The area of the field and the uniformity of deposit will justify a ten ton smelter plant to commence with. There is no doubt that one lump that I have explored thoroughly would furnish a sufficient supply for an indefinite time, as the clay covers 100 acres of an uniform thickness and grade I have investigated the permion to the extent that it can be found on all sides of the Staked Plains. In the beds in new Mexico the copper has been worked in several places successfully, all occurring in the same manner as in the beds near here. The sulphide chalco-cite seems the first mineral formed from the copper solutions and the azurite next, or rather the azurite is the first step of decomposition of the chalcocite. Over 150 distinct occurrences have so far been examined and I have been able to draw some very keen inferences. Some of the clay gives averages of from 3.50 to 30 per cent copper by actual smelter tests. I have investigated the fields in Haskell, Knox and Stonewall counties and find an abundance of very fine copper ore outcropping in all of its forms. I also find that there has been many hundreds of tons taken out in prospect work. This is all first-class ore and will run all the way from 30 to 80 per cent copper with a uniform amount of $4 to $5 in gold and silver.

There is no doubt but that what is already exposed would run a smelter the size we propose to build for many months.

The wagon haul is only six miles to Rainer and from there the railroad haul to Lueders will not exceed 35. Should we commence to mine and accumulate ore we could and would have a supply sufficient to run a year before we could possibly get the smelter complete and in operation.

Another matter of easy solution would be the building of the long contemplated dam across Cottonwood with the slag and gang from the smelter and reduction plants, not only building the dam without any expense but furnishing a dump for the material from the

"BEST TAILORING"

"TAILORING BRAINS"

One of the commonest expressions you see and hear in connection with clothing is "best tailoring."

As generally meant and understood, there is no such thing. In the process of putting together a garment, it is possible to go only so far. Many makers can and do go that far.

In connection with tailoring, we often have occasion to use the expression - "tailoring brains." maker displays tailoring brains or he does not. What is meant is that there is sometning more to tailoring than time, labor or even skill and ability-that it's the result and effect of what has been done rather than the fact it has been done.

That is the idea in making Brandegee Kincaid & Co. clothes. Every stitch, seam, edge, must be perfect; sleeves hang right; collars and shoulders be properly worked the whole garment superior. But back of it all is intelligence and brains, the "tailoring brains" to make clothes impressive. In this sense Brandegee Kincaid & Co. clothes are "best tailored."

NOW GENTLEMEN LISTEN

A few seasons ago the Howard & Foster shoe was practically unknown in Haskell, but it has been gradually growing in popularity, till it has become the best selling shoe in Haskell. There has been many a dollar saved on shoes since we have been selling this shoe in Haskell. The top price for this shoe is $5. we dont sell another line above it either. If we thought there was a better one we would sell it, but we think H. & F. $5 shoes are as good as money can buy and we guarantee them to be as good as you can buy at any price. We allow you to be the judge. If you've been paying $6 or even more for your shoes try a pair of H. Q. F. $5 ones and if they don't give you the service you've been getting bring them back and we will make good our word. And the fit of the shoe is no little thing either. Come here where you get the benefit of scientific fitting. We may not be able to fit you, but we if we can't nobody else in Haskell can, and when we can't fit you there is something peculiar about your foot and we will take your measure and have you a shoe made to fit your individual foot.

AN INNOVATION AND AN INVITATION

It is well that widespread attention is now directed toward the purity of what people eat and drink. The standard can never be made too high.

Long before there was a pure food law we had a similar law of our own in operation at our soda fountain.

We have always provided soda water that was as nearly perfect as to purity and wholesomeness as it is possible to produce. Add to this cold, sparkling and delicious properties and you have the reason for the constantly increasing patronage of our fountain.

THE INNOVATION--

SANITARY PAPER CUPS FOR OUR SODA FOUNTAIN

The public drinking cup and the the roller towel have been banished. Sentiment is ever increasing in favor of sanitation. To meet the public demand and to contribute to the health of the community we have gone a step further in the conduct of our Soda Fountain by adopting the use of the sanitary paper cups.

The use of these cups will insure absolute cleanliness and will make every drink served at our fountain absolutely sanitary in every respect We are the first to introduce the use of these cups and we hope the public will show appreciation of the new move by patronizing our fountain liberally.

THE INVITATION--

=FOR SATISFACTION AND HEALTH'S SAKE DRINK OUR SODA

Be sure that you get your share of the delicious things served at our feuntain. Soda water meets an actual need. The time was when the drinking of soda was considered a luxury merely, and not a very healthful luxury at that.

All this is changed at the modern fountain which is properly conducted. The materials used are the daintiest and most wholesome that exist. Rightly made such beverages have food and hygienic value—they sustain vitality, cool the blood and are healthful and refreshing.

The way we serve soda will please the most critical. Everything about our fountain, inside and out, is kept as clean as the best house-wife's kitchen.

You can drink at our fountain with confidence and satisfaction.

Come in and try your favorite drink as we serve it.

There will be a city election, Tuesday, April 1st, to determine the issuance of $3500 in bonds to extend the city water system, to run for torty years. The city water system has been paying and has the money to take up $3500 dollars worth of bond already out-standing. This has, or will be done, under an agreement of the holders of the present water bonds. The mayor and city council are in favor of extending the water system as fast as they pay off the present bonds. It will not increase taxes and will eventually give Haskell a complete water system. We think the town gets more out of its water system than any other feature of incorporation. The system is paying and has kept down several disastrous fires.

Presbyterian Ladies Entertained.

The ladies of the Episcopal Guild entertained the Presbyterian Bible Study Class on Thursday March 20th at the home of Mrs. Will McGregor.

The atternoon was pleasantly spent conversing and crocheting. After a delicious salad course, Mrs. McGregor, representing the Episcopal Guild, in her charming manner presented the Presbyterian Church with two silver collection plates, showing the friendly relation existing between the two societies, all tending to show the brotherhood of man. After the CALIFORKIA presentation the plates were duly christened by Mrs. Emma D. English.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proyen Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on LIBERAL STOP-OVER PRI VILEGS the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. ### A Singular Occurrence

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

Mrs. Elliot Walker came home at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and saw her husband, who had arrived before her. just going into the library. He seemed agitated

"What's the matter, dear?" she asked "Nothing."

This was all that passed between them at the time. Mrs. Walker went upstairs, and just as she reached the upper landing she saw a woman's hat sinking below the top step of the reat staircase. Mrs. Walker ran after her. saw her turn toward the front of the house and into the library. The lady ran into the room and saw a well dressed, rather good looking woman standing near her husband.

"Well, I declare!" exclaimed the astonished wife.

"Weil?" said the husband, looking from one woman to the other.

Mrs. Walker was too full for utter ance. The stranger cast her eyes on the floor. When the former found her voice she cast a troubled glance at her husband and said in a trembling voice: "Oh, Elliot, to think that I should have been so deceived in you.'

"I know no more of this woman than you do," was the reply. "If you doubt me ask her

The wife turned to the stranger, but spoke no word. Why should she? The woman acknowledged her guilt by her appearance. Her head was bowed; her eyes were glued to the floor.

"For one thing," said Mrs. Walker. "I give her credit. She can't lie as you

"My dear"- Mr. Walker regarded his wife with an injured look; then, turning a severe glance upon the wo man, he asked:

"What do you mean by this behavfor?"

"Elliot," she said without raising her head, "I am lost. My husband must marrying a man whose income did not sooner or later know of this, and 1 shall be an outcast from my home."

"Elliot! You call me by my first name-you, whom I have never seen before-and you admit that you came here to meet me in my wife's absence when I have only been at home a few minutes. This is incomprehensible." "Oh, heavens!" excisimed the wife. "It is plain enough to me. Elliot. ! know your unconquerable assurance. Were this woman as adent in playing a part as you, your game would have worked admirably. As it is you are caught. Would that I could be deceiv added the wife. "I give you my word of honor that I never saw that woman before.'

"Do you take me for a fool? Did not the creature admit what you deny?" For this the husband had no reply. "Leave me." he said. "to regain my equanimity. I am in so condition to think. I have a note coming due tomorrow and no funds with which to meet it. On top of that trouble comes

The wife silently left the room. What was there to be said? The proof against her husband was absolute. His business trouble was an additional misfortune for her as well as for him. Going into another room, she threw herself on a sofa and gave way to immoderate grief, while her husband was walking the floor in the library. After awhile she arose, dried her eyes and went back to the library.

"What is the amount of this note?" she asked.

'Six thousand dollars."

No Fool Like An Old Fool

By ELEANOR K. BEACH

"My son," said the senior Winthrop when his boy was about to leave him to enter into business in the city, "I will forgive you for anything except makits a senseless marriage. In other words. I expect you to consider when you marry upon what you propose to support a wife. If you marry a giri who can do her part in the family financial requirements, well and good If you secure an income to do it all yourself, well and good. But if neither of you has anything more than a pittance don't come to me for help. In short, I shall not want to see any thing more of you. One word more: The worst thing you can do is to marry a girl brought up in affluence who has nothing on which to keep up a

Bob Winthrop chose what his father considered the worst thing he could do Miss Possile Hilton was the daughter of a man who lavished luxuries upon her till she was twenty years old, then failed in business and died, leaving her with nothing at all Bob was a gentleman-like, handsome chap and had not been long in town before be was received in society and met Miss Hilton just before misfortune befell her family She had met many agreeable young men and had had a num ber of suitors, but between her and Bob came something that neither had felt before. Bob proposed and was accepted when he supposed he was considering his father's warning Then came the crash, and the young man was not only too honorable to withdraw his offer, but he did not wish to withdraw it

But he had a hard time in persuading Rosalie to marry him. She had a good head on her shoulders and realized what would likely be the result of admit of his supporting any wife at all, to say nothing of one who had been brought up in luxury, but since her heart was with Bob and he said he was willing to take the responsibility, if she was, she finally yielded and they became engaged.

Bob wrote his father all about it and received in reply: "They say there's no fool like an old fool. opinion is that there could not possibly be a greater fool than a young fool." Bob showed his father's letter to Rosalie. She said not a word in reply. but seemed to be doing a good deal of thinking Presently she said: "Well, Bob, there's evidently no hope for us with your father. And your income is too small for us to marry on. Either thing to earn money or we must give up marriage. I am well educated and shall teach."

"We needn't be married right off." said Bob. "Wait awhile."

Six months of waiting passed, and Bob found it a depressing period. Rosalle went to live with an aunt in another city and wrote Bob that she was getting ready to teach. Then she wrote that she had found a position at a salary of $800 a year. She could save most of it, and in a year they would have the wherewithal to start a fortune Bob smiled at her way of expressing it, but a year seemed very long to him.

One day Bob received a letter from his father, who was a widower, that he had concluded to take a second wife. In order to gild his announcement he added that he would celebrate the event by giving his son $10,000. If he chose to spend it in marrying a girl who had been born "with a silver spoon in her mouth" and who would doubtless spend the money or lose it within a year, he was welcome to do so. But he advised Bob to follow his father's example and marry a practical woman.

Bob sent the letter to Rosalle, who repiled: "Why don't you go home and inspect your future stepmother? I have no confidence in the sense of old men in the matter of marriage. I notice your father doesn't mention his fiancee's age. Ten to one he has got and he's bothering me to marry him."

Bob wrote his father, thanking him having given him a look. Going up to for his kind intention, and added, "I shall be able get off for the week end which she kept a few ornaments she and will run down and see you to offer used from day to day, intending also my thanks in person and meet the fu-

Saturday evening Bob appeared in his father's house and was welcomed by tively fourteen and ten. They were loud in their praises of their future stepmother Then came the father. beaming all over with happiness. Bob asked if his father would take him to call on the lady during the evening, to which his father replied that the lady was in the house and would be down in a few minutes. As he spoke the words the door opened and she stepped into the room.

"For heaven's sake, Rosalie, what are you doing here?"

"I came here to disprove your father's words that a young fool is a worse fool than an old fool. I am the governess of your sisters and have become very much attached to them, also to your father."

The old man was much shocked and disappointed, but he finally decided to take it all in good part and consent to Bob's marriage provided Rosalie wouldfinish the year as his daughters' gov-

A Homely Man's Romance

By CORA HATHORN SYKES

Mart Krebbs was a very homely man He had red hair, was freckled, several teeth were gone and his beard stood out from his face like bristles. Krebbs was fifty-five years old and as unro mantic a person as could be imagined He had been a stage driver all his life. and now that the railroads had elbowed the stagecoach off the main lines of travel Mart was bandling the reins in the Yellowstone park, driving parties of visitors there. One day some young ladies were occupying the next sent back of the driver, one pretty miss of eighteen sitting beside him. She was trying to get Mart's experiences of wild western life out of him.

"Are there any romances among these episodes of yours, Mr. Krebbs?" she

"I don't know what episodes is," he replied, "but if by romances you mean love there's one love story, but that's the only one so far as I knows."

"Do tell it." came from all the girls at once. Mart began by sundry instructions to his horses, eased the coach or a down grade by putting his foot on the brake, hemmed several times and told his story:

"This park when I was a younker was a part of the western wilderness, but they called it what they call it now and onct in awhile there was a party visitin' it. I'd been drivin' a coach be tween Denver and Georgetown, but had gravitated over yere. The Ute In dians was yere in them days, and they was friendly to the whites, but the friendship of redskins means nothin doir' between them as a tribe and the whites. It don't take in small af fairs.

"Waal, one day I was stouchin around lookin' for a good place where there was water to stay awhile when beered the crack of a rifle. I was in a boller, and I couldn't see nothin and I didn't know which direction it was comin' from, but as there was a road fust beyond the rise on my right I kind o' thort there was somepin goin on in that direction. I clim' up part the way and crawled up the rest till I stuck this ugly mug o' mine-I was almost as ugly then as I am now-over the ridge.

"What I saw was this: A party of visitors was ridin' in a three sented wagon-three on a seat-and three Utewas makin' road agents of theirselves calculatin' to do a little civilized plun derin' They had stopped the wagon by the shot I had heard, and the party in the wagon was handin' out their valuables. There wasn't one of 'enand they hadn't no bu drivin' there without pertection. They had been told there wasn't no danger and mostly there wa'n't.

"I was only one man with one rifle. though I had plenty of ammunition. I didn't feel like interferin' so long as the redskins acted Christian-like and didn't do nothin' more'n rob. But when they'd got all the cash there was in the party and found there wasn't much of it after all one of 'em saw a mighty purty young gal, and I heard him ask her to be his squaw. I know'd just enough of their lingo to under stand what he meant, but none o' them in the wagon did. The red devil took hold o' the gal and pulled her out o the wagon. She was skeered purty nigh to death. When they got her in the road they was takin' her off into the forest when I calc'lated it was time to interfere. I was layin' on my stom ick with my rifle before me, havin' perfect aim with a rest. I sent a ball into the skull of the red man that was pinin' for matrimony and dropped him "His two pals in about one second had got their eyes on a bit o' smoke sailin' off from where I was and know'd where the shot come from, but they didn't know who had fired it or how many there was of me. I didn't give 'em time to make plans. I let fly an other lump o' lead, though by this time the two live Indians was makin' for trees, and I only winged one o' 'em The other took the wounded man and helped him away. I sent another ball after 'em so's to discourage 'em from comin' back. I waited awhile, reckon in' they might, but bearin' nothin' o' em I went down and joined the party.

"The raskil I killed had most o' the plunder on him, and that was saved. But the principal thing saved was the gal. When she got it through her head what I'd done she jist wabbled up to me and throwed her arms about my neck and collapsed."

"How interesting!" exclaimed the girl beside the narrator. "I thought we'd get to the love part after awhile." said another. "Do go on!" cried a third. "Let's have your proposal!" chirped a little girl not quite fourteen years old.

"They wa'n't no proposal," Krebbs continued. "Do you reckon a young feller with red hair and freckles would have the gall to propose to a young lady like that? I jist handed her over to her mother, and her father, who'd got his money back from the Indian I'd shot, handed me a twenty dollar gold piece. I told him I didn't have no use for it, livin' wild like I was. and he put it back into his pocket. They all wanted to do sompin for me. but I wouldn't let 'em. But I got into the wagon with 'em and sor 'em to a

"But the romance!" exclaimed several of the girls.

"Oh, that's been with me ever since The gal hadn't nothin' to do with it." "And you never married her?"

"No, nor any one else."

THE SORREL WIG

By ELIZABETH WEED

Dear old motherly Mrs. Crulkshank was all heart. She took me luto her house at the time of my mother's death and cared for me. She said it was because she was lopely ber son being a sailor and away from her nearly all the time, and that I was very good to stay with ber and all that. It was no use to combat her as to this, and I saw that to remind her continually of my obligation distressed her, so I let her have her say in the matter. She was a funny little body, full of crotchets, and one must humor

Shortly before Mrs. Cruiksbank took me in her son Albert sailed on a voyage, to be gone three years. I was seventeen then, just the age to be thinking of a lover, and his photograph hanging in the parlor caught my fancy. It represented a boy of eight een in sailor costume, his collar rolling away from his neck, his hair tumbled and a frank, fearless face. The old lady never tired of talking to me about him and one day said to me:

"If you'll be a good girl and stay with me till he comes back, perhaps I'll give him to you-if you want him.' I smiled at this way of putting it and told her that any girl who wouldn't want such fine looking fellow as that wouldn't deserve to have a husband at all.

When the time came round for Bert to be coming home he wrote his mother that he had been promoted to be first mate and he hoped it wouldn't be long before he would have a ship of his own. His mother read me this part of the letter with every appearance that she considered me interested in it on my own account, and I didn't disturb her in her opinion.

As bad luck would have it, several months before Bert's return I was attacked by a fever which nearly car ried me off. If I was obliged to Mrs. Cruikshank before the obligation was now increased a hundredfold, for she hung over me as if I had been her own daughter and the only one at that.

Alas! When the fever left me it took my hair with it, leaving me as bald as a billiard ball. True, my hair began to grow again and just before Albert's arrival was about half an inch long all over my head. I could see that this troubled Mrs. Cruikshank immensely, for my hair was my most attractive feature, and without it I at least considered myself a very homely girl. She declared that I was more attractive than ever, but since my loss troubled me it must be hidden till the hair grew again to its wonted lengthwould wear a wig.

Mrs. Cruikshank went to the city one day to procure the article and came home with one whose color was unique. The nearest word by which to describe it is sorrel. I told the good lady that it was beautiful, which comforted her greatly, for she said it had been offered to her for half price and she feared the reduction was owing to its color. I assured ber that it match ed my complexion exactly. By the time Bert arrived I was up and about. Every now and then I would catch sight of myself in a mirfor and would be astonished, even shocked, at my appearance. My pallor was heightened by my wig. and the appearance was like an old woman who had been trying to make herself look young. But I refrained from saying a derogatory word to the mother of the boy whom I was to attract. Indeed, I pretended to be very much pleased with myself.

The result was what might have been expected. Mrs. Cruikshank had mentioned me in her letters to her son. commending me for a beauty, and had unfortunately spoken of my "tresses" as my chief physical attraction. When the met me he was so astonished at the color of my head covering that his eyes were glued to it in a fixed stare. Then he shook hands with me, but there was no warmth in his grip. It was plain to both his mother and me that he had met with a great disappoint

After remaining at home a few days submitting to his mother's caresses he made an excuse to get away to the city, saying that he must go on busipess for the ship. I could see that his mother was greatly disappointed at the Ill success of her plan for keeping him at home by offering me as an attraction. He said he would he away a month, and on his return would sail again. His mother resigned herself to what she could not help, and we were left slone.

One night when we had gone to bed there came a rap at the front door. Getting out of bed I donned a dressing gown and without putting on my wig went downstairs with a lighted candle to see what was wanted. Opening the door there stood Bert.

As at our first meeting his gaze was fixed upon my hair, but now my own hair, and instead of disappointment I saw admiration. My hair is naturally kinky, and it was now long enough to stand in little ripples.

"For heaven's sake!" he exclaimed "What's become of the sorrel?" I burst into a laugh, and called to his mother that her boy had returned.

Bert's manner toward me was com pletely changed. He did not sail as expected, having been offered a ship of his own, and when he did sail he took his mother and his wife with him I being the wife. It is needless to say that the old lady was delighted, and as for me-well, I was by no means dis

A DOUBLE MISTAKE

By ARTHUR W. BREWSTER

Happy the man in whose daily avocation there is no risk. When I was a young man I went to work for a wholesale drug firm. One day a retaller wrote from a neighboring town that our concern had soid him a drug that made every one sick who took any of it. It turned out that I had put up the package sold.

I never entirely got over the narrow escape I had had in this case. I received only the usual reprimand from my employers, for no one can perfectly rely on accuracy always. Later I set up for myself as a retailer of drugs. Though our system was perfect, we had some parrow escapes from committing unintentional murder. When any of my clerks made a mistake I impressed upon him the importance of being careful, but I could not in my heart blame them. There are occasions where a person who is perfectly methodical, adheres to a system, exercises every care and yet will do something that he can never afterward understand why be did it Then there are occasions when it is impossible to fix the mind on one's work. One day not long after I had set up for myself a young lady came into the store and asked for some barmless medicine. At the same time a man asked for a poison with which to kill bugs. The young lady happened to be one who impressed me. I couldn't keep my eyes off her. Before the two different packages were ready other persons came in, and I did one of those things I should not have done. In stead of paying no attention to new comers till after serving those present I undertook to serve all of them. What was the result? When the young lady who had called for a simple remedy and the man who wished a bug poison had gone a borrible suspicion came into my head that I had given the pol son to the young girl. I could not warm her, for I didn't know who she was

Why had I broken my rule about serving a number of persons at once? I couldn't answer the question except for the reason that I had been very much struck with the young lady. In deed, I had looked at her so admiringly that I had noticed a faint flush come into her cheek. But the fearful consequences of her or any one else taking the dose of the bug poison for the medicine she had called for would surely result fatally.

A crisis hung over my head which, till it had passed, would keep me in a frightful suspense. As soon as the calamity occurred, if I had made the error I feared I had made, the medicine I had sold would be examined. my name would be on the package and I would soon bear of the trouble. The best that could be said for my comfort was that I would not likely be tried for murder, because I had no motive for poisoning any one. But I would carry to my grave the knowledge that I had through carelessness caused the death of the person to whom I had sold it, for I remembered she asked me, "How often shall I take it?" Furthermore, my business would be ruined and I would not have the heart to go elsewhere and make another start. I made two resolutions in case the trouble fell upon me-first, I would never again start in the drug business; second, I would commit suicide.

Every morning and every evening I took up a newspaper with fear and trembling. When a week had passed I felt that the danger was somewhat lessened. But had the young lady died from the effect of poison would those about her surely attribute her death to that cause? This gave me a feeling similar to that of one who may expect at any moment to drop down from beart disease, apoplexy or some other fatal disease.

I am one of those persons whose ac tive, imaginative minds may influence their bodies. I became morbid, then ill, simply from suspense. I took a partner into my business and absented myself from it most of the time. A physician told me that I was going into a decline. But I knew well enough that if I could be assured that I had not killed any one I would be well enough. Finally it occurred to me that if the young lady had not suffered the consequences of my possible error she would likely have visited my store

One day I was wandering aimlessly through an unfrequented street tortured by my troubles when, turning a corner, I came face to face with the girl whose fate was driving me into melaucholia. There she was, tripping along as healthy, as rosy, as fresh as life. Beside myself with joy, I made one bound, caught her in my arms and covered her face with kisses

When I realized what I had done I was stricken with a fresh terror lest she have me arrested for assault. Instead, when I released her she smiled at me through her blushes and said. "I knew how you felt toward me the day I went into your store for a prescription."

"You knew that I"-"Of course. You didn't say it, but you looked it."

"And why have you never come again?" "Do you suppose I'd do that? Not I. It was for you to seek me, not me

We have been married a long while but to this day she doesn't know why I was so joyful at meeting her again I wouldn't dare tell her.

A PARSON'S REMEDY

The widow Goodbue had come east from Michigan and settled in a Connecticut village. She was a chlidless weman of forty-five, and the villagers liked her looks and gave ber welcome. For five or six weeks all went well, and then the widow broke out

A villager who had done some painting for the widow called for his money. She opened fire on him at once. After tongue lashing him for five minutes she picked up a club and drove him from the premises. She had a garden, and she bar given a neighbor permission to cut the grass for his cow. He was cutting away when the woman descended upon him and gave him a cuff on the ear and rushed him out of the yard a much frightened man. The grocer happened to be passing, and he halted at the gate to see the fun. Mrs. Goodhue walked out to him and said:

"See here, you baboon faced son of a gun, you trot right on or I'll break your knees."

The grocer stood with mouth open and wondered if he had heard aright. "Didn't I tell you to trot?" demanded the widow as she whirled him around and administered a kick that raised his beels six inches from the ground. Across the street a carpenter was building a fence. As he hammered away a shadow fell across his feet. At the same time a stick fell upon his

"What! What's this?" he asked as he whirled around.

"Too much darned noise!" replied the woman. "Why, lady, I have got to hammer in the nails." "Then I've got to hammer you with this stick!" And she sailed in and drove him from his job, and, like the grass cutter and the grocer, he went away to spread the report that the Widow Goodbue had gone plumb crazy. The facts in the matter later reached the ears of Dr. Beazier, the oldest practitioner in the county and an acknowledged authority on mental diseases, and be made a call to see how bad the case was. He found the patient seated on the floor in the middle of the room, with her hair down and a broken chair beside

it. That settled it. The newcom was as erazy as a March, April or May bare She must be restrained. The law must be appealed to. The village was agog over the news, but it had something more coming to it Next day and before any steps had been taken the smiling and good natured widow was asking the neighbor why he didn't cut more grass for his cow. She was at the grocery ordering a big bill of entables. She was bowing to Dr. Beazler across the street, and she repaid three or four social calls. Crazy? Why, the person that said so must be a born fool. She was just lovely, she

Five times in one year the widow had those queer spells. Then the good Deacon Watkins came from a distance of nine miles to court her and win her hand and carry her off to Medina. It was all done in six weeks' time, and none of the villagers posted the woost as to those strange spells. He had been a bridegroom for several weeks and was still feeling mushy when one of them came on and gave him the surprise of his life. He was cuffed and kicked down cellar and upstairs and out of the house, and for two days he ate raw turnips and slept in the barn. Then peace and love were restored and all went merrily. There were four outbreaks before the deacon began to think of divorce. Then be went to his pastor to talk things over.

"She doesn't get hold of liquor?" asked the parson. "Not a drop; not even cider."

"Was there insanity in her family?" "She says not." "Deacon, you run the house, don't you?" asked the parson. 'Y-e-s, kinder—that is, I guess I do." "Which means that your wife does."

The parson reflected for five minntes, and then for five more he was busy whispering into the deacon's right ear. Then the descon smiles and nodded and went home. The next day the parson went on his vacation, and it was six weeks before they met

"Well?" asked the parson. "She started in to have another."
