Sweetwater car theft suspects arrested in Big Spring

Sheriff Deputy in good condition, vehicle totaled, following high speed chase

Special to the Herald

The Howard County Sheriff's Office issued the following press release regarding the high speed chase, which left one Sheriff Deputy SUV in the side of Sam's Package Store, on Friday morning. According to the press release, the Howard County Dispatch Center was notified, Friday at 6:34 a.m., that two stolen vehicles had been located in Sterling City. Friday morning it was reported, as it was originally believed - the vehicles were stolen in Sterling County, however, it was later learned the vehicles had been stolen from a Hotel in Sweetwater, Texas. Both vehicles, 2014 Dodge Ram 3500 Pickups, were registered to Utilitec LLC from Oklahoma. The trucks were unlocked and the keys were in the vehicles. Howard County Dispatch was told the vehicles were on Hwy 87 headed toward Howard County at speeds over 90 mph. Deputies with the Howard County Sheriff's Office engaged both vehicles approximately seven miles south of Big Spring. Both vehicles refused to stop and Deputies began pursuing both vehicles. As the vehicles approached Big Spring, members of the Big Spring Police Department and the Texas Department of Public Safety also engaged in the pursuit. According to the press release, as the vehicles entered Big Spring, one vehicle lost control while attempting to turn onto FM 700. The vehicle regained control and went the wrong way on the "turn around" lane over FM 700. The vehicle then entered back onto Hwy 87 (Gregg St) as he was followed by a Deputy. As the Deputy entered back onto Hwy 87, he was intentionally struck by the second stolen vehicle forcing the Deputy's vehicle into the Sam's Package Store building located at 2409 S. Gregg. At that time, an ambulance was called for Deputy Dominic Rocha. Deputies, Big Spring Police Department, and DPS continued with the pursuit of the stolen vehicles as one member of the Howard County Sheriff's Office attended to Deputy Rocha. Deputy Rocha was transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center by ambulance. As the pursuit continued, one vehicle was stopped in the 400 block of S. Nolan and three persons were arrested. One 16-year-old female from San Angelo, a 17-year-old male, and Ricco Lujan from Sweetwater were charged with unauthorized use of a vehicle. A third 16-year-old male from Sweetwater, the driver of the vehicle, was charged with aggravated assault on a public servant, evading arrest and unauthorized use of a vehicle. The two juveniles are currently in custody of Juvenile Probation, Ricco Lujan is currently residing at the Howard County Detention Center. The second vehicle was found abandoned in the alley of the 1900 block of South Nolan. The press release stated, Deputy Dominic Rocha was treated for his injuries and later released. He is said to be in good condition, but is beat and bruised from the multiple impacts, and is currently at home recovering from his injuries. At this time we are continuing the investigation for the remaining suspects.

Obituaries

Lynn Lee Dickey

Lynn Lee Dickey, 64, of Bandera, died July 24, 2019 at a Midland hospital. No services are planned at this time.

"This fine gentleman was born in Wichita Falls and danced around Texas throughout his life. He found his calling as a cowboy in Bandera, a place he always considered home. Lynn co-founded a ranch there with his moniker as its namesake, changing the lives of every guest that came through, every person he knew. His zest for life and enthusiasm will live on in my heart and in many others. Today we will look through the tears and celebrate the life of a cowboy Casanova and fun-loving father. His love for my mother and me remains unconditional. He always wanted to fly high, today lightning will return to the sky. I love you, Dad."

He is survived by his former wife and significant other, Carla Arnold, of Big Spring; his son, Brad Lee Dickey, of Boerne; step-daughter, Michelle White, of Utah; and a half-sister, Lexi Lehrmann Potter, of San Antonio.

He was preceded in death by his father, Charles L. Dickey; step-father, Roy Lehrmann; and his mother, Mary Lou Lehrmann.

Arrangements are under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home and Crematory. Online condolences may be made at www.npwelch.com.

We Salute!

There are those in the community - local business, individuals, or civic organizations - who have gone above and beyond. There have been those moments that have made a positive impact on the community and we want to recognize those moments, contributions and people:

- Howard County Volunteer Fire Department, Road and Bridge Dept., Sterling City VFD, Glasscock County VFD, and all who have responded to the multiple grass fires this past week. Great job in keeping the community safe.
- Howard County Sheriff Office for their assistance in the recent high speed chase and apprehension of the suspects and recovery of stolen vehicles. Also, the BSPD and DPS for their assistance.
- Orville Spradling for celebrating 70 years as a Mason. Way to go on the many accomplishments over the years.

Recognizing the great things happening in Big Spring is important. Send in your recognitions to editor@bigspringherald.com. We Salute will run Thursdays and Sundays.

City to replace new valves; intermittent water shut down next week

Special to the Herald

According to a press release issued by the City of Big Spring, Big Spring residents could experience loss of water usage Monday, during the new valve replacement process.

Beginning Monday through Aug. 5, the City of Big Spring will be installing new valves throughout the Water Treatment Plant that will require the plant to be intermittently shut down. The repairs are scheduled to begin at 10 p.m. each evening and conclude by 5 a.m. each morning in an effort to keep citizens supplied with water during the day. The Water Plant will operate during the day and will only be shut down during the scheduled repairs.

The City of Big Spring urges residents to conserve water between the hours of 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. each day. This is to ensure that water lines and water towers maintain sufficient water to supply the needs of the city while the plant is not operational during the hours in which repairs are scheduled to be made.

The City apologizes for any inconvenience and asks for your patience while these repairs are made. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact the office of Shane Bowles, Public Works Director, at 432-264-2501.

Bumps at the movies

We went to see the movie ROCKET-MAN the other day. Matinee. Didn't know what the crowd would be like, although we didn't buy tickets before getting to the theater. The movie had been out a couple of weeks. At the box office, there was a seating chart and we chose to sit in the middle about 3 rows down from the last row. We usually sit on the back row because otherwise the people sitting behind us keep bumping the backs of our seats.

We were in a huge multi screen movie complex in Midland. When we arrived in the darkened theater there were only 2 other people there. They were sitting close to the aisle a dozen rows down from us. Then 2 other people came in and sat at the end of our row near the aisle. All the empty seats in this huge theater and here was someone on our row.

Then came the 5th and last person to make up the entire audience of 7. He sat directly behind us just about the time the movie was starting. He had apparently bought every item the concession stand had for sale and began unwrapping all of his purchases.

The sound of crinkling paper carried straight to our ears. So did the sound of his grabbing handfuls of popcorn from a cardboard tub. He made chewing noises. Then he fell asleep and started snoring. I whistled real loud and woke him up. When he became fully awake he resumed his unwrapping, grabbing and chomping. In spite of all that, we enjoyed the movie. We had gone to Las Vegas to see Elton John and loved doing it.

We have experienced small numbers of people at movie theaters before. When our young son was in high school he worked at our local movie theater. Several times around sundown he would call us from the theater and invite us down, saying they wouldn't show the movie unless 10 people were in the audience and only 8 people were there. We saw lots of movies for free, but he always made us buy popcorn.

Getting back to people behind us kicking the backs of our seats: once we were in New York City and bought tickets to see CATS. A woman with her small child was sitting behind us. All during the musical the child kept kicking the back of the seat where my wife was sitting. It wasn't a gentle bump. It was like the child reared back and took direct aim at kicking the seat. My wife Susan jerked at each kick. At intermission Susan said something to the woman about her child kicking the seat. She didn't seem to care. Her attitude was "that's your problem." We had spent a lot of money getting to New York, paid outrageous prices for the tickets and we couldn't really enjoy what was happening on stage because of this child whose mother apparently would let him get away with murder. That is not the ideal way to see a musical on Broadway.

That's when we started sitting on the back rows of movie theaters. We haven't been big fans of Andrew Lloyd Webber's music since then.

Two giants from Texas High

When the Great Depression had a strangle hold on the nation in 1930, the "haves" were outnumbered by the "have-nots" greatly. It wasn't even close.

Most scenes seemed rural, and many young men joked that they didn't know their first names weren't "Gitwood" until age 14 or so.

Thing was, with nearly everyone "pore." My friend Mamie McCullough claims this condition was one step down from "poor." Essentially, most folks were "in the same boat."

The masses were too busy trying to scratch out a living to give much thought to status. A common joke was shared when the dreary era finally ended. They said a rabbit-hopping merrily down the trail-seemed unhurried, since nobody was chasing it.

It's probably erroneous to paint the era in a hue far too "dreary," and/or with a brush much too wide.

Many folks who remember those years do so fondly, and foundational values born of this time shaped a nation. Patriotism shone at its utmost brightness when courageous and committed men and women shouldered heavy loads leading to victory in World War II.

"The Greatest Generation" description was earned. Few Americans challenge this monumental acclaim.

Two births of infant boys in Texarkana, TX, occurred in 1930. One was a few months older, and he lived into his 90th year. His achievements were many, and he became one of the world's richest men.

The other-whose parents likewise were deeply rooted in things rural-was a year behind the other at Texarkana, TX, High School. He, too, was a distinguished graduate, but his life was cut short. When cancer took him, he was 48.

You've heard and read much of the former. He was "first" in many things, though unsuccessful in two US presidential races. His name was H. Ross Perot, who relentlessly persevered successfully in many other arenas of achievement.

The other was Dr. Donald M. Anthony, for whom I was a pallbearer at his funeral in 1978. He spoke positively and often about how Perot-a high school friend-had influenced his life. Upon graduation in 1947, Perot distinguished himself at Texarkana College before he was accepted to the Naval Academy.

That's where Anthony headed after high school graduation a year later. Later, Anthony was a distinguished graduate of East Texas Baptist University.

Dr. Anthony was one of several friends who knew Perot "up close." I was never privileged to meet Dr. Perot, but respectfully add the "Dr." to his name, since 19 higher education institutions conferred honorary doctoral degrees.

I was privileged to work alongside Don Anthony at Tarrant County College for a half-dozen years or so. He was president of the Northeast Campus; I was the "flack" whose job it was to keep TCC "in the news and off the front page."

Ever the gentleman, he was revered by the faculty he led and the students he served.

Few of us remember what long-ago friends said, verbatim anyway.

Facing death with courage, dignity and great faith, Dr. Anthony often shared a conviction with friends about his declining health. He was a devout Christian, and smiled with the resignation that reflected his innermost being. "I am prepared for the probable, and praying for the unlikely."

Now there's a quote worth taking to heart.

A life worth taking to heart is that of Eddie Janek, a 92-year-old Galvestonian whose good cheer heartens us upon every visit to his beautiful city.

He's a successful businessman "still at it"--an icon who started out "pore."

Reared by a widowed mother near West, TX, he remembers occasional Saturdays when she allowed him to take two chickens to town.

A grocer paid him 15 cents for the chickens.

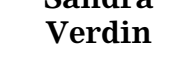

That's all he needed.

Three nickels bought admission to the Best Theater, a soda water/popcorn treat and a comic book. Life, he claims, was good then, and good now.

This past week we had a great time with Carolina Storyteller, she shared stories from native, Hispanic, Afro-Latin American myths, legends and folktales. Having Carolina Storyteller was possible in part by a grant from Texas Commission on the Arts. The deadline to turn in summer reading logs was Friday, July 26, 2019, but we have extended the deadline to this coming Friday, August 2, just in time to determine the winners of this year's summer reading log challenge. We also invite all summer reading program participants to come to a celebration party on Wednesday, Aug. 7. We have additional reading logs if necessary at the circulation desk.

This week's reviews include mystery, fiction and western titles.

Christmas is just around the corner in "A Gift of Bones," Sara Booth Delaney Series Book 19 (M HAI C) by Carolyn Haines. Sarah Booth and Tinkie are preparing for a festive celebration and possibly a Christmas miracle of snow. Sarah Booth has plans to be with Coleman Peters under the mistletoe and she busies herself with decking the halls and daydreaming about a romantic Christmas night with the handsome sheriff. No one is prepared for a kidnapping when journalist Cece Dee Falcon shows up needing Sarah Booth's help. A box has been delivered by courier and left at Cece's front porch. It contains a lock of hair, a photograph of a pretty young woman who is very pregnant, and a note demanding ransom for the woman's return. Cece reveals that the woman is her cousin Eve Falcon whom she had lost touch with years ago. Eve and Cece had been close, until the family had a terrible falling out, and banished Cece from their lives. The countdown begins as the kidnapper pushes for payment or else, he threatens, Eve will meet her maker. It's up to Sarah Booth and her friends to find Eve before something terrible happens on what should be the merriest day of the year.

As a young intern at an art gallery in Paris, Isabelle McAvoy meets Putnam Armstrong in "Blessing in Disguise" (AUCD F STE D) by Danielle Steel. Armstrong is wealthy, gentle, older and secluded from the world. Isabelle's relationship with Putnam and her time at his chateau on the Normandy coast are the stuff of dreams. But it turns real when she becomes pregnant, she knows that marriage is out of the question. When Isabelle returns to New York, she enters a new relationship that she hopes will be more stable and traditional. She soon realizes she has made a terrible mistake and again finds herself a single mother. With two young daughters and no husband, Isabelle finally and unexpectedly finds happiness and a love that gives her a third child, a baby as happy as her beloved father. However, once again, life brings dramatic changes. The three girls grow up to be very different women, and Isabelle's relationship with each of them is unique. While raising her girls alone, Isabelle also begins building a career as a successful art consultant. Then one final turn of fate brings a past secret to light, bonds mother and daughters closer, and turns a challenge into a blessing.

After the death of their mother, sisters Daisy and Beatriz Davenport find a home with their aunt Stella in "The Cliff House" (LP F THA R) by RaeAnne Thayne, nestled in the beautiful and welcoming town of Cape Sanctuary. They never knew all the dreams that Stella sacrificed to ensure they had everything they'd ever need. Now, with Daisy and Bea all grown up, it's time for Stella to reveal the secret she's been keeping from them, a secret that will change their family forever. Bea thought she'd sown all her wild oats when she got pregnant far too young. The marriage that followed was rocky and not destined to last, but it gave Bea her wonderful, mature, now eleven-year-old daughter, Marisol. But just as she's beginning to pursue a new love with an old friend, Bea's ex-husband resurfaces and turns their lives completely upside down. Then there's Daisy-sensible, rational, financially prudent Daisy. She's never taken a risk in her life until she meets a man who makes her question everything she thought she knew about life, love and the power of taking chances. In this heartwarming story, Stella, Bea, and Daisy will discover that the path to true happiness is filled with twists and turns, but love always leads them back home.

A rash of deadly train robberies has the chief investor of Dover Station feeling itchier than a quick draw without a target in "Dark Territory: A Sheriff Aaron Mackey Western" (LP W MCC T) by Terrence McCauley. The chief investor wants Sheriff Aaron Mackey to use every bullet his battered badge authorizes him to shoot. When Mackey and his back-up gun down four kill-crazy bandits, they uncover a plot cooked up by a respected citizen of Dover Station, someone who can pull enough strings to replace Mackey with a disgraced marshal from Texas. Mackey's badge may not say much, but his gun defies all fear. Anyone who stands between Mackey and the future of Dover Station is about to become buried in the pages of history.

Profit flat as Southwest takes $175 million hit from Max jet

By DAVID KOENIG

AP Airlines Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Airlines doesn't expect to use Boeing 737 Max jets until January, and it is talking to Boeing about compensation for the grounding, which the airline says cost it $175 million in the second quarter.

The loss of about 5% of its fleet is causing Southwest to take the unusual step of shrinking rather than growing its passenger-carrying capacity. And it said Thursday it will shut down operations at Newark Liberty International Airport in November and consolidate the service at New York's LaGuardia Airport.

The grounding is also adding to rising costs at Southwest, which reported that second-quarter profit rose a mere 1% from a year ago, to $741 million.

Still, the results were slightly better than analysts expected. Brisk demand for travel translated into fewer empty seats than ever before, and Southwest said it expects revenue to remain strong through September.

Shares fell, however, in trading before the market opened.

Southwest, the fourth-biggest U.S. airline by revenue, had more Boeing Max jets than any other airline when the plane was grounded in March after two accidents killed 346 people. With 5% of its fleet sitting on the ground, the Dallas-based airline canceled 20,000 flights in the quarter, although not all were due to the Max.

"We have had preliminary discussions with Boeing regarding compensation for damages due to the MAX groundings," Chairman and CEO Gary Kelly said in a statement. "We have not reached any conclusions regarding these matters, and no amounts from Boeing have been included in our second quarter results."

Boeing said this week that it expects the Max to resume flying around October. It is working to fix flight-control software on the plane, and expects to submit its final changes to federal regulators in September.

Southwest said it will take one to two months to conduct pilot retraining and other requirements imposed by the Federal Aviation Administration, and so it has removed the Max from its schedule through Jan. 5 — after the busy holiday travel period.

Southwest had 34 Max jets out of its fleet of about 750 planes when the jet was grounded. Without those planes plus others that it expected to receive this year, the airline has delayed retiring some other aircraft but still expects its passenger-carrying capacity for all of 2019 to fall about 1% to 2% below 2018.

The second quarter profit was $8 million higher than a year ago. On a per-share basis, the Dallas-based company said it earned $1.37, which was 2 cents higher than the average forecast from 10 analysts surveyed by Zacks Investment Research.

Revenue was $5.91 billion, slightly below the analysts' average forecast.

In trading before the market opened, shares were down $2.25, or 4%, to $52.45.

US government holding facility for children closes

HOUSTON (AP) — The last teenagers have left the U.S. government's newest holding facility in the South Texas oilfields, just one month after it opened.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services said Thursday that it would keep access to the site at Carrizo Springs, Texas.

The facility opened in response to reports of children being detained without beds or adequate food by the U.S. Border Patrol, but it opened just as border crossings dropped as they normally do in summertime.

The nonprofit BCFS had said Tuesday that the facility was on track to close by week's end. Kevin Dinnin, BCFS' CEO, says the facility might serve as backup if the HHS facility in Homestead, Florida, were to be threatened by tropical weather.

Dallas area, Denver finalists for Medal of Honor Museum

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Dallas area and Denver have been identified as the two finalists to become the new home for the $150 million National Medal of Honor Museum.

The National Medal of Honor Museum Foundation is expected to make a final decision by October.

The museum currently is located aboard the USS Yorktown in Mount Pleasant, South Carolina, but foundation member Pat Brady tells The Dallas Morning News that the foundation wants to move it onto land.

A planning board last year rejected a design proposal for the museum along the waterfront in Mount Pleasant.

New York City, San Diego and Washington, D.C. were among the finalists before the foundation earlier this month narrowed it to Denver and Arlington, Texas, west of Dallas.

The museum honors more than 3,500 recipients of the nation's highest award for valor.

Man gets 60 years for attack on college student in Texas

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors say a gunman who randomly abducted, robbed and sexually assaulted a University of Texas at Arlington student has been sentenced to 60 years in prison.

Joel Mambe (JOH'-el MAHM'-bay) of Arlington was sentenced Thursday in Fort Worth after pleading guilty to aggravated sexual assault, robbery and kidnapping. Mambe must serve 30 years before he's eligible for parole for the June 2018 attack. Arlington police say the 21-year-old Mambe told officers he was "looking for trouble" when he confronted the victim in the parking lot of her apartment complex. The woman, who had been out with friends earlier, was forced to drive to an ATM and withdraw cash before being attacked. She drove herself home and called police. Mambe was arrested a day later in Fort Worth.

Suspect in death of Houston girl, 4, indicted by grand jury

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas grand jury has indicted a 27-year-old man on a charge of tampering with the body of a 4-year-old Houston girl who was missing for several weeks before her remains were found in Arkansas.

Harris County prosecutors said Thursday that Derion Marquise Vence was indicted on a count of tampering with evidence.

Vence was indicted after being charged earlier with the same offense.

Prosecutors say Vence may face additional charges after they receive the final autopsy report on Maleah Davis from the medical examiner's office.

Maleah's body was found May 31 in Hope, Arkansas.

Vence had claimed he, Maleah and his 2-year-old son were abducted on May 4 by a group of men in a truck. He said he and his son were freed the next day but the kidnappers kept Maleah.

Vence was engaged at one time to Maleah's mother.

Online jail records don't list an attorney for him.

Cowboys' Elliott skips camp start with 2 years left on deal

By SCHUYLER DIXON

AP Pro Football Writer

OXNARD, Calif. — Though his math was a little fuzzy, Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones opened training camp by making a point that every player on the roster was under contract.

What Jones really had in mind while mentioning 80 players when it should have been 90 was one in particular: star — and how holdout — running back Ezekiel Elliott.

Once the negotiations began on reporting day Friday, Jones declared Elliott "late." With two years left on his rookie deal, the two-time NFL rushing champion wasn't around for a physical or conditioning test a day after missing the team's flight to California.

The first practice is set for Saturday, with no indication that anything will change with Elliott. One of Elliott's representatives didn't return a message seeking comment.

The fourth overall choice in the 2016 draft, Elliott is due to make $3.9 million this season and $9.1 million in the fifth year, which was a team option since the former Ohio State star was a first-round pick.

An opening day of the talk dominated by Elliott's absence wasn't what the Cowboys in mind with expectations of getting past the divisional round for the first time since the last of the franchise's five Super Bowl titles nearly 25 years ago. But Jones was undeterred.

"I don't want to seem cavalier about it, but I also don't want to be unrealistic being alarmed about it," Jones said. "This is the air we breathe. And if you flamed and knee-jerked or went just because you have parts of it that need addressing, you wouldn't be able to manage."

While Elliott has been among the league's most productive backs while helping the Cowboys win two NFC East titles in his three seasons, the 2016 All-Pro also has had off-field issues.

Elliott was suspended for six games over domestic violence allegations in 2017, and was recently cleared by the league office for his part in an incident with a security guard in Las Vegas earlier this year.

Jones went to great lengths to defend Elliott during the investigation over the domestic case, even threatening to sue his fellow owners over a contract extension for Roger Goodell when Jones was upset with the commissioner over Elliott's punishment.

"All of that comes to mind," Jones said. "My time with Zeke has been based on just that, supporting him. And I do support him. I think he has a fabulous future here. So maybe I should be sure and say that."

Speaking of fuzzy math, the standoff with Elliott is reminiscent of Jones' contract stalemate with Emmitt Smith in 1993 after the first of three Super Bowl victories for Dallas in four seasons.

As Jones remembers it, Smith wasn't under contract — and Smith himself was adamant that his situation was a negotiation, not a holdout. But there were initial reports of a four-year deal after Smith's long holdout as a rookie in 1990, and Smith had just finished his third season on his way to becoming the NFL's all-time leading rusher.

There's nothing murky about Elliott's contract status, and Jones will have to hope that's not the only difference. When Smith remained unsigned two games into the 1993 season, the Cowboys lost both before a deal suddenly got done and Dallas went on to a second consecutive title.

Darius Jackson is the only experienced running back on the roster, and all six of his carries for 16 yards came in a meaningless regular-season finale of the New York Giants last season when Dallas had already wrapped up the division.

The Cowboys drafted two running backs this year and are particularly high on fourth-rounder Tony Pollard out of Memphis. Mike Weber Jr. was a seventh-round choice from Ohio State.

"When someone is not there, step up, next man up and let's see what you got," coach Jason Garrett said. "It's a great opportunity for us as coaches to evaluate that player, see if he can hold up, see if we need to go get somebody else."

Elliott isn't the only young star looking for a new contract. Quarterback Dak Prescott, the 2016 NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year in the dynamic first-year pairing with Elliott, is arguably the biggest bargain in the league at the moment ($2 million base salary in 2019).

Receiver Amari Cooper, a midseason trade acquisition who provided a big boost to a sagging offense last season as the Cowboys surged to the division title in the second half and won a wild-card game, is in the final year of his contract.

"We've worked on multiple ones before," executive vice president of personnel Stephen Jones said. "We can work on three; we can work on four. When you decide you're going to do them, it happens quickly. And when nothing's going on, nothing's going on."

Now it's time to see whether a star holding out will change things.

NOTES: The Cowboys will start camp with three defensive starters on the physically unable to perform list in defensive ends DeMarcus Lawrence (shoulder surgery) and Tyrone Crawford and cornerback Byron Jones. Crawford and Jones each had hip surgery. Stephen Jones said all are expected to be ready by Week 1. WR Noah Brown (knee surgery) also is on PUP.

Westbrook all smiles in introduction with Rockets

By KRISTIE RIEKEN

AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — Russell Westbrook knows he's in for a huge change in his move from the Oklahoma City Thunder to the Houston Rockets.

And he's ready to do whatever it takes to make the move as he prepares to play with James Harden for the first time since 2012.

"To be able to win something you have to be able to sacrifice some parts of your game and we both understand that," Westbrook said. "We both understand that we have one common goal and that's to win championships. We understand what we have to do."

Westbrook was introduced in Houston on Friday after being traded from the Thunder for Chris Paul and draft picks this month. General manager Daryl Morey beamed as he sat next to Westbrook when he made his first appearance as a Rocket.

"Obviously, we're here for one reason only, to take that next step that we've been trying to do for the last few years," Morey said.

The 2017 Most Valuable Player joins the Rockets after spending his first 11 seasons with Oklahoma City, which included playing with Harden in his first three seasons. Though the two are close friends and played together successfully with the Thunder, in the days since the trade, many have wondered if pairing these two ball-dominant guards will be successful in Houston.

Westbrook brushed off such concerns.

"I'm not worried about it," he said. "I know James is not worried about it. I can play off the ball. I don't have to touch the ball to impact the game. I can do other things on the floor to make sure we have a better chance to win."

Harden didn't speak to reporters Friday, but did attend the press conference, sitting on the front row smiling at his buddy and often chuckling at Westbrook's comments and jokes.

The Westbrook who showed up in Houston on Friday was a kinder and far less angry one than the version he was during last year's playoffs when a sneering and glaring Westbrook made headlines more for his "next question" responses during press conferences than his play as the Thunder were eliminated by Portland in the first round.

He smiled often and laughed a lot, and when asked what he wished people knew about him he quickly responded with: "that I'm a nice guy."

Westbrook said he'll never stop playing with the intensity and attitude that he's played with throughout his career, but seemed to be taking a step to try and repair the negative image that came from last year's press conference antics by sharing thoughts on his personality.

"I'm going out to compete and going out to be able to win and I don't really care how that looks and I'm always going to stay that way," he said. "But I think off the floor it's a huge thing figuring (out) and understanding that I am human. I am a human being. I am a good person, just so you guys know. And I do care about the community, my team, my teammates, everybody and I just want to do whatever I can to make sure we have a chance to win."

The opportunity to win his first championship was the biggest lure to Westbrook's desire to be in Houston. And the fact that it's his back with Harden, with whom he's been friends with since he was 10 years old, made the chance too good to pass up.

"I thought it was the best decision for me and my career right now," he said. "And to be able to reunite with my brother, a friend, to be able to do that is something that you dream about and you live for."

Westbrook is an eight-time All-Star who has averaged a triple-double in each of the last three seasons. He led the NBA in assists in the last two seasons and ranked second in the two seasons before that. The 30-year-old has averaged 23 points, 8.4 assists and seven rebounds in his career and has played 80 or more games in seven seasons.

The Rockets hope his addition will help them win their first championship since taking back-to-back titles from 1994-95. After falling to the Warriors in the playoffs in four of the last five seasons and seeing the Lakers and Clippers make huge offseason moves, Houston is betting on Westbrook to elevate this Harden-led team.

"He plays with an energy, a passion and a will to win that I think is really unparalleled in the league," Morey said.

And Westbrook is ready to show everyone that will to win with his new team.

"Scoring and having the ball in my hands is not the only thing I can do for the game," he said. "I do a lot of great things for the game and I look forward to doing that with this team ... I think it's a great opportunity to be able to bring a championship here to Houston. (It's an) opportunity to be able to do great things, have some fun and I'm excited for it."

Lynn throws 6 strong innings, Rangers top A's 5-2

By GIDEON RUBIN

Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Lance Lynn punctuated a strong performance with a loud growl.

Lynn struck out eight in six innings and Willie Calhoun homered in his return to the majors, helping the Texas Rangers beat the Oakland Athletics 5-2 on Friday night.

Lynn (13-6) allowed two runs, one earned, and four hits in his first win since July 11. Asdrubal Cabrera had three hits and drove in two runs, and Calhoun finished with two hits and two RBIs.

Lynn threw a 95-mph fastball by Khris Davis on his 111th and final pitch. Then he spun around and unloaded.

"In all honesty it was a battle all night with them, so it was one of those things where it just kind of came out," Lynn said. "I got through six and gave the team a chance to win. Nothing else, really."

"My night's over, that was a tough one, that's what it felt like, so that was pretty much it."

The Rangers won for the third time in four games after losing eight straight.

The A's dropped their third in a row and fell a half-game back of Tampa Bay for the second AL wild-card. Marcus Semien had two hits and scored twice.

Lynn worked around consecutive errors to start the game by Danny Santana, who was playing in place of Elvis Andrus after the veteran shortstop flew to Dallas following Thursday's game to be sworn in as a United States citizen.

After Matt Olson drew a nine-pitch walk that loaded the bases with no outs, Oakland scored just once on Ramón Laureano's sacrifice fly.

"Lance picked him up, and I think that's a testament to our team," Rangers manager Chris Woodward said. "We talk about that all the time, not everybody's going to have a great game, but we've got to pick each other up."

"Obviously Danny's done so much for us all year. That's a tough spot to be in, he hasn't played shortstop all year."

Mark Canha added an RBI single in the third before Texas rallied.

A's starter Daniel Mengden (5-2) retired his first nine batters before Shin-Soo Choo drew a leadoff walk in the fourth, starting a decisive three-run inning that included consecutive two-out RBI doubles for Nomar Mazara and Calhoun.

Cabrera singled in Mazaara in the sixth, and Calhoun added a solo drive in the eighth. Calhoun was promoted from Triple-A Nashville on Thursday after All-Star slugger Joey Gallo had right wrist surgery.

Mengden permitted four runs in 5 1/3 innings. Texas relievers Jesse Chavez, Jose Leclerc and Chris Martin combined for three innings of one-hit ball. Martin worked the ninth for his fourth save in five tries.

Oakland got the tying run to the plate when Canha doubled and Laureano walked to start the ninth, but Martin struck out Khris Davis and Robbie Grossman and got Chris Hermann to ground out to third.

Davis was 0 for 4 with four strikeouts.

"We just aren't playing very well right now," manager Bob Melvin said. "We're not getting as many hits as we did before. You go through some runs offensively. You have to do everything right, and we aren't."

CITIZEN ELVIS

Andrus returned to Oakland on Friday night. The 30-year-old native of Maracay, Venezuela, aced a six-question citizenship test.

"This thing is a lot more nerve-racking than playing baseball," he said. "I never felt like this."

Andrus was 15 when he first came to the United States.

"A lot of memories came back," Andrus said. "The journey has been amazing and today is a day to always remember."

POWER OUTAGE

The A's have gone deep just once in their last five games after homering in 23 straight games, two short of a franchise record.

Pet Talk:

How to 'Chews' the Best Dog Chew Toys

By The Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences

COLLEGE STATION, July 26, 2019 – Pet stores often carry an overwhelming number of dog chew options, from rawhides and antlers to rubber toys and ropes. With so many choices, how do you know which is the best for your dog?

To help with this decision, Dr. Lori Teller, a clinical associate professor at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, weighs the pros and cons of the most common types of dog chews.

Teller describes dogs as “innate chewers” that enjoy having some sort of dog chew or toy to sink their teeth into. From a young age, they often “explore the world with their mouths,” so it is better to give them their own chew toys rather than sacrifice your shoes and furniture.

“Chewing can help relieve stress and anxiety, keep their teeth clean, and keep their minds stimulated,” she said. “Puppies also chew to relieve the pain and irritation of teething.”

While there are countless dog chew options on the market, the most common include rawhides, real bones and antlers, pig ears, and chew toys made from nylon or rubber.

“Rawhides can help limit plaque and tartar buildup, keep jaw muscles strong, and potentially slightly freshen a dog’s breath,” Teller said. “Look for rawhides sourced from American beef and processed in the U.S.”

While rawhide has its benefits, it can also cause some problems that dog owners need to watch out for. Some dogs develop gastrointestinal upset, vomiting, or diarrhea after chewing rawhides, and others may chew off pieces that can become choking hazards or create intestinal blockages.

Rawhides approved by the Veterinary Oral Health Council tend to be safer and cause fewer problems, Teller said.

“It is also important to pick a rawhide chew that is the right size and shape for your dog to minimize these risks,” she said. “In multi-dog households, separate the dogs when giving chew treats to eliminate potential competition or the urge to gulp down a treat before another dog can steal it.”

Real bones, antlers, and hooves can seriously injure dogs if pieces splinter off and cause obstruction or puncture wounds. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration also warns owners against giving dogs these chews because bones can cause cuts in the mouth and fracture teeth.

“When antlers became popular as dog chews, veterinarians and veterinary dentists noticed an uptick in the number of fractured teeth they were seeing and started cautioning owners to avoid these chews for their dogs,” Teller said.

Most dogs enjoy the strong scent of pig ears, but these chews are frequently contaminated with bacteria like Salmonella, which can be dangerous for both dogs and people who come into contact with the chews.

Finally, while chew toys made from nylon and rubber can be good options, they can also be dangerous if a dog begins to tear off and eat pieces that are too large to pass through the gastrointestinal tract.

“Remove any toy that has reached the size where it can become a choking hazard or cause an intestinal obstruction,” Teller said. “If your dog chews off large pieces of the toy and swallows them, then that toy should also be taken away.”

Teller recommends testing nylon toys by trying to indent them with a thumbnail and avoiding extremely hard options that could break teeth. For both these and rubber toys, make sure to buy an appropriate size toy; larger dogs have been known to swallow or choke on small toys.

Similarly, rope toys can be a lot of fun for dogs but should only be played with under supervision. When ropes begin to fray, remove them to avoid pieces of string getting stuck in the dog’s gastrointestinal tract.

While some dog chews are better than others, it may still take time to find the best option for your pup. Keep in mind the potential health concerns and focus on finding a safe option that will allow your dog to be a happy and healthy chewer.

The Howard County Senior Supper Club met Tuesday and heard about Winston Churchill’s connection to the Howard County area. Next week, the group will meet at Cowboy’s.

Howard County’s Senior Supper Club

Howard County’s Senior Supper Club met again last Tuesday evening for dinner and entertainment at one of the many area restaurants that hosts the group each week. Next week, the Club will meet at Cowboy’s Steakhouse, and all are welcome to join the Dutch-Treat group at 5 p.m. Additional area restaurants include The Spanish Inn, Settles Grill, The Texas Cajun, Al’s and Sons, and TJ’s Steakhouse to name but a few. The group is always interested in trying out new and different area restaurants. The Senior Supper Club has been meeting for several years.

Normally, the group is entertained with a short story that is either of a historical nature, fictitious humor or a blending of both. Last Tuesday, the group heard about Sir Winston Churchill’s loose connection to Big Spring. Parts of this story were told by Churchill in one of his books. It seems that as a very young boy, Winston was playing on a thin layer of ice and he found himself in deep cold water. The estate’s gardner saved him from a certain death. The senior Churchill asked the gardner how he could repay him for having saved his young son’s life. The gardner said, “I am an old man, but my son is a smart boy, and he would make a fine medical doctor, but I can’t afford to send him to school.” The young man was sent to medical school, and later he discovered Penicillin. Years later Winston Churchill’s life was saved again, but this time by the use of Penicillin. Churchill’s life was saved twice, first by a father and then by his son.

So what you might ask does Winston Churchill have to do with Big Spring? It was his uncle who caused such a scandal in England that Joseph Heneage Finch moved to Big Spring; he was the Seventh Earl of Aylesford, and this is how Big Spring got its first brick building in 1884. It still stands today at 121 South Main. This is also how the town got Aylesford Street.

Questions regarding the group can be directed to Colonel.Allen.M.Morris@Gmail.com

Roger's Retro Review

So I've reviewed everything showing at Big Spring's Cinemark Cinema 4 theater. I contemplated making a trek to Midland to watch a movie not playing here – maybe "Stuber" or "Once Upon a Time in Hollywood" – but then I had another thought.

Regular Roger's Reviews Readers – at least those who have been with me for a while – may remember the Roger's Retro Reviews. A couple of years ago I was doing two reviews each week – one my regular "In Theaters Now" review like I do each (most) Sundays; and another on Wednesdays of a "retro" movie, anything that came out before 1990. I had some fun with that idea. I watched and reviewed some of the great oldies I'd never seen before – "Citizen Kane" and "Breakfast at Tiffany's" – some nostalgic films I grew up with – "Benji," "E.T." and "The Last Starfighter" – and my favorite film of All Time: "Dr. Strangelove: Or How I Learned To Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb."

So my thought is, in the rare instances when I'm "caught up" and have reviewed all the offerings at Cinemark, I'll break out another Retro Review. This week, with the passing of the phenomenal Rutger Hauer, I'm going to take a quick look at my favorite of his films.

You may already be guessing "Blade Runner." (or you would if you hadn't already seen the title of this review). It's a great movie, and Hauer's performance as Roy Batty, the deeply flawed synthetic man, is exquisite.

But my pick is the much more accessible 1985 fantasy classic "Ladyhawke."

In "Ladyhawke," Hauer plays the stoic Captain Etienne Navarre, a fugitive knight who enlists the aid of sneak thief Phillippe "The Mouse" Gaston (Matthew Broderick!) to break an evil curse and reunite him with his love Isabeau of Anjou (Michelle Pfeiffer).

The movie begins with Gaston escaping from the dungeons of Aquila, where he's been sentenced to death, by prying up the floor grate and making his way through the sewers to the moat. The Bishop's (John Wood) guards are soon after him, and corner him at a nearby inn, but they're distracted when they see the outlaw Etienne Navarre, their former captain of the guard. Navarre defeats the guards and rides off with Gaston as his hawk harries the guards as they try to mount a pursuit.

After making their escape the two take refuge in a barn for the night, but Gaston is awakened by the farmer, who attacks him. Suddenly a large black wolf attacks the man and kills him. Gaston runs into the barn to alert Navarre, but can't find him. He grabs the knight's crossbow to defend himself from the wolf, but a mysterious beautiful woman appears and stops him.

The next morning, Navarre returns, and tells Gaston he intends to kill the Bishop of Aquila, and asks Gaston's help in infiltrating the city.

Much to my surprise, there are many people out there who haven't seen this wonderful movie, so I'll stop the narrative there to avoid any 34-year-old spoilers. Other characters include Imperius (Leo McKern), an old monk living in a ruined castle; Captain Marquet (Ken Hutchison), Navarre's replacement as captain of the guard; and Cezar (Alfred Molina!), a crazed wolf trapper who serves the Bishop.

"Ladyhawke" is a movie which could very easily have descended into cheesy, cliched schlock. Its central conceit is blatantly obvious, its characters are standard fantasy tropes, and its setting gives little semblance of reality or a larger world beyond the narrow confines of the story.

What saves the movie and elevates it kicking and screaming above the mire of forgettable '80s fare – or, at best, cult movie status – is the pure acting talent of its small cast, and the not-inconsiderable directing talent of Richard Donner at the helm.

Matthew Broderick plays Gaston without a hint of the Frenchness that his name implies. Instead, he imbues the Mouse with every bit of Ferris Bueler's mischievousness and humor. Or rather, I guess you could say he imbued Ferris with Gaston's mischievousness and humor, since "Ladyhawke" came first. Instead of talking to the camera like Ferris does, Gaston routinely talks to God, bargaining and berating the Almighty for his predicaments. And it works beautifully. Gaston is fun and engaging to watch, and we want him to succeed.

Then there's Navarre and Isabeau. In this movie, the audience relates with Gaston – along with him, we get to watch the story of the cursed lovers unfold like Romeo and Juliet on the stage before us. Their chemistry is necessarily uncertain through most of the movie, but shines through at the end like the beams of sunshine that pierce the roof of the Bishop's cathedral.

McKern as Imperius plays along with Broderick as the movie's comic relief, the gruff-but-whimsical hermit and the witty, mischievous boy.

I love "Ladyhawke." Nine stars out of 10.

BIG SPRING HERALD Quiz Bowl

To the right are a sample Tossup question and series of Bonus questions similar to those used in National Academic Quiz Tournament "Quiz Bowl" competitions, the premiere general knowledge team quiz competition for high school students.

While the format is that used by NAQT, these questions and others in this series are authored by Herald Staff Writers.

Here are the rules.

For the "Tossup" question, begin reading at the beginning. There is one answer for the entire Tossup. At any time, if you know the answer, stop reading and answer. If you get the correct answer before you reach the • dot, you get 15 points. If you stop and answer before the dot and get it wrong, you lose 5 points. If you get it right after the dot, you get 10 points; if you get it wrong after the dot, you get no score.

You only get a shot at the three Bonus questions if you get the tossup correct. They're worth 10 points for each correct response, and no score for any incorrect response. Answer the bonus questions in order without looking ahead to the next question.

AAA Texas: State gas price average decreases for first time in weeks

The statewide gas price average in Texas is $2.51 for a gallon of regular unleaded fuel, according to the AAA Texas Weekend Gas Watch. That price is three cents less than this day last week and is 12 cents less per gallon compared to this day last year. Of the major metropolitan areas surveyed in Texas, drivers in Midland are paying the most on average at $2.68 per gallon while drivers in McAllen are paying the least at $2.36 per gallon. The national average price for a gallon of regular unleaded is $2.75, which is four cents less than this day last week and a dime less than the price per gallon at this same time last year.

Texas, along with most other states, have seen gas prices remain stable or even decrease week-over-week. This is the first time in four weeks that statewide and national averages have seen a weekly decline.

"Gasoline stocks remain ample amid a recent dip in demand, which could be one reason we are seeing pump prices starting to roll back," said Joshua Zuber, AAA Texas/New Mexico spokesperson. "It is too soon to know if this downward trend will continue, but it is certainly a welcome relief for motorists during the summer driving season."

Market analysts will be watching to see if oil prices will be impacted by further U.S.-China trade talks and tensions in the Middle East.

Prices up to date at press time using market prices posted at 3:41 a.m. Motorists can find current gas prices along their route with the free and revamped AAA App for iPhone, iPad and Android. The app can also be used to map a route and learn traffic conditions along that route, find discounts, locate parking, book a hotel and request and track AAA roadside assistance. Learn more at www.AAA.com/mobile.

McDonald's sales growth impresses in 2Q

By ANNE D'INNOGENZIO

AP Retail Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — McDonald's newly modernized stores and growth in delivery helped the world's largest hamburger chain serve up the biggest increase in global sales at established locations during the second quarter in seven years.

The Chicago-based chain reported a 6.5% gain in sales at locations opened at least 13 months. It marked the biggest gain since the first quarter of 2012 when it posted a 7.3% increase. It was also its 16th consecutive bump in comparable-store sales globally.

In the U.S., second quarter comparable sales increased 5.7%. That gain reflected the successful national and local deal offerings including the two for $5 Mix and Match incentive, newly remodeled stores and strength in its core menu items like Big Macs and Quarter Pounders, the company said.

McDonald's has been investing in a number of initiatives to help it stay on top of the highly competitive fast-food market. Last week, it announced it was adding DoorDash as a new delivery partner, ending an exclusive agreement with UberEats.

The hamburger chain's partnership with DoorDash will start Monday in Houston, Texas region in more than 200 restaurants. McDelivery launched in the U.S. in 2017 and globally, it has grown to a $3 billion business for both McDonald's and franchise restaurants, the company said.

The chain is also updating its locations with self-order kiosks to help increase convenience.

"By engaging our guests on their terms, whether it's through delivery, an enhanced dining experience at one of our Experience of the Future restaurants, or through our evolving digital offerings, we're becoming a better McDonald's," said Steve Easterbrook, CEO and president of McDonald's in a statement.

Still, the sales boost in the U.S. was driven by people spending more per visit because of factors like higher pricing and more expensive items. At the same time, McDonald's has been struggling with ongoing declines in how frequently customers visit its stores, which is a key indicator of a restaurant chain's popularity.

McDonald's Corp. is also under pressure to make its workplace safer for employees. It said in May that it was enhancing training and offering a new hotline for workers in response to mounting allegations of sexual harassment. That came as the labor group Fight for $15 filed 25 sexual harassment charges against McDonald's with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. The American Civil Liberties Union and the Time's Up Legal Defense Fund are providing legal support.

The company posted earnings of $1.52 billion, or $1.97 per share for the three month period ended June 30th. Earnings, adjusted for restructuring costs, came to $2.05 per share, which was a penny shy of expectations, according to Zacks Investment Research.

Revenue was $5.34 billion, a bit better than expected.

Shares of McDonald's Corp. rose 90 cents to $215.35 in mid-day trading.

pectedly ruffs the king of hearts and cashes the king of diamonds to put you down one.

"Very unlucky," you could say to yourself and anyone else who might listen — after all, the 7-2 heart split was extremely unlikely. However, when you give the matter a bit more thought, you realize that it was wrong to have played the A-K of hearts when you did. Instead, you should have played the clubs first!

Why? Because you had no chance to make the slam unless East had at least three clubs, so no harm could come from testing your luck in clubs before cashing dummy's hearts. Then, if East turned up with exactly three clubs, you could stop playing the suit and try the A-K of hearts before playing the fourth club.

In the actual deal, had you led the K-Q-A of clubs first, you would have learned that East had started with four clubs, and you could then have safely played a fourth round of the suit, discarding a diamond.

It's true that when you next played the A-K of hearts, East would ruff the king, but this would not stop you from making the slam. You would simply discard your last diamond as he ruffed to secure the contract.

Thus the seemingly abnormal — but entirely logical — procedure of trying to cash dummy's clubs before dummy's hearts is the right way to play the hand.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Venus Goes Hunting

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Few things will be more persuasive than a good story, especially if you leave room for the audience to fill in some blanks, thus becoming more involved. Tell a story: win a sale, a friend or a heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Like a buffet at a restaurant, the buffet of life is at its finest with the early crowd. There's something special brewing, something worth getting in on now while it's fresh and new.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Sometimes you wonder if you should care so much about the look and feel of things, as your discerning tastes can be difficult to satisfy. Today, however, holding out for what you really want will bring reward.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You didn't make them on purpose, but you can still be proud of those messes. Think of them as the product of good living. Those who are not making a mess are probably not making anything.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Genuine curiosity keeps the conversation going. You sense the difference between this real force of life and the empty questions that are imposters not even worth answering.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You look up to the ones in a certain group and the ones in the other group look up to you. And so, the wheel of social status uncomfortably turns. You may feel driven to break the wheel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Oh, happy day -- you'll get some of what you want! To get some of what you want is a blessing, a boon and a benefit! To get everything you want is a curse that stunts growth, spoils personality and ruins potential.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You don't think of your work or relationships as a game, but there are others more competitive at heart who seem ev-er-aware of the score. Knowing how they think, you can avoid the distraction of unwanted competition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Universities often use their graduate students as teachers for the lower-level classes. In a sense, all teachers are graduate students -- pupils further along the path of learning. Today, will bring a guided leap of knowledge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). When you know you can do a thing and be successful at it -- that's confidence. You can be confident about anything; you just need to learn the thing. One step at a time will get you there.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The emotions live inside of you, the circumstances live outside, and diffusion has to happen for you to move comfortably in the outside realm. A little of what's out there has to mix with what's in you and vice versa for this to work.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). To stay present and in the moment, the moment must interest you more than your internal dialogue does. Challenge yourself. Turn it into a puzzle. The higher awareness you gain will be worth it.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 28). Certain dreams of your youth have morphed into plans and adventures while others have been stashed or even forgotten. One will emerge this year for you to flesh out in an unexpected way. This idea that's come full-circle will connect you deeply with friends and spark new relationships, too. September brings a windfall. Taurus and Gemini adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 20, 4, 44, 38 and 17.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: You don't have to be in a new environment to have those "new environment" feelings that include, but are not limited to, buzzy excitement, trepidation, doubts about being accepted, anticipation of reward and more. When this surprise package of mixed emotion lands on the doorstep this week many wonder, "When did I order this?" You didn't. It was a gift from that prankster Uranus. It's like he can't decide who to bother so he just bothers everyone he comes across. First, he squares up to the sun, and then Venus, stirring up reactions and feelings wherever he goes. Mercury's retrograde has some final thoughts to share midweek along these lines: The past can be an escape, a foreign country you lived in where the rules were different, a fantasy, a servant to your story, a fiction you keep re-writing, a distraction. Given the mercurial nature of the past, it's a dangerous thing to play around with, perhaps the biggest issue there being that the past is also a thief that robs us of attention that could be much better invested in the present. That's an investment the new moon in Leo will double down on.

Annie's Mailbox

Decisions, Decisions

Dear Annie: My wife is nuts. She cannot make a decision. She never values her own opinion. She asks others what they think. It's incredibly frustrating. When she shops, she always asks the people working at the store for their opinion of the clothes she's trying on. When we go out to dinner, she asks the waiter what she should order. She is close with her parents and asks their advice on everything. And yes, she asks me my advice all the time, but I actually don't mind that. It's part of the job. I get it. I ask for her advice, as well. What bothers me is when she asks for my advice and then asks five co-workers, family members or strangers. I also don't like to be asked multiple times about the same thing. Should I wear the blue dress or the white one? Should I get the fish or the steak? Should I apply to this job or stay put? Navy or tan? Flats or heels? Inhale or exhale? I know that I should be thankful that she is seeking advice, but where does it end? Am I being unreasonable here? What should I do? -- Deciding Dan

Dear Deciding:

Let's rewind to that first paragraph: "She never values her own opinion." Bull's-eye! You've struck the heart of the matter. It sounds as if your wife has low self-esteem. She doesn't have confidence in her own judgment. And by asking you (and friends, family members, unwitting people in line at the grocery, the UPS guy, etc.) to decide for her, she doesn't have to blame herself if it turns out she's made the wrong decision. She is probably not even aware that that's her motivation. So you have to proceed a bit delicately here. You can't very well scold her out of having low self-esteem, (Somehow, "What's wrong with you? Why can't you do anything yourself?" doesn't exactly inspire soaring self-confidence.) What you can do is make her feel better about herself. Build her up. Compliment her decisions. The next time you're out to a steak dinner and she's wearing her white dress and navy heels, tell her how gorgeous she looks and what a great pick the restaurant was. If she feels validated and confident in making her own decisions, she'll start acting more independently. Until then, be patient. Remember to tell (SET ITAL) yourself (END ITAL) to inhale and exhale, too. Dear Annie: My husband's father died recently, and he's the executor of his dad's estate. There's not much there, but it is taking an inordinate amount of his time to sort it all out. My husband is self-employed, and it's cutting into his income substantially. I don't want to complain, because he's still so sad about the death, but the bills keep coming. I am concerned that this task will have a domino effect and hurt our finances in the long term. -- Worried About the Will Dear Worried: Try to be more understanding, and do what you can to help with the bills, the work and anything else to make it easier on him. If his mental state doesn't improve in the weeks and months to come, suggest grief counseling and offer to go with him. This too shall pass. TSTC nursing student to graduate with three SkillsUSA Texas gold medals (SWEETWATER, Texas) - After three years of study and having earned three SkillsUSA Texas gold medals, Texas State Technical College nursing student Kacee Merrifield is ready to graduate.

Merrifield, a Mineral Wells native, completed the Vocational Nursing program at TSTC's Breckenridge campus in 2018. She continued her studies at the Sweetwater campus, and now she is expected to graduate with an Associate of Applied Science degree in Nursing on August 16.

"I always knew I wanted to be a nurse because I wanted to help people," Merrifield said. "I am so ready to graduate. It is really exciting because of all the hard work you put in and the dedication it takes."

During Merrifield's time at TSTC, she competed at SkillsUSA, winning state each time and placing nationally.

SkillsUSA is a partnership of students, teachers and industry working together to ensure that America has a skilled workforce.

"It's a very validating feeling when you get to test your skills against others in your industry, but it's so much more than just winning a medal," Merrifield said.

In 2017 Merrifield placed first in state at SkillsUSA's Health Knowledge Bowl, continuing on to win fourth at nationals. In 2018 she won first in state for Nurse Assisting and sixth at nationals. This year she won first in state for Practical Nursing and seventh at nationals.

"In this last competition, it was really cool to be tested on skills that I use every day, like putting in an IV, catheters, assessing medications, and other skills used in the field," Merrifield said.

Vocational Nursing program director and West Texas SkillsUSA coordinator Marchelle Taylor said Merrifield played a big role in preparing others for SkillsUSA.

"Kacee was a huge help in getting other students excited and trained for SkillsUSA, but she is also just a great student. She is a great example of what hard work can do. She worked multiple jobs while being in school full time and is an amazing asset to the nursing program," Taylor said.

The nursing pinning ceremony is August 16. Merrifield hopes that one of her nieces will present her pin to her.

"I have two nieces, and they say they want to be nurses. I hope if it's what they want to do, they pursue it, because it is amazing," Merrifield said.

Merrifield encourages anyone who is interested in nursing to check out TSTC.

"Nursing is such a diverse career field. You can pick what you do and where you go, and in anything you do, you're getting to help people," Merrifield said.

Registration for the fall semester is underway. For more information about TSTC, log on to tstc.edu.

HSU hosts Tri-University trauma training

Special to the Herald

Hardin-Simmons University hosted a Trauma-Informed Care (TIC) training for about 60 professionals from HSU, ACU, and McMurry on Aug. 24. Police officers, student life coordinators, and counselors learned from specialists from Resolution Solutions during the three-hour course.

"Trauma-Informed Care is so important for professionals engaging with students on a day-to-day basis," said Nikki Rhodes, HSU director of counseling services. "As reporting rates increase, our campuses are realizing just how many students are impacted by trauma, either present or historical—and this offers us a specific tool to care for our students holistically."

Tony Barker gave practical advice to help professionals communicate with victims who have experienced trauma. He outlined the four tools of effective communication: listening, communicating, perspective, and creativity. He also suggested using a non-judgmental, attentive posture and stimulating different areas of the brain by taking the victim on a walk, giving them a glass of water, or even applying lotion to activate different sensory responses.

Patty Wenetschlaeger shared about the importance of self-care for anyone who deals with people who have experienced trauma. She explained that physical, psychological, moral, and interpersonal symptoms of trauma victims can all be experienced through secondary or vicarious trauma as well. She emphasized that symptoms of secondary trauma directly mirror those of primary trauma, meaning that caregivers and first responders experience the same physical and mental symptoms as the abuse victims they are near.

Wenetschlaeger gave easy self-care tips that everyone can do throughout their day: taking deep breaths, going for a walk, using a stress ball, and putting cell phones away at least one meal per day. She also encouraged the audience to find what self-care habits work best for them. Listening to music, baking, yoga, meditation, and other relaxing activities help the brain to recover. She advocated for accountability partners and "finding your tribe," as self-care includes talking through trauma with others who understand.

About Hardin-Simmons University:

Hardin-Simmons University is a private, Christian, liberal arts university located in Abilene, Texas. Founded in 1891, HSU offers more than 85 versatile undergraduate and graduate degree programs. As a fully accredited university, HSU is dedicated to academic excellence shaped by a distinctive Christian perspective. The University offers distinguished schools of Fine Arts, Liberal Arts, Science and Mathematics, Nursing, Human Sciences and Educational Studies, Theology, Business and is also home Logsdon Seminary. HSU was voted one of the "Best Western" universities by Princeton Review (2017) and ranked as one of the best "Regional Universities West" by US News & World Report (2018).

Hyperbaric oxygen therapy shows fresh air is sometimes the best medicine

BIG SPRING, TX -The physicians and clinicians at The Center for Wound Healing, which is part of Healogics network, use leading edge therapies to reintroduce the body's innate ability to heal chronic wounds. One state-of-the-art therapy being used to save limbs from amputation updates the folk wisdom that fresh air cures anything.

Hyperbaric oxygen therapy, or HBO, increases the amount of oxygen to wounds allowing them to heal from the inside.

Patients receiving treatments watch television while relaxing on a bed encased in a large see-through plastic shell as they are surrounded by 100 percent oxygen at higher-than-normal atmospheric pressure.

Under hyperbaric conditions, oxygen molecules in the patient's red blood cells become reduced in size to more easily dissolve into the liquid portion of the blood and be transported throughout the body to speed healing.

During the non-invasive procedure, the only sensation patients experience is a slight pressure in the ears, as on an airplane, when the pressure changes.

HBO treatments are used for wounds that have not responded to traditional treatments. Treatments are typically covered by Medicare, Medicaid and most insurance plans.

"Hyperbaric oxygen therapy has proven, well-documented results healing numerous conditions including diabetic foot ulcers, radiation injuries to tissue and bone and some types of vascular disorders resulting in poor blood circulation," Chief Clinical Officer Katy Rowland said.

Chronic wounds affect more than eight million people in the United States and the incidence is rising fueled by an aging population and increasing rates of diseases and conditions such as diabetes, obesity and the late effects of radiation therapy.

The Wound Healing Center located at 1501 W 11th Place, Suite 106 in Big Spring also offers negative pressure therapies, bioengineered tissues and biosynthetics to treat chronic wounds. For more information contact The Wound Healing Center located at 433-268-5370.

Texas Plains Trail Region Caravan to visit 50 communities, 750 miles, 3 days

Locals welcome to come along on the 1968 'blue line,' July 29-31

Special to the Herald

You've seen those blue-and-white highway signs across Texas, right? They were put up back in 1968 — some 1,500 of them — to help travelers discover the history, culture, and scenery of every corner of the state.

That year, Gov. John Connally designated the 10 Texas Travel Trails, a program that encouraged HemisFair '68 visitors to stay longer and spend more in the Lone Star State. The promotion was fun, inexpensive, and very successful. Motorists could pick up a map brochure with waypoint information, jump in the car, and go.

These days the Texas Heritage Trails program is managed by the Texas Historical Commission, and the Trail Regions serve every county, whether situated on the original driving trail or not.

But those 1968 signs are still there, and they beckon travelers to experience the panorama of heritage represented along the 10 routes.

On Monday, July 29 through Wednesday, July 31, 2019, the Texas Plains Trail 50th Anniversary Caravan will drive the "blue line" starting in Lubbock, heading east to Matador and Caprock Canyons; up to Hamblen Drive across Palo Duro Canyon into Canyon (where the group will see the TEXAS Outdoor Musical); up to Amarillo, Borger, and Dumas; and back south and west across Route 66 to Vega, the Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge, and back via Morton and Levelland to Lubbock.

The Texas Plains Trail Region is the official heritage tourism for our state, working in partnership with the Texas Historical Commission since 1998 and the state of Texas since 1968.

Lubbock will be the starting point of the 750-mile journey to celebrate our golden anniversary, visit heritage sites, and express our thanks to communities and tourism leaders all along the way.

The aim of our delegation is to be a heritage tourism delegation as well as to introduce participants from outside the Plains and Panhandle to some of the treasures of our region. We will conduct Facebook Live sessions all along the route, for the benefit of those who can only come along on the "virtual tour," but we invite residents of all our communities to just ride along for a portion of the itinerary.

Full Caravan participation includes two nights' lodging, all meals and museum admission fees, TEXAS ticket and dinner, and van transportation, is available for purchase. A few seats are still available. The plan for the three days is:

- Day 1, Monday, July 29: Lubbock; Slaton; Gail; Post; Matador; lodging at historic Hotel Matador.

- Day 2, Tuesday, July 30: Caprock Canyons; Hamblen Drive; Canyon; Amarillo; TEXAS Outdoor Musical; lodging in Amarillo.

- Day 3, Wednesday, July 31: Amarillo; Borger; Sanford; Dumas; Vega; Muleshoe; Morton; Levelland; return to Lubbock.

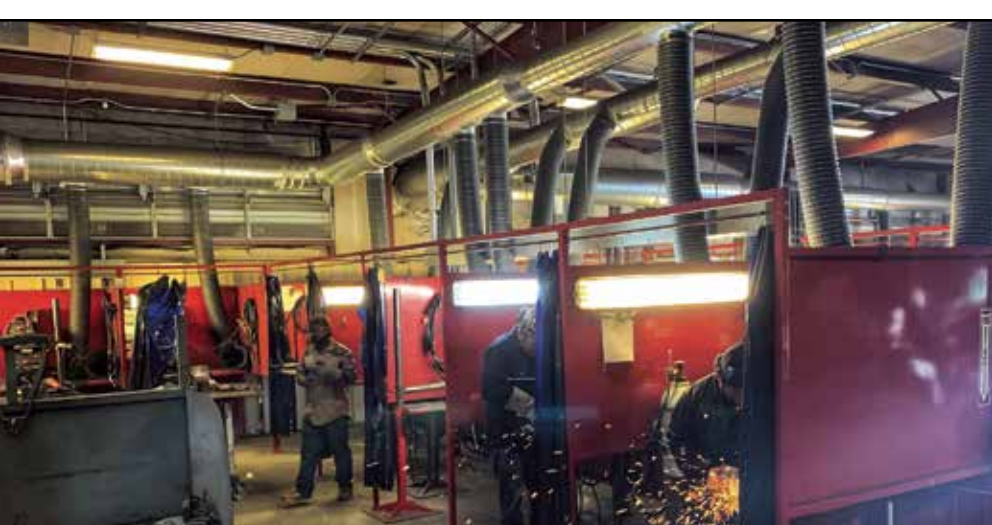

Options are also available for travelers to participate in portions of the itinerary in their own vehicles, or to simply meet up and greet the group along any part of the itinerary.

Details are posted at www.texasplainstrail.com/plan-your-adventure/caravan-2019. Or call the Texas Plains Trail Region at (806) 252-6554 with questions.

Along the trail travelers will see dramatic canyon vistas, sweeping horizons, Route 66 neon, historic downtowns, and more. The Caravan will also incorporate visits to numerous heritage destinations and museums, including the Lubbock Lake Landmark, Buddy Holly's gravesite, the historic Motley County Jail, Caprock Canyons State Park and Railway, the Goodnight Historical Center, the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, and the Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge.

We welcome visitors to ride along the 750 miles of this original 1968 Texas Travel Trail.

TSTC welding program meets industry need

(SWEETWATER, Texas) - The welding program at Texas State Technical College is training and educating highly skilled welders quickly to continue to meet industry demand.

Texas has the highest employment level for welders, cutters, solderers and brazers in the nation, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. And demand is expected to keep growing.

"The students come in and earn a Certification Level 1 - Structural Welding in three semesters and are trained in various welds like MIG, TIG, flux-core, stick, oxy-fuel, brazing and more," Taylor Elston, welding instructor at the Sweetwater campus, said.

As students near graduation, Elston spends time with each one figuring out their career plans and caters to their education with that in mind.

"About the third semester, we'll start asking the students which type of welding they enjoy most and where they want to live and what kind of job they want. Because in welding there are so many specializations, they can have a choice of where they end up," Elston said. "So, once we learn what they really want to do, we'll help them start preparing for that weld test so they can get the job they want."

One of the biggest appeals to the welding program for student Kelton Grigsby was TSTC's proximity to industry and dedication to job placement.

"I want to work in Lubbock, and TSTC is close to those industry leaders. There is a big need for welders. I have family in welding, so I know how lucrative welding can be," Grigsby said.

Grigsby began welding in high school. After graduating from Godley High School in 2018, he decided to attend TSTC.

Clint Faulkner also chose the welding program for career growth opportunities.

"My dad and I have been building metal buildings, carports and other structures for the past four years, and it was important that I get a refresher on my welding and get the technical skills here," Faulkner said.

After a nine-year career in truck driving, Faulkner, a Big Spring native, decided he needed a career that was more physically active.

Grigsby and Faulkner are expected to earn their certificates and graduate in August.

TSTC students spend a majority of their time in the lab with hands-on practice to ensure the technical skills, but Elston says the college is also dedicated to ensuring that students are job-ready.

"With the TSTC Career Services team helping us, we really make sure the students have not only the quality education, but also the soft skills like resumes and job etiquette," Elston said. "We make them treat school like their job; they have to show up and show up on time. So when they graduate they won't just be good welders, but also good employees."

Elston encourages anyone interested in the program to come to the campus and schedule a tour.

Registration for the fall semester is underway. For more information about TSTC, go online at tstc.edu.

TSTC to give away scholarship at registration rally

(SWEETWATER, Texas) - Texas State Technical College will host a Registration Rally at its Sweetwater campus from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Thursday, July 25. At the event, a prospective student who is in attendance and enrolls in classes for fall 2019 will be awarded a $250 scholarship.

Attendees can register for classes and learn about financial aid opportunities. Tables featuring TSTC programs, student activities and student services will be set up, with college representatives available to answer questions.

Attendees can preregister for the event online at tstc.edu/rally.

Discovery Channel gets in the swim of things with Shark Week 2019

Fans of the oceans' apex predator will find plenty to sink their teeth into when Shark Week surfaces for its 31st programming frenzy this week on Discovery Channel.

Swimming into view Sunday, July 28, the annual eight-day block devoted to all things shark offers up a plethora of knowledge on everything from great white hunting behaviors ("Great White Kill Zone: Guadalupe," Thursday, Aug. 1), the accounts of shark-attack victims ("I Was Prey," Friday, Aug. 2) and how to survive in shark-infested waters ("Laws of Jaws: Dangerous Waters," Tuesday, July 30) to the latest in shark-detecting technology ("Sharks of the Badlands," Monday, July 29), an attempt to create the perfect shark suit ("Andrew Mayne: Ghost Diver," Friday) and how a giant prehistoric shark went extinct ("Expedition Unknown: Megalodon," Sunday).

There is even a celebrity shark swim with actor/comedian Rob Riggle ("Shark Trip: Eat Prey Chum," Sunday).

In "Expedition Unknown: Megalodon," host Josh Gates speaks to paleontologists and marine biologists and even goes diving in shark-infested waters to investigate the decline and eventual disappearance of "The Meg," a powerful predator that reached lengths up to 59 feet, millions of years ago.

"The old thinking up until a few years ago," Gates explains, "is that the Meg went away because of a climate change, it went away because of the onset of an Ice Age, it went away because there was a stellar event where the Earth was bathed in a type of radiation that possibly changed some of the ecosystems on the planet. And that's always been the story about the Meg and that story is changing and that's what we wanted to investigate with this show, is it may be that the Meg went extinct a million years earlier than previously thought at a time when there was no real big climactic change. And if that's the case, it means that it probably died out because it was outcompeted by other animals."

In another piece of noteworthy programming, Tuesday's "Laws of Jaws: Dangerous Waters" places hosts Paul de Gelder, Jamin Martinelli, Mike Dornellas and Nick LeBeouf in harm's way to re-enact five recent shark attacks to find out how things could have ended differently and what people can do to prevent or fend off an attack.

In one experiment, Martinelli climbs on a paddleboard in the Bahamas to test how sharks react to her presence and various actions, such as falling off the board.

Her advice to someone confronted by a shark? "Try to make eye contact," she says. "... That's the most important thing, is for them to know that you are alert and you're watching them. Also, if you do have a paddle, that's great because you can actually keep your distance from them, so they may circle just to kind of check you out but you can keep a barrier.

"And ... just remain calm," she continues. "In any amped up situation, if you kind of get hysterical or (start) freaking out, then you just forget all of this. So if you're super-calm, then you're more aware to be totally in the situation, saying, 'OK, I see the shark, all he's doing is checking me out. I can (handle) this. I'm watching him, he's watching me.' And then from there, either get back on the board or the boat but just do everything super-slow while watching him the entire time."

Shark Week kicks off eight days of programming Sunday on Discovery Channel.

"Zombie Tidal Wave"
(Syfy — TV movie premiere, Aug. 17)

If your summer traditions have always included tuning in to Syfy for yet another rendition of a "Sharknado" movie, well, that ship has sailed. However, Ian Ziering is back to star in this new film, which the cablenet hopes will jump-start a new franchise. Here, bloodthirsty zombies wreak havoc after a tidal wave hits a small town. Batten down the hatches!

"The Righteous Gemstones"
(HBO — series premiere, Aug. 18)

Eli (John Goodman) is the patriarch of a famous televangelist family with a long tradition of deviance, greed and charitable work. His son, Jesse (Danny McBride), sees himself as the king of the ministry game and expands the empire to a more modern audience. Edi Patterson ("Vice Principals"), Adam Devine ("Pitch Perfect"), Cassidy Freeman ("Smallville") and Tony Cavalero ("School of Rock") also star.

"Good Talk With Anthony Jeselnik"
(Comedy Central — series premiere, Sept. 6)

In this new interview series, the comic sits down with some of the best in the business, including David Spade, Kristen Schaal, Kumail Nanjiani, Natasha Leggero, Nick Kroll and Tig Notaro. The conversations are sure to bring laughs as they discuss stand up, share stories and participate in elegantly bizarre studio segments.

William Shatner and History attempt to explain 'The UnXplained'

William Shatner is intrigued. He wants to know how gravity works, whether there is life after death or even how it is someone can suffer a blow to the head in a car accident and awaken a virtuoso-level concert pianist, not having had any prior training.

These are things that bedevil him, which is why he's the host of "The UnXplained."

Airing Fridays on History, the hourlong anthology series explores these and other subjects that have stumped mankind for centuries, be it mysterious structures, cursed ancient cities, extraterrestrial sightings and bizarre rituals. Scientists, historians, engineers, researchers and other experts offer up their opinions and possible explanations.

"All these mysterious things that defy explanation," Shatner says, "and yet people educated in science or people educated in faith or people uneducated but they know what they see or feel and it's all mysterious. We're living in a mystery."

"What you have to also appreciate," he continues, "not only do they not have the same answer but they might not be seeing the same thing because we're all filtering the same information through our different filters. ... So we're looking at the same thing, the same circumstances but we don't know what it is because I don't know what you're thinking."

This week's episode, titled "Strange Creatures," considers the possible existence of beings such as the Chupacabra, the Mongolian Death Worm and the Mothman, which have been sighted myriad times but still go unrecognized by mainstream scientists.

"Every so often people see the same strange-looking entity," Shatner says, "the Mothman and the Goatman. The Mothman thing is really strange. The town has seen this entity (and) they don't have any explanation for it."

BY JAY BOBBIN

JEFF FOXWORTHY

Jeffrey Marshall Foxworthy was born on Sept. 6, 1958, in Atlanta. He had a Southern Baptist upbringing, but maintained that he wasn't comfortable with certain aspects of the religion. He followed his father into the computer-maintenance business, and some of his co-workers inspired him to enter a comedy-club contest ... which he won.

Recordings helped give Foxworthy's career early boosts, particularly 1993's "You Might Be a Redneck If ...," the title of which also gave him his signature line. The 1998 album "Totally Committed" yielded Foxworthy an associated HBO special.

Foxworthy went mainstream when the sitcom "The Jeff Foxworthy Show" began on ABC in 1995. Canceled after one season, it then was picked up by NBC, where it aired for one more season.

Foxworthy found television success as a game-show host with "Are You Smarter Than a 5th Grader?," presiding not only over the primetime edition on Fox (which was resurrected for another season after its original run ended), but also a syndicated version that aired for two years.

"The American Bible Challenge" and "The American Baking Competition" let Foxworthy hone his game-hosting abilities. He's now back in that genre, but as a panelist instead of a host: He sits alongside fellow judges Chrissy Teigen and Kenan Thompson on the NBC comedy contest "Bring the Funny," with Amanda Seales in the host role.

In live-performance terms, apart from his solo act, Foxworthy is known for being a part of the successful Blue Collar Comedy Tour ... along with Larry the Cable Guy and Bill Engvall (and, on occasion, Ron White). The early success of that venture led to a television-series spinoff, "Blue Collar TV," which later was redeveloped into the show "Foxworthy's Big Night Out."

An author of several books – including the cookbook "The Redneck Grill," which he co-wrote – Foxworthy also has an outdoor-product line. He and his wife Pamela have two daughters.

'The Red Line' has made its one trip for CBS

Q: What happened to "The Red Line"? It just disappeared. – Alice Larson, DeLand, Fla.

A: CBS intended the Noah Wyle-starring drama to be a limited "event" series, so all of its eight produced episodes aired over consecutive Sundays in April and May, two episodes per night. The network did have an option to continue the franchise, presumably with a different story, but it decided not to exercise that despite the considerable producing cred of Greg Berlanti and Ava DuVernay. The program's less-than-strong ratings undoubtedly were a big factor.

Noah Wyle

Q: It's interesting to see Mischa Barton as part of the cast of "The Hills: New Beginnings," and it made me think that I haven't seen her do much acting lately. What has she been doing professionally? – Amber Kay, via e-mail

Mischa Barton

A: The past several years largely have been a combination of stage work, independent films and "Dancing With the Stars" for her. Her movies have leaned largely toward horror and suspense, by her professed preference, with such titles as "The Basement" and "Ouija House" included; thanks to her residual fame from the series "The O.C." (which inspired MTV to develop both "Laguna Beach: The Real Orange County" and "The Hills"), the makers of such relatively small films undoubtedly have been happy to have Barton both present and promotable. Barton also had the role of Shelby in a production of "Steel Magnolias" that toured Ireland and marked the first time she had done live theater in a while. And in 2016, she competed in the spring season of ABC's "Dancing With the Stars," staying in the contest for a month before she and partner Artem Chigvintsev were eliminated.

celebrity q&a

BY JAY BOBBIN

Kenan Thompson

OF 'BRING THE FUNNY'
ON NBC

You taped most of "Bring the Funny" before it premiered. Did it fulfill what you'd hoped for?

Oh, yeah, absolutely. It was intriguing from the get-go. We wanted a super-duper-diverse squad (of judges), and we have a wonderful host in Amanda Seales, so we were ready to start runnin' and gunnin'.

What do you look for in comics who appear on "Bring the Funny"?

You've got to please the room that you're performing in front of, and audience reaction is key. For any performance, it's critical to have volume be the main thing that people are reacting with. For a $250,000 grand prize, you have to blow the roof off the place.

Does watching comics compete on "Bring the Funny" bring back memories of your own auditioning for "Saturday Night Live"?

It's similar, because you don't have a lot of time to make a first impression. And even if it goes great the first time or the second time, you don't have that many other chances, so it all feels very dire and critical. I'm sure it's very nerve-racking and stressful for the performers, so yeah, I can relate to that.

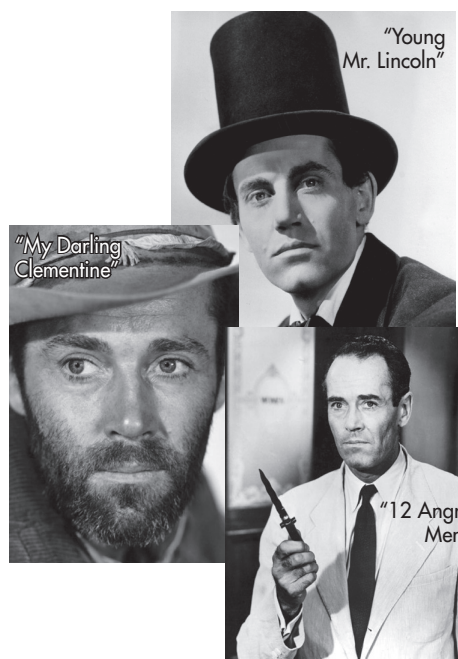

As "Bring the Funny" airs, you're also starting to work on your new NBC sitcom "The Kenan Show" for next season. How is that going so far?

It's going great ... so far, so good. We're going to write a lot and then we're going to shoot a lot, so I don't feel like I'm being rushed into the whole "figure it out and make it perfect" of it all right away. But yeah, it's a lot to tackle.

"Young Mr. Lincoln"

"My Darling Clementine"

"12 Angry Men"

BEST HENRY FONDA MOVIES

"Jezebel" (1938) Sort of a "Gone With the Wind" without the same exact characters, this well-regarded drama casts Bette Davis as a willful Southern belle who wants to retrieve the man she let get away (Fonda).

"Young Mr. Lincoln" (1939) Among the Fonda titles included in Turner Classic Movies' "Summer Under the Stars" opening-day salute to him Thursday, Aug. 1, this John Ford-directed view of the young Abraham Lincoln did much to advance the star's profile.

"The Grapes of Wrath" (1940) A milestone in American movies, director John Ford's version of the John Steinbeck novel hinges largely on Fonda's moving portrayal of Tom Joad, the next generation of a Depression-era migrant family.

"My Darling Clementine" (1946) Stories of the Old West continued to hold appeal for Fonda as he teamed yet again with director John Ford by playing Wyatt Earp, who becomes a lawman in his quest to find those responsible for the death of one of his brothers.

"The Fugitive" (1947) John Ford once again was the principal director for Fonda in novelist Graham Greene's melodrama about a priest on the run because of conflicting religious beliefs in a Mexican town.

"Fort Apache" (1948) John Ford called the shots for Fonda again – as well as for John Wayne, Shirley Temple and others – in this signature Western about opposition between the commanding officers at a military outpost.

"Mister Roberts" (1955) Fonda re-created his Broadway performance in the title role as a Navy officer having his own war with his ship's captain (James Cagney) while stationed in the South Pacific during World War II.

"12 Angry Men" (1957) Also serving as producer, Fonda mounted a classic by turning a television play into a movie vehicle for an outstanding ensemble cast as the members of a deliberating jury in a murder trial.

"Spencer's Mountain" (1963) The inspiration for television's "The Waltons," this affecting drama casts Fonda as the patriarch of a close-knit mountain family.

"The Best Man" (1964) Gore Vidal's play made a fine screen vehicle for Fonda and Cliff Robertson as highly dissimilar rivals for a political party's presidential nomination during a very eventful convention.

"Yours, Mine and Ours" (1968) Fonda is pleasingly comfortable in the fact-inspired comedy about a widow (played by Lucille Ball) and a widower who marry and merge their big broods of children, much to the kids' displeasure.

"Once Upon a Time in the West" (1968) A notably vicious Fonda, playing a hired killer in the Old West, was a highlight of "Spaghetti Western" director Sergio Leone's much-admired epic.

"On Golden Pond" (1981) The climax of Fonda's big-screen career came with his Oscar win for this moving adaptation of Ernest Thompson's play about a couple in their twilight years, produced by Fonda's daughter (and co-star) Jane and also marking another Academy Award victory for Katharine Hepburn.

Tastemade's 'Struggle Meals' shows how to eat well for less

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Frankie Celenza

With the cost of groceries climbing ever higher, a show like "Struggle Meals" is most welcome. Currently streaming on the foodie/travel digital platform Tastemade, the series walks viewers through the steps in making creative, delicious meals that don't break the bank, offering up tips on how to reduce their food bills dramatically by eliminating waste and sharing kitchen hacks and tasty recipes. The show's theme, "Life can be a struggle but a good meal doesn't have to be" says it all.

A great example of that, he says, is the corn chowder he made in one recent episode. "We've got a bucket where every vegetable end, we're throwing it in there and making stocks from it," he says. "We just did a corn chowder ... where the broth was literally corn husk and cob leftovers, like made a corn broth. I mean, that's just saving money. That's cheaper than using a bouillon cube. It's cheaper than using three boxes of vegetable stock. It's a byproduct of the main ingredient. It's good."

Leading the charge is the series' host, New York-based chef Frankie Celenza, who is passionate about not wasting food.

Celenza also doesn't like the fact that Americans consume a lot of food prepared outside the home, such as canned foods and takeout. With the advent of this, he says, people didn't need to cook and so they never learned. He intends to give that power back to them by giving them knowledge.

"The biggest thing," explains Celenza, who won a New York Emmy Award for his YouTube series "Frankie Cooks," "is really making sure that everybody cooks with everything that they buy because the U.N. has this stat that 40 percent of food in America is thrown out. That's the U.N. So in theory, if one cooks or consumes everything they buy at the supermarket, they're saving 40 percent of their money, right? So right there, you can almost double the efficiency of what you're spending."

"Food cost is high in America," he says, "and this is the country that has made it easier than any other in the world for you not to cook - because you're too busy, you can't cook. 'We'll do it for you, have this frozen food. Go through this drive-thru.' They've made it really easy and stolen - I personally think since the 1970s on, we kind of like lost a generation of home cooks and I think people want it back."

"Supermarket Stakeout"
(Food Network — series premiere, Aug. 13)

Shoppers, beware! Alex Guarnaschelli ("Iron Chef," "Chopped") hosts as four chefs square off in a competitive pop-up kitchen outside a grocery store. Assigned a theme for each round, the chefs must size up shoppers as they exit the store and attempt to negotiate for their grocery bags — without knowing what's inside. The winning chef will win enough cash for a year's worth of groceries.

July 28 "Pennyworth"
Fans of the "Batman" franchise will want to take note of this origin story that follows the younger years of Alfred Pennyworth, the former British Air Service soldier who would later become the butler for tycoon Bruce Wayne. Jack Bannon stars as the twentysomething Pennyworth, with Emma Corrin, Ben Aldridge, Hainsley Lloyd Bennett and Ryan Fletcher also in the cast. (ORIGINAL)

July 31 "Four Weddings and a Funeral"
Mindy Kaling ("The Mindy Project") is the creative force behind this adaptation of the hit 1994 feature film about a group of friends and how their lives intersect over the course of five events. Nathalie Emmanuel, Brandon Mychal Smith, Rebecca Rittenhouse and — from the movie — Andie MacDowell head the cast. (ORIGINAL) Series Premiere

July 30 "Whitney Cummings: Can I Touch It?"
The actress, writer and comedian best known for her 2011-13 NBC sitcom "Whitney" gives her thoughts on gender dynamics and a range of other topics in this stand-up performance filmed in March at Sidney Harman Hall in Washington, D.C. (ORIGINAL)

"The Real Camilla" (Aug. 1, True Royalty TV)
English filmmaker Jane Treays directed this documentary that offers an intimate look at the daily life of Camilla, Duchess of Cornwall, wife of Charles, Prince of Wales and arguably the most misunderstood member of the British royal family. (ORIGINAL)
How to watch: www.trueroyalty.tv (One-week free trial; $5.99/mo.)

July 31 "Movie: Peterloo"
Mike Leigh ("Another Year," "Secrets & Lies") directed this historical drama about the infamous Peterloo Massacre of 1819, where government-backed cavalry charged into a peaceful crowd of over 60,000 that gathered in Manchester, England to demand democratic reform. Rory Kinnear, Maxine Peake and Pearce Quigley head the cast. (ORIGINAL)

August 2 "Movie: Otherhood"
Angela Bassett, Patricia Arquette and Felicity Huffman head a talented cast in this comedy movie about empty nesters who feel forgotten and decide to drive to New York to reconnect with their adult sons. Cindy Chupack ("Sex and the City") produced, wrote and directed the film, which also stars Jake Lacy, Becki Newton and Heidi Gardner. (ORIGINAL) Premiere

"Aruanas" (Available now, Aruanas TV)
From Brazil comes this 10-part series about three idealistic women who set up a nongovernmental organization to investigate the suspect activities of a mining company operating in the Amazon rainforest. Debora Falabella, Leandra Leal, Tais Araujo and Thaina Duarte star. (ORIGINAL)
