "Us boys all loves our teacher."—Harper's Bazar.

FOOD IN SERMONS Feed the Dominie Right and the Sermons Are Brilliant.

A conscientious, hard-working successful clergyman writes: "I am glad to bear testimony to the pleasure and increased measure of efficiency and health that have come to me from adopting Grape-Nuts food as one of my articles of diet."

"For several years I was much distressed during the early part of each day by indigestion. My breakfasts seemed to turn sour and failed to digest. After dinner the headache and other symptoms following the breakfast would wear away, only to return, however, next morning."

"Having heard of Grape-Nuts food finally concluded to give it a trial. I made my breakfasts of Grape-Nuts with cream, toast and Postum. The result was surprising in improved health and total absence of the distress that had, for so long a time, followed the morning meal."

"My digestion became once more satisfactory, the headaches ceased, and the old feeling of energy returned. Since that time I have always had Grape-Nuts food on my breakfast table."

"I was delighted to find also, that whereas before I began to use Grape-Nuts food I was quite nervous and became easily wearied in the work of preparing sermons and in study, a marked improvement in this respect resulted from the change in my diet."

"I am convinced that Grape-Nuts food produced this result and helped me to a sturdy condition of mental and physical strength."

"I have known of several persons who were formerly troubled as I was, and who have been helped as I have been, by the use of Grape-Nuts food, on my recommendation." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkg.

PROFITABLE DAILY TITHING.
"Daily Heavenly Manna."
This little book is having the largest circulation of any of its kind and is concoded by Christians everywhere to be the most helpful.
If Christians allow the rush and crush of selfish ambition to deprive them of their daily portion of heavenly food, they must not be surprised if they grow spiritually leaner day by day, and if the peace of God gives place in their hearts to the discontent which is growing in the world, notwithstanding the multiplication of our comforts and privileges.
Daily Heavenly Manna contains a collection of Scripture texts with appropriate quotations for every day in the year. Surely the little tithing of time daily spent in partaking of its morsels of heavenly counsel cannot fail to profit all who partake. It is published to do good—not for profit.
Your Friends' Birth Dates.
An autograph and birthday record feature in this book is a great convenience. Opposite each day of the year are blank lines upon which you can secure the autographs of your friends and be reminded of their birthdays as they occur. This makes the book more valuable yearly. In ten years you would not sell it for ten dollars.
Besides it has a place for Birth Records, Marriage Records and Death Records. Also it has a table showing the day of the week of any date for one hundred and fifty years.

KEEPING THE WINDOWS OPEN
Citizen Followed the Doctor's Advice in Winter and the Plumber Paid Over the Percentage.
One upon a time a citizen complained to a physician that he was troubled with a feeling of lassitude on arising in the morning, and after half an hour spent in deep reflection the healer of men replied:
"Although it is winter, I think you suffer from the want of fresh air in the house. Go home and open your cellar windows and let the ozone sweep through the house at its wild pleasure."
"But the thermometer stands below zero," protested the citizen.
"So do you. Let her stand. Leave the windows open all night. That lassitude will be gone when you get up in the morning."
The citizen did as directed, and at six o'clock next morning the cook was borne from earth away by the explosion of the kitchen range. Four bursted water pipes also went into the cascade business with unqualified success, and two children were overwhelmed to find that their toes were frostbitten. Five days later, when the plumber had presented his bill and received the long green, he entered the office of the physician and said:
"Twenty per cent. of $90 is $18, and here is the same. If you will only advise the old chap next door to leave all his windows open some night to cure his asthma it will mean at least $40 to me and $8 for you."

When a man has some ready money that he is keeping for some specific purpose or which he has saved to protect himself against any unlooked for emergency he should not loose sight of the purpose which that money is intended to serve. Instead of lending it to some individual who may not be able to pay it back even at an agreed upon time, or putting it in to some permanent investment, he should deposit it in the FARMERS NATIONAL BANK where it will be always ready. To have one's money prompt and with out question when one needs it is far more important than to get a little interest for a short time. THE CALL TO DIVINE SERVICE
Isaiah 6—May 14

"Then said I, here am I, send me."

LET us study today Isaiah's vision. The temple at Jerusalem, otherwise called the House of Jehovah, was the scene of the vision. But instead of the holy and most holy, the mercy-seat, altar, table of show-bread and the golden candlestick, everything was changed—a glorious Throne was there, and upon the Throne the Lord.

On either side of Him, as representing the Divine attributes, stood the four seraphim, while the entire temple was filled with His train of followers. The temple was full of glory-light and two of the seraphim cried, "Holy, holy, holy is Jehovah of Hosts." The two on the other side replied, "Let the whole earth be full of His glory." Following this response the door-posts were shaken and an obscuring haze filled the temple, dimming the glory.

Let the Whole Earth Be Full of the Lord's Glory

The significance of this vision we draw from the words of Jesus. He refers us directly to this vision. (John 12:41) In fulfillment of the Divine promise Jesus appeared at His first advent and offered Himself as their great King of Glory, the great Mediator of the New Covenant, promised them by Jehovah. (Jer. 31:31.)

God knew that Jesus would be rejected; nevertheless the offer was made. Had He been received and had He then taken to Himself His Messianic glory and power it would have meant that a sufficient number of the Jewish nation had received Him with their whole heart, so as to constitute the complete number of the tribe class, to be associated in the spiritual Kingdom.

In that event there would have been no offer made to the Gentiles of joint-heirship with Messiah in His glorious Kingdom—Israel would have gotten the entire blessing. The Kingdom would have been established forthwith and the nation of Israel, accepting Messiah, would at once have become the channel of Divine blessing to all nations.

But when the voice declared, "Let the whole earth be full of the Lord's glory," the unready of the world to receive the message was indicated by the shaking of the door-posts and the darkness beclouding the glorious scene. St. Paul declares that the shaking of anything represents its instability, its removal—that something superior may be established in its stead. The Jewish nation was removed from its favored position and a new nation, a new doorway, a new channel of access between God and men has since been in process of establishment.

"Ye Are a Holy Nation" No other nation in the world was found more worthy than Israel of the honored position. Consequently, God proceeded to make a new nation composed exclusively of saints. As St. Peter explains, "Ye are a royal priest hood, a holy nation" (1 Peter 2:9). First of all, the saintly Jews were taken to be the nucleus of the New Nation, spirit-begotten, heavenly. Subsequently, the selective processes have continued throughout this Gospel Age to the Gentiles, with its close the Holy Nation will be completed by the power of the First Resurrection.

As Isaiah's lips were touched with a live coal from the altar, it illustrated how the saintly ones of all nations during this Gospel Age have had the required blessing upon their lips and have proclaimed the Divine invitation, "Present your bodies living sacrifices, holy and acceptable to God."

"Here Am I, Send Me" God has desired to send His message of grace and the invitation to sacrifice to all who would have the ear to hear. And the sanctified, whom Isaiah typified, have throughout this Age said, "Lord, here am I; send me." Isaiah's experiences are used as the measuring line to show when the completion of the Church will be accomplished and the glory of the Lord shine forth upon Israel, and through Israel to all nations, peoples and tongues. That measuring line tells of the desolation of Israel's land, of its becoming utterly waste and of their removal from the land. The last verse of the lesson tells of how there will come a sprout out of the roots—a holy seed, a holy people, under Divine providence, will be raised up. These holy ones of Israel, on this side the veil, will be the Ancient Worthies, who will be resurrected and enter into their reward as the earthly representatives of Messiah's Kingdom. (Heb. 11:38-40; Rev. 4:16.) To these Princes will be gathered the faithful, loyal, holy of the Jews, the nucleus, the beginning of the earthly phase of the Kingdom.

Rejected by "His own."

Young Folks, Do You Know What is Better Than a Bank Account?

Can you think of anything that would be worth more to a young man or woman just starting out in life than a bank account? It gives them a feeling of confidence, security; it gives them a prestige and standing with their friends and neighbors, and makes them feel like they are commanding the respect of the business world, still there is something better and worth more to them than a bank account. What is it? Listen, we'll tell you: You perhaps know of some young man who but a few years ago had a bank account; he hasn't it today, he has lost it. You perhaps know of another who instead of having a bank account has a thorough practical training of book-keeping and shorthand or telegraphy, that today has the bank account, and thru successful experience has also increased his fund of practical knowledge. A bank account without the knowledge of how to transact business vanishes; not so with a practical business training, it remains with one thruout life and enables him to accumulate his own bank account and retain it, enjoy it and continually add to it, so the thing that is better than a bank account for the young man or woman starting into life is a practical education that will enable them to earn their own bank account. Every young man and woman should be interested in a business training; their education is not complete without it. If they are poor, they need the knowledge that they may earn a comfortable living. If their parents are rich, they need a practical business training that they may be able to take care of the wealth that is bequeathed to them. A practical business education is a life insurance policy upon which you have to pay but one premium, and you don't have to die to get the benefit of it. Harriet Beecher Stowe said: "No lady can have a better safeguard against adversity of fortune or better resource in times of need than a knowledge of bookkeeping and business affairs."

The Tyler Commercial College of Tyler, Texas, can give you this thorough training in almost half the time and at half the cost of any other school doing good work. Its original copyrighted modern systems gives it a great advantage over other schools. This is conclusively proven from the fact that it is now the largest commercial school in America and has drawn patronage from 36 different states. Write for catalogue, stating what course you are interested in, and receive full particulars. Use your summer months preparing for a good position this fall.
