

Bauer-Smith Low Bidders On Bridge

Commissioners Let Contract For New Bridge On Puerto Bay; Work To Start Soon

Bauer-Smith Dredging Company of Rockport and Port Lavaca was awarded the contract for construction of a new bridge over Puerto Bay Monday, when bids were opened on the project.

Their bid was $37,705.39. Only three bids were presented, Heldenfels Brothers of this place being the next lowest bidder, at $38,825.00. Austin Bridge Company put in a bid of $46,435.00.

Under the terms of the contract, work will start about the tenth of this month. The bridge proper will be 410 feet long with a fill of about the same length at each end. The first work will be done by a dredge building up the fills.

The contract calls for completion of the project within 60 working days.

Some of the preliminary work on the road leading to the new bridge has already been done and since the sale of the road bonds has made funds available, work on the roads will be pushed so as to have them complete by the time the bridge is completed.

The new road will give connection with the Rincon settlement, which has been practically cut off from communication with this place for the past several months, since the old Puerto Bay Causeway was condemned.

Oil Prospects Look Good For New Year

Aransas county's oil prospects for the year 1941 are bright, with the opening of one new field practically assured on the southeast of Rockport and another potential field opener nearing completion on the north.

The Gulfboard Oil Corporation's No. 1 well on state tract 239 is reported to be a producer and the opener of a new field, but work is still going forward on it and its status is not known generally.

The Humble Company's test in St. Charles Bay is nearing probable production, having passed the 7,200 foot level the first of the week. If it coincides with the Burnsdall wells about one mile to the south it will reach the level of about 7,800 feet.

A few miles further north Continental Oil Co., is reported to be past 9490 feet on their No. 3 well, while two or three wells are being completed in the McCampbell Field in the southern part of the county.

All in all the prospects for oil developments in the county are very encouraging.

PILOTING

Happy New Year!

We extend our good wishes to everyone of our readers in Rockport and throughout the land!

The year just closed brought many improvements to Rockport and we believe that the new year will see a continuance of progress, probably in greater proportions.

It is our belief that Rockport's winter tourist business is increasing rapidly. The improvements on the waterfront are no doubt largely responsible for this.

We hope 1941 will bring a large tourist hotel to Rockport, then we will begin to get the winter tourist business in a big way.

During the year 1940 over $121,000 was sent out of Rockport in Postoffice Money Orders, probably as much more was sent out by checks. A large part of this went to mail order houses for things needed by the people here. Other thousands were spent direct in other towns. Much of this money could have been spent right here at home and just think what it would mean to our business houses, and the extra wages they would have been unable to pay.

Hunting Season Closed Wednesday

Declared To Have Been Best Season On Record For Recent Years Despite Rains

What has been declared the best hunting season in history, at least during recent years of restricted shooting closed Wednesday. The last day's shooting was under par on account of weather conditions, yet quite a few ducks and geese were killed.

J. H. Mills, who operates the largest open hunting club at Lamar, stated that the kill this year for exceeded any season he had seen since coming here more than a dozen years ago, and that the number of hunters coming here was probably the largest of any season.

He declared that the rainy weather during the season interfered with hunting to a great extent and kept many hunters from coming here. Nevertheless many more ducks were killed than for many years, and altho heavy rains made it impossible to get into the goose territory at times several times as many geese were killed this year over last year.

Cafes enjoyed a good trade during the season and other kinds of business were greatly benefited.

Tourist Swarm Rockport Fishing Wharves

Rockport fishing wharves are proving to be a real attraction for winter tourists and every day many cars may be seen lining the driveways adjacent to the breakwater and the yacht harbor, with concrete-capped barriers and the railroad fishing pier.

The Pilot drove out to the pier Tuesday afternoon about 3:30 and counted about 30 cars and 50 people fishing with others in the cars.

Many of the cars bore out-of-the-state license plates. We noted cars from Kansas, Illinois, Oklahoma, Colorado, Missouri, Minnesota, Washington and California.

Sheepshead were the principal fish being caught and some of the fishermen had nice strings.

On Wednesday afternoon there were more than 100 people fishing, the large increase probably being due in part to the fact that it was a holiday. The weather was ideal for fishing but it was too warm and calm for sheepshead and not so many were caught.

The above does not represent by any means the number of people coming here to fish during the day, as they come and go all day long.

Col. Echols Made Brigadier General

Col. O. P. Echols, formerly stationed at Dodd Field, Dayton, Ohio, has been elevated to the rank of Brigadier General and is now stationed at Washington, D. C.

He is the son-in-law of Mrs. Louis F. Bailey, formerly of this place, who is now residing with her daughter in Washington.

Commissioner's Car Takes Dive Into Bay

Commissioner Tom DeForest is being accused of trying to make a pontoon of his car, since it ran into the bay at Fulton last week. Stopping his car near Kouquette & Wendell's fish and oyster house, he went in and conversed a few minutes and on returning to his car he found it had taken a nose dive into the bay.

He had neglected to set the brakes and it had rolled off the embankment of its own accord. The car was damaged but little, except being saturated with salt water.

No Information Yet On Boat Contracts

A. M. Westergard, of the Westergard Boat Works, returned last Friday from Washington, where he had been to submit a bid on two boats for the Navy, but so far the successful bidders have not been announced by the Navy Department.

Westergard and other officials of the boat works are optimistic and confident that they will be awarded contracts for the boats on which they entered bids. They are showing their confidence by going ahead with their plans and making improvements to their plant so that they will be in shape to get the "go" order.

Postoffice Does Big Christmas Business

The local postoffice experienced a record-breaking business during the past Christmas season, and the quarter ending Dec. 31 showed quite a heavy increase over the same period last year.

Both incoming and outgoing mail was exceptionally heavy, especially heavy, especially during the four or five days just prior to Christmas, and stamp sales mounted to unexpected heights.

Comparative figures furnished by Miss Ethel Friend, postmaster, for the last three-month period give some idea of the volume of business handled, and are as follows: For 1940, the receipts were $2,325.79; For 1939, $1,956.26, an increase of $369.43. The money order business is not included.

The money order business for the year 1940 amounted to $121,637.47, being $5,143.26 over the year 1939, when it amounted to $116,496.21.

Considering the large volume of business handled during the Christmas season, very good service was maintained even with the handicap of having one clerk out with the flu.

R. P. McCracken Dies At Floresville

R. P. McCracken of Floresville died at his home there Sunday. He was one of the influential citizens of that place and grandfather of Bob McCracken of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Ralph Finckley, who is attending school at Alice, spent the Christmas holidays here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Finckley. Mr. and Mrs. Finckley and son Lawrence accompanied him back to Alice, Monday.

J. H. Mills Mother Dies At Illinois Home

Mrs. Nora B. Mills, mother of Commissioner J. H. Mills of Lamar, died at her home at Ridge Farm, Illinois, last Friday evening at 7 o'clock, her funeral being held on Monday, December 30.

She resided at Lamar with her son for the past three years, leaving for Illinois last June to be with her daughter, and had been enjoying good health. She was 82 years old.

Besides her son here, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Walthal, who resides in Illinois. Mr. Mills was unable to attend the funeral, but Mrs. Mills was present.

She was known to many here and was held in high esteem.

Fire Department Wishes Traffic Rules Observed

Sunday afternoon at about 2 o'clock the Rockport Fire Department answered an alarm. A vacant house near Fulton was afire. However, when the truck got there the house was so near gone that nothing could be done except keep the flames from spreading.

However, the truck was hindered considerably by traffic. One car in particular got in front of the truck and slowed it down. That was an absolute violation of the law, an extremely dangerous thing to do, and a breach of highway etiquette. In case of an emergency, such a thing might cause many lives to be lost and hundreds of dollars worth of property. Therefore, the Fire Department asks the cooperation of the people of Rockport in complying with the traffic laws during fires. When you hear a siren coming your way, pull over to the side of the road and wait until all trucks are safely past. Do not follow the truck at a distance of less than 100 yards and drive at a moderate speed.

If you must chase the fire truck, don't drive like you were going to a fire!

Jack Sanders Makes Unusual Kill

Jack Sanders, out duck hunting a few days ago, found that he had made an unusual kill. When he took stock of his ducks, he found one of a very dark color with a vari-colored bill and sensed that it was something out of the ordinary. Not being able to identify the specie he asked Mrs. Jack Hagar, local authority on birds, to classify it.

Mrs. Hagar identified it as a White-Winged Scoper, and stated that it was the first on record to have been killed on the Gulf Coast. It breeds in Alaska and Canada, principally, but sometimes as far south as North Dakota, but winters on the upper coasts of the Atlantic and Pacific.

Mr. Sanders presented the duck to Mr. J. H. Mills, who is having it mounted and will add it to his collection.

Hearing To Be Held on Bombing Range

War Department Will Hear Those Who Object To Bombing Range On Matagorda

A hearing will be held at Victoria on January 10 on the Matagorda bombing and machine gun range which is contemplated by the government, along the Gulf of Mexico from San Luis Pass to Aransas Pass.

According to a map furnished the Pilot, the area covered will extend from the south end of Galveston Island to Port Aransas, covering Matagorda Peninsula and Island and the Eastern shore of St. Joseph's Island, and extending out into the gulf for from 10 to 30 miles.

Fishing in the gulf will no doubt be interfered with, but bay fishing will probably not be affected.

The notice of the hearing given by the War Department appears below:

Notice Of Public Hearing

A public hearing will be held by the undersigned in the COUNTY COURTHOUSE at Victoria, TEXAS, beginning at 10:00 a.m. Friday, January 10, 1941, for their views on regulations governing the use of a portion of Matagorda Island and Peninsula, and the waters adjacent thereto, as a bombing range for the United States Army Air Corps.

The portion of Matagorda Peninsula and Island which will be used for this purpose is the same as that condemned by the United States on a recent date. The adjacent waters consist of a strip along the Gulf extending from San Luis Pass to Aransas Pass from the shoreline Gulfward about 10 nautical miles, except in the portion between the Colorado River and a point about 5 miles southwest of Panther Point, where the strip will be 30 miles wide. The area also includes a strip about 1 mile wide, on the bay side of Matagorda Peninsula and Island, extending from the mouth of the Colorado River to a point about 5 miles southwest of Panther Point. Any portion of this area may be used by the Army for small arms and bombing practice.

It is probable that, weather permitting, the ranges will be used from 7:00 a. m. until 5:00 p. m. daily. Vessels entering the area may come under fire accidentally. Any large vessels entering this area will be visible from the air. However, small fishing craft cannot be seen from high altitudes, and it will be dangerous for them to enter the areas during the time when the ranges are in use.

All interested parties who may be affected are invited to be represented at the above time and place. They will be given an opportunity to express their views.

Oral statements will be heard, but for accuracy of record all important facts and arguments should be submitted in writing, in quadruplicate, as the record of the hearing will be forwarded for consideration by the War Department. Written statements may be handed to the undersigned at the hearing or mailed to him beforehand.

Mrs. Thomerson Appointed As Sheriff

Chief Deputy Under Former Sheriff Is Appointed To Fill Two-Year Term

Mrs. Alice Thomerson was appointed to serve two years as sheriff, tax assessor and collector by the county commissioners Wednesday morning, filling the vacancy caused by the death of J. A. Brundrett, former sheriff, and sheriff-elect for the ensuing two-year term.

The selection was made after several ballots were taken by the commissioners in an effort to make a decision from among the names of several applicants, it is reported. Mrs. Thomerson did not make a formal application for the place.

Mrs. Thomerson has a thorough knowledge of the duties of the office, having served under Sheriff Brundrett during his entire tenure in office for 26 years, and also served three years under H. T. Bailey, Brundrett's predecessor in office. She has had charge of the office with its many details and it was largely through her efficiency that the office has maintained an enviable record and received commendation from the State Comptroller in the past. She made her bond and was sworn in Wednesday afternoon by J. M. Sparks, county clerk. At the time of going to press she had not made her appointment of deputies.

Mrs. Dorothy Baldwin

News was received here of the death of Mrs. Dorothy Baldwin of Pueblo, Colo., on Christmas Day. She was the wife of H. L. Baldwin of this place but they had been separated for the past eight months. She is also survived by a daughter.

County-Precinct Officers Sworn In Wednesday

All county and precinct officers except the sheriff, tax assessor and collector, were sworn in Wednesday morning and their bonds were filed. The oaths were administered by County Clerk, J. M. Sparks.

Those taking the oath were B. S. Fox, county judge, Emory Spencer, county attorney, D. R. Scrivner, county treasurer, County Commissioners Ted Little, precinct 1, L. V. McLester, precinct 2, J. H. Mills, precinct 3 and Tom De Forest, precinct 4. Little is the only one of the above group serving his first term.

Other new officers to be sworn in were Wm. B. Priddy, justice-of-the-peace, succeeding Joe Smith; and George M. Harrell, constable, succeeding Dave Caskin.

Soon after taking office for the new term the commissioner's court met in special session to name some one to fill the office of Sheriff, tax assessor and collector.

Rudolph Woellert Dies At Poth

Funeral services for Rudolph J. Woellert of Poth were held at his home there Monday morning, followed by Requiem High Mass at the Catholic church and burial in the Poth cemetery. He was president of the First National Bank of Poth and for a number of years a leading citizen of that place. He was 62 years old.

He was the father of W. H. Woellert, whose wife is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Bracht of this place. He was a frequent visitor to Rockport and known by many here. Mrs. Bracht and daughter, Miss Genevieve, attended the funeral.

Mrs. John Haynes In Corpus Hospital

Mrs. John Haynes is reported to be recovering nicely in the Fred Robers Memorial Hospital after an operation a few days ago. Her many friends hope she will have a speedy and complete recovery.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Simultaneously, Chancellor Hitler and Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli renounce gold and extol the fruits of the spirit. Preparing to return to France soon, the famous dress-maker finds that Americans are too much given to money-grubbing to appreciate the beautiful art of couture. "The Paris designer is free," she says, but here in America "in creating a costume you must think about cost." So she's going back to Paris where art is unfettered and nobody worries about money.

Molyneux fled, to make gowns in London, but Lucien Lelong, the new Judge Landis of the French fashion industry, remains in the service of art—not money of course. The latter implication might suggest that Paris as a continuing world style center is somehow geared into Chancellor Hitler's jug-handled economy, and that, of course is a rather gauche idea. In Herr Hitler's new order, it's art for art's sake.

Soon after the occupation of Paris, Mme. Schiaparelli arrived here to begin a national lecture tour. We seemed to be suffering from much misapprehension about France. It was business as usual in Paris, and anyone who fancied that New York might become the world style center had another thought coming. However, she reserved her apostrophe of art against money for the last.

Addressing the Junior League of Los Angeles recently, she said:

"All of us in Paris are impressed by the generosity of American men regarding their women. American men have a world-wide reputation for the money they spend on women. "I say bravo to you! Go right ahead."

I had an idea that the French felt that way a few years ago when I was privileged to see some of the inner workings of Lanvin's establishment in Paris, to talk to the vendeuses and witness the deference to a Texas oil magnate, when he came in to help his wife choose a gown.

Mme. Schiaparelli lived five years in New York. Her daughter, Marisa, was born in her Ninth street house in Greenwich Village. That was before the days of her fame and opulence, and she thought about money a great deal in those days.

Taking an unheated flat in Patchin place, a dingy little nubb-in of a street off Jefferson Market court, she found a $20 bill on the floor. It was a good omen. Other money came and she returned to a garret in Paris, to write poetry. A sweater design brought her into her career. For one who scorns money she is a masterful and diligent business woman, her huge establishment turning out around 10,000 garments a year at prices up to $5,000. Of a distinguished Italian family of astronomers and scholars, she has been described by Edna Le Fevre as "a woman nobody can know, absorbed with books on metaphysics, aesthetics, and philosophy."

ELMAN B. MYERS, inventor of the new "jet expulsion" motor which is expected vastly to increase the range, speed and fighting effectiveness of war planes, was a Newburgh, N. Y., boy who just happened to be a self-starter and finisher. Without benefit of any academic seminars, he became a hay-loft radio inventor. This, incidentally, was in the Bronx where there weren't any haylofts; but make it a cellar and the result is the same.

After 32 years he appears with his critically important invention. He got a job with a wireless station in Sacramento, and was soon throwing his voice farther than anybody else in those parts. He later worked with Lee De Forrest and by 1932 had brought through a "cold light" radio tube. He started work on his jet expulsion or "rocket" motor four years ago. Engineers say it may increase the speed of fighting planes by 200 miles an hour.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

Washington, D. C.
WITCH HUNT?

Has the witch hunt actually begun? I haven't heard it, but several letters and telegrams inform me that a conspicuous radio news commentator is warning the public to "watch carefully" members of the keep-out-of-war committees because they are "appeasers" and "are trying to make us afraid."

Gen. Bob Wood, who was honored by congress for his work in helping to build the Panama canal, and brought back from an important post in France in the AEF to spark the American war production efforts as quartermaster general, is being put on the pan. Col. Charles Lindbergh, who brought home the greatest honors American aviation ever knew, and who first jolted American and British complacency by revealing the tremendous hidden powers of German air armament, is now under the wand of the professional witch finders. Even his lovely, fearless quietly philosophical wife has taken a dirty dig or two from such professional breast-beating Boadicea's as Dorothy Thompson.

What goes on here? Most of the people who want to dress up Uncle Sam as something more canny than his old role as the world's prize fat boy with the bag of candy in a world of Dead End urchins, were awake long before these tardy tom-tom beaters, witch doctors and Sioux Sun Dancers were even aware that there was a vast, sinister and growing danger in the world.

Some of them had been hammering at the inexcusable indolence of England, the equivocal horse trading of France and, above all, the spineless inactivity of America, long before the "cloud no bigger than a man's hand" became a thunderhead and began to belch lightning. All of them are, and have long been, for all-out defense of this country. All are against hysterical dissipation of it. Who speaks for America—they or their half-crazed critics?

If they were so much more nearly right before, maybe they are more nearly right now, when they question whether we should rush headlong into a gun fight with our gun not even loaded and, as a first act, give away our guns.

Our greatest lack right now is Will Rogers, who said: "America never lost a war or won a conference." We can wonder what he would say about "Let's take the silly fool dollar mark from aid to Britain."

From how many billions have we taken the "silly fool dollar mark" for foreigners it would be hard to say. We took them off from the bill we footed for the last World war to a present total, with interest of about 14 billions.

BIG FOUR

The four-man control of industrial mobilization, consisting of the secretaries of war and navy, Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Hillman, may do some good, but it is not, as some have said, the equivalent of the War Industries board plan that worked in 1918 to provide the fastest re-armament ever recorded by a great nation. It violates an essential and basic principle of that plan. It takes nothing from experience. It is an experiment.

There are four great and insistent demands in time of war. They are those of the army, the navy, the allies, if any, and greater than these and just as important, the needs of civilian population. Heads of the army and navy are under heavy responsibilities for two of those needs. With the best intention in the world it is only human nature for them to grab and fight each for their own — to seek in extreme cases even monopoly control of all the best sources and supplies of material, manufacturing, storage and transportation facilities, power and labor.

That isn't a guess. That happened early in World War I, and continued to happen until it was stopped by the War Industries board. We are rushing into a program of production just as great. To have that happen without any regulation is a very bad thing. It creates unnecessary shortages to the great prejudice not only of all the people but the armament program itself. It unnecessarily tangles and disrupts the whole industrial machine. It multiplies cost, reduces speed and makes doubly difficult the eventual shift back to a peace economy.

For that reason and many others, the director of mobilization should not have to work under the control of the army and navy as he must do if he is one of a committee of four in which a division of opinion would result either in a deadlock or a domination by the purchasing departments.

Our experience in the World war and the experience in every other country indicates that the director of mobilization should be independent of any statutory purchasing agencies. It is his part of the job to co-ordinate all purchasing programs with each other to prevent confusion, delay, waste and loss; but that is only part of his job and not even the most important part. The other part is to co-ordinate, organize, speed, aid and supervise the whole industrial structure for maximum efficiency and production.

'More Aid to Great Britain' Problem Faces Opening Sessions of Congress; Tempo of Attacks on Italy Stepped Up; Report 'Heavy' British Shipping Losses

77TH CONGRESS: Washington Gloomy

As the new congress comes into being, it meets in a Washington that is marked by a mood far from optimism. There is public talk, which may be nothing more, that Britain has only a 90-day grace period before Hitler strikes hard—and that Britain is far from well prepared and American "aid" has fallen down.

The first job of the new congress will be to stir the public, industry and labor out of that lethargy. Efforts already have begun in speeches by Defense Chief William Knudsen, and Secretaries Stimson and Hull.

The topic of all is the same: It is much later than you think. They hope by painting the defense picture in its true colors to convince workers, employees and the general public that there must be an immediate all-out arms production and all other considerations—labor's right and profits—must step aside until the job is done.

New Board

One step in this direction was appointment by President Roosevelt of a new super-production board on defense. It has been given complete executive authority—all the constitutional allows, according to the President—to act in the name of the government. The national advisory defense council which has been carrying on the work up until this time has been pure that, advisory. It lacked authority.

The new board will have authority, probably more than most people expect, and will crack down. Knudsen has been named chairman and Sidney Hillman, C. I. O. vice president and enemy of John L. Lewis, is vice chairman. War Secretary Stimson and Navy Secretary Knox are the other members.

Job Ahead

The job is monumental. Army housing is 60 per cent behind schedule with only 300,000 soldiers on active duty, out of a contemplated 1,400,000. Not a single airplane ordered since congress voted money last July has been delivered. If any tanks have been delivered it is a secret. When it was decided to build one munitions plant and work on construction more than 40 hours a week, that was "news."

Most startling of all was the lack of realization on the part of too many that in this war those nations which sensed their danger too late have reached their war potentialities too late—or not at all.

CHANGED MAN: New U. S. Envoy

In 1936, British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden asked the League of Nations to vote an embargo against Italy because the Duce invaded Ethiopia. The man who led the fight against such a proposal was a Frenchman, Pierre Laval, at the moment French premier. Laval supported Italy and kept the League's action from being unanimous.

Eden's battle at Geneva aroused the enmity of Mussolini and so bitter was the exchange that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, then in the beginning of his appeasement drive, forced Eden to resign. In Eden's place came Lord Halifax, a member of the Cliveden set and supporter of appeasement. He laid the groundwork for the pact of Munich, where Czechoslovakia was sold down the river and Hitler gained the idea all Europe would bow to his whim.

But times change and sometimes men change, too. Lord Halifax now is described as one of the most determined men in England in support of the war effort. The death of Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, gives Lord Halifax a new task. He steps down from the foreign ministry, where he directed ambassadors, to become an ambassador himself, being assigned to Washington.

Back into the foreign ministry in London goes Anthony Eden, who would take personal as well as patriotic delight in knocking out Mussolini.

Pierre Laval? He's out of the French cabinet at this time, but German influence is seeking to have him replaced. Until such can be brought to pass, he will live in Paris, under protection of the Nazi invaders.

WAR ON ITALY: Tempo Increases

Fearful of being too optimistic, but still hopefully, the eyes of the democratic nations were turned on Italy. Reverses for the Fascist legions were reported by the Greeks in Albania and by the British in Egypt. There were continued reports of falling morale on the home front.

If Italy should crack it would be a serious blow to the Axis. Even an

BENITO MUSSOLINI
He heard a few excuses.

Axis is no stronger than its weakest spoke.

The forward march of the killed Greek Evzones in Albania appeared to be slowed down. There were desperate counter-attacks by the Italians and some towns were retaken. But the Greeks were certain it was just a momentary halt and the march north could be resumed.

From Africa, Field Marshal Rodolfo Graziani reported to the Duce on why his Egyptian campaign had been such a dismal failure; and why after making a 75-mile advance into British territory he halted for three months and then suffered a serious defeat.

He said he had not received mechanical equipment from home which had been promised to him. Even before the British attacked and drove him far back into Libya, he reported, he knew of their plans. He denied the campaign against him was a surprise and said that so many Italians, reportedly as high as 80,000, were lost because they chose to fight into the "last spasm" rather than retreat.

But excuses don't win battles, and good reason or no, the Libyan forces had lost all their gains and were in a desperate plight to save the remnants of their army. The British indicated that an even more extensive blow was being aimed and hinted much of Libya may be in their hands by spring.

Even the British navy mocked the Italians. In broad daylight, with flags flying and openly inviting attack, a squadron of the royal navy swept through the Straits of Otranto and into the Adriatic, Mussolini's private lake. It was an open dare to the Italians to come out and fight, but no Fascist man-o'-war appeared. So the British crossed over to Valona, Albanian port used by Mussolini's forces, and turned their guns on the harbors. Then they sailed out into the Mediterranean again.

Spies Executed

On Armistice Day, November 11, the Royal Air Force called at the Italian naval base at Taranto. In the subsequent informalities, London says bombs were dropped that sank or crippled half Italy's navy. Mussolini gave his answer to that. One Italian naval officer and a civilian were executed and 22 others jailed, including a woman who was given a life term. Spies, said the Fascists. They were accused of giving information that helped the British locate the vessels.

Washington, D. C.
BIBLICAL DESTROYERS

There were two reasons for that grin on the face of North Dakota's Gov. John Moses when he left the White House the other day.

One was an assurance that the President would personally investigate why North Dakota has not received any of the new defense plants. Moses argued that his state was so far inland that it was ideal for defense industries. Roosevelt promised to look into the matter immediately.

The other reason was an anecdote the President told Moses "about a famous namesake of yours." It happened when Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration.

He was asked to select from a list of American naval heroes, the name of a new destroyer. He picked "Israel," in honor of a U. S. captain who distinguished himself in the war against the Barbary Coast pirates in 1815.

Some time later, Roosevelt was asked to approve the personnel of this destroyer. And while looking over the list of personnel, another aide entered with another personnel list for a destroyer named "Moses."

"This coincidence struck me as very funny," Roosevelt related, "and I leaned back and laughed. The young naval officer looked perturbed and inquired, 'Aren't those the right crews for those ships—Moses and Israel?' And then I laughed some more, because heading the lists of officers were the names of Murphy and O'Reilly."

Note—Moses, a Democrat from a rock-ribbed G. O. P. state, is the tallest governor in the country—6 feet 4 inches.

(Editor's Note—The Washington Merry-Go-Round's famous Brass Ring this week is awarded to the unsung allies of the Greek army, the peasants and mountaineers of Albania.)

Much tribute has been paid to the gallant Greek army and royal air force for winning one of this war's most crucial battles, in that wildest and most remote corner of Europe—Albania.

But little has been written about the Albanian peasants and mountaineers who have provided the Greeks with the most amazing intelligence service of this war, so accurate that the Greeks have known down to the last detail just how many Italians were located behind each hill, where their guns were placed, and the exact nature of their fortifications.

An army without eyes is helpless. And the Albanians, who have never forgotten the manner in which Mussolini drove their queen and her day-old son out of the country two years ago, have contributed materially to the surprising succession of Greek victories.

STATE DEPARTMENT WIDOWS

There was not much Christmas joy this year in the homes of 124 "blitzkrieg widows" of the American diplomatic service. Their husband diplomats are still on the job, but the wives are prevented by official regulations from joining them.

From Warsaw, from Berlin, from Copenhagen, from Oslo, from Brussels, from the Hague, following the spread of the war, these "blitzkrieg widows" came trekking home—on government order—with children by the hand.

A few capitals, such as Moscow and Helsinki, have now permitted wives to rejoin their husbands, but meanwhile, a new warning has gone out affecting citizens in the Far East, and the ranks of the widows are swelling still further.

This separation is much more than a sentimental problem. It creates a strain on the budget of each family, for they are obliged to maintain two establishments, and the salaries of the foreign service are not gauged to meet living costs in this country. The state department has had so much grief from the "widows" that a move is being considered to lift the ban and allow them to return to their husbands' posts.

CAPITAL CHAFF

The state department is getting a heavy volume of mail from all parts of the country urging strong U. S. assistance to Greece.

Josephus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico, is the only ambassador appointed by Roosevelt in 1933 who still remains at the same post.

Experts of the house migrant investigating committee estimate that at least 4,000,000 job-hunters are constantly on the move in the country.

Some American women have switched to cotton stockings as a protest against Japan, yet in the first nine months of this year, the United States imported $66,000,000 worth of silk from Japan.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Two former editors of the "American News," daily paper of the 1918 U. S. army of occupation at Coblenz, Germany, are now on active duty at the war department. They are Col. Fred J. Mueller and Lieut.-Col. E. B. McMahon, both assigned to the public relations staff.

Everybody Likes This Smart Apron

THIS design was so extremely popular, when it first appeared, that it is repeated now, for those who might have missed it the first time. Of course you can easily see why everybody likes it. Design No. 8824 slips on over the head and ties in a jiffy—no buttons, no troublesome cross-straps. It's nice and slim at the waistline, is guaranteed to stay put on the shoulders, and covers your frock thoroughly, above and below! Send for it right away, because your home work will seem much lighter and pleasanter when you've half a dozen such aprons.

Choose cheery percale prints, gay gingham checks, or colorful polka dot calico, and trim the edges with ric-rac braid. It's so easy—you can finish it in a few hours.

Pattern No. 8824 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 2 3/4 yards of 35-inch material with out nap; 7 1/2 yards of braid. Send order to:

NEW YEAR'S DAY

January 1, marking the beginning of the year has been observed as a public holiday for many centuries, certainly in Rome since the reformation of the calendar by Julius Caesar in the century before Christ.

Owing to the confusion in dates which has resulted from the imperfections of various calendars, which caused skipping of dates at various times, New Year's Day may be said to be merely an arbitrary designation. As late as 1752, the adoption of the Gregorian calendar by England and the American Colonies caused a skip of 11 days.

However, regardless of the day designated as New Year's at countries, it has been generally observed as a holiday.

The Romans celebrated it with processions, abandonment of litigation and strife, exchanging of visits and of gifts, feasting and merry-making. Early fathers of the Christian church did not approve of these festivities, but recommended that the day be devoted to meditation, scripture reading and works of charity.

But about the fourth century, when December 25 had been agreed upon for the observance of Christ's nativity, New Year's Day, falling one week later, began to assume a sacred character as the anniversary of the circumcision, and as such it still figures in the calendars of certain branches of the church.

Other religious faiths, such as the Jewish and Mohammedan have their own calendars, with distinctive holidays and festivals, in which their New Year's Day has a corresponding significance to that of Christendom.

QUEER CUSTOMS

Among the curious customs which have influenced mankind, one of the most interesting and often amusing is that system of religious prohibitions known as taboo. This system attained its fullest and most complicated development among the native island inhabitants of Polynesia, from Hawaii to New Zealand, but its traces may be discovered in most parts of the world, even among supposedly civilized peoples.

The word "taboo" in its ordinary sense means set apart, or sacred, and the persons or things so set apart, were usually designated by kings, chiefs and priests.

Certain periods of religious ceremonies were marked by strict taboos, during which all fires and fights were extinguished, no canoe was launched, no one bathed, no dog might bark or pig grunt, no cock crow. The animals were caused to observe the taboos by having their mouths tied up.

In New Zealand the places where great chiefs had rested were taboo or sacred, and fences were placed around the spots, so no one might tread thereon.

It was believed that as a penalty for the violation of certain taboos the offender would swell up and die, but the priests were able to prevent such dire consequences by performing certain mystical ceremonies, for a suitable fee. Violations of a taboo were often punished by death or at least by a sort of judicial robbery, whereby the unlucky violator was despoiled of all his property.

These are only a few of the innumerable strange customs associated with the taboo and its attendant superstitions.

DAIRYING PROFITS

Successful dairy farming depends upon proper feeding, breeding, herd management, expert marketing and judicious purchase of supplies. Needless to say, nutrition of the cow is vital. To produce plentifully, the cow must be well fed.

Proteins are an essential nutrient, and usually lacking in sufficient amounts in home grown feeds. Soybean oil meal furnishes excellent protein to balance grain mixtures for dairy cows and growing calves, and repeated agricultural experiment station tests have demonstrated that it is an economical and efficient protein source for this purpose. This meal is very palatable, definitely satisfactory to feed and not too laxative even in large amounts.

In a recent quantity experiment by nutritional experts as much as 18 pounds a day of soybean oil meal was fed to a cow for an extended period with no adverse results.

On the other hand, raw soybeans, whole or ground, contain too much oil, and when fed at high levels they have a definitely adverse effect upon butter besides being less palatable. When ground they deteriorate rapidly, the oil becoming rancid.

The many advantages of soybean oil meal in animal feeding have been so thoroughly demonstrated that the demand for it has had a phenomenal growth, increasing from 21,000 tons to more than 1,000,000 tons annually in the last 10 years. Many reputable brands of livestock feeds containing this valuable protein ingredient are on the market and have been found eminently satisfactory.

A check on the birth records in Louisiana revealed that the following names had been given to children: Castor Oil, Delirious, Evil, Muddle, Pickle, Pill, Rat, Rasal, Sausage and Louse.

MORE HEART DISEASE

The increasing part played by heart disease in incapacitating and shortening the lives of Americans has become a matter of major concern among members of the medical profession and others. The death rate from heart ailments increased from about 165 to nearly 270 per 100,000 of population in the last 25 years.

In the United States nearly 350,000 persons die of heart disease every year, it being by far the most common single cause of death. Statistics gathered by insurance companies and medical organizations indicate that this malady does its greatest damage during the period known as the prime of life.

Some leading specialists attribute the increasing prevalence of heart disease and the concurrent malady, hardening of the arteries, to the hurry, worry and high pressure of modern life, with its increased emotional pace. One authority declares:

"It is the unhappy condition of the mind caused by the unfulfillment of desires, conflicts, thwarted ambitions and man's efforts to escape from his environment and personal limitations that prepare the way for heart disease", adding that tea, coffee, tobacco and alcohol may make the heart more sensitive to emotional struggles.

He suggested not too strenuous outdoor exercise and games with congenial companions as one important aid in treating or averting heart strains caused by emotional stresses.

Intact After Bomb Threat

Charleston Navy Yard, Boston, which was protected by a cordon of more than 100 police and a detachment of marines after a navy official had received information that a workman would attempt to carry a time bomb and dynamite into the navy yard in a lunchbox, when the gates were opened for the day shift. A thorough search revealed nothing whatever.

The National Defense Advisory Commission today (Monday, December 30, 1940) released a pamphlet describing the functions and duties of the commission with a summary of its activities for the past six months.

The pamphlet was issued in answer to numerous requests for a publication describing the work of the Commission, and the part it takes in the national defense program.

The first section of "The National Defense Advisory Commission: Duties and Functions", gives brief definitions of the duties of each of the seven Commissioners, and also of the duties of the Defense Housing Coordinator, the Coordinator of National Defense Purchases, the Administrator of Export Control, the Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Relations between the American Republics, and the Division of State and Local Cooperation.

The second section is a division-by-division summary of the Commission's activities since it was established on May 28, 1940, with a breakdown of the major contract categories, the amounts of each of the major defense items contracted for, and present deliveries on these items.

CHURCH NOTES

Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Brothers, missionaries to Nigeria, Africa, were visitors to the First Baptist church Sunday morning, Rev. Brothers preaching at the regular sermon period, and Mrs. Brothers giving a short lecture on customs and conditions in that country.

She displayed various articles of wearing apparel and other things including a grotesque idol, such as is worshipped by the natives.

Rev. Brothers told of the work being done there by the Baptist denomination and also of the great need for expansion of the work.

Birthday Greetings!

Only a day separates the birthdays of two very prominent men, although widely separated by years and miles. Dr. Francis E. Townsend will celebrate his seventy-fourth birthday on December 13. King George VI of England will celebrate his forty-fifth birthday on December 14. This is the second birthday which King George will celebrate under wartime conditions.

Notice to Bidders

Sealed proposals, addressed to the Mayor of the City of Rockport, Texas, for the construction of a complete Gas System, including supply line and distribution system and all appurtenances thereto in accordance with the plans and specifications and instruction to bidders prepared by, and which may be obtained from Horace J. Wilson, Consulting Engineer, 130 West Woodlawn Ave., San Antonio, Texas, or which may be seen at the office of the City Secretary in Rockport, Texas, will be received in the office of the City Secretary in Rockport, Texas, until Three P. M. o'clock on the 6th day of January 1941 and then publicly opened and read. The City will have available for this contract approximately $50,000.00 in gas revenue bonds of said City. Bidders may receive a copy of complete plans and specifications, bid blanks and instruction to bidders from the Engineers upon the deposit with the Engineers of $25.00; $10.00 of which will be refunded if same are returned to the City with a bona fide bid prior to the letting.

The Contractor may be paid for this work in gas revenue bonds, as the work progresses, upon estimates prepared by the Engineer and approved by the City.

The successful bidder will be required to pay for the City approximately $5,000.00 for the cost of Engineering and incidentals, upon estimates approved by the City, during the course of construction, for which will be reimbursed in bonds of par and accrued interest.

The successful bidder will be required to enter into a contract with the City of Rockport, Texas, and to furnish a performance bond, written by an approved Surety Company, in an amount not less than $50,000 (Fifty Thousand Dollars).

A cashier's check or certified check, payable without recourse to the order of the City of Rockport, Texas, or an acceptable proposal bond, in an amount not less than five per cent (5) of the largest possible total bid, including consideration of alternates, must accompany each bid as a guarantee that if awarded the contract the bidder will promptly enter into a contract and execute bond in the form provided, as outlined in the specifications and instructions to bidders.

Attention is called to the fact that not less than the prevailing rates of wage as established by the City of Rockport, Texas, (Owner), and as set forth in the specifications must be paid on this project.

The award of the contract shall be conditioned upon funds being made available, and the City of Rockport, Texas, (Owner), shall have the right to hold the bids for a period of thirty (30) days from the date of bid opening, and no bid may be withdrawn within thirty (30) days after the date on which bids are opened.

The Owner reserves the right to reject any and all bids or waive any and all formalities. J. E. MOORE, Mayor City of Rockport, Texas

Practice firing by anti-aircraft guns of a National Guard unit at Yaphank, N. Y., was postponed three days until the duck-hunting season ended on December 15. Hunters had requested the postponement because the guns were frightening the ducks away.

To express its disapproval of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's attitude toward the administration's foreign policy, the city council of Brownwood, Tex., changed the name of Lindbergh avenue in that town to Corrigan street.

Forrest C. Donnell, Republican governor-elect of Missouri, a few days ago submitted a revised statement of his campaign expenses, admitting that he had forgotten to include a few items in his official list of expenditures. The added amount was $7.94 and his total campaign expense was $124.

All Too Soon
The couple was married and traveled to the lakes for their honeymoon. As soon as they arrived they took a boat out upon the crystal clear water.
The following morning the bride's mother got a postcard which read:
"Arrived safely. Grand row before supper."
"My!" she muttered. "I didn't think they'd begin quarreling so soon."

OF COURSE YOU LIKE CANDY
(See Recipes Below)

Making candy is really outside the realm of general cooking, but with a little guidance, even an amateur can work real magic with sugar and water. Simply by changing temperature and the method of handling, a wide variety of fondants, fudges, and hard candies can be made.

Utensils for Making Candy.
Saucepans should have broad bottoms, and should be large enough to allow for "boiling up." The inside surface should be smooth, because rough spots may cause candies to stick and burn.

Measuring cups—use standard measuring cups for successful results; accurate measurements are essential.

Spoons and spatulas—wooden spoons are desirable for candy making because they do not become uncomfortably hot, nor does the wooden spoon handle cut into one's hand during beating. Use standard table-spoons and teaspoons for measuring. A medium-sized spatula is a help in scraping candy from kettles, and lifting candy from the pan.

Baking sheets, platters and pans—ordinary cookie sheets provide a good surface for pouring hard candies; large platters may be used for taffy, which is to be taken out and pulled, or for fondant which is to be beaten. A marble slab from an old-fashioned marble-topped table or bureau makes an excellent smooth, level surface for pouring candies.

Candy thermometer—a thermometer is essential in order to obtain uniform and good results in making candy.

Candies are classified as "creamy candies," such as fondant or fudge, and as "taffies" and "hard" candies, like nut brittle and lollipops.

In making creamy candies two rules must be observed: cook the candy to a definite temperature, and cool to room temperature before you begin to beat.

For Inexpensive Gifts.
Why not send copies of these 4 practical and attractive cook books to your friends? Singly or in sets they make charming and useful gifts for a bride-to-be, or for any of your home-keeping friends. Recipes have been tested and approved in Miss Howe's own kitchen, and you'll find them easy-to-use, reliable, and good.

Brazilian Molasses Balls.
(Makes 24 small balls)
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/4 cup hot water
3/4 cup light molasses
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vinegar
1/4 cup butter
3 pints popped corn
1 pint Brazil nuts (sliced)

Dissolve sugar in hot water. Add molasses, salt and vinegar and cook to soft crack stage (270 degrees). Remove from heat, and add butter. Stir syrup slowly into popped corn and Brazil nuts. Mix well, and shape into balls.

(Makes 1 1/2 dozen)
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1 cup water
1/2 teaspoon oil of cloves or oil of cinnamon
Red or green coloring

Put sugar, syrup, and water in a sauce pan. Cook, stirring just until the sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking over very low heat, to 310 degrees on a candy thermometer. Wash down the crystals that form during cooking, using cheese cloth which has been wrapped around a fork or spoon. When the candy reaches 310 degrees, remove from heat, add coloring and color and mix very quickly. Pour into small buttered muffin pans, filling them only 1/4-inch deep. As soon as the lollipops begin to set (which will take only a few minutes) loosen them from sides of pan and turn out on table top. Insert the pointed end of a small skewer into the side of each lollipop, working it in carefully to avoid breaking the candy. It will be necessary to work quickly.

chocolate together in the top of a double boiler. Remove from flame and add walnut meats and marshmallows. Stir gently until thoroughly mixed. Drop by teaspoonfuls on wax paper. Serve when cool.

Taffy Apples.
Place a meat skewer in end of each apple. Cook together 1 cup sugar, 1 cup white corn syrup, 1/4 cup butter, and 1 cup coffee cream until mixture reaches firm ball stage (246 degrees). Stir carefully to avoid scorching. Remove from flame and dip each apple into mixture and then in cold water.

Butterscotch Nut Marshmallows.
1 cup light brown sugar
1/2 cup cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 pound marshmallows
3/4 cup nut meats (finely chopped)

Place brown sugar, cream, vanilla extract, and salt in a saucepan. Cook slowly, stirring frequently, to the soft ball stage (236 degrees). Remove from flame and place saucepan over hot water to keep mixture from cooling. Coat marshmallows with the butterscotch mixture and then roll immediately in the finely chopped nut meats. Place on a buttered platter until cold.

Red and Green Popcorn Balls.
(Makes 10 balls)
2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
1 1/2 cups water
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Red or green liquid coloring
3 quarts popped corn

Combine sugar, corn syrup and water, and cook in a saucepan, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking until the temperature 290 degrees is reached, or until a few drops of the syrup becomes brittle when dropped into cold water. Add vanilla extract and a few drops of red or green coloring. Stir sufficiently to mix the coloring evenly. Pour the cooked syrup over the popped corn, which has been sprinkled with salt; stir well, and form into balls with the hands, using little pressure.

Chocolate Fudge.
(Makes 36 1 1/4-inch squares)
2 tablespoons butter
3 cups sugar
1 cup milk
2 squares chocolate (2 ounces) (cut in pieces)
1/4 cup honey
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Nutmeats if desired

Melt butter in a saucepan. Add sugar and milk, and mix well. Bring to a boil, then cover and cook with the lid on for about 3 minutes. Remove lid, add chocolate and honey, and cook to soft ball stage (236 degrees). Remove from heat, and add vinegar and vanilla. Cool to room temperature, and beat until the fudge is thick and creamy. Add nut meats if desired, and spread in well buttered pan.

Milk Chocolate Marshmallow Candy
1/2 pound broken milk chocolate
1 1-ounce square bitter chocolate
1/4 cup walnut meats (broken)
8 marshmallows, (cut in halves)
Melt milk chocolate and bitter

Tasty Sauce
A cup of grated cheese added to the white sauce that is served with cauliflower is very good.

Strongest Fiber
The strongest fiber in the world is olona, Touchardia latifolia, grown only in the Hawaiian islands, says Colliers. Owing to its remarkable durability and a tensile strength of about eight times that of hemp, fishing nets made of olona are so tough that they are passed on to and are used by generation after generation.

Hidden Ways

By FREDERIC F. VAN DE WATER

"Maybe not," Cochrane answered dreamily, "but he changed his name to Ferriter, during the war."

"King George—Gawd bless 'im—changed his too," I jeered.

The innocent face before me beamed.

"He changed it to Ferriter," my caller droned. "It used to be Horstman."

I stared. Cochrane's expression was as guileless as a pan of milk.

"I give up," I said at last. "I'm not good at riddles. What's the answer?"

"I don't know," the reporter told me gently. "I hoped that, maybe, we could find one together. And now I'm all muddled up. If it's any of my business, what was your date with the pure young man?"

"Are you completely goofy?" I asked. "What man?"

"The guy with the sneeze expression and the cologne," Cochrane went on. "He said he was waiting to see you."

I looked at him hard.

"Waiting? Where?"

My astonishment seemed to comfort Cochrane. He beamed.

"In here," he said. "It must have been Everett, though I've never had a closeup of him before. He blew a minute after I came. Seemed pretty anxious to go, too."

"Who let him in?" I began and then remembered I had told Mrs. Shaw to admit any man who called. Again in my mind, the swarm of half-uttered questions stung and flew.

"Search me," Cochrane answered, "but he let himself out before I could learn who he was. You weren't expecting a call from Mr. Ferriter-Horstman?"

"I was not," I snapped and turning opened the bureau drawer. I didn't hear the question Cochrane asked. My face must have been strange for his own changed when I looked at him again.

"He came here," I said slowly, "to search this room. He's been through the bureau."

"Did he get what he was after?" Cochrane asked.

"I don't," I answered, "even know what he was looking for."

CHAPTER XI

Cochrane said gently: "You might check if he's taken anything."

By the mess in the bureau drawer, my visitor had not been a cool and careful seeker, or perhaps the reporter had come in before he could reorder the jumble of handkerchiefs, neckties and the like.

"He's left me my razor," I told Cochrane, "and that's what I need most right now. If there's any more confusion you want to spread, you can trot along to the bathroom with me."

In his cherubic face, his eyes were bright.

"You don't let business interfere with your pleasure, laddie?"

"Not this time," I snapped, and he grinned.

"Go ahead," he waved at the door. "I'll just sit here and think."

He was staring as though the opposite wall were not there when I returned.

"Why should he want to rob you?" he asked.

"Why," I threw back at him, "should his brother want to kill me? and while I dressed, I told him of my duel with Lyon. Cochrane lit a cigarette and watched the smoke he blew. He did not speak, until I bent before the mirror to tie my tie. Then he said in mild complaint:

"I wish crime could be a little more orderly. We pick up bits here and scraps there and, put them all together, they spell nothing."

I was pulled two ways. I wanted to stay and sift the day's events with Jerry in the hope of finding coherence in their madness. I wondered, as I fidgeted and looked at my watch, if anything but the promise of this evening could possibly make me willing to leave.

"Why," Cochrane asked, narrowed-eyed, "should one of the Horstman-Ferriter boys try to kill you and the other toss your room so ineptly?"

"You tell me," I said. "I've got ten minutes more, at most."

"Then," he answered, getting up, "we better spend it elsewhere. Let's go, laddie."

"Go where?"

"We'll call on your friend Everett. Anyone in such beautiful evening clothes ought to be able to get me into the Morello. So far, the outside lobby has been my farthest north. Yoicks, my son."

"Wait a minute. We go to see Everett. I tell him I think he robbed me. He says he didn't. And that'll be that. How far does it get us?"

"Just about as far as you'd get by charging Lyon with felonious assault. But if the jittery gets in some alone and we can get to him—well, I think he'll break down. He looks like the sort that can't take it. And laddie, when I'm crowded, I can deal it."

"He had another nervous collapse or whatever, this noon," I told my companion as we pulled on our coats. "He's not built for a murderer."

"Those that aren't built for it suffer worst when they do it," Cochrane replied with an angelic smile and led the way downstairs.

We hailed a taxi and drove toward the Morello. Beside me, Cochrane smoked in silence for some minutes before he asked with the sleepy air he used when things were most important:

"I don't suppose you've had time, during your toilet, to give a thought to the fact that Everett used to be Horstman?"

"This nightmare," I told him, "moves too fast for me to think much of any one thing. What are you brooding on now?"

"Well," he said, "Horstman could be a German name, eh?"

I nodded.

He went on, softly: "And it was a German voice you heard, over the phone, just before Blackbeard was killed?"

He saw that he had pricked me and beamed.

"You don't think," I asked angrily, "that I don't know Everett's voice? You really can't think that he has the guts to—"

"If you knew," Cochrane broke in, "the number and variety of the things I can think, you'd be dismayed and grieved. Anyway, you might chew on that a little, during your wooing of the lovely heiress."

"Listen," I began and glared at him.

He smiled sweetly.

"I don't want to hear a word," he answered. "Here we are at the scene of the crime."

Waiters, the night doorman, was in attendance on a shiny town car when our cab drew up at the Morello and Cochrane followed me into the foyer, unchallenged. Fineman was on the switchboard. He seemed too dazzled at sight of me in formal clothes to notice the reporter and, at my request, telephoned the Ferriter apartment.

"Nobody home," he said, flicking down the switch. "The old boy, him that was pinched after the killing, went out twenty minutes ago."

"I wanted to see his brother."

Everett's absence cheered me. Apparently, the furies had found another job and my way upstairs to the Paget apartment was clear, at last.

"Him?" asked Fineman. "He hasn't shown since I came on. I'll tell him, if he comes."

"Do that," I answered and turned back to Cochrane.

He grinned at my news.

"Well," he said, "we tried anyway. Good night to you, Prince Charming. Have a nice opera. I think I'll nose around a bit. Not in here, where I pollute the patrician atmosphere and run a chance of getting heaved out on my neck, but outside. I'll be seeing you, laddie."

"I feel like a pup, walking out on you now," I said.

"I certainly hope you do," Cochrane answered cheerfully.

Miss Agatha and Allegra were in the living room. There was coffee on the table beside them and its fragrance for an instant made me aware that I had missed another meal. Then Allegra smiled and I forgot prosaic food. She was very fair in her black evening dress with the frosty coronet in her hair; so lovely of body and face, that I looked quickly away and endured the old lady's humorous glare.

"David," Miss Agatha asked, "do you always appear everywhere exactly on time with the look of one who has run the last hundred yards?"

"I always run at least the last hundred when I'm going to see you," I told her.

Allegra giggled. Miss Agatha retorted:

"My dear boy, I've been a whatstone on which many men have sharpened their gallantry for use on others. You don't impress me. Go on to your opera. It's Wagner and it serves you both right."

I held the glittering, fur-collared coat in which Allegra wrapped herself. The fragrance of her hair made me slightly dizzy. She went to her aunt and, bending, kissed her. I saw the old hands catch one of hers and hold it tightly, passionately, for an instant. There was pathos in that. There was none in Miss Agatha's brisk voice.

"Allegra, will you remember that David Mallory starts his work again in just thirteen hours? What havoc you make of other men's nights is between you and your God. David is my employee. He's got to do a second chapter tomorrow as good as the first. Don't keep him out till dawn."

The girl laughed.

"Agatha," she promised, "you'll be surprised."

"I've lived with you young hellions too long for that," said the old lady. The tenderness in her eyes did not reach her voice until we turned to leave the room.

"Take good care of her, David," she called after us.

CHAPTER XII

Most of the first act of "Die Walkuere" went over my head, which, perhaps, left me even with most of the audience. I was stirred more by the girl beside me than by the fat persons on the stage. She watched their posturings and, whenever I dared, I watched her.

"Didn't it get you at all?"

She was flushed and her eyes were bright. I rose to let our seat neighbors pass into the aisle.

"It got too much of me," I told her. "Shall we get out?"

"If you had an opera hat," she said. "I'd know you were itching to wear it in the lobby with the rest of the show-offs. Me, I'd rather sit still. It takes time for me to get my breath after Ring music. Let's just talk."

I said: "I'd rather, too. Will you pick up where we were interrupted? Why hasn't Everett an alibi?"

"Aren't you," she asked, "the most persistent person?" Her smile faded and her face grew troubled. She frowned and picked her words:

"Measured by time, he hasn't. If you can stretch your imagination to believe him a murderer, he might have done it."

"Then why—" I began, but she took away my question.

"Why did I clear him? Because it was idiotic to dream—it's still crazy to think—that Everett was the killer. When Captain Shannon began checking up, Agatha said I had been with Everett and I let it go at that. I had been, too, but only for less than five minutes before you came in. How long he had been in our apartment before that, I don't know. He usually spends most of the afternoon in the workroom. He has a latchkey."

Her eyes were dark with worry. I said, trying for lightness:

"There are too many latchkeys." I knew from the way she caught her breath that the jest had hurt. She sat for a moment, pleading her program with nervous fingers and I felt she was trying to control her voice. It was quiet when she said at last:

"Grove is with Ione tonight."

I could find no answer for a moment. She went on, as though she were afraid of silence:

"They probably are out together right now. They always are, when he has one of these 'business engagements' that keeps him from coming home."

She turned and faced me, like a child who is sorry for a fault.

"Maybe that's not fair. Maybe she loves him. It's just that—well, I'm jealous, I suppose. Grove and I have been very close since we were little children and now—we're not. That's not all. This murder seems to have turned everyone's world—but Agatha's—upside down. I'm frightened for Grove. He's walking deep into something. And I'm—afraid."

"Sure," I said, "I know how you feel."

The thick voice I had heard over the telephone; the still unexplained disappearance of the murderer; Grove turning on the light in the Ferriter apartment; my struggle in the dark basement hallway; Everett's furtive raid on my room; my duel with his brother—these were blown about by the strong wind of music. Siegmund and his rival were fighting with swords on the stage. When the clumsy contest ended I found my palms clammy and my breath scant. I might at this moment be lying like the slain Hundung. I looked at Allegra. She had made life important. I was sweating as the curtain fell.

Allegra, too, had felt the music's spell. She watched me mop my face and, I think, read there something more than the effect of an operatic tragedy. When our neighbors had gone again into the lobby, she asked:

"Just what is your—your interest in this mess?"

I could tell from her eyes and the sound of her words that she had kept that question a long while. I tried to gain time.

"I don't quite know what you mean."

She brushed that away with a quick movement of her hands.

"Mister," she said with hollow gaiety, "you wouldn't trifle with a poor girl, would you? You aren't just a spectator. You're in this up to your neck. I can feel it. Why?"

I said slowly:

"That's a hard one. Because if I told you the truth; if I said that my interest in a murderer and a murderer was chiefly—almost entirely—the hope that I might help you, you wouldn't believe me."

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

LUCILLE BALL cut a three-storied wedding cake for her friends and tossed her bouquet to the ladies who attended the reception she and Desn Arnaz gave before departing for Hollywood and more work at the RKO Radio studios. It wasn't exactly a wedding bouquet, since the reception was what might be called delayed.

Their elopement startled practically everybody; the general opinion had been that their romance was one of those things that are cooked up for the sake of sweet publicity. It's reported that even the studio was surprised. You can see the honeymooning couple in "Too Many Girls."

These publicity stunts—"angles" is the name for them—are the bane of a press agent's life. For example, if a movie star is arriving in New York it's up to her press agent to think up something that will sound reasonable enough to land the story of her coming, with photographs, on the front pages of the newspapers. Sometimes the stories are true, of course—but it's usually the synthetic ones that get the most space.

When Linda Darnell arrived in New York recently she got a fine press reception. She announced to reporters that she was allergic to rabbits, cats, tobacco, horses, feathers and baking powder—she rides a horse in her latest picture, "Chad Hanna," so that got the name of the picture into the story too. Well, Linda's a beautiful girl, and maybe she really is allergic to cats, horses, baking powder, etc.

"Andy Hardy" has reached the age where he has a private secretary; in the new Hardy picture, Mickey Rooney graduates from high school and the secretary enters his life. In this picture Kathryn Grayson, a 16-year-old singer, makes her film debut.

James Roosevelt's "Pot o' Gold" finally went before the cameras the other day, after seven delays. First the director, George Marshall, was ill; then, when James Stewart could work, Paulette Goddard couldn't. Finally Roosevelt himself was called up by the national defense emergency. Even now, when the picture has finally got under way, Stewart is doing retakes at another studio, and they have to shoot around him.

The other day Henry Fonda jumped off a pullman car while clad in pajamas and a dressing gown, and sat down in a mud puddle, during a heavy rain. When he rose he heaved a sigh of relief. A series of seven comedy accidents which he'd suffered for "The Lady Eve" was over, and he was free to go ahead and make love to Barbara Stanwyck according to the script.

He'd stumbled over Miss Stanwyck's legs twice, crashed into waiters carrying trays, fallen over a sofa into a platter of food, been drenched by (1) roast beef gravy and (2) hot coffee, and pulled some heavy porters down on himself. All for the sake of amusing us.

Rudy Vallee has emerged as a triple threat man on his Thursday program over the NBC red network. Not only does he sing and lead the orchestra, but he also does a lot of verbal sparring with John Barrymore, who is now a permanent feature of the program. We don't know whether Barrymore has been coaching Vallee, but Rudy's histrionic abilities certainly have improved. It takes plenty of ability to stand up to Barrymore, but Vallee seems to have more than held his own.

ODDS AND ENDS—The nation's handsome ice man is working as a ship's officer in Paramount's "New York Town," along with Mary Martin, Fred McMurray, Bob Preston and Lynne Overman. Ted Barnick won that title in a national contest, and a role in a picture was part of his victory.

Leslie Howard has written friends that he's in England to stay—maybe not for the duration of the war, but long enough so that he can't accept commitments here.

Twentieth Century-Fox has signed Diana Barrymore, John's daughter—so she and he will be working at the same studio.

LONG SLIP-STITCH IN PROTECTOR EDGE • SHORT STITCHES IN BLANKET

FASTEN WITH SLIP-STITCH BASTING

IT WAS a bride of ten years who reminded me of blanket protectors. I say bride because her home still has the immaculate freshness of a bride's house. Her wool blankets have never been washed or cleaned, yet their soft light colorings show no sign of soil. She brought out some long pieces of cotton material; "I baste these over the tops of the blankets," she said "and change them ever few weeks."

I thought of some dainty bed linens that I had seen all trimmed in flower sprigged cotton print. Why not make flowered blanket protectors to harmonize with blanket colorings? Here is one that would go with either rose or blue. It is easy to hide basting stitches that fasten it temporarily to the blanket by slipping them along in the pink or blue binding as shown. One length of material as long as the width of the blanket will make a pair of these protectors. A half yard extra of the flowered material will face a matching pair of pillow cases.

You will also find some other ideas for trimming pillow cases in SEWING Book 2. This booklet has been one of the most popular in the series as it not only contains complete directions for many gift and bazaar novelties but shows how to make 42 different embroidery stitches and five ways to darn and repair fabrics. AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Add peeled, quartered apples when you roast lamb or veal. The apples add a delicious flavor and give a soft topping to the roast.

Finger tips of gloves mend much easier if a thimble is slipped into the finger to be mended.

In all but baked dishes, flavoring extracts should be added when the food is cool, otherwise much of the flavoring will vanish in steam.

More food value is preserved when a vegetable is baked in its skin than when it is steamed or boiled.

Two or three minutes after you have started your gas or electric oven, open the door for a second or two, to let out the damp air. The oven will then heat in a much shorter time.

To keep cheese fresh for some time, cover it over with a thin coating of paraffin. When ready to serve remove the paraffin.

Fruit cake makes a delicious pudding if served with a sauce.

Orange juice as a substitute for vinegar will give a new and deliciously piquant flavor to French dressing. Select the thin-skinned yellow oranges when, as here, the amount of juice is the first consideration. These are always the juicier.

Always remove the wrappings from fresh meats before storing in the refrigerator.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

As we enter into the new year 1941, we take this opportunity to express our sincere appreciation to our business men and citizens generally for their support and co-operation during the past year in our efforts to put Rockport in the front ranks as a resort city and as a most ideal place for those who are seeking a place where health abounds and where the surroundings are such as to make life pleasant and worthwhile to make their homes. At the same time we promise to strive during the new year to do a better job of representing Rockport than ever before.

To this end we crave the help and co-operation of every citizen and business man of Rockport. It has been truly said that a newspaper is just what the business men of the town make it and we realize that we cannot do the best possible job for Rockport without the co-operation of our business men.

Rockport and all of Aransas County is due for much development during the next few years . . . things far beyond our dreams may happen . . . so it behooves all of us to be on our toes and ready to grasp the opportunities as they come and make the most out of them.

Let's all pull together . . . support our local business concerns . . . our churches, schools chamber of commerce, the Fire Department and all organizations which are working for the betterment of our town and county.

Again let us extend to one and all our wishes for a

HAPPY NEW YEAR
