The Poffenbach home was built in 1910 on the lot where the Baptist Church had formerly been at 410 Gregg. The first church was swept away by a tornado and after the congregation rebuilt the second church, it burned down at this very location. Fred Poffenbach purchased the lot from the church and had his home built hoping for better luck.

The front door opened into a spacious foyer that held two large columns. Entry to the living room/parlor was available to the right or turning to the left would lead into the front bedroom. Pocket doors separated the living room and dining room. A large screened in back porch was used as a "sleeping porch" during the hot summer months. The front porch rounded off from the east to the southside. The perfect place to be during the evenings as it was shaded from the west sun. The porch was supported by large square columns and porch railings. Mrs. Poffenbach taught music on the piano that was in the parlor/living room. Fred worked as a clerk for the T&P Railroad and the couple had welcomed three children into their family with the third child, Frederick Jr., being born in the home. The home was most recognized for its beautiful oval stain glass window in the front. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Craven purchased the house. Bernice Althea Agee Cravens had been raised by her grandparents R.B. and Mary Zinn. The Zinn's lived one street over at 507 Scurry and was one of the first pioneers of Big Spring. Guy and Althea married at 5:30 a.m. June 1909 at her aunt and uncle, Tiny and Sheriff Jim Baggett's home at 600 Main. The early morning wedding allowed them to catch a train for their honeymoon. The Baggett home was subsequently sold to H.W. Caylor. After the Craven's purchased the Poffenbach home, Althea would often

First Baptist Church of Big Spring hosts D-Now

By IRIS RANGEL Herald Staff Writer

First Baptist Church of Big Spring will host their annual D-Now event from Feb. 5 through Feb. 7. Registration will begin on the first night at 8:45 p.m. Participants will be able to tour the gym and worship/teaching will begin at 10 p.m ending at midnight. The event will resume again on Saturday at 9:30 a.m. with rec time and Paint Wars located in the east parking lot. Saturday's festivities will end at 10 p.m. The last session of events will take place on Sunday from 9 - 10 a.m. at FBC.

D-Now is a multi-church event that has taken place since 2016 and challenges each Disciple Now student to extend their faith and relationship with Jesus. This year's D-Now theme is Pray. "We believe that this theme is so very important for our students, family and friends, our community and our nation," Youth Pastor for FBC Big Spring Roger Stafford said. "This has been a very trying year for our students. We believe that learning to pray and seek the Face of God will be and is one of the most important factors to building a strong faith that relies on Jesus and strengthens our students to face what promises to be another challenging year."

At D-Now, there will also be a worship band and a speaker in attendance for participants to enjoy. "One of the things that our students - and all of us - need is to be a part of something bigger than themselves," Stafford said. "The emphasis is not on teaching about prayer as much as it is about praying and seeing God move in the lives of others and ourselves." Requirements for D-Now include being a student in the seventh to twelfth grade. There is also a cost to attend the event. If a student wishes to get involved, they will need to contact their church. The current churches participating include Trinity Baptist, College Baptist, Hillcrest Baptist, Spring Creek Fellowship, and FBC. Students can also come as an individual. Sign-up forms are located on the FCB website or can be picked up at FBC. "To our students, I would say that this will be an incredible event that will challenge them to go deeper in their faith and to find practical ways to engage in their faith," he said. According to Stafford, in February, FBC is looking to host an event called First Love where food trucks will be in attendance for the

Watching your pet's weight is vital, and there are ways to make sure your animal is not packing on too many pounds.

BRYAN-COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 22, 2021 — For pet owners with an overweight animal companion, there can be a difficult balance between wanting to treat a pet and wanting to keep them in the best health possible.

However, with moderation and consistency, owners can ensure their pet reaches a healthy weight without discomfort.

Dr. Lori Teller, an associate professor in the Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, says that a healthy diet is integral to successful weight loss.

Treats, whether specially made for pets or table food, should not make up more than 10% of an animal's diet, and when given, the calories of a treat should be included in a pet's total daily intake, she said.

"Healthy treats may include green beans, baby carrots, celery sticks, or apple slices," Teller said. "There also are other ways to treat pets besides food; many pets may be satisfied with some attention, whether that is a game of fetch, a catnip toy, or a chin scratch.

Veterinarians can make recommendations on healthy treat options as well.

Owners with an overweight pet also should consult with their veterinarian to set a weight loss plan that is best for their animal. As a general rule, Teller says that a gradual reduction in body mass is safest.

"Weight loss should be done in a stepwise fashion; pets should be weighed monthly to determine if they are losing weight appropriately," Teller said. "Rapid weight loss can lead to problems, such as liver disease or nutritional imbalances, and weight loss that is too slow prolongs the adverse effects of excess weight to the pet's health."

Exercise can also be a healthy tool in promoting weight loss. For dogs, this can include walks, swimming, frisbee or fetch.

If a dog is resistant to exercise, Teller recommends starting slowly. Taking walks in new areas may help mentally stimulate your dog in new ways, and, as a result, your dog may not even realize that they are going out for exercise.

If your dog is hesitant to get moving, Teller also recommends ruling out underlying health problems that may make exercise painful for them.

"Dogs that are extremely overweight or obese may have an orthopedic problem, such as a torn cruciate ligament or herniated disk, that causes pain or discomfort with exercise," she said. "Rule out or treat underlying medical problems and talk with your veterinarian about an appropriate exercise plan. Some dogs may benefit from a few sessions of physical therapy to gain better mobility."

Cats and other non-walkable pets can also benefit from exercise. Cats may be encouraged to move with certain toys, such as a laser pointer. Teller says owners can place the cat's food in a location where they will have to work to get it, such as on top of a tall cat tree.

"It is possible to train a cat to walk on a leash and go for walks," she said. "This needs to be done slowly over time, but there are many owners who make this work."

Just as humans trying to lose weight may find themselves tempted by snacks, pets can also get impatient between meals. Teller recommends breaking a pet's food into multiple meals throughout the day — anywhere between two and four — and providing food on a regular schedule to reduce hunger.

"One more way that owners can help their pets is to feed the pet's entire daily food supply in puzzle toys," Teller said. "This is both mentally and physically stimulating. The pet will need to figure out how to get the food out of the toy. This will also make the pet eat more slowly, thus helping the pet to stay satiated for longer periods of time."

Although saying no to a begging pet may be difficult, the health of a beloved animal is well worth the discipline.

"Remember that animals that maintain at a healthy weight throughout their lifetime can live an additional two years over that of an overweight pet," Teller said. "That two years is worth the effort to keep your pet at a healthy weight."

Guy Cravens died in 1953 and Althea died in 1977 at the age of 87. The home was then purchased by JoAnn Kaufmann and Katie Kernoodle as they opened a

The 12-foot ceilings were fully insulated and the fish scale roof with gingerbread on top, were all preserved. The Big Spring Steer swim team competed at the Andrews Swim Meet on Saturday. The team as a whole represented Steer Nation well, one Steer will be advancing on to the Regional competition. Smith Cate qualified with a Second Place finish in the Men 1 MTR Diving Varsity with a final score of 258.30. Overall the Big Spring Women's Swim Team finished Sixth overall, with the Andrews team placing First. The Big Spring Men's Swim Team finished Sixth overall, with Andrews team placing First.

While the swim team has been able to compete this season, there have been some new guidelines and UIL regulation changes. Due to the pandemic guidelines, UIL has restricted the number of advances from the top six places in every event to only the top four.

"This was a big adjustment I had to explain all season to the kids. Sixth Place wasn't going to get us anywhere," Swim Coach Randall Shaw said. "We have to make the Top 4, however in a normal year we would have qualified an entire team in multiple events."

Big Spring competes in a large district with nine teams. With the new guidelines, the team trained harder and took advantage of the extra time in the pool according to Coach Shaw. According to Coach Shaw, the times displayed at the Andrews Meet were the fastest the swim team has demonstrated in over 10 years.

"It feels that we have had a larger support and even more of an interest for the sport within Big Spring now that what there has been in the past," he said. "Not to say we did not have to overcome difficulties, there were many problems with Covid aside, but the kids did not let that stop them or use it as an excuse. A lot of the success comes with the experience that we now have on our team."

The swim team this year is comprised of all freshman and sophomores with one senior. The team has been swimming since as far back as elementary if not, at least, junior high. While the team may be young, they come with three to four year experiences.

"I have been able to move kids around this season and have kids in every event depending on what strategy we took each meet. That flexibility really makes for a well-rounded swimmer," Coach Shaw said. "We have a large number of our kids who we could put in any event, and they would score points for us."

Coach Shaw continued, "For this meet it was hard to tell the kids they did really well when only one kid advancing, but under normal circumstances all of them would have advanced. I can confidently say that this was the most successful season we had in Big Spring in the past decade. There is a lot of pride in our swim and dive program now that we can build on for the next coming seasons."

Bucs safety Winfield inactive for NFC championship game

By STEVE MEGARGEE

AP Sports Writer

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Tampa Bay Buccaneers safety Antoine Winfield Jr. won't play in Sunday's NFC championship game against the Green Bay Packers because of an ankle injury.

Winfield didn't practice Friday and had been listed as questionable on that day's injury report. This will be the first game the rookie second-round pick from Minnesota has missed all season.

While the Bucs (13-5) will be missing one of their starting defensive backs, the Packers (14-3) had better news regarding their secondary.

Green Bay starting cornerback Kevin King is active for Sunday's game after missing practice Friday with a back injury that had left him questionable.

The Packers had prepared for the possibility King might not be available by promoting cornerbacks Tramon Williams and KeiVarae Russell from the practice squad to the active roster for the NFC championship game.

Green Bay signed the 37-year-old Williams after the Baltimore Ravens released him on Monday. He previously played for the Packers from 2007-14 and 2018-19.

Other inactive players for the Bucs include quarterback Ryan Griffin, running back Ke'Shawn Vaughn, wide receiver Antonio Brown, tight end Anthony Auclair and defensive linemen Jeremiah Ledbetter and Khalil Davis.

Opening lead — ten of clubs.

In this deal from the 1987 European team championship, declarer took full advantage of the opposing bidding and a subtle slip by a defender to bring home a seemingly unmakeable slam. The deal occurred in the match between Germany and Turkey, and both North-South pairs succeeded in reaching the reasonable slam in spades.

When the Turks held the North-South cards, there was no opposing bidding. Faced with a blind lead, West chose a diamond, and that was that. Declarer lost only a heart and so scored 980 points.

At the other table, with a German pair North-South, the bidding went as shown. West's two-notrump overall was "unusual," showing length in both minors. It elicited a five-club bid from his partner sandwiched between cuebids by North and South. This steered West to the safe club lead, and it now appeared declarer would have to lose a heart and a diamond.

South, Uli Wenning, did not fancy his chances. West was certain to have the queen of diamonds, and East was a strong favorite to hold the king of hearts. But Wenning saw a glimmer of hope and proceeded accordingly.

After taking the club ace, he led a spade to the ace, ruffed a club, led another trump to the king and cashed the ace of diamonds. He then played a heart toward a dummy.

Without giving the matter much thought, West followed with the five, and this gave Wenning the opening he needed. Instead of playing the queen, he called for the four, and an unhappy East suddenly found himself saddled with the lead.

Since East had no more diamonds or spades, he either had to return a heart into the A-Q or yield a ruff-and-discard by leading a club. Either way, declarer's diamond loser was certain to disappear, allowing the Germans to salvage a tie on the deal.

me, we've been miscommunicating for years. Now I know him really well and he doesn't seem to know me at all. Upon closer observation, I don't think he was listening to me ever. He was just quietly waiting for his turn to speak. He retains nothing of me. He doesn't know the simplest of things -- my friends' names, my boss's name, my current priorities and likes... If I were a test, he'd fail."

Playing With Time

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The very nature of leadership is to head into the unknown while acting as though you do, in fact, know a lot. Were you to act otherwise, no one would follow. People are counting on you. Steel up. March forward.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The scene has become boring. Why? Is it because restraint was called for and is enacted? Or is it because no one has taken the initiative to face challenges with creativity? In the latter case, you're the one for the job.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). More is not better, and better is not more. You'll love how free and light you feel as life reflects this truth to you today. In one gesture, you will let go of several small burdens.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Every time you choose to do something without knowing how it will turn out, you're being brave. Joining the game, starting the project or investing in the venture are all possibilities that beckon your bravery.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Attraction causes you to say and do things you weren't expecting to. You'll make a commitment and keep it. The commitment doesn't seem that big. This is absolutely how big things start.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You will extend your tender heart outside yourself and empathize with those who need their pain to be seen and heard -- more comfortable than focusing on your own feelings. You'll get around to that when you're ready.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You can be doing everything the others are doing, all that's expected and more, and still somehow feel like you're off track. Take this intuitive nudge as an opportunity for deeper noticing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). People say, "You remind me of..." out of a desire to make a connection that brings you into their understanding. Hopefully you will find the attempt endearing even though you are so unique that comparisons are absurd.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There's no manual for what you're doing, but you'll go on anyway, solving one problem at a time. Eventually, the larger issues get solved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). We all have limited experience and perception. Your desire to see beyond what you could yesterday is more than most people will aspire to and will make all the difference in your experiences and soul growth.

sources on mute so that you may keep some semblance of control over your environment. Smart! Otherwise, the distractions would be endless!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Assumptions are the enemy of learning. The assumed knowledge fills the slot, making it impossible for new possibilities to reside there. There's genius in the mental flexibility to upend knowledge and playfully move it around.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 25). You'll partner with two types: those as adventurous and daring as you, and those who have an entirely different view from yours who can show you sides of life and various options that you wouldn't have seen on your own. Life is not a game, but there are competitive aspects at play that you'll do well to embrace. Libra and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 24, 31, 1, 4 and 16.

Among the most basic human needs is the need to be seen and heard. It sounds like you made some assumptions with your Taurus and you didn't check to make sure that you were on the same page. Perhaps on a deep level, (SET ITAL) feeling (END ITAL) understood was more important in those moments than actually (SET ITAL) being (END ITAL) understood. Now your expectations for communication are changing. But before you do anything drastic, ask yourself if there is anything about the soulful, chemical and bodily communication that is worth considering. Words, names and details are important, but not nearly as crucial as we typically make them. We are verbal creatures, but the grounded Taurus is very much in tune with rhythms that speak louder than words and intentions that are more meaningful than facts.

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Annie's Mailbox

Communicate Through Challenges

Dear Annie: My husband and I have been together since 2008 and married since 2011. We slept in the same bed, held hands and talked about everything in the beginning. Then, in 2013, he got a job in Iowa. I stayed home until my youngest went to college.

I joined him in September 2014. He wasn't the same man I fell in love with and married. Remember, I said we talked about everything. But he doesn't communicate with me anymore.

He's not cheating; he has never been a guy who would cheat on his significant other. His "friends" know more about him, his current issues and everything else long before I do.

I want my best friend and husband back. It seems like he goes out of his way to be anywhere but with me. -- Missing the Way It Was

Dear Missing: Your husband is still the same man, but it sounds as if he might be depressed. He could be angry or resentful toward you for not moving with him right when he got the job. Although this is not logical and staying with your son until he went to college was the right thing to do, he might need to express his feelings. The first step to help him is to communicate with him, but if he won't communicate with you, you have to seek the help of a professional therapist. There, you can get to the bottom of your changed relationship and get your best friend back. Marriage takes work, and the best kind of work is communication. Best of luck.

Dear Annie: Here is the issue: A couple we are close to -- and played cards with weekly before the quarantine -- wants to start playing cards again. We do not want to do so because all of us are in our late 60s with chronic health issues. The two of us feel that playing cards together could cause additional problems if we were to acquire COVID-19.

We are trying to be safe and believe that all of us handling the cards is not a smart idea. The other couple does not feel that way and cannot understand why we don't want to play. We have gotten to the point where it is placing some strain on our relationship. I know that they read your column, so could you please offer some advice? -- Quarantined and Stressed

Dear Quarantined and Stressed: Keep up the good work. You are correct to be cautious during this time, especially since you both have chronic health issues. Explain to your friends that it is not them who you don't want to see -- it's the virus you don't want to see.

Try and remember that this is temporary and you will hopefully be playing cards together very soon. Stay strong. I know it is a challenging time for all of us.

Today in History

Today is Monday, Jan. 25, the 25th day of 2021. There are 340 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 25, 1981, the 52 Americans held hostage by Iran for 444 days arrived in the United States.

On this date:

In 1533, England's King Henry VIII secretly married his second wife, Anne Boleyn, who later gave birth to Elizabeth I.

In 1759, Scottish poet Robert Burns was born in Alloway.

In 1915, America's first official transcontinental telephone call took place as Alexander Graham Bell, who was in New York, spoke to his former assistant, Thomas Watson, who was in San Francisco, over a line set up by American Telephone & Telegraph.

In 1924, the first Winter Olympic Games opened in Chamonix (shah-moh-NEE'), France.

In 1945, the World War II Battle of the Bulge ended as German forces were pushed back to their original positions. Grand Rapids, Michigan, became the first community to add fluoride to its public water supply.

In 1947, gangster Al Capone died in Miami Beach, Florida, at age 48.

In 1949, the first Emmy Awards, honoring local Los Angeles TV programs and talent, were presented at the Hollywood Athletic Club.

In 1959, American Airlines began Boeing 707 jet flights between New York and Los Angeles.

In 1971, Idi Amin seized power in Uganda by ousting President Milton Obote (oh-BOH'-tay) in a military coup.

In 2004, NASA's Opportunity rover zipped its first pictures of Mars to Earth, showing a surface smooth and dark red in some places, and strewn with fragmented slabs of light bedrock in others.

In 2017, President Donald Trump moved aggressively to tighten the nation's immigration controls, signing executive actions to jumpstart construction of his promised U.S.-Mexico border wall and cut federal grants for immigrant-protecting "sanctuary cities." Death claimed actor Mary Tyler Moore at age 80 and actor John Hurt at age 77.

In 2019, President Donald Trump's confidant Roger Stone was arrested by the FBI in a pre-dawn raid at his Florida home and charged with lying about his pursuit of Russian-hacked emails damaging to Hillary Clinton's 2016 election bid. (Stone was convicted in November 2019 on charges including lying to Congress and witness tampering; Trump commuted his 40-month prison sentence just days before Stone was due to report to prison in July 2020 and issued Stone a pardon in December of that year.)

Ten years ago: Pleading for unity in a newly divided government, President Barack Obama used his State of the Union address to implore Democrats and Republicans to rally behind his vision of economic revival, declaring: "We will move forward together or not at all." In Egypt, thousands of anti-government protesters clashed with police during a Tunisia-inspired demonstration to demand the end of President Hosni Mubarak's rule. A federal judge in New York sentenced Ahmed Ghailani (guh-LAHN'-ee), the first Guantanamo detainee to have a U.S. civilian trial, to life in prison for conspiring in the bombing of two U.S. embassies in Africa in 1998.

Five years ago: President Barack Obama said he would ban the use of solitary confinement for juvenile and low-level offenders in federal prisons, citing the potential for "devastating, lasting psychological consequences" from the use of the isolation as punishment. A Houston grand jury investigating undercover footage of Planned Parenthood found no wrongdoing by the abortion provider, and instead indicted anti-abortion activists for using fake driver's licenses when making the videos that targeted the handling of fetal tissue in clinics. (The charges were later dropped.)

One year ago: President Donald Trump's defense team opened its arguments at his Senate impeachment trial, casting the effort to remove him from office as a politically-motivated attempt to subvert the 2016 election and the upcoming 2020 contest. Canada, Australia and Malaysia each reported their first cases of the new coronavirus. The virus caused Lunar New Year festivities to be canceled across mainland China. LeBron James of the Los Angeles Lakers moved past former Laker Kobe Bryant for third place on the NBA's career scoring list.

Today's Birthdays: Country singer Claude Gray is 89. Actor Leigh Taylor-Young is 77. Actor Jenifer Lewis is 64. Country musician Mike Burch (River Road) is 55. R&B singer Kina is 52. Actor China Kantner is 50. Actor Ana Ortiz is 50. Drummer Joe Sirois
