"MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DRAMA"

"Lord, what fools these mortals be!"
Those are the words of Puck in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," written by Shakespeare back in the days of the horse, the coach and the litter. And though, it is true, the words bore no relation to problems of travel, there is a temptation to echo them now every time the constantly mounting statistics of death on the highway point to the tragedy of these beautiful summer nights.

"A Midsummer Night's Drama" is a modern drama that no man wrote. Nevertheless, it is one in which thousands play a part after the curtain of darkness has fallen over the highways and by-ways and over the busy city streets . . . And thousands die!

It is a paradox of this age of light that we continue to carry on the potentially most dangerous activity of the time in comparative darkness — continue to drive at mile-a-minute speeds over highways that are as lacking in illumination as those over which the coaches rattled from Boston to Worcester 200 odd years ago.

Seeing is effected by two major factors. The first, reflected light—light which, thrown upon an object, is reflected back—distinguishing for us the detail of that object. The second factor is silhouette—or the lightness or darkness of objects contrasted with the backgrounds against which they are seen. The distinctiveness of black type on a white page is a good example.

Headlamps contribute almost nothing to seeing by silhouette and their effectiveness, therefore, must be determined, not merely by the beam power of the lights, but just as importantly by the reflective qualities of the objects or surfaces which are commonly met on the road. The reflective qualities of pedestrians, roads, unlighted cars, trees, etc., is worse than poor, and consequently the effectiveness of headlights is correspondingly limited.

Until major highways and main city streets, at least, are provided with really adequate illumination and are made as modern and safe at night as they are in the daytime, there can be but one salvation—common sense.

When darkness comes, slow down! Be more than ever careful! Use dimmers when meeting other cars! Keep headlights in proper adjustment and keep them clean—dust and dirt on lenses or reflectors can cut their efficiency in half.

In the Pattern of Community Life

Your municipal light plant fits well in the community plan, spelling low rates, personalized service, revenue retained at home, and civic improvement.

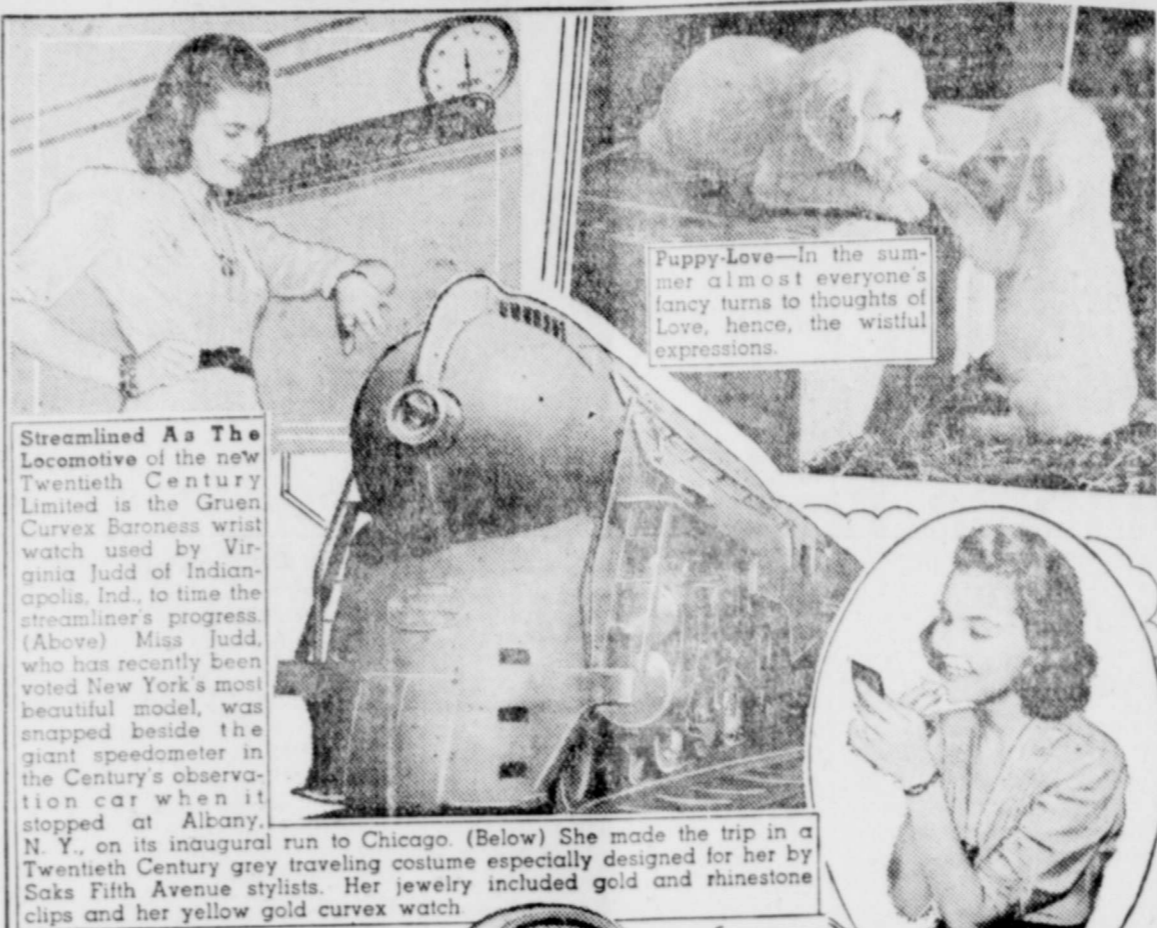

When rates were established for the local light plant, the welfare of the citizen was given first consideration. As a result, Burkburnett has the third lowest electric rate in the State of Texas, the two lower rates being those in suburbs of large cities.

A residence may consume 50 KWH for the extremely low rate of $2.79 in Burkburnett. Give credit where credit is due and support your municipal light and power plant.

Burkburnett . . . History

As revealed by the files of The Star 12 years ago.

The Business Council of the Chamber of Commerce in session Wednesday condemned the present telephone service in Burkburnett. The general sentiment was that the service is poor and that previous attempts to improve it with the present equipment have been of minor importance, or completely unsuccessful. A resolution fully stating the attitude of the body will be mailed to officials of the company.

I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart for the splendid support you gave me in the first primary, last Saturday, July 23rd. I recognize what you all know, that the campaign just ended has been actively waged by my opponent since January 1st, while I was detained in Washington, looking after your interests until after the adjournment of Congress, June 18th. As you know I have had a great sorrow and have had the care of my five little children in addition to the duties of my office which has kept me from thinking about this contest until after my return home.

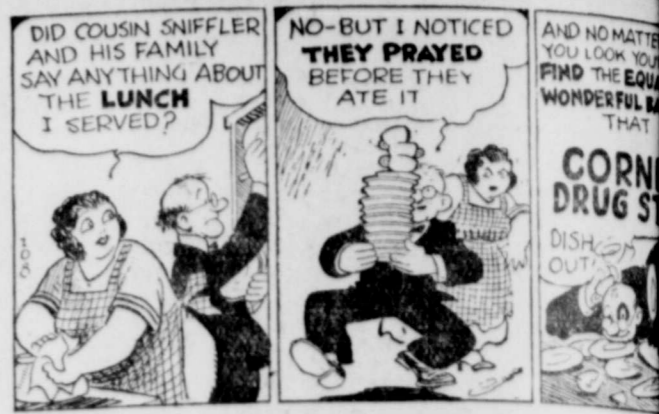

Now, we face the run-off on more equal terms. I promise you that I will use every effort to vindicate and uphold the principles of fairness in the run-off campaign and that we will demonstrate and uphold the principles of good government. I trust and believe that each of you, regardless of your former alliance, will be interested to know from the

Rats Cost Texas $20,000,000 Year

Rats cost Texas people around $20,000,000 a year, according to J. M. Hill, Jr., of the Rodent Control Service of the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey, who added that farmers alone suffered an annual loss of over 2 million bushels of corn through this source. County and community wide campaigns are the answer to rat control, Hill believes. The Rodent Control Service, in co-operation with the Extension Service of Texas A. and M. College, has outlined a three-way system of control based on rat proofing, poisoning and trapping.

During the past year, the Service exposed 17,658 pounds of poisoned bait in 33 counties. The work was done through county agricultural agents, commissioners' courts, and civic and farm organizations. County agricultural councils sponsored the campaign in several cases. In Caldwell county, the farm organization brought about the use of 2,100 pounds.

Figures of the Rodent Control Service show that a pound of poison bait will kill an average of 14 rats. Red Squill, the type of poison used, is not harmful to humans or animals.

Rats can be controlled, Hill said, by systematic, community wide poisoning campaigns which should be launched at least twice a year or as often as the infestation warrants.

Loss can be minimized by rat proofing all new buildings and old ones where possible. Infestations will be held at low levels if food and feed is kept in rat proof containers and if garbage and other waste is promptly removed. Trapping is effective after the rat infestation has been reduced by poisoning or by other means. A careful and systematic use of traps will keep the premises free from the rodents.

"The Rodent Control Service of the Bureau of Biological Survey is ready to assist communities and counties in fighting the rat menace," Hill declared.

The manner and extent to which physical characteristics are inherited by children will be dramatically demonstrated to visitors at the 1939 World's Fair of the West on Treasure Island.

Down The Road

By CHARLES M. UPHAM
Engineer-Director
American Road Builders' Assn.
Washington, D. C.

Seeing In The Dark

When night falls, Death stalks the unlighted American highway. The night driver has from four to ten times as many accident-provoking hazards to contend with as the motorist who confines his use of the road to daytime travel. Steering a motor vehicle over a dark highway, despite the low volume of traffic on the road after the sun goes down, is as uncertain a process as a roll of the dice. It's an extremely dangerous game in which Life is always the stake and in which Death usually holds the winning cards.

Twenty-three thousand eight hundred or 60 per cent of the 39,700 persons killed in traffic accidents last year met Death on the highway after dark. The rapidity of modern, streamlined transportation has catapulted the American highway user beyond the security he used to enjoy within the range of his headlights at a slower speed and in a less powerful vehicle. The headlights of the 1938 model motor vehicle are doing more than a good job when they penetrate as much as 200 feet of darkness. If you are driving at the rate of sixty miles an hour, your motor vehicle will cover those 200 feet in a little under two seconds.

Not much chance in two seconds, in that limited range of visibility, to clearly define the obstacle ahead, to make up your mind what to do to avoid collision, to slam on the brakes, to swing your vehicle around and beyond the hazard, with Death chucking up his sleeve at your frantic efforts. And, all too often, that's the end of you, except for the fact that you are next day added to a string of figures that last year totalled a disgraceful 23,800. All because you couldn't see in the dark!

Night traffic-accident fatalities have increased close to forty per cent since 1930. During that same period of time motor-vehicle deaths during daytime hours decreased three per cent. It has been determined that your chances of becoming involved in a fatal traffic accident at night are twice as great as they are during the day. It has been further determined that the cost of night accidents range from $2,000 to $8,000 a mile.

Well, you say, I'm interested, but what proof is there that highway lighting reduces the night traffic-accident fatality and serious injury rate? One of the most convincing answers to that question is the four-year study of the parkways of Worcester County, New York. With lights in full after-dark service, the ratio of day to night accidents was 1 to 2.2; with lighting reduced 40 per cent, the ratio jumped to 1 to 3.7, and, with all lights turned off, the rate climbed to 1 to 4.8. Here's another good one. Recent figures obtained from the New York State Highway Department concerning Route 17-C, at Binghamton, show that highway illumination reduced night fatalities 67 per cent, entirely eliminated serious injury injuries, dropped 75 per cent pedestrian accidents 75 per cent and cut all night accidents in half. An outstanding example of another state's interest in lighting highways for safe night driving is New Jersey's recent illumination of White Horse Pike, running fifty-six miles across the state from Camden to Atlantic City.

Dentists to Serve The Red Cross In Time of Distress

A nation-wide plan under which disaster refugees will receive immediate dental care on the scene of the emergency has been perfected by the American Dental Association and the American Red Cross, it was announced today by Dr. Harry B. Pinney, Secretary of the A. D. A. Swinging into action behind the program designed by Dr. C. Willard Camalier, A.D.A. President and James L. Feiser, vice-chairman of the Red Cross, the 400 state and component societies of the A.D.A. from coast to coast are now selecting, in every town where there is a Red Cross Chapter, dentists best fitted to serve when flood, fire, or any other disaster strikes.

On recommendation of the local and state societies, these dentists will be appointed to the Preparedness Committee of each local Red Cross Chapter. Their work will be under the guidance of a national committee, composed of Dr. Harvey J. Burkhart, Rochester, N. Y., chairman; Dr. George Meisel, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Dr. Philip E. Adams, Boston, Mass.

The dentists' work in time of disaster will be four-fold under the new A.D.A. plan.

First, emergency dental care will be given in refugee centers. Dental offices will be set up as quickly as possible for extraction of abscessed or badly decayed teeth and relief of pain.

Second, artificial dental structures which have been lost or damaged will be replaced or repaired.

Third, fractured jaws and other injuries of the mouth will receive immediate surgical treatment.

Fourth, surveys will be made of dental conditions of refugees, and necessary work will be done to prevent epidemics of mouth diseases such as Vincent's disease (trench mouth).

Through the active participation of the dentists on the Red Cross preparedness committees, such dental supplies and equipment as are needed in time of emergency will be readily available and all arrangements made for quick action when disaster comes.

With Red Cross vice-chairman Feiser praising the American

Dental Association for "splendid co-operation," Doctor Camalier declared.

"We know that whenever the Red Cross has needed help from members of the dental profession it has been given promptly. But under the plan we have worked out now, the Dentists of America will be prepared and equipped to serve disaster sufferers in the best possible way.

"Organized dentistry is indeed happy to have this new opportunity for service."

A Dangerous Shadow On Our Highways

Of all drivers involved in fatal accidents last year, 7.3 per cent had been drinking. This is neither worse nor better than the 1936 record.

Of all pedestrians killed last year, 12.9 per cent had been drinking. This figure may be compared with 11.2 per cent in 1936. These figures are based on a broad spread of official state reports and are offered by The Travelers Insurance Company as the best information available on the subject. The accuracy of the picture presented by the statistics will be questioned because reporting methods differ in the various states, and because of differences of opinion as to what constitutes drunkenness.

Vignettes of BURKBURNETT BUSINESS INSTITUTIONS

MORRIS BOOKBINDER'S SHOE SHOP

Morris Bookbinder came to Burkburnett in November, 1919. In 1921 he opened a shoe shop across the street west from the present location of his shop. His partners in the enterprise were Kriss and Freed, who held a half interest together.

Kriss was to make shoes, Morris to do repair work and Freed was the silent partner. Kriss soon decided that making shoes was not his calling in life. Morris bought out his partners and since that time until now, has operated the shop alone, with extra help only during dush seasons.

Besides Bookbinder's shop, there are only about four other business houses in Burkburnett which still operate under the same management they had during the boom.

The little shop has had an interesting and colorful history.

One wonders what has become of all those whose shoes have been mended there. One of the first times this writer saw the late John G. Hardin was in the shop; sitting quietly in front of him, waiting while his shoes were repaired. The smell of leather always brings up the memory of standing in front of Morris' shop in the rain waiting for a chance to cross the embryonic river which was Main street in those days.

Something of the changes that have passed over the town since boom days is reflected in Morris' statement that when he opened his shop in 1921 he paid $125 a month rental. He now pays less than a fifth of that.

There is no doubt but that this quiet little man who has watched a town and its people live and grow from his shop windows is something of an artist. Invisible half-soles and thin taps for ladies' shoes which are now being advertised as the latest things in shoe repairs, were being used by him more than ten years ago. At that time, he cut his own taps from thin rubber soles.

Only recently he has perfected a cemented shank for cowboy boots which is bringing customers from far and near. No one else has anything like it.

Morris says he has only one rule for serving the public; that is: "Give them their money's worth. It's the only way to stay in business."

Texas Anxious For Laboratory

When Congress adjourned, there was some doubt as to whether the proposal for the establishment of a cotton research laboratory had really been enacted into law. The measure had pursued such a devious course that it required official assurance that it had been included in one of the bills passed in the closing days of the session to satisfy many of those in Texas interested in the establishment of a laboratory.

Word from authoritative sources in Washington says that $4,000,000 was appropriated for the creation of four agricultural research laboratories, each to cost $1,000,000. One of the authorized laboratories is to be for research with cotton and cotton products, with a view of finding new uses for the staple.

With this assurance, Texas will continue its efforts to secure the location of the cotton research laboratory within the bounds of this state. A large group of prominent Texans, representing various institutions and interests, presented the state's advantages during a visit to Washington while Congress was in session. They presented the case well, and it is clear that Texas is the logical place in which to locate the research station.

Texas is afforded a new argument for its cause by a report from Washington, published in the Dallas News Wednesday, that Japan in the future will buy more Indian, Chinese and Brazilian cotton and less American cotton, also, when buying American cotton, will give preference to the California product over the Texas, because California is nearer to Japan, and California cotton is of longer staple, as a rule.

This is more disturbing news for the cotton grower and the entire cotton trade of Texas, and emphasizes the imperative necessity of finding quickly new uses for Texas cotton on a large scale. As foreign markets decline, because of the competition abroad of foreign-grown cotton and of substitute materials, the need to discover new outlets for the cotton crop becomes more pressing.

Scientists should be given an early opportunity, in a favorable location, to pursue their studies in research in cotton, to the end that these new outlets may be discovered. Texas is the state in which to conduct these studies.

Life for the prisoners on Alcatraz Island grows more interesting daily as they watch construction of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition on Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay, about two miles distant.

Z. D. Allen Asks Run-Off Support

Z. D. Allen, candidate for district attorney of the 30th district comprising Wichita, Archer and Young counties, issued the following statement Monday:

"Friends and fellow-citizens: I want each one of you to know how much I appreciate the support you gave me in last Saturday's election, and I want to thank you from the depth of my heart.

"I have met many persons who have asked why I had not personally seen them to solicit their vote. Heretofore I have not attempted to explain the difficulties and conditions under which I waged this campaign. But now I feel that I should explain my failure to see many of you personally.

"As many of my friends know, I have experienced a great sorrow. My mother has been ill for the past three months, and she was taken away from us the day before election. My wife has been ill and has been at Glen Rose, Texas, for treatment and is still under a doctor's care. Under these conditions I spent every available minute with my loved ones, and was unable to see many of my friends and fellow-citizens of this district.

"Although my wife is still under a doctor's care, I think she will be able to assist me in this run-off campaign, and my opponent and myself will enter it upon a more equal footing. I promise you that I will continue to conduct this campaign upon a high basis, and that the people of this district shall have an opportunity to compare the experience, age and capability of myself and my remaining opponent and then choose their own district attorney by election rather than by appointment.

"I want all of you to know that I appreciate your friendly co-operation and support in the past and trust that you will continue the good work in the future. I believe that each of you regardless of your former choice is interested in good government, proper law enforcement and a district attorney of your own choice, with experience and maturity to fill this important office."

CORRECTION

Several issues ago in our column of happenings in Burkburnett 12 years ago, an account of the wedding of Wiley A. Browning and Miss Grace Hughes appeared. Although the name was written as Wiley in the paper from which the copy was taken, it should have been William Browning.

We regret that this error was made as it has caused the two families some embarrassment and we are glad of this opportunity to correct it.

Reagan's Team Wins In Thriller From Indians

In one of the snappiest games of the season, Ross Reagan's softball team defeated the Comanche Indians from Lawton 4 to 4 Wednesday night at Shamburger field here.

The game was a thriller from start to finish, was played in 45 minutes. The score was 3 to 0 in favor of Burkburnett until the 7th inning when the Indians went to town with 4 runs.

No one here was able to spell the surnames of the Indian youngsters, so they appear in the line-up with given names only.

A HILL AND A HOLE
Cora M. Silvus

A short time ago I was called to take care of a woman who had broken her ankle. Fifty-four people were living in twenty summer cottages along the water front. Back of these cottages was a strip of undeveloped land, a quarter of a mile wide. The trolley ran along the road at the further edge, and a rather zig-zag path across it was the nearest approach from the car stop to the cottages.

I had taken this trolley, and as I followed the path I went around what was evidently a made hill. Just beyond this, in the direct line of progress, was a hole, 12 or 14 feet across, which the well-beaten path carefully avoided. I could see no need for its being there.

Arriving at the house, I was told that Mrs. Decker had met with her accident at this very hole while crossing the field in the dark. Naturally I asked why the hole was there. And no one knew.

"It's a menace!" cried Mrs. Decker. "The land belongs to a rich man who lives in Europe. Something ought to be done."

I agreed, and I talked.

"Say, now you might be able to do something," Mrs. Decker said. "The men play golf and other games for exercise. The boys run wild. If you could get them interested in filling in that hole, it would be a good thing for both the boys and their fathers."

So I promised to try, and I racked my brains for a wise approach to the subject.

The two Decker boys, nine and eleven, took a walk with me. Coming to the excavation or depression I talked of it and what fun it was to dig. At the dinner table I spoke to the father.

"Why don't you men and your sons make up a party and fill in the hole?" I asked.

They had never once thought of doing such a thing. But it caught their fancy.

"Did it ever occur to you that every time any one of you goes to or from the trolley you have to take fifty extra steps because of that hole and the little hill that is near it?"

It hadn't.

On Fridays it was customary for some of the men who could not be there every evening to come for the week-end. The little children were always delighted, but the fathers and older sons seemed to have little in common. When Friday evening arrived Mr. Decker talked with the men, suggesting the project. I talked with some of the boys and he promised to interest the others. Then I suggested to Mr. Decker that he get the fathers to tell the boys that the men needed their help.

On Saturday morning a group of eighteen men and boys gathered at the hole with shovels.

"Why not throw in some of the rubbish to start with?" asked the boys.

What a time they had then. Just as the last bit of earth was being smoothed over I went out. They were admiring their work.

"I actually enjoyed this little bit of shovelling," said one of the men to me.

"And each of your sons has enjoyed doing things with 'Father,'" I assured him.

This too, was a new thought, it seemed.

The best is yet to come. Mrs. Decker came to see me the other day. She told me happier relationships had come from the father-son contacts that were made that day. The men really hadn't realized their boys were growing up; the boys hadn't realized how boy-like their fathers could be.

The hole was there all the time. So was the hill. If fathers who read this would look about they might find hills and holes that need combining—also sons that need contacting.

Political Announcements

The Star is authorized to announce the following candidates for office, subject to the action of the Democratic Run-off Primary, Saturday, August 27, 1938:

ED GOSSETT

For District Attorney:
HOWARD MARTIN
Z. D. ALLEN

I Stumped My Toe

I ran to win, but I lost. To those who supported me, I wish to express my gratitude; and for those who supported my opponents, I have no ill feeling.

Anyone who cannot afford to lose does not deserve to win. For having made the race and lost, I have no regret. My defeat, to me, does not mean that my opponents are better lawyers than I nor better citizens, but only that they received more votes.

Sincerely yours,
Gene Sherrod

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
PROPER EXPOSURE

Brilliantly lighted beach subjects, with no harsh shadows, take less exposure. For this, 1/25 at f.16 (or the large lens opening on a box camera). If subject faces sun, or for a "long-shot" beach view, use f.22 or the small lens opening on a box camera).

MANY writers make a great deal about exposure, so that it seems complicated. As a matter of fact, for most ordinary subjects out of doors, it is simple.

Light in very early morning or late afternoon is quite weak, but from an hour or so after sunrise to about an hour before sunset, it is fairly constant in its intensity. During the middle daylight hours, camera loaded with chrome type or "pan" type film, set your lens and shutter as follows:

BRILLIANT DAY
Average subject, 1/25 second and f.11 lens opening.
Open landscape, 1/25, f.16.
Water or beach scenes, 1/25, f.22.

CLOUDY BRIGHT DAY
Average subject, 1/25, f.8.
Open landscape, 1/25, f.11.
Water or beach scenes, 1/25, f.16.

DULL DAY
Average subject, 1/25, f.6.3.

District Soft Ball Teams To Meet Graham In Aug.

The district soft ball tournament for North Central Texas has been awarded to Graham, and will be held between August 1st and 15th. Included in Graham's territory will be Wilbarger, Baylor, Throckmorton, Clay, Wichita, Archer, Jack, Young and Palo Pinto counties. The winner will be eligible to enter the regional tournament at Eastland on August 15, and in turn, the winner of the Eastland event may enter the state contest which will be held at Abilene at a later date. The Graham tournament is sanctioned by the Amateur Soft Ball Association of America.

Both men and women teams will be eligible to enter from any town in the above counties. The winning men's team will receive $75.00 and the women $50.00. Second prizes are $40.00 and $25 respectively.

Graham was selected because of the interest this town has displayed in soft ball for the last seven years. A new field, well lighted for night playing, was completed this spring and has been used every night except Sunday, since the opening of the season.

R. C. Wood of Graham, is district chairman for this strictly amateur tournament. Each team is limited to 17 players, but there is no limit on the number of teams to be entered. All entries must be sent to Mr. Wood by Saturday, July 30, so the date and schedule may be arranged.

Mr. Wood points out that no team in the above counties can enter at Eastland unless it wins at Graham.

Graham has had a very large attendance at all soft ball games this summer and the officials of the tournament expect much larger crowds for this occasion.

Austin in the past, and expect to keep it up.

"Because of the size and variety of conditions in Texas, its lawmakers are faced with many serious problems, some of which are unknown in other states. I welcome comment on these questions always. I desire to emphasize that the campaign was free from animosities, for which my opponent is entitled to equal credit with me."

Yours very truly,
George Moffett

Light Alloys Boost Power and Efficiency

(1)—Winner of last Indianapolis race. This car has a Miller engine which delivers tremendous power for its weight because of the use of aluminum alloys. (2)—Motor of car driven by Lou Meyer—Note the blower, or supercharger and other parts of aluminum alloy. (3)—Latest type Bohnalite alloy piston. This is the autothermic type used by modern speed cars, speedboats and a growing number of stock passenger cars, trucks and buses.

AUTOMOTIVE engineers and experts predicted that the speeds made in the last Indianapolis 500-mile race would break all records. The cars which competed this year were of the most advanced type ever to perform in the famous classic. There were no restrictions on quantity or quality of fuel, so with compressions boosted high all records went by the boards. Aluminum and magnesium alloys were used liberally for cylinder-heads, pistons, supercharger housings, crankcases, etc. The Italian Alfa-Romeo cars even had magnesium cylinder blocks. As a result the ratio of power to weight was so high that the cars could literally have flown, if they had had wings. In addition the superior cooling qualities of the light-weight alloys kept engine temperatures down, giving fine lubrication even at the terrific speeds the race cars maintained.

Big Rabbit Creek

July 24, 1938

The Big Rabbit Creek news will start this week by stating that this neighborhood had a fine 30 or more minutes of rain which will help the corn to make bigger nubbins than it would have if this nice rain hadn't come.

Hawkeye has been informed that Howard Bentley has just a few more fields of grain to thresh. After that, the threshing harvest will all be over for 1938. Generally speaking, the grain, both wheat and oats, were very light for the southern part of Cotton county.

Tobe Hardin, Mrs. Martha Nails and her son, Charlie, will go Monday to Waurika, Oklahoma, if the weather permits, to chop out several acres of cotton for Henry Kinnaird, as Brother Henry has several acres of cotton under a leasing contract for this year.

While Hawkeye was in Our Friendly Little City, Burkburnett, Saturday, he had the pleasure of forming the acquaintance of one of the finest old couples he has met in a long time: Mr. and Mrs. George Whitaker, better known all over the City of Burkburnett and Wichita County, Texas, as Dad and Mother. Those two fine old people have been living in Our Friendly Little City for over 20 years.

Hawkeye dropped into his old friend's up-to-date and modern little white store on the south side of Main street, owned and operated by Elijah Chrestman, but he found out that Elijah had been gone on his vacation since Sunday, July 17. He is visiting his married son in Benavides, Texas. From all reports, Brother Elijah is doing more fishing than he is visiting with his son Marshall and family. From reports, believe me, he is slinging out those big Bluefish and sea bass right and left, from fifty pounds upward, out of the Gulf waters. Brother Elijah states that those big fine Bluefish are biting so fast that he has to get behind trees to keep the fish from coming right out of the water and stealing his bait. He has halfway promised Hawkeye that when he leaves for home and his business, that he was going to bring back a slab of one of those big fifty pounders to Hawkeye. Say folks, if that should happen, Hawkeye would be tickled pink. His better half and his business are looking for Brother Elijah to arrive home Sunday. It is hoped by Hawkeye that his friend had the time of his life.

Well, as Saturday the 23rd was the Lone Star State's election day all over the state and if all of the other of the little cities the size of Our Friendly Little City, Burk, had anything like the great mass of people in them as Burkburnett had all day, folks, it would be a great sight to see. They were so thick on the side walks that if you were in a big hurry to walk to the next corner, you just had to get out in the middle of the street to make the trip. At that, you had to watch your step or some auto would bump into you, as there were hundreds of them up and down the street. There were over 4000 people on the old Rodeo grounds at 4 p. m. sharp when the big $60.00 cash drawing came off. The finest order that could be had was in the City Saturday. Believe it or not, the big Chief of Police, Bill Stapp, and his assistants had the City under great control; no drunks and no loud talking, only now and then you could hear some Texan or Oklahoman holler out in a nice way "Hurrah for W. Lee O'Daniel for Texas' next Governor."

Say friends, how many of you know that we still have a great many good Samaritans on this old earth? Well, we have. We have two up in the Valley View neighborhood. They are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Farris. Harry, as he is better known among his host of friends, in both neighborhoods, Valley View and Big Rabbit Creek, is a school bus driver to the Randlett High school. Well, for several years past, their hobby has been, and is yet, to give a big chicken feast to the City Dads of Our Friendly Little City of Burkburnett. So, last Friday evening was the appointed time and evening for this year's big chicken feast which came off at that time. The following City Dads and business men were present for the Good Samaritan's feast: Alvin Hill, Henry Grace Fred Brookman, George Byerly Leonard Kendrick, Alvis Caddell Tex Willis, "Pop" Ivey, and Clyde Davis and the host, Harry Farris. Around 6:45 p. m. or 7:00 p. m., the above guests were seated at a long, beautifully decorated table for which had been prepared for this occasion, chicken prepared in three different styles to suit the appetites of everyone. First style was chicken dumplings; second was baked chicken, and the best of all was good old fried chicken. All three styles were cooked to perfection by Mrs. Farris and her two daughters who assisted their mother in preparing the great feast. Besides the chicken there were fine cakes, pies and every other good thing that goes to make such a fine dinner for the City Dads. It just seemed as though Mrs. Farris and daughters were just tired completely out passing the fried chicken to Tex Willis and Fred Brookman and Henry Grace. Finally, they got filled up and after visiting the Farris family awhile, the boys departed for their homes back in the City and thanking Mr. and Mrs. Farris for this fine chicken dinner.

Well, it matters not how the country is depressed, those big birthday dinners are given just the same. A big treble birthday dinner was given Sunday, July 24 in the home of Tobe Hardin and Mrs. Martha Nails. The dinner was given in honor of Tobe Hardin, Charlie Nails, Mrs. Martha Nails' son, and Curley Bryant of Burkburnett, Texas. Two big tables were loaded from end to end with fried chicken, roast beef, pies and cakes galore. Those birthdays come about one day apart. The following families attended this big dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Curley Bryant from Burkburnett; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Grady of Burkburnett, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Harrison and family of Randlett, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Stafford, Randlett, Mrs. Frances Johnson of Burkburnett, Mr. Ted Fowler of Randlett and Mr. A. L. Dilbeck and family from the Big Rabbit Creek. After everyone had eaten every ounce of this fine dinner they could eat, there was still enough left over to feed as many more. Everyone left for their homes at a late hour, wishing those for whom the fine dinner was given in honor of their birthdays that they may live to see many more such birthday dinners.

Yours truly,
HAWKEYE OWENS

CHECK PRICE AND TRADE-IN

Check the difference between the new car delivered price and the trade-in allowance on your old car. Ford delivered prices help keep this difference low for you.

The De Luxe Ford V-8 is not just up-to-date, but actually advanced in its styling. Its beauty is all new this year. Fittings throughout are really "De Luxe."

There's a "feel" to the smooth, lively power of this great 85 H.P. V-8 engine that fewer cylinders can't equal... Plus Ford economy in every mile!
