A. & M. Enrollment Greatly Increased

Sharp enrollment increase, far in advance of last August, is in prospect for the A. & M. college of Texas, according to Col. George F. Moore, Commandant, and returning students who desire to live in quarters with their former military organizations are urged to make reservations immediately.

Approximately 500 more rooms are filled this year than at the same period prior to opening of school last year, Colonel Moore declared. A larger block of rooms scattered throughout the various military organizations has been reserved for freshmen this year, and upper-classes may find it difficult to obtain quarters they prefer unless they make reservations immediately, Col. Moore said.

Each year since 1932 the Texas A. & M. college enrollment has increased approximately 10 per cent, and prospects for this year indicate a similar increase. Addition of 1315 new dormitory rooms in twelve new buildings last year alleviated the crowded dormitory situation to some extent, but all rooms were filled by last year's record enrollment of 6424 students.

Construction of four more dormitories at a cost of $600,000 will begin immediately, but an increase in enrollment in excess of the usual 10 per cent would severely tax present dormitory facilities, college authorities pointed out.

I Give You Texas

By Boyce House

The suggestion for a "Grandmother's Day" advanced in this column sometime ago, has met with an enthusiastic response as, indeed it should because many of the golden memories of everyone's childhood center around grandmother.

My grandmother—as I am sure yours is or was—is a remarkable woman. Her husband died and she was left with the responsibility of providing for four girls, two small sons and an infant daughter on a rocky farm in the hills. That she succeeded is a tribute to her energy, courage, and intelligence.

The earliest remembrance of my life pertains to her. There was going to be a "cemetery working" and the oldest grandchild, then 4, begged to be taken along. Grandma yielded but, as she tells it, no sooner were we there than I began pleading to be taken back home. After all, a four-year-old feels a little embarrassed when folks surround him like they do a calf at a county fair and say, "So that's Maggie's boy, is it?"

A few years later, that same grandson was punished by being locked up in the smokehouse. Rummaging around I came across a tattered copy of "Abraham Lincoln's jokes" and when the relenting grandparent soon opened the door, the "prisoner" declared "I don't wanna come out; I'm readin' a book." Probably those Abe Lincoln stories started me off on a lifetime of fondness for good, robust human jokes.

My grandma has always had difficulty in hearing but, when we "young-uns" were plotting to slip away from tasks around the log cabin in order to slide down

Rocky Hill or swing on the grapevine swing, she had a way of sensing the conspiracy if the word "Grandma" was mentioned.

One day, she and I were climbing up the hill from the big road after going to the mail box and when the crest was reached, she turned and, looking back over the valleys with their waving wheat, said to herself, "The fields of golden grain." Grandma had kept burning on the hearth of her heart a love for the beautiful.

Another day, rummaging through old papers, I came across a scrap-book in which there were some poems written by Richard O'Brien and two of them were entitled "To Mary." He was my grandfather; my grandmother's name is Mary. The poems were quite pretty.

The memory that I carried away from my last visit to Grandma's was the sight of her sitting in the lamp-light chuckling as she read a little joke book of which I was the author. My grandmother has never grown old.

Most unusual rain story recently is the one told by Carl Roewe in the Turkey Enterprise. It seems that a citizen rejoicing in the nickname of "Durable Denver" was standing in front of a store when a rain arrived without any warning and the citizen was so shocked that he fainted. But the storekeeper knew what to do; he grabbed a handful of sand, threw it in Denver's face and he revived immediately!

D. 1940, the same being the 2nd day of September, A. D. 1940. Then and there to answer a petition filed in the 89th District Court on the 23rd day of November, A. D. 1938 and transferred to the 78th District Court on the 3rd day of July, A. D. 1940, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 32,961-B, wherein Bertha Hauger is Plaintiff and Clifford Hauger is Defendant and being a suit for divorce and the grounds of cruel treatment. After alleging jurisdiction of the Court, plaintiff alleges in said petition that she and defendant were legally married on or about the 9th day of January, A. D. 1928 in Barnsdall, Oklahoma; that they continued to live together until on or about the 14th day of January, A. Defense Program Finds A. & M. Ready

Total national defense plans will find Texas A. & M. college, the nation's largest all-male military school, well prepared to train new officers, according to college authorities.

During World War I the school led all others in the number of officers and men in active military service. A total of 2,200 men were a part of the United States Army and most of them returned from the war as commissioned officers, some of them ranking as high as colonel.

Military science has been a required subject at Texas A. & M. since the school first opened in 1876. Its reserve officers Training Corps unit ranks second to none in the nation. Completion of the advanced courses in military science and tactics, for junior and senior students, makes them eligible for officer's commissions in the reserve army. Last June, 360 students received reserve commissions.

In addition to the regular unit, the school has units in the engineering corps, the signal corps, coast artillery corps, and chemical warfare service. There are only two such chemical warfare units in the United States and the A. & M. unit is the only one west of the Mississippi river.

May Aid Medina Lake

Sportsmen's clubs of Texas, which have old, dead lakes might well follow the example of the San Antonio Anglers club, which recently took preliminary steps to start a movement to get the waters of the Guadalupe river diverted into Medina lake. The lake is extremely low. The club hopes to help finance a canal which would divert the waters of the Guadalupe through Medina lake.

Texas Engineers Solve Highway Stripe Problem

Austin, Aug. 14—Because of the ingenuity and tenacity of two Texas highway engineers, highway men of the United States are now looking to Texas for a solution of the vexing problem of providing traffic with a safe, yet economical stripe down the center of the road to keep traffic in the proper lane of travel. John Porter Byram in the August issue of Texas Parade tells how these two men, Jim Douglas, recently appointed construction engineer, and Dave French, concrete paving inspector, worked out their idea "from scratch" and with no previous data upon which to draw any conclusions.

The article, "A Penny Saved Is A Penny Earned," points out that this one idea is destined to save Texas taxpayers during the next 20 years a total of $706,350 or translated in terms of highway construction, enough money for the Texas highway department to build a minimum of 35 additional miles of concrete highways at an estimated cost of $20,000 per mile.

"The idea for a permanent center stripe grew out of a conversation that took place between French and Douglas in the Houston district office," reads the article. "They started from scratch after convincing themselves that something could be worked out. That was in 1932. There was a concrete paving job in progress in Victoria county and they selected it for the first experiment. After much discussion of the best method of procedure, they decided to mix lamp black in the concrete in the center.

"The thing was a colossal flop, according to French. The lamp black smeared and ran all over the road. It scaled off badly and the engineer on the job almost ran the two experimenters off the project. 'Our tail feathers,' recalls French, 'were sure dragging when we left.'

"After many bull sessions French and Douglas finally came to the conclusion that the reason lamp black failed to work by itself was because it had such a light specific gravity which prevented it from being worked into the concrete so it would set. It wouldn't mix with the water and floated on the top of the surface.

"Why not, they reasoned, combine lamp black with some substance that had a much heavier specific gravity and then impregnate the center stripe with this mixture. They decided to try iron oxide which has a specific gravity of five and which, when mixed with paving increases its strength. It was 1936, however, before they could get up enough nerve to undertake another experiment. They tried the new idea on a concrete section being constructed near Sealy.

"It worked perfectly. The combination of the lamp black and the iron oxide mixed very effectively with the green concrete and set up efficiently. It was hard, increased the strength of the concrete where it was installed and actually cost less initially than the old method of painting the center stripe.

"Nor is the saving to the taxpayer the only benefit derived from the permanent center stripe. Many motorists have noted that when traveling along a concrete highway lined with a painted stripe in the rain that their automobile loses traction and is inclined to skid. This is typical of stripes compounded from oils or asphalt bases. The permanent center stripe, however, is absolutely skid-proof in any kind of weather.

"Thus, once again, the progressive spirit that has marked the advance of highway construction in Texas has demonstrated its worth to the state and nation. Such progressiveness not only brings credit to the state of Texas but it also means dollars and cents saving to the motoring taxpayers."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD USING FILTERS

A yellow filter—K-2 or "G"—brings out the clouds in your pictures... makes shots more interesting and forceful. The red "A" filter makes skies quite dark; is good for special effects.

DO YOU use color filters in your picture taking? It's surprising the effect these little gadgets have in improving the quality of snapshots—and they're worth a try for anybody who wants to make his pictures better.

With the right filters you can obtain more desirable rendering of colored subjects in your black-and-white shots... retain clouds in outdoor pictures... darken skies for dramatic interest... even obtain beautiful moonlight effects on water scenes in the daytime!

If yours is a box camera or inexpensive folding model, you should have a filter which is medium yellow in color. This may be described simply as a "color filter," or by the number "K-2." If you use a finer camera with an anastigmat lens, you should also have a "G" filter (deep yellow) and an "A" filter (light red); but if you decide to get just one filter at the start, choose the medium yellow.

Each of these filters produces a different effect. The medium yellow or K-2 is a "correction" filter. Pictures taken through it show an improved rendering of tone values, compared to shots taken without a filter. Clouds stand out, just about as the eye saw them in the original scene. And all colored objects are reproduced more nearly in their correct relative brightnesses.

The "G" and "A" are "contrast" filters, for special effects. The "G" darkens a blue sky considerably, and is useful for dramatic renderings. The "A" filter darkens blue still more—so that, for example, a white building can be made to stand out against an almost black sky in a picture. These filters also lighten objects of their own colors, making them appear brighter-than-normal in the print.

Each filter calls for some increase in exposure, depending on the film you use. Instructions covering this point are generally packed with the filter, and are quite easy to follow. An exposure factor of 2, for example, simply means to double the exposure. This would be accomplished by using the next larger lens opening—such as, f/8 instead of f/11.

Filters are simple to use... and can add materially to the quality and interest of your pictures. No camera hobbyist's kit is complete without them.

Honey Bees Form Important Industry

Honey bees, age-old examples cited to the less industrious, really are working these days. In fact they're an industry. Their output is measured in thousands of pounds of honey.

No free and easy life for bees in industry. They're kept in colonies of 15,000 to 20,000 on carefully selected, isolated and fenced 50-foot square plots, located about four miles apart. The land is leased from the owners, who receive as rent 50 pounds of honey.

The bees of industry take their vacation in winter, asleep. If the winter is mild, however, the bees do less hibernating, more eating, which means that honey of which the hives are robbed two or three times annually, in part must be returned. Otherwise the busier bees eat their fellows.

Sideline business is raising queen bees for the colonies.

Ultra-Violet Ray Aids Drillers

New aid to rotary drillers in finding oil-bearing formations is the ultra-violet ray. Inventors say it detects instantly minute quantities of oil invisible to the naked eye in drilling muds.

After mud has travelled down through the hollow drill pipe, passing out through the drill, bringing cuttings back to the surface, a beam of ultra-violet rays is focussed upon it. The tiny particles of oil, if present, become fluorescent.

During the five year period ending 1939, 107 new industries were connected to the line of United Gas Pipe Line Company alone, representing a total investment of approximately $37,000,000 and employing more than 8,000 persons. Many other industries have located in parts of the Gulf South not on the line of United Gas Pipe Line Company, but which represent equally great benefits to the persons residing in the area because of increased tax benefits, employment and strengthening of the economic situation in the various communities.

Nat'l Safety Council Opens 1940 Drive

Chicago, Aug. 21—In time of national emergency an accident is unintentional sabotage, the National Safety Council declared today in announcing that its 1940 National Safety Congress will be devoted to mobilizing the forces of safety for the nation's defense program.

With "Safety for National Defense" as the keynote, the Congress—biggest safety meeting in the world—will be held October 7-11 in the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, the seventh time it has been held in this city.

Ten thousand safety leaders from every part of the United States will assemble at the Congress to discuss an accident prevention program designed to forestall delays in traffic and industry that would be dangerous to national preparedness.

In selecting this theme for the Congress, the executive committee of the National Safety Council made this statement: "We feel that recognition and development of safety's part in national defense is particularly appropriate as the keynote of this year's National Safety Congress."

"While no one knows what the future holds for America, it is evident that, come what may, the country is engaged in an intensive program of preparedness against any emergency. In this program safety must have a vitally important part, since conservation of resources—both human and material—inevitably is a cornerstone of national defense.

"In time of stress it is more than ever essential that traffic flow smoothly and safely, that the wheels of industry turn ceaselessly at top speed. In such times any delay and an accident is unintentional sabotage.

"The National Council therefore pledges its energies and resources to this end, and dedicates its annual meeting of members—the National Safety Congress—to diligent study of how safety best can serve in the defense of our nation."

The delegates will be reminded of the purpose underlying the with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Stevens and family.

Congress when they look from the windows of the Stevens Hotel headquarters. Visible in the distance will be historic Old Fort Dearborn, where 137 years ago the founders of Chicago met for common defense and safety.

In 150 distinct sessions, by more than 500 speakers, every conceivable phase of safety will be discussed—traffic, industrial, home, farm, and general. The modern safety army which mobilizes for this week-long defense council will have at its command the latest and most powerful weapons for the war on accidents. New developments, new information, new experiences and tactics in the never-ending battle to reduce tragedy and suffering will be reported and studied.

And through it all will run the national defense theme—the knowledge that unintentional sabotage through mistakes, confusion and delay is a greater menace than sabotage of alien agents . . . that any accident which kills or cripples a man who is doing his job well, whether he is behind a lathe or on the Army General Staff, is dangerous to the security of the nation.

Texas Rose Crop Growing Industry

Texas means oil and cotton and cattle to most people, but the Lone Star state is versatile. Another of its crops and a big one, consists of roses.

Some 16,000 varieties now are grown commercially in Texas at the rate of 20,000,000 rose bushes a year, or more than half the world's supply. Center of the industry is East Texas, whence rose bushes, chiefly two-year-olds, are shipped to every state and 25 foreign countries.

Tyler is the "Rose City", has a rose festival each year, ships annually to the North and East nearly 200 carloads of rose plants, with around 30,000 to the car. Popular varieties include "Red Radiance," "Talisman," "President Hoover," "Luxembourg," and "Etoile de Hollande." Texas' own rose creations include the "Centennial," "Ruth Shamburger," "Queen Frances Connally," and "Jean Bostick."

Petroleum insecticides have solved the pest problems of the rose growers, but the vagaries of weather, especially hail, still jeopardize rose crops which cost some $400 an acre to raise. Nearly three-quarters of the cost is for labor. Each plant is set out in December, budded the next July, trimmed the next March, and then prepared for market the following fall—all hand work.

—HIT-or-MISS— DOROTHY GIBSON

The linotype operator was calling for copy and the boss said "where's that column of Hawkeye's?" Everybody looked at me but I can't help it if he has a job now and probably won't be 'casting his hawkeye around' for some time, so I rattled the papers on my desk and tried to look very busy, but Ye Ed. had his eye on me and the make-up man said, "Do you want to use that same cut at the top of it? I said, 'Heaven forbid,' and that's the way it happened. Pinch hitter; that's me.

Read in the paper the other day where a cousin of mine was getting married. Big church wedding, flowers, music, such clothes, all the trimmings,—then casually: "The groom is employed on the newspaper." All that for a newspaper man!

It has been our experience that the humorless man, one who looks upon all things with the same seriousness is incapable of giving any issue its true measure.

It is odd how much more 'full of God' an empty church seems.

We know a woman whose virtue is undoubted but who is possessed of such a heinous disposition that those who see her coming in time quietly avoid her. On the other hand, we know another woman whom rumor has branded indiscreet, to say the least, whose untailing courtesy and great personal charm have endeared her to many people. We're not trying to moralize; just think it is sort of curious.

Revenue from the sale of beer and liquors provides most of the funds to pay the old age pension in Texas. There are 254 counties in this state and of that number 130 are 'dry,' but of course that wouldn't be the reason that there is never enough money to pay all the old folks.

Speaking of 'old folks' reminds me of this one: A professor from Denton is credited with saying: "I'm getting sick and tired of favorite sons of Kansas coming down to Texas to show us how to take care of our old folks."

"We've got two of them now; one in the governor's mansion and one down here at Del Rio.

"Of the two I don't know but that the one at Del Rio is doing most for the old folks."

In an issue of the Record News this week we noticed that someone had 'planted a pecan tree between every peach tree.' We were going to say something catchy about that, but it may be something technical that we wouldn't know about.

Saw in the papers that the conscription bill being contemplated will eliminate clergymen. Don't know just why; to our way of thinking they ought to make about the best fighters in the country.

We were all sitting around one day last week and somebody started that fool game of "If you had your choice of being any sound in the world which sound would you be?" There were a lot of pretty good ones like "the sound of tinkling ice in a tall glass," "rain on the roof," the usual run but the guy that broke up the party was the one who said "If I could have my choice, it would be the sound of Hitler's last breath."

Once upon a time there was a newspaper. It had served the community for thirty-three years without a black mark against it. Throughout the years pages had been devoted to extolling the virtues of evangelists and revivalists; school, churches, everything constructive in community life had always had its wholehearted support. Faithfully it had chronicled births, deaths, marriages, and parties. Day in, day out, its first and only thought was for the welfare of the whole community, not just a select few.

Then one day, still with courage and honesty, the paper adopted an editorial policy which failed to find public favor.

Men, some of them natives and some of them importations who had no interest in the community whatever, publicly labeled the paper traitorous and immoral.

Strong men were trampled in the rush of the mob to kiss the hands of the orators who collected their fees and departed without a backward glance.

Yes, they left, but the newspaper is still operating at the same stand; still fighting for the rights of men and still shelling out the free publicity.

Fee Saved By Burk Cotton Group

Farmer members of the Burkburnett Cotton Improvement group will save the 15-cent per bale classification fee on every bale that goes through for a loan, according to word received Monday by G. R. McNeil, Wichita county agent.

McNeil, in cooperation with the improvement association, has already filed the necessary papers with the Commodity Credit corporation in Dallas. The government will accept the classification as designated on the form one memorandum.

"Instructions issued to warehousemen by the commodity credit corporation authorize use of cotton classification memorandum, form one, of the United States department of agriculture, which is returned to growers on samples of every bale submitted for classification under the Smith-Doxey Act," J. R. Kennedy of the agricultural marketing service at Dallas wrote McNeil. "This classification is evidence of the grade and staple of cotton for 1940-41 loans.

"It is not necessary that warehousemen resample cotton on which form one has been issued," he continued. "Any farmer who has received classification on form one memorandum may submit this form to the warehouseman who will copy into the loan papers the grade and staple of the bale of cotton."

The Burkburnett group has adopted a one-variety cotton program.

Hi-School NYA Quota Set At $84

C. J. Duncan, superintendent of Burkburnett schools and NYA officer for that institution, was informed Wednesday that his monthly allowance for NYA work will be $84 this year.

Mr. Duncan states that all students who are eligible for this work will be interviewed as soon as enrollment is finished, but that he positively cannot accept applications or give any information regarding employment until that time.

Eligibility for NYA positions is determined by the government. No local person has anything to do with it.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dodson returned Sunday afternoon from St. Louis where they went to buy fall and winter merchandise for the Dodson Dry Goods store.

Mr. Dodson stated that they purchased some real bargains in the latest styles and they are going to give their customers the advantage of these bargains when they have their 4th anniversary sale, the first part of September.

before he discovered that he was at the Lion's club.

Personally, I've never been too ardent an admirer of Mr. Roosevelt, but I cannot fail to applaud his stand on the 'joint debate' question. Mr. Willie would do well to refresh himself on that little item that has to do with a man's putting away childish things when he has reached maturity, especially during such a critical period.

'Cap' Boden is going around with his lip in a sling these days. He doesn't come right out and name names, but I heard him say when asked about it: "You're not a married man, are you?"

Do You Know Texas?

A reader of this newspaper can get the answer to any question of fact by writing to A. Garland Adair, Curator of Patriotic Exhibits, Texas Memorial Museum, Austin, Texas.

The Golden Rule: "If such a Golden Rule had been enthroned in the nations, we would not on this fair morning have the appalling spectacle of mighty nations battle-scarred and war-torn, the news of which daily conflict plunges the world into its Garden of Gethsemane."—Dr. George W. Truett.

Q. Where may be found the names of those who served in the Army of Texas Independence? A. The muster rolls, prepared by the Quartermaster General of the Republic of Texas, were filed in the General Land office in May, 1939. Commissioner Bascom Giles invites interested persons to inspect this archive.

Biographical: Miss Elisabeth Ney who was the first artist of international renown to live and work in Texas, was born in Germany in 1834.

Q. How does the Texas Memorial Museum acquire its exhibits?

A. Dr. E. H. Sellards, director, states that the Texas Memorial Museum at Austin acquires its exhibits through gifts and expeditions. The registrations in this beautiful state museum indicate its growth in popularity as the people learn of its existence. The first ten days in August, 1940, listed citizens in the museum from 123 counties, twenty-six states, and two foreign countries.

In Memoriam: C. J. Austin, veteran of the World War, who for all the years since that conflict has with fortitude and patience borne the wounds and scars he received on the fields of heroic sacrifice, today sleeps in a flower-bedded grave in a San Antonio cemetery—another of the country's precious offerings for the preservation of the democracy dear to all true patriots. Mrs. Austin, secretary of the American Legion Auxiliary of Texas, has the sympathy of the entire citizenship in the loss of her husband.

Q. Is there a Texas almanac still being published. (F.W.D. of Dayton, Ohio, who read "Do You Know Texas?" in the Texas City Sun.)

A. Edited by Stuart McGregor, brilliant writer and thorough as to details, the Texas Almanac continues to be published by the Dallas Morning News.

Statistics: One thousand, two hundred and ninety-two courses were offered last year in the University of Texas at Austin.

Q. What does it cost to attend the University of Texas? A. B.

A. The cost varies. A maximum of about $75 in fees, including $50 tuition ($13.50 optional fees including many things such as college newspaper, athletics, glee club, debating, and entertainments.) Books cost from $15 to $40 a year depending upon the courses the student is taking. Room and board have a wide range, depending upon the student's desires. Prices vary from $200 to $400 a year.

The Menard News, published by that dynamic member of the Fourth Estate, N. H. Pierce, added new glory to the history of Texas Press Association recently when his newspaper won second place in the nation-wide contest to find the best weekly newspapers in America. "Do You Know Texas?" was first introduced in the state by Publisher Pierce. "Sketch" is another outstanding feature in the Menard News as well as numerous columnists of note.
