State 4-H Club Wild Life Camp Opens Here Sunday Second Sub-Chaser Launched With Ceremony July 20

PILOTING

Almest invariably conversation with a visitor here will bring forth the comment that Rockport, Lamar and Fulton form the choice vacation spot on the Texas coast. Backing this up are the many "No Vacancy" signs that greet you as you drive along Lamar and Live Oak Peninsulas. Thousand's tourists every summer can't be wrong

Here the vacationist has a wid if he doesn't want to just idle it away in the cool breezes. And further, there is an enjoyab'e va cation to be had here to fit almost any kind of pocket book. Ther are free fishing piers where on can really catch fish. There is n finer bathing beach than the one here, and it is free. There are clear cool cottages available at reasonable rates. Despite the great demand, tourist court operators here do not take advantage of visitors on price.

Aluminum Drive Going Over Successfully

Citizens of Aransas county are responding splendidly to the government's call for old aluminum, Judge B. S. Fox, who is county chairman of the drive, said this week. He stated that a number of individual contributions had been made and that chairmen of the various groups were gathering their contributions and would bring them in soon.

"We are informed that the response of the public is exceeding expectations over all the nation, and we hope Aransas county will not fall behind," the county chairman stated.

Those having aluminum to contribute may either turn it over to a group chairman, or may bring it by the court house and place it in a container constructed at the foot of the flag pole in the yard.

I was a little late at City hall in New York city one morning because we encountered some pretty heavy showers, which always slow up driving. I was happy to see my friend, Mr. David Dubinsky, amid a number of familiar faces. The girls who modeled the clothes and the girls who sewed in the labels were all as pretty as could be.

These labels have a real significance. They guarantee that labor conditions are good and tell every woman in the United States that she is wearing a dress designed and manufactured in New York city, which today claims to be the fashion center of the world. Mrs. Dorothy Anderson will be the executive director of the New York Dress institute and I am sure that she will successfully promote the wearing of these dresses. Those shown us ranged in price from $1.95 to $295. I was interested in the speed with which the girls sewed in the labels, and could see that this day was one of real excitement for them. May it also be a day which inaugurates a program providing more work for many people under better working conditions.

The Russian Bear, no matter what the communiques might say, was obviously putting up a hard fight before the advancing German mechanized forces, and the British, who had taken the quick defeat of Ruswho faced us, were all turned over sia as a foregone conclusion were beginning to cheer.

Churchill, who had been through three previous milder stages of hailing Russia as a companion in arms, finally and very bluntly told the house of commons "of course Russia is an ally of Britain."

One of the signs that the Reds' delense of their homeland was vigorous and not without military merit came from an official admission on the part of Germany's high command that the Nazi armies had hurled back a considerable counter-attack Communique "solvers" naturally saw in this admission proof that the Russian armies were actually fighting, and battling to some purpose in reactions to both points were unfavorable, though a majority of those questioned reported themselves "undecided" and "preferring to hear the debate.'

The question had broadly resolved itself into how large an army the U. S. should have, and how long it

Clue to Robbery Mystery CLEVELAND .- A soiled handkerchief knotted around six marbles was the clew that solved the great burglary mystery at the Friendly Gas Service station, which has been looted three times in the past few weeks.

Albert Foldauer, the attendant, found the handkerchief on the morning following the third burglary. During the day he noticed a 10year-old boy nervously loitering about the station. When Foldauer walked up to him with the handkerchief, the boy began to cry. He admitted the handkerchief was his and that he and five other boys, ranging in age from 8 to 11, had been robbing the station. Bottles of pop and pennies from the station desk was all that was ever taken.

What this might be remained hidden, though British statements seemed to hint that Japan might be contemplating a move into Indotechnique which observers in this China.

A secondary guess was that Japan might be planning a "token" assault on Russia's east coast-Siberia, perhaps to attempt to close the port of Vladivostok-name famous in the Japanese-Russian war at the turn of the century.

The quitting cabinet is the one which put Soviet Russia into the Rome-Berlin axis, and also, strangely enough, into a neutrality accord with Russia.

There was little that could be said surely about the situation, some holding that the cabinet resignation meant that Japan's whole foreign policy would be reoriented in view of the German-Russian war.

Whether this would mean that the next government would be more pro-German, or whether Japan was getting ready to withdraw from all European commitments could hardly be told.

Certain it was that in Tokyo was a little group of Nazis who were said to have dominated the last cabinet, and to have been urging the strongest possible intimidation of America in the Pacific, in order to occupy the United States so strongly with the West coast that aid to Britain might be minimized.

The German press, in its previous references to this country, had been relatively mild. On the contrary, the papers were now vieing with each other to use strong language about President Roosevelt. The President, said one paper, "is

It's called "Cowboy Joe" temporarily, and Glenn Ford plays opposite her. She'd made a name for herself as a singer and dancer on the Broadway stage before she went to Hollywood, and her nine "Blondie" comedies have made one for her in Hollywood.

The office of Heinrich Himmler, chief of Nazi SS men, is as authentic a reproduction in Warner Bros.' "Underground" as following actual photographs could make it. Himmler does not permit photos of his office to be released: however. Kurt Schmidt, technical adviser on "Underground." made some when he was in favor with the SS head, and smuggled them out of the country when he escaped two years ago. The film shows Himmler's dreaded office for the first time.

With the exception of a few minor weekly cast additions, all the regular roles on the new "Hap Hazard" radio series, the summer replacement for "Fibber McGee and Molly," have been assigned. It stars Ransom Sherman, and features the singing of Edna O'Lell and Billy Mills' orchestra. Nowadays people in radio have begun to take these summer replacement shows seriously. Best Fishing, Swimming and Boating on the Texas Coast

Your Pleasure is our business, and upon the service we render depends future visits from you, and we are always ready to do everything possible to make your stay with us the most enjoyable you have ever had on the Texas Coast. Let your wishes or needs be known. We'll do our best to please! As an added courtesy we are co-operating with the Rockport Pilot in bringing this newspaper to our guests each week. On this page, and elsewhere in the paper, you will find information that will be of assistance to you in making all your vacation hours count, including suggestions on where to go and what to do.

Rockport, Fulton, Lamar and adjacent areas along the 15-mile coastline of Live Oak and Lamar Peninsulas form the most ideal "family playground" on the Texas Coast. Here stretches fifteen miles of tree-lined beaches and natural bauty that comes from blending of skies, water and trees, bathed in a semi-tropic sunshine and tempered by cooling Gulf breezes. Here one can enjoy the activity of fishing, boating and swimming, or just loaf in an Eden-like atmosphere, so different from the usual highly commercialized tourist resort.

1941, the same being the 1st day of September A. D. 1941, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 26th day of June A. D. 1941, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 2108, wherein Bessie Gardner is Plaintiff, and Cheerful Gardner is Defendant, and a brief statement of plaintiff's cause of action, being as follows:

Plaintiff alleges she has been a bona fide resident of Texas for more than one year and a resident of Aransas County, more 'han six months prior to filing suit herein; alleging as grounds for divorce, cruel treatment, failure to support, excessive drinking on the part of defendant, and failure of the defendant to maintain a home. Plaintiff alleges further that there were no children born of the marriage, stating further that the treatment of defendant toward her generally renders their living together insupportable.

Herein Fail Not but have you before said Court, at its next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Rockport, Texas, On this 26th day of June A. D. 1011.

Oil boomtowns exist today only in the movies. The old-time "gusher" wells are gone forever.

In the early days, as long as oil flowed, the boomtowns flourished. But soon the wells failed and the booms collapsed, carrying with them the income and security of those who had depended on them.

Today, through a sound program of conserving oil and gas, hundreds of Texas communities are enjoying a permanent type of petroleum development. Furthermore, because of conservation, we have the largest oil reserves in the world, one of our greatest assets for National Defense.

Oil now builds stable communities. It provides assured tax revenues and greater ultimate tax returns than were ever possible in boomtown days. And every citizen benefits from the income oil creates.

Conservation not only protects Texas oil resources. It also assures for many years the prosperity which oil brings to every community where it is found.

ing a medical examination, isn't he? That's right-and what's more he is passing it.

But what in the world does that have to do with owning an electric company?

It's this way:

The man is applying for life insurance. And when he becomes a policy owner he will automatically become a part owner of some electric company. The same thing would be true if he were depositing money in a bank. For everyone who has a bank account or a life insurance policy is part owner of some electric company. How is that?

Because the money you put in the bank, or buy a life insurance policy with, is invested in various businesses, including electric companies.

This makes you one of the millions of people who have a personal stake in the electric companies-an extra "plus" benefit to you from a business operation which has not only steadily improved your electric service, but has also succeeded in reducing your electric rate about 50% in the past 10 to 15 years.

And it is the aim of the people who have accomplished these things -- the employees of your electric companyto keep on bringing you more and more of the benefits of electricity at less and less cost.

path today. Haven't you heard about Buck Hart?"

"Heard of it at Evans' store. Some of the boys crowded me a little bit." "My advice is for you to light out." The editor shook his composing-stick at the cattleman. "Damn quick. Before the boys talk this over too much."

"I expect that's good medicine," Terry admitted. "I'll be going presently. What do you know about this Hart killing? Is there any evidence about who did it?"

"Assassin unknown." Garvey stopped talking in headlines and banged a table excitedly with his fist. "Goddlemighty, man! Don't worry about who killed Hart, but "Better go home and think that about who is going to kill Calhoun Terry if you don't get a jump on you. "It's not quite as bad as that, Horace," the ranch manager said. "Lee and his friends have said their little piece for today, I reckon. But this killing of Buck Hart disturbs me. I'll not say he didn't have it coming. He was a proven thief, even if a rustler's court and jury did turn him loose. But it's bad medicine just the same. I don't know who did it. He was a bully, and plenty of people would have liked to see him dead. The point is that the big ranches will be blamed for this. Trouble will come of it."

"They'll be rightly blamed, in my opinion," Garvey said tartly. "But no use going into that. You know where the Gazette stands in this controversy between the settlers and the big cattlemen. It's for the people." He brushed that aside with an impatient gesture. "I'm thinking about you, Cal. You're too bull-headed. Some low-down scoundrel will get you from the brush one of these days if you're not careful." "I don't think so," Terry replied

Queer Marriages

People have been married in submarines, on mountain peaks, with handcuffs on, in jail, and one man even married his housekeeper in his first wife's tomb.

An invitation to "stew in your own juice" was contained in an advertisement that appeared recently in a Chicago newspaper. It read: "Wanted: couple to get married in 26,000 gallons of diluted cherry juice at Cherry Festival. Marriage license, ring, and wedding present." There were scores of applicants. Two years ago a couple tried to get married while jumping by parachute, but the difficulty was to keep them and the clergyman together so that the responses could be heard. After many attempts it was reluctantly abandoned.

Circumnavigation as Done By Young Naval Officer

A young naval officer whose marks in navigation had not been all that might have been desired, was set to "shooting the sun" to determine the ship's position. The trance of the store. We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy It. It gives us the most priceless feeling In the world, the feeling of being adequately prepared.

• When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confldence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets-shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

er was Lee Hart, a heavy-set, bowlegged man of about forty. His brother Nate was sheriff of the county. All the Harts had been for a long time enemies of Calhoun Terry. As Terry bought a bill of goods, apparently ignoring those who watched him, the deeper current of his mind was busy with the resentment beating against him almost like something tangible. Calhoun had lived too long outdoors in a wild country not to have that sixth sense of danger close and immediate. He asked for a case of cartridges for a Winchester. Evans got the cardboard box and put it with the other supplies. From the shadowed darkness back of the big drum stove a voice came cold as a wind blowing over a glacier. "Going hunting again, Terry?"

Calhoun picked out the significant word in the query. "Again?" he asked, stressing the syllables. "Why, yes, that's what I said."

There was both mockery and defiance in Jeff Brand's jeering voice. "Don't tell us they didn't let you in on the killing of Buck Hart?" Terry looked at the man with hard intentness. "Is Buck Hart dead?" "You know damn well he's dead." "Take care, Brand," the ranch manager warned. Brand laughed hardily. Reckless lights gleamed in his eyes. "You're one of the big moguls now, aren't you? They wouldn't murder Buck without yore say-so, would they?" "Who killed him?"

"Hell, I'm not giving you information. Not none. You don't need any. Your friends the big cattlemen killed him, because he was in the way." "How do you know? Were there any witnesses?" In Brand's voice was a rustle of dry sarcasm. "Not likely. Their work isn't as raw as that. But they did it

-by hired deputy." Terry's answer rang out sharp and clear. "I don't believe it. Buck had private enemies. He was a man that made them." Lee Hart bowlegged forward from the door. "Sure he had private enemies," the heavy-set man broke in harshly. "You done said it, Terry. One of them might have plugged him in the back. But he got his orders from above." "Buck was shot from behind,"

Calhoun said, his inflection making a question of the statement. "Drygulched from the brush."

Hart crowded on, the heat of anger rising in him. "Maybe by one of them enemies you've mentioned,

It was an ugly little place, bleak and sundried.

"The big cattlemen are bull-headed enough to let us know Buck was rubbed out as a warning to the rest of us."

When Calhoun spoke there was a slurring drawl in his speech. Through the slow drag of the words a challenge lifted. "Come clean, Roan, and say yore piece. Are you meanin' that I had anything to do with this?"

Time stood still while Alford made up his mind.

"I'm not claiming that," Alford said at last, the sulky words coming thickly. He had been a friend of Calhoun Terry's father in pioneer during the long moment pefore he spoke. "But I say your friends were in it, by God."

"No," Terry disagreed. "They wouldn't do that. If they wanted to get rid of a rustler they would hang him openly."

Lee Hart lifted a hand with a violent gesture.

"Meanin' that Buck was a rustler?" he exploded. "Meaning what I said and no more. Don't put words in my mouth, Lee. I never was in it," Calhoun said. "You're barking up the wrong tree. If I ever want to kill a man I'll tell him so face to face." He turned, with arrogant contempt, and settled with Evans for the supplies he had bought. He pushed between Alford and Turley and walked out of the store. They watched him go, a man strong and virile, too sure of himself to look back and make certain that one of those he had infuriated would not shoot him in the back.

CHAPTER II

Terry put his purchase. in the saddlebags. He showed no haste, no hint that he considered himself in danger. When he had finished he stepped back to the sidewalk and sauntered down the street.

He passed through the courthouse grounds to the opposite side of the square and walked into the office of the Logan County Gazette. Nobody was in the front office, but he found the editor, Horace Garvey, setting up an editorial in the back room.

Garvey peered at him over his spectacles. The editor was a driedup little man with a face like parchment.

snorted. "This town is on the war-

Terry's face and for the moment showed it warm and friendly. "I'll take your advice, oldtimer. I'm on my way now."

The cowman waved a hand in farewell and walked out of the building. As he crossed the courthouse grounds he passed the county judge just mounting the steps. They bowed to each other, stiffly, without speaking. Judge Curtis had been elected by the votes of the small settlers. The allies of Terry called him a rustler's judge. They meant that no cow thief could be convicted in his court.

That the old days of the free open range were passing forever Terry knew. For a decade and a half the cattleman had been king. His stock had ranged the plains unhampered big ranches had paid good dividends to the stockholders in Edinburgh, days. Perhaps he remembered that | London, or Boston. Then evil days had fallen on the industry. The cat> tie boom had collapsed. There were several reasons for this. One of them was bad management. Those in charge of some of the large ranches had fallen into the habit of living in Cheyenne or Denver and leaving the properties mostly to the care of subordinates. In order to show profits they had overstocked the ranges and in some cases sold too many cows and calves. The grass was eaten short and the winter feed killed. Moreover, as the country opened to settlement nesters moved in and homesteaded the waterholes. There was conflict between them and the cattle kings who had up to this time possessed the land. As a result of this, rustling greatly increased. It was easy for a small outilt on the edge of a big one to increase its holdings by branding calves of the large concern. Year by year the antagonism increased until it grew very bitter. The great ranches were doomed, the managers saw, unless they could stop the stealing of their stock and hold sufficient range to feed the herds.

Calhoun Terry was particularly hated by the smaller ranchmen because he had been one himself. That was after he had ridden as a lad for the Bottleneck Ranch. From his father he had inherited a place in a bend of the Buck River that bit in and took a great mouthful out of the natural range of the Diamond Reverse B. For several years he had been a leader of the little stockman, an irritant thorn in the side of the great ranch. A man of vision, he saw that the two properties ought INFLUENTIAL to be combined. At a board of directors' meeting of the Diamond Reverse B he proposed to sell his place. (TO BE CONTINUED)
