LAST CALL TO PAY POLL TAX

Saturday is the last day on which poll taxes can be paid. Ray Hill, manager of the chamber of commerce states that he will keep his office open until midnight Saturday, Jan. 31st, to accommodate those who are tardy in paying their taxes.

No city poll tax is required but you MUST have your county and state poll tax in order to vote in the city elections. There are two, and possibly three important elections to come up this year in the city and unless you have a poll tax receipt you cannot voice an opinion in city affairs.

This poll tax will cost $1.75 and every person old enough to vote should have a poll tax receipt. State, county and precinct officers are to be elected this year. Put yourself in position to help name your officers by paying your poll tax.

Poll tax may be paid without paying property tax.

Midnight Saturday is the deadline for paying of property tax without a penalty and interest being added.

Texas Mid-Co. To Assist Operators In Defense Precaution

Dallas, Jan. 21—The Texas oil industry was mobilizing today for any war-time emergency. A Statewide organization to meet defense needs and effect co-ordination with civilian defense authorities was being set up under leadership of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

The function of the Texas Mid-Continent in this program is to assist the operators in meeting the requirements of defense precautions. Through our Statewide organization and plan, we hope to take the work off the backs of the oil producers and effect co-ordinated action in all the fields of the state.

Technical committees of the industry are developing the safest methods for effective blackouts, and studying ways to eliminate hazards and extra expense without interfering with production operations. The association will assemble this information from technical groups, oil operators and civilian defense authorities and keep the field committees advised.

The organization now being set up will extend from the operators down to the individual leases, to make complete and efficient working facilities available to civilian defense officials. The facilities in each area can be put into operation by the chairman of the field committee upon authorization by the proper defense authorities.

Burkburnett To Play Childress Friday Night

With one-half of the schedule completed, the Childress Bobcats sit unscathed atop the district 2-AA basketball ladder, but there's still a rough row ahead for the unbeaten Bobcats even though they have shown no sign of faltering so far.

Four of the Bobcats' games all with good opponents will be played away from home during the second half of play. Their three home games will be with last-place Quanah, seventh-place Electra and Burkburnett, one of the teams that gave the Bobcats their most serious threat during the first half.

Tops Week's Schedule

The Burkburnett game is scheduled Friday night in the No. 1 game of the day on the Childress court. Burk lost the opening game with the Bobcats, 36-31. The four games Childress has away from home are with second-place Olney, third-place Graham, fourth-place Vernon and fifth-place Wichita Falls.

Work To Begin As Soon As Bids Are Accepted By City

City Manager Lynn Kincaid received telegrams this week from State Senator Tom Connally and Congressman Ed Gossett that Burkburnett's water and sewer project grant of $47,900 had been approved by the president and that the work would start as soon as bids were accepted. This is an outright grant from the President and there will be no bonds voted or other indebtedness incurred by this grant. The city, as sponsor will put up $4,700.

The grant will go for the construction of a concrete water reservoir and connections and an extension of the mains and also provides for an 8-inch line from the city water works to town. The grant will also provide sewer extensions to the south part of town, as well as 200 new meters and thousands of feet of copper pipe and connections.

Few More Years Would Have Toughened Uncle

The oldest inhabitant had celebrated his hundredth birthday and the reporter of a local paper called on him for an interview. "To what do you attribute your longevity?" the reporter inquired. The centenarian paused a moment and then, holding up his hand and ticking off the items on his fingers, began: "I never drank alcoholic liquors, or overate, and I always rise at six in the morning." "But," protested the reporter, "I had an uncle who acted in that way, yet he only lived to be eighty. How do you account for that?" "He didn't keep it up long enough," was the calm reply.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

BY HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for February 1

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JESUS CALLS FOUR DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 5:1-11. GOLDEN TEXT—Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.—Mark 1:17.

Followers of Christ are those who have not counted their goods nor their persons their own, but have willingly yielded all to Him.

The call of Christ is one which demands willing and wholehearted obedience.

I. Yielded Possessions (vv. 1-3). These disciples had already responded to the ministry of Jesus and had followed Him for a time...

It was not by chance that it was Peter's boat which was just at hand when the Master needed it.

II. Yielded Service (vv. 4-7). Having completed His teaching by word, Jesus had a special object lesson for Peter and the others concerning the fruitfulness of service apart from His guidance and control...

III. Yielded Lives (vv. 8-11). The giving of their possessions, the yielding of their work into His hands in obedience, led up to His call for the yielding of their lives.

Often we speak of God's claims upon the life of the Christian as though it were the fiat of an autocrat, one who demands his rights. God might well do so, for He has full authority and power over all of us...

The work of God in the world is carried on by men. The joy of proclaiming the gospel was not given to the angels, but to redeemed men and women.

In preparation for that ministry our Lord needed yielded lives, which He sought and found in these humble fishermen.

Christ no longer walks this earth to seek and call out disciples as He did these men, but the blessed succession of those of whom it may be said, "They forsook all and followed Him" (v. 11), continues to this day.

We repeat what we have said before, that one of the thrilling things about teaching Sunday school is that somewhere, in some class this next Sunday, God is going to touch the heart of some boy or girl who will be a leader for Him for the next generation.

War Literature

The seed catalogues are coming, never more appreciated than in this year of war literature. Zinnias and marigolds. Snapdragons and verbena. Sweet peas and morning glories.

Wistfully we turn the pages until, like a challenge, here we read, "New and Better Vegetables." Red cabbage.
Long orange carrots. Plume celery. Golden Bantam corn.
White spine cucumbers. Scarlet Globe radishes. Blue Hubbard squash. Break o' Day tomatoes. Just as enticing. Just as colorful. And the world's at war.

"Maybe," we say slowly, as we turn over more pages of profitable possibilities, "we better this year raise vegetables." Who says a seed catalogue is not war literature?

I Give You Texas

By Boyce House

"A man can smile and smile and still be a villain," observed Shakespeare—and the sun can shine and shine and still it can be quite cold, at least that is true in Minneapolis. Your observer likes to walk around and size up a strange city—but six blocks chilled my ardor and my feet. That wind was as brisk as a Texas one and was loaded with ice.

One of the most oddly-shaped edifices this columnist has seen is the Foshay Building in Minneapolis; the sky-scraper is like a shaft.

They have a good, second-hand book store in Minneapolis—but the number of books is less and the prices are higher than in the one in St. Paul. Besides, Carl Sandberg browsed in the St. Paul shop.

Minneapolis is about 10 miles up the Mississippi from St. Paul and is the larger city. Everyone is familiar with the rivalry—which is supposed to be keener than that between Fort Worth and Dallas.

The story that illustrates this is: A banquet was held, once upon a time, with citizens of both Minneapolis and St. Paul attending. The atmosphere was friendly, the speeches conciliatory. Finally one speaker said, "These two cities are so close together, they should be just one big city, with one name, and I have the very name—Minnehaha, 'Minne' for Minneapolis and 'ha, ha' for St. Paul."

It is said that a new minister in Minneapolis lost his pastorate by announcing that he would take his text from one of the Epistles of St. Paul.

Oh, well, maybe you'll like the story credited to Governor Stassen. A visitor asked the Minnesota chief executive, "How many people work in the state capitol?" and he replied, "About half of them."

And speaking of Governors, Coke Stevenson is a good driver; though he usually drives with only one hand—force of habit, dating back to the time (not so long ago, either) when roads were so rough that a fellow had to keep one hand in readiness to shift into second or the car would stall.

Brann the Iconoclast, the most brilliant writer Texas has ever known, said that Thomas Carlyle, the old Scotch philosopher, was such a titan that his shadow fell on the shoulder of Shakespeare himself. Here are a few great thoughts from Carlyle:

Nature does nothing without aim.

What you see, yet can not see over, is as good as infinite.

Do the duty which lies nearest thee.

The journalists are now the true kings and clergy.

The fearful unbelief is unbelief in thyself.

Thought without reverence is barren.

Great men are too often unknown, or what is worse, mis-known.

The public has become "tire conscious" as the result of the war rationing—and consequently folks are beginning to look with downright displeasure on a practice which has grown up through nobody's fault in particular—the practice of bakery trucks making four or five rounds of the grocery stores a day, each time leaving more bread, though the stack may be already too high, and re-arranging the bread counter so that the driver's own particular brand will be on top. In some cases, large city bakeries operating routes will keep a truck in a single town all day long, just going from one grocery to another, around and around.

This might have been all right in peace time—but such procedure now wears out trucks, consumes gasoline, burns up oil, wastes labor and consumes precious rubber; and, as bakery trucks will receive preference for new tires and tubes over us plain citizens, it had order be stopped. One delivery a day should, ordinarily, be sufficient.

People are always saying to this columnist, "I want to write; I could turn out some good short stories or a novel if I just had time." Of course, the answer is that they have 24 hours a day, which was just exactly the same amount allotted to all who made their mark in the field of literature—and some of these had great handicaps, besides.

Blind Homer wandered from town to town singing his immortal epics; blind Milton dictated "Paradise Lost" to his daughters; Robert Louis Stevenson did all his writing in a race against death, likening himself to a way-farer who, knowing that a robber lurks somewhere in the darkness ahead, stops in each inn and spends some of his money, so there will be just that much less for the highwayman at last.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

President Sketches World Strategy; Australia Is Periled by Japanese Army Invasion of Its Key Island Outposts; Nelson Speeds Up U. S. War Production

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state and head of the U. S. delegation to the Pan-American conference at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, is cheered by spectators as he waves his hat from the Tiradentes palace, scene of the historic meeting.

BLUEPRINT: Of World Battle

While the nation girded itself for victory production on a scale never hitherto dreamed of, and while American soldiers were arriving on foreign fields ready to do battle until victory, while still others were filling the news with their heroic exploits, President Roosevelt gave newsmen a hint of the "blueprint of battle."

The President, following the close of the Churchill conferences, and the safe return of the British premier to London by airplane from Bermuda, had told little to newsmen save that there was a complete accord among the united nations.

Now he had begun to give them the picture, a portrait of battle carried on simultaneously in every part of the globe by the soldiers of all nations working in concert with each other.

Thus were found American aviators fighting in the Singapore area, with the Dutch in the East Indies, in the Philippines, over the Seven Seas, and most lately arriving in Britain and other points for service.

The President said one could look at the map of the world and assume that the anti-Axis group was doing something at almost every strategic point.

He said that joint technical committees were busy, covering the subjects of production, of transportation of produced supplies to every part of the globe, also to the assignment of fighting men and machines to points where they were most needed.

While all of his information had been of a general nature, the nearest he came to giving out details was when he said that excellent progress was being made in strengthening the Allied forces in the Pacific.

This latter statement was taken by the press to be an attempt by the President to allay Chinese fears that the Allies were not going to make a vigorous enough battle against the Japs.

The President had finished a conference with Dr. Hubsertus Van Mook, lieutenant governor general of the Netherlands Indies. Dr. Van Mook came out of the conference room beaming.

JAPS: Extend Fronts

The Japs, far from being licked or even stopped, were constantly extending their front, and with reports of their continued advances spreading out with attacks on all fronts, came dispatches telling of two new ventures. These were the invasion of New Guinea and the Solomon island area; and an invasion of Burma by the Siamese as a measure to aid Japan.

Indicating a threat to Australia itself, the New Guinea invasion was paced by air attacks and a movement of naval forces. The Solomon islands lie in a chain northeast of Australia and east of New Guinea. The Burma invasion had started at Myawaddie on the Burma-Thai frontier. This lies at the northern end of the Burmese panhandle bordering the puppet country.

It had not been unexpected, and General Wavell's headquarters some time before had told of Chinese reinforcements to the Burmese troops, apparently sent there for just such a contingency.

The invaders also seized the port of Tavoy, which bisects the panhandle and gave the Jap-assisters a good advantage in opening the fighting.

Jap fliers were reported to have occupied a flying field at Tavoy, and roared out to attack with bombs the important cities and ports of Moulmein and Rangoon.

PRODUCTION: OPM Finally Dies

The OPM, over which William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman had presided as twin geni for many hard-working, hard-fighting months prior to American entry into the war, finally died. Production Chief Donald Nelson supplanting it entirely with his new War Production board, probably to be known as WPB.

Mr. Nelson, however, had "portfolios" in his new series of divisions for most of the key men in OPM—for it was not so much a junking of an old organization as a revamping of it on a streamlined basis.

The placing of one man, Nelson, at the head of the war production effort, also necessarily called for a change in organization.

This was undertaken fearlessly by Nelson, who created five primary divisions, most of them utilizing as heads former members of the organization of OPM, SPAB and other groups.

Leon Henderson still was in charge of civilian supply; Hillman still had the labor job; Stacy May was "progress reporter," and so on down the line.

Probably the first and most vital job, almost coincidental with the naming of Nelson himself, went to Knudsen. The big motor man became a Lieutenant General, in direct charge of the speeding up of factory production in general, that is, as far as Army procurement was concerned.

But the man who was to be most in the public eye for the next few weeks was Ernest Kanzler, a new figure in the picture, who was named automobile production czar—not of automobiles, but of what the auto factories are going to make.

MAC ARTHUR: Resistance

As if to prove that the defeat of his army had been prematurely predicted, General MacArthur sprang a distinct surprise on Washington and the country's newspapers when he reported that American-Filipino resistance was continuing on the island of Mindanao in the vicinity of Davao.

An all-out Japanese effort to turn the Luzon defenders' right flank had earlier been turned back with heaviest Jap losses, and yet the danger was far from over, for the Japanese were reported returning to the attack again with vigor.

It was reported that an entire Japanese army—estimated by some as many as 300,000 men—had been thrown into the battle for Luzon and the whole Bataan peninsula front blazed into action in a renewal of the Japanese attempt to crush the defenders.

But the word from MacArthur's headquarters that fighting was continuing in Mindanao came long after official Washington had given up Mindanao for lost, and simply showed how difficult communications were in the area.

It was believed possible that MacArthur himself had thought Mindanao gone until he received belated word from the southern island that the battle was still in progress.

CRITIQUE:

A dual report on profiteering came before the legislative bodies of the congress, the Truman report and the Vinson report—named for their committee chairmen, the former rushing into print and into the press a few days ahead of the latter.

That congress, aware of the huge character of the hurling of 56 billions into war production in two short years, and of what this might mean if profits were allowed to go beyond certain limits, intended to clamp the lid down was evident.

'March of Dimes'

Alma F. Borgmeyer, clerk in the mail room at the White House, opens mail bags jammed with "March of Dimes" letters addressed to President Roosevelt and designed to aid in the fight against infantile paralysis. The mail was reaching its peak just before the President's Diamond Jubilee Celebration on January 30.

SUB ATTACKS: Intensified

Submarines, probably German U-boats, were pressing their attacks along the East coast of the United States, but the Navy department had reported that strong counter measures were being taken.

The whereabouts of the navy's chief strength was being kept a closely guarded secret, but all authorities from the President down continued to insist that the navy was extremely active, and was disposed in such a manner as best to meet present threats.

The sinking of a Japanese cruiser by navy bombing planes was announced, and there had been a number of sinkings of supply ships, some of them close to Japan.

Most dramatic had been the exploit of PT-boat division commander Lieutenant Bulkeley, who shot his own boat at 80 miles an hour into the Bay of Olongapo, sent a 5,000-ton Japanese vessel to the bottom and escaped unscathed.

Bulkeley's boat, a 77-foot speedster, carries heavy machine-guns and 18-inch torpedoes. He was being hailed as a hero almost on a par with Colin Kelly.

The cruiser sinking lacked details, but the navy said it was sent to the bottom 100 miles off the island of Jolo, one of the nearly 8,000 isles of the Philippine group.

Where the American bombers which did this trick and achieved other victories were based was a closely guarded secret, but there were many possible bases in territory within reach of the location where the sinking occurred.

PRICE CONTROL: 'Joker'

The price control bill, sulking in the house and senate conference under the baleful displeasure of the President, continued to bog down as prices continued to soar.

The farm relief "joker" in the bill had met with condemnation, not only from the White House, but from many leading agricultural centers, and this remained the main point of controversy in the bill.

In the meantime, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard came out with a statement that there probably would be a shortage of sugar, just after all the refinery men had gone out on a limb with the opposite prediction.

Sugar hoarders and other purchasers of foodstuffs were continuing to storm grocery stores and cartoons were published under the caption "this little pig went to market" showing hoarders at their deadly work at the grocery counters.

Administration circles were at their gloomiest over the situation, one source saying "we had hoped to get an improvement over the house bill when we got to the senate, but the senate bill was worse than the house bill and now most of us would be calling it a victory if we could get the house bill enacted."

MISCELLANY:

Bern: German rationing has cut men down from five cigarettes a day to three. Women are allowed no tobacco ration, whatever.

Vichy: A German soldier was shot and killed outside a Paris night club. Police were able to arrest a young girl said to have been a witness. She was confronted with a dozen suspects and ordered to pick out the man who fired the shot.

Batavia: The Dutch admitted the loss of Minahassa, the northern portion of the Island of Celebes. It was the second severe loss of oil-important islands in the N.E.I.

London: Already work was in progress reviving the "scorched areas" of Soviet Russia retaken by the Red army. It was announced that Sir John Russell had been named advisor to the board, and would go to Russia with American, Canadian and British help to put Russian production back into being.

For Pan-American Solidarity Against Axis

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, center, and U. S. ambassador to Brazil, Jefferson Caffery, are shown talking to Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil's foreign minister, who was also administrator of the Pan-American conference held in Rio de Janeiro. The photo was made just before the third conference of foreign ministers in the interest of lining up all the American republics in a solid 100 per cent Western hemisphere front against the Axis, with a complete rupture of diplomatic relations. Leaders described Aranha as a "tower of strength."

British troops examine a German field gun, captured during their occupation of the island of Maaloy, Norway. The British commandos were landed on the Norwegian islands of Vaagso and Maaloy, after coast defenses had been silenced. Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, speaks at national press conference in Washington. He said he expects the nation's manpower in the next several months to come from men in the 21 to 37 age group, and warned local draft boards not to indiscriminately classify men for immediate service because we are at war.

Star Duet Stage Screen By VIRGINIA VAUGHAN (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

MICKEY ROONEY... the pretty girl from Carolina whose movie has so far consisted of minor roles, depleted ranks of Hollywood—and that's a serious item. There has never been enough bachelors there around. Now the draft in the armed forces, and have made it harder than a pretty, unattached girl presentable, unattached court.

The dearth of bachelors is giving to both Martha O'Paramount starlet; she moved one from circulation she announced her engagement to Walter Brewer, a non-prince and the brother of Mrs. Hal Jr. She appeared in "Reap the Wind" in one of the principal roles, and recently finished work on "Cific Blackout" in the feminine role.

Betty Field has had a lot of roles, but they've been made in "Shepherd of the Hills" where she wore make-up on her body to look as if she were covered in dirt, in addition to having to wear clothing. Now, in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" she plays the role of a woman who has been married for a long time.

BETTY FIELD... Cugat" in which she is costarred with Ray Milland, she has made changes of clothing—Edith Piaf who designed the garments, she had the highest budget for costumes that Paramount will provide for her. It's all. Give her a chance to play in a picture for once Betty will have something to wear on the screen!

Claudette Colbert goes Betty Field one better, though—she wears her wedding gowns in "The Palm Beach Story," in which she married McCrea twice—once in 1937, once in 1942—and both costumes are new.

When the call to duty came down, Carole Lombard readily obeyed. She did not lose her head in that call, she gave it, as well as freely as any soldier upon a battlefield. Her memory she cherished and revered down the ages by all who love that freedom for which the film star's beloved wife of Clark Gable, the supreme sacrifice, when she flew with the plane, carrying the film star's mother and 20 others, including army fliers, crashed near Las Vegas, Nev., none surviving.

Lombard was returning to Hollywood from Indianapolis, when she had gone to assist the U. S. Treasury in the sale of defense bonds.

Paulette Goddard takes to the woods in "The Forest Rangers" playing a girl of the backwoods who contends with a city-bred rival for the affections of Fred MacMurray. Seems as if it would have been appropriate to let her play city girl.

They tell us there's a new "oomph" which Hollywood has been tirelessly hunting. Help from the army. A buck private was visiting the Paramount studios and saw Jean Phillips, blonde stand-in, who'd just finished starring role in "Dr. Broadway." He looked at her once, twice, turned to the bystanders. "Wow," said he. "She's got wood!"

ODDS AND ENDS—Sammy Lee, who, with Don Reid, wrote the songs, "Remember Pearl Harbor," donating all the royalties from the record sales to Navy Relief. If you listen to those heart-stirring radio programs in which ex-soldiers and British children talk to their parents at home, you'll be glad to hear that Morris and Leon Parker, co-starring in "Torpedo Boat," both wore something on the first day of shooting in Victor Hugo's story of his routine on the Crosby program on the radio. TWO CAN SING

by JAMES M. CAIN

CHAPTER IV

SYNOPSIS
Leonard Borland, of the Engineering Co., New York, is a handsome young man with a pretty wife Doris who has just returned from a movie. She is a singer and is to be married at 19 and the birth of children, to help out the family. Borland protests, Doris replies she has always thwarted her and she had her way, as always. The presence of Hugo Loretz, who hates Borland, irritates him. After Doris is hospitalized at Town Hall, Cecil Carlsinger, phones Borland. At the time she tells him Doris has a fever but lacks style. Cecil is a war veteran but hasn't the certain song. He sings it and she says he has a fine baritone. Cecil knows of Doris through Hugo is hopelessly in love with her and Doris tortures even gets in her clutches. Leonard wake her up by giving her a kiss. "Go get yourself a Hurst where it hurts, in the department." Cecil will give her money but demands payment—pays but says she's in three months and spends much time in the hospital. Doris tells him Jack Leigh is to get her an engagement ring. Cecil is a movie palace, on tour, wires from Rochester, N. Y., saying can't sing and asking him to sing. They are discussing what to do during the performance.

Cecil swept out there like she owned the place and the whole block it was built on.

enough for more than one bow. Besides, it's only a welcome. You haven't done anything yet to warrant more than one bow.

"All right, I got that. What next?"

"Then you start to sing."

"Do I give Wilkins a sign or something?"

"I'll come to that, but I'm not done yet with how you come out. Look pleasant, but don't paste any death-house smile on your face; don't look sheepish, as though you thought it was a big joke; don't try to look more confident than you really are. Above all, look as though you meant business. They came to hear you sing, and as long as you act as though that's what you're there for, you'll be all right, and you don't have to kid them with some kind of phony act. If you look nervous, that's all right, you're supposed to be nervous. Have you got that? Mean it."

"All right, I got it."

"When you finish your song, stop. If the piano has the final finish, hold everything until the last note has been played, no matter whether they break in with applause or not. Hold everything, then relax. If you've done anything with the song at all, they ought to applaud. When they do, bow. Bow straight to the center. Then take a quarter turn on your feet, and bow to the left. Then turn again, and bow to the right. Then walk off. As quickly as you can."

"Do I do that after every song, or—"

"No, no, no! Not after every song. At the end of your group. There won't be much applause at the end of your first two songs; they only applaud the group. Bow once after the first song, and when the applause has died down start the second, and then on with the third."

"All right, I've got it now."

"If the applause continues, go out exactly as you went out the first time, and bow three times, first center, then left, then right, then come off."

"Go ahead. What else?"

"Now, about the accompanist. Most singers turn and nod to the accompanist when they are ready, but to my mind it's just one more thing that slows it up, that adds to the chill that hangs over a recital anyway. That's why I have Wilkins. He can feel that audience as well as the singer can, and he knows exactly when it's time to start. You wait for him. While you're waiting, look them over. Use those five seconds to get acquainted. Look them over in a friendly way, but don't smirk at them. Be sure you look up at the balcony, and all over the house, so they'll all feel you're singing to them, and not to just a few."

"Must be a swell five seconds."

"I'm trying to get it through your head that it's a battle, that it's a tough spot, and that you have to use every means to win."

"All right, I hear what you say."

"Now go in the bedroom and come out and do it. The center of the stage is over by the window, and I'm the audience."

"She made me rehearse that entrance about ten times, and then she seemed satisfied. 'And now one more thing, I picked Carissimi's "Vittoria Mio Core" for you to begin with because it's a good, lively tune and you can race through with it without having to worry about fine effects. After that you ought to be all right. But don't forget that it has no introduction. He'll give you one chord, for pitch, and then you start."

"Sure, I know."

"You know, but be ready. One chord, and as soon as you have the pitch clear in your head, start. Don't let it catch you by surprise."

"I won't."

"We had another cigarette, and didn't say much. I looked at the palms of my hands. They were wet. Wilkins came in. "Taxi's waiting."

"We put on our coats, went down, and drove to the theater."

"The stage was all set for the recital, with a big piano out there and a drop back of it. There was a hole in the drop, so we could look out. First she would look and then I would look. She said it was a sellout."

"My mouth began to feel dry. I went over to the cooler and had a

Current Fashions Stress New Use of Daring Color Contrast

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AT FIRST this matter of using two or three colors together in daring contrast was regarded as an adventure that would give a new slant to fashion. It was a deliberate departure from traditional color technique that might reasonably be expected to prove a mere passing fad. However, this courage on the part of designers to start something new has not only added zest to fashion, but has developed a movement that is being carried over from one season to another with increasing enthusiasm.

This spring the fashion program fairly vibrates with breathtaking color contrasts that defy staid and sedate ideas as to which color goes with which.

In every phase of fashion, from bathing suits to sweaters and from simple daytime dresses to dress-up afternoon frocks and pretentious "formals," designers are courageously handling color in new ways with an artistry that is winning tremendous applause.

To demonstrate the brilliant and audacious spirit of style creators expressed in their use of color, note the daytime dress shown to the left in the group illustrated above. The dress in this instance is of narrow wale corduroy with sleeves and collar of bright red wool jersey. A patch pocket has a striking heraldic design embroidered in multi-colored yarns.

By the way, this idea of contrasting sleeves might serve as an inspiration in stretching a limited budget to meet the exigencies arising in present war times when economy is a virtue every woman is urged to practice. For example, there's that dress hanging in your closet, "perfectly good," yet seeming to have outlived its usefulness. The sleeves show wear at the elbows. Why not rejuvenate this poor outcast with a new pair of sleeves in a bright, contrasting color? To complete the costume, add a belt, and, perhaps, pockets in the same bright color. You might even go so far as to do the contrast sleeves in a tri-color scheme, cerise for the top, gold for the center and purple for the lower arm portion, repeating the colors in pockets and neckline details.

Smartly typical of the new vogue for contrast is the dress shown to the right in the picture above. It has a definitely "peasant" feeling in its use of vivid colors and its trimming in a flower of self fabric.

There's something about the mid-day-bouse fashion done in red, white and blue that makes an irresistible combination. The pattern for the group above, with its easy-to-follow instructions, is especially interesting if you sew the modern way. If you aspire to be your own seamstress, your local sewing center will instruct you, at little or no expense, in the making of such expert dressmaker details as buttonholes. Crisp white rayon fabric is used for the middie blouse and cadet blue for the skirt. Bands of vermillion red accent the collar, cuffs and pockets and can be made in "jig time" with an edge stitcher sewing machine attachment.

And don't forget about the newest bathing suits. They have sprightly little skirts of ruffles, each in a different color. A bandanna for the head repeats the color scheme.

drink, but I kept swallowing.

At 8:25 a stagehand went out and closed the top of the piano. He came back. Wilkins took out his watch and held it up to Cecil.

"Ready?"

"All right."

We all three went to the wings, stage right. Wilkins raised his hand. "One—two." Cecil swept out there like she owned the place and the whole block it was built on. There was a big hand. She bowed once, the way she had told me to do, and then stood there, looking up, down, and around, a little friendly smile coming on her face every time she warmed up a new bunch, while Wilkins was playing the introduction. For her first appearance she was singing just one long piece, not a group of songs.

Then she started to sing. She turned grave and seemed to get taller, and the first of it came out, low and soft. It was Latin, and she made it sound dramatic as hell. And she made every syllable so distinct that I could even understand what it meant, though it was all of fifteen years since I had had my college Plautus. Then she got to the part where there are a lot of sustained notes, and her voice began to swell and throbb so it did things to you. Up to then I hadn't thought she had any knockout of a voice, but I had never heard it when it was really working. Then she came to the fireworks at the end, and you knew there really was a big leaguer in town. She finished, and there was a big hand. Wilkins came off, wiped his hands on his handkerchief. She bowed center, left, and right, and came off. She listened. The applause kept up. She went out and bowed three times again. She came off, stood there and listened, then shook her head. The applause stopped, and she looked at me. "All right, baby."

Wilkins put the handkerchief in his pocket, raised his hand. "One—two—"

I aimed for the center of the stage, got there, and bowed, the way I had practiced. They gave me a hand. Then I looked up and tried to do what she had told me to do, look them over, top, bottom, and around. But all I could see was faces, faces, faces, all staring at me, all trying to swim down my throat. Then I began to think about that first number and the one chord I would get, and how I had to be ready. I stood there, and it seemed so long I got a panicky feeling that Wilkins hadn't come out. Then I heard the chord, and right away started to sing.

My voice sounded so big it startled me, and I tried to throttle it down and couldn't. There are no piano interludes in that song. It goes straight through, for three verses, at a fast clip, and the more I tried to pull in and get myself under some kind of control, the louder it got and the faster I kept going until at the finish Wilkins had a hard time keeping up with me. They gave me a little bit of a hand, and I didn't want to bow. I wanted to apologize and explain that that wasn't the way it was supposed to go. But I bowed, some kind of way.

Then came Scarlatti's "O Cessate Di Piagarmi." It's short and ought to start soft, lead up to a crescendo in the middle, and die away at the end. I was so rung up by then I couldn't sing softly if I tried. I started it, and my voice belled all over the place, and it was terrible. There was a bare ripple after that, and Wilkins went into the opening of the third song, the last of that group. It was the "Come Raggio Di Sol" by Caldara, and it's another that opens soft. I sang it soft for about two measures, and then I exploded like some radio when you turn it up too quick. After that it was a hog-calling contest. Wilkins saw it was hopeless, and came down on the loud pedal so it would maybe sound as though that were the way it was supposed to go. But a fat chance we had of fooling that audience. I finished, and on the pianissimo at the end it sounded like a locomotive whistling for a curve. When it was over, there was a little scattering of applause, and I bowed. I bowed center, and took the quarter turn to bow to the side. They stopped. I kept on walking.

It is no trick at all to dye them a deep red and for trimming use beige colored yarn (dye with coffee liquid). Chocolate and Cocoa Chocolate is richer and more nutritious as a beverage than cocoa, although both originate from the seeds of the tropical Theobroma cacao tree. In chocolate the cocoa beans have been ground and caked together, with all the fat content retained. In cocoa, the beans have had much of the fat pressed out of them before they are ground and powdered.

HARDIN GRADE SCHOOL NEWS

Students in this section have enjoyed their new reader, "Good Night," this week. They are now ready for their first primer, having studied pre-primers heretofore. The students in this section are still enthusiastic about buying Defense stamps. Those that have bought stamps this week are as follows: Betty Ray Ahrey, Peggy Hothan, Shirley Ann Tyler, Dorothy Sampson, and Rilda Herring. (Walling L1-2).

We are glad to have Viola Faye Bryan, who has been absent the past three weeks, back with us. We missed several of our number that were absent all last week on account of illness. Among those absent were Dan Hullum, Louis Earl Gibbs, Louise West, Erma Mae Smith, Billy Lundberg, and Patsy Nell Suterfield. We are enjoying our first primer, "Job-Boy." (Billingslee L1-1).

This section was promoted from H6-1 and each student is elated. It is the aim of everyone to do good work this semester. Several students are adding stamps to their Defense Stamp books each week. (Mrs. Kimbrey).

We have three new first grade pupils. They are Woodrow Bilby from Wichita Falls, Carl Weathers from Paducah and Jeanelle Burton from Oklahoma. There were sixteen on the honor roll this six weeks from this section. Dorothy Gholson was absent on Friday, due to illness. (Robertson H1-3).

The L7-2 section has all its parts memorized for the assembly program Friday, but are still working on their slogans. A scene covering the entire back of the stage will portray Pearl Harbor in time of peace and in time of war. Five students in the L7-2 section failed this first semester, but they are going to work very hard this semester and bring their low grades up in order to pass at the end of the school year. Five students also were awarded honors because of their perfect attendance records. They were neither absent nor tardy during the first semester and as a result had their lowest grade raised one letter.
