ABOUT GOOD ROADS

By Homer D. Wade.

A good road turneth away wrath.

Good roads, like salvation, are costly, but are a permanent joy when once secured.

It is wilful waste of money to spend it upon roads that are not given proper drainage.

The town that is lost in the shuffle is the one that has no good roads leading into it. The town that is not upon the map is the one that is without good roads and good streets.

If it is possible to build permanent roads by the issuance of bonds, this is the thing to do. If this cannot be done, then the next best thing is a systematic use of the split log drag.

Deplorable.

The truth of the saying, "Where Art is long Cash is short," was evidenced by the appearance of the following editorial recently in the columns of a small Western newspaper:

"Burglars entered our house last night. To the everlasting shame of the community, for whose welfare we have labored, be it said, they got nothing."—Harper's

FARM FACTS

By Peter Radford

The whole nation is nourished from the farm.

There is something strengthening in the possession of a piece of land.

Excessive interest is sucking the life-blood of the Texas farming industry.

If a nation would be strong and enduring, it must educate its citizens and attach them to the soil.

The whole machinery of our money and credit system is directed toward the aid of the city and not the country.

When the business of farming is placed beyond the thrall of grasp and greed, then the farmer will become economically independent.

The strength and vigor of the state is as much dependent upon conserving the fertility of the soil as upon the intelligence of the people.

Shy with Strangers.

Mistress—"Of course, I don't wish to put any obstacles in the way of getting married, but I wish it were possible to postpone it until I get another maid."

Mary Anny—"Well, mum, I 'ardly think I know 'im well enough to arsk 'im to put it off."

—Tit-Bits.

THE TENANT PROBLEM

The Texas farmer is the man of the hour.

Besides furnishing campaign material for gubernatorial aspirants, he is claiming attention from other sources and his welfare is becoming the paramount issue of both political and commercial bodies.

As a solution to the problem of the 220,000 tenant farmers of the state, the Trinity Commercial Club offers to place a million acres of land in the Trinity Valley at the disposal of the tenant without cash payment for one year, and giving him forty years thereafter in which to pay for his land.

The joy of home owning is one of the highest emotions of the human race and implanted deep in the heart of every renter and tenant is the desire to some day own the roof which shelters him.

The gubernatorial candidate or commercial club who helps to solve the tenant problem, is rendering a valuable service to mankind.

Bright Child!

One day Barrymore, the actor, was in the street when Sidney Rosenfeld, the playwright, rushed up to him all excitement.

"Oh, Maurice," he wailed, "have you heard of my misfortunes?"

"No; is there illness in your family?"

"Not that," said Rosenfeld, "but almost as bad. My little boy, five years of age, got hold of my new play and tore it to tatters."

"I didn't know the child could read," said Barrymore—and continued his walk.—Argonaut.

More Than Satisfied!

Is the answer we got from a customer this morning when we asked him how he liked his new Royal Tailored suit. This was one of the Prime of Life men—a youngster of a little past the forty year mark. Here's the sum and substance of his remarks: "By gosh! she come right on the dot, didn't she—just the day we figured on it exactly. Let's try it on and see how she fits, aint it a beauty though—looks a sight better than the sample did!"

Before the mirror with the suit on:— "Fits fine in front, fix this outfit so I can see it behind—whoa! that's it—by George, best fit I ever had. Lets see if they made these pockets according to Hoyle—sure did—look at these breeches pockets, plenty big, just like I said make 'em. They're sure made of heavy material, a lit heavier than I figured on, but I said make 'em heavy and that's what I meant. Look at these vest pockets, big like I wanted them, and see this extra pocket for my fountain pen. Those sleeves are just like I asked you to make them—good and roomy—if you're having a suit made, you might as well have it done like you want it. Suits me fine all over. Listen now—I have had many suits made and at many prices and let me say this—you can tell your Mr. ROYAL TAILORS that they are the best outfit in the United States, and I want you to keep those same measurements, and when I want another suit, or pair of breeches, I want you to have them made just like these—just exactly. Gi' me a check and I'll pay you. Send this outfit up to the house, and get it there by dinner time, so I can try it on and let the wife and kids pass judgment." Check filled out and signed. "Thank you sir" said our salesman, "Entirely welcome, more than welcome, I'm much obliged to you for getting me a suit that fits me like this one, and I will be in in a few months for a Fall suit, and remember I want it made just like this one."

Now, any man in this town can get a suit that will please him as well as this one pleased this customer, and we want you to come and see the Royal line. This man mentioned above is well known in Haskell—we would like to give his name, but if you want to know who he is, come in and we will tell you.

Goodness Gracious

In many of the larger cities throughout the country there are organizations composed of representative business men formed for the specific purpose of creating sentiment in favor of goods manufactured or produced locally.

The Southwest is not yet a manufacturing section compared to some other parts of the country, and but very few of the smaller towns have factories producing articles in common use. Therefore it is impossible for the people living in these small towns and villages to derive these benefits. However, they can and should give their community the benefit of their local purchases.

The growth of our small towns necessarily depends largely on retail trade activities and unless the people in the community extend liberal patronage to their local retail stores, the town fails to go ahead and every individual in the community bears his or her part of the loss.

The next time you contemplate making purchases away from home, investigate and compare carefully prices quoted elsewhere, with those asked by your local merchants. The chances are in favor of your finding that you can do practically as well at home as by sending or going away and the money spent in your local store will in a large measure be kept in circulation in your community.

It is safe to say that your local merchant will welcome comparison of his prices and values with those offered elsewhere and duced prices. Although I reached the store early next morning to "avoid the rush" I found many others ahead of me who had also been attracted by the bargain sale announcement. While there was a large display of the articles in question not a single one of the brand mentioned in the advertisement was shown. The clerk who waited on me spent several minutes endeavoring to convince me that the line they were showing was as good in every way as the particular make I called for. However, as I insisted, he seemed very glad to give me what I wanted at the price advertised; although it is safe to say that practically all of the other shoppers accepted the brand of unknown quality.

Many merchants throughout the country use the method of featuring established brands of goods at cut prices to get people into their stores and then try to induce them to accept unbranded or unknown brands that bring long profits. This course is not only unfair to the buying public that "pays the bills," but is a gross injustice to the manufacturers of standard lines who are trying to sustain their reputations by giving the people the highest quality of goods possible for the prices asked. The remedy is in your hands.

He moved to this county some years ago and purchased two sections of land about ten miles west of Haskell, and built a nice country home and put in a large farm. A few years ago, he moved to this city, and provided a good home for his family. Mr. McCarty was a man who valued his word and honor, and had the absolute confidence of all who knew him.

FARMERS UNION CONVENTION AT HOUSTON AND GALVESTON A GREAT SUCCESS

One of the Haskell County delegates reporting the Farmers Union meeting at Galveston and Houston, says in part as follows:

It was the greatest Farmers Union meeting ever held in Texas.

The Farmers Union of Texas is divided into seven districts as follows:

The North East Texas District.

The Wichita Valley District.

The North West Texas District.

The East Texas District.

The Central Texas District.

The Pecan Valley District.

The South West Texas District.

The Houston and Galveston meeting was a conference of the above districts. There were about twelve hundred delegates present, representing about 100 counties. The railroads furnished free transportation to all delegates, which is one cause for such a large delegation.

The Wichita Valley District corners in Ft. Worth and runs North to Red river, which is the North line of the district, and from Fort Worth, West to and including Kent county, and then North to Red river.

Geo. E. Courtney of Haskell is President of the Wichita Valley district, and J. L. McConkey of Wichita Falls is Secretary, and through their efforts we have become the greatest district in the state. We now have in our Wichita Valley district, 82 cotton gins, 43 mercantile establishments, grain elevators, cotton warehouses and one of the most complete and up-to-date cotton oil mills in the state, located in Wichita Falls.

The great convention at Houston and Galveston conceded the fact that the Wichita Valley district was the banner district in Texas.

The delegates from Haskell county took the train at Haskell Tuesday morning, May 5th, and at almost every station from Haskell to Ft. Worth, delegates continued to board the train, and we were routed from Ft. Worth over the Trinity & Brazos Valley, and when our long train pulled into Houston Wednesday morning, it was almost a solid Farmers Union train, many thanks to T. & B. V. Ry. for courteous treatment.

The Presidents of the 7 districts established headquarters in the Rice Hotel, and was in conference all day Wednesday appointing committees and working out the details for the greatest Farmers Union convention ever held in Texas.

At 10 o'clock Thursday morning, May 7th, 1200 delegates were seated in the City Auditorium in Houston, and as previously arranged, the house was called to order by J. E. Pearson, President of the North East Texas district Farmers Union, and presided over the preliminaries of the meeting, Geo. E. Courtney, Recording Secretary, and Henry Webb of Sunset, Sargent-at-arms.

J. E. Pearson in a few words introduced Mayor Campbell who delivered an address of welcome, in which he spoke in part as follows:

"I lived the first 25 years of my life on the farm, and there is not a day of my life, nor even 30 minutes that I do not have need for what I learned on the farm, for there it was that I learned the correct principles of management that can be applied to municipal problems as easily as to farm problems. I now bid you visitors welcome, and I want you to see the sights of Houston. I want you to go to the roof of some of our tall buildings, and I want you to take a trip down to the ship channel and if you will wear a sign, you may jay walk all you please, and I will guarantee that not a cop will arrest you walk if you down the middle of the street or across any corner in the city."

The chairman then introduced E. A. Calvin, ex-President, and the present manager of the local selling agency of the Farmers Union, who also made an address of welcome. He was followed by W. P. Young, of Lamar county who is connected with the Industrial Department of the Sun-set Central lines. Mr. Young said: "The prosperity of the entire nation depends upon the success of the Farmer in securing a good price for his products."

W. D. Lewis, President of the Farmers Union of Texas, was introduced and spoke a few words of response to the address of welcome, in which he praised Houston very highly. "I am very proud of the influence which our organization holds over the business and commercial organizations of the state," said Mr. Lewis, "and I want us to keep that influence, and the best way to do so is to keep out of politics. The politicians do not care for the farmers' welfare than to get their votes. We will have to solve our own problems, so we should let the politicians solve theirs without any assistance from us."

A surprise was sprung on the delegates when the chairman announced that C. S. Barrett of Atlanta, Ga., National President of the Farmers Union of America was present, and he was introduced. Mr. Barrett said: "We all have to concede that Texas is the biggest thing on the map, and that is the reason I like to return to it. The Farmers Union is a thing that will live on forever, despite what other organizations will do. Since the beginning of the Union there has been nine organizations started and all have died, but the Union remains intact. It is recognized by the big men of the Nation as the organization which represents the farmers and they respect it as such." At the close of President Barrett's speech the convention adjourned for luncheon, but was re-convened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in executive session. State President Lewis was selected as permanent chairman for the convention, and Geo. E. Courtney, of Haskell, president of the Wichita Valley District Union, was elected secretary and press reporter for the meeting.

A committee on resolutions for the meeting was appointed as follows: T. B. Taylor, chairman, Wichita Falls, R. D. Owen, Paris, J. P. Lane, Gallatin, J. C. Webb, Seymour, C. O. Austin, San Antonio.

A weather and crop committee was appointed with instructions to keep in touch with the Houston weather bureau for the purpose of keeping the members informed on weather and crop conditions. This is composed of T. S. Miller, of Flat, T. F. McCormick, of Texarkana, and B. M. Kemp, Sulphur Springs.

The following resolution, which had been previously prepared by the district presidents and state officials, was presented to the resolution committee, and was in turn submitted by them to the convention and greater part of Thursday evening was taken up the delegates discussing the resolution, which reads as follows:

We, the state officials of the Farmers Union of Texas, and presidents of the various district Unions, and other members of the Union, in conference assembled beg leave to offer the following resolution for adoption as a solution of the business for which the joint District Union conference was called by unanimous vote, as follows:

There being an imperative necessity for action on the part of the membership of the Farmers Union of Texas in the support and financing of the selling agency now located at Houston in order that it may obtain that degree of success so earnestly desired by all upon its establishment, therefore be it resolved,

First, That we recommend as a temporary relief that the members of the Farmers Union of each county in the state, make a loan of $250.00 to the Central Selling Agency now located at Houston, such loan to be for not less than one year and bear interest at the rate of 8 per cent. and all such loans shall go through the hands of the state officials of the Farmers Union and a correct record of same shall be kept by them.

And whereas, The Farmers Union Cotton Company, a corporation under the laws of Texas, and we recommend that the entire unsold stock of the said Farmers Union Cotton Co., be taken up by the membership either as individuals or through local county and district unions, warehouses and gin companies and clearing house associations and that said Farmers Union Cotton Company become the central selling agency for the Farmers Union of Texas.

We recommend, further, that said company be placed on a co-operative basis and that nine directors of said company as provided by law in charter of said Farmers Union Cotton Co. shall be composed of the State President, Secretary, Treasurer, Lecturer and Organizer of State Union and the other six from the stockholders.

We recommend, further, that ten per cent. of the net profit annually be set aside into a sinking fund. After said sinking fund of ten per cent. has been provided for, we recommend an equitable division of the profits as dividend between the stockholders, patronage and State Union, to be decided by the board of directors of said Farmers Union Cotton Co.

While it was plain to be seen that the resolution met with almost universal favor from the assembly there was a motion carried to postpone the vote of its adoption until 10 o'clock Friday morning in order to give the delegates an opportunity to visit the Farmers Union Cotton Co. before casting their vote.

The city of Houston gave all the delegates a free pass to one of the leading theatres in Houston Thursday night, which was appreciated by all that went.

At 7:30 o'clock Friday morning the street car company of Houston lined their cars up by the side of the city auditorium and gave the delegates free transportation to Harrisburg, where they went through and inspected the great cotton warehouses and compresses, which is one of the greatest concentration points for cotton in the United States, and was given an opportunity to grasp some ideas of the great commercial value of the cotton produced in Texas, and it was on this occasion that the farmers who live on the great plains of West Texas had the opportunity of looking at the great pine trees, and another idea of the commercial value of the lumber industry which comes from the pine trees.

At 10 o'clock a. m. the street cars safely returned with our delegation to the city auditorium, where we at once went into executive session. After listening to a few warm speeches from
