Engineer Reports PWA Project Now in Washington for Approval

The City of Rockport's plans for modern sewer system and disposal plant may soon be realized, Chamber of Commerce members were told Wednesday at their regular luncheon meeting.

M. C. St. John, engineer in charge of plans for the city, told the gathering that Rockport's application for a PWA grant of $50,000 had already been approved in the Fort Worth state office of the federal government's public works agency and had been forwarded to Washington for final approval. The engineer said that he was going on with detail plans so that there would be little loss of time when final approval is given the project-The city will put-up $25,000 to go with the grant of $50,000 to build the sewer system, which is designed to not only take care of present needs, but also of the rapid growth Rockport is now experiencing.

Mr. St. John was a luncheon guest of Norvell Jackson, a memper of the City Council.

Mr. St. John explained to the Chamber of Commerce members how the disposal plant would be operated, stating it would be of the atest and most modern design, enirely approved by the state health department.

County Asks PWA Grant for Hospital At Rockport

Aransas County has made application for a 100 per cent grant of $107,000 to be used in the construction of a modern hospital here, County Attorney Emory Spencer announced this week.

Spencer said that the project has already received the approval of the Corpus Christi PWA office and has been sent to Fort Worth. The county Commissioners court authorized County Judge B. S. Fox on August 1 to make application for the hospital grant.

Preliminary plans for the building have been drawn by Gordon M. Smith, DeHaven Pitts and Charles T. Weidner, associated architects of San Antonio.

The building is to be of monolithic concrete construction and will contain a clinic, offices for doctors and a dentis, and several ther features. It will be a 16-bed apacity. The site of the building, to be donated by Aransas County, has not yet been chosen.

Citizens of the county have been seriously in need of hospital facilities for some time, Spencer said, but defense work in the area has greatly accentuated these needs.

Simple to Make Washington

Washington, D. C. FAR EAST POKER GAME

For perspective on the present South Pacific tug-of-war between Japan and Britain, it is well to remember that for years Thailand, then known as Siam, was a pawn in the power game of the bigger nations of the Pacific.

In this game the United States had a hand. For years, American financial advisors have been attached to the Thailand throne, one of them having been Francis Sayre, son-in-law of Woodrow Wilson, now high commissioner of the Philip-

He wooed Thailand on many occasions, including the ornate reception given the former king of Siam, who as "Supreme Arbiter of the Ebb and Flow of the Tide, Brother of the Moon, Half Brother of the Sun and Keeper of the Twenty-four Golden Umbrellas," came to Washington in the days of Herbert Hoover and was regally entertained.

The British were even more interested in the Siamese. British advisers for a time ran the kingdom's government, trained its army, supplied the one or two ships for its navy.

But half a dozen years ago the Japanese began preaching the doc- HISTORIC MEETING: trine of Asia for the yellow man, and Siam for the Siamese. That A Declaration was how the name came to be changed to Thailand, a nationalistic token of home rule.

A canal through this isthmus, connecting the Indian ocean and the Gulf of Siam, would give a new short route from the Pacific to India, render Singapore impotent, and cut three days from the trip between Indo-China and Burma.

Such a canal would leave Singapore's giant guns and expensive naval bases guarding an out-of-date sea highway, almost as unimportant as the Straits of Magellan after the Panama canal was built.

That is one reason the British are by that government. ready to fight to keep the Japanese out of Thailand.

Norway Heavily Fortified. Since then another plan for pos- In Washington sible British invasion of Norway has been discussed. However, this also is difficult. The Nazis now have 10 divisions in Norway; more important, they have been working feverishly with characteristic German thoroughness to fortify Norwegian ports and possible invasion points.

The chief factor holding back the British, however, has been their lack of armored equipment. Although the British army is about 2,000,000 strong, only about 750,000 men are fully armed with modern equipment. And the most serious defect in their equipment is the lack of tanks.

Vast numbers of tanks were lost by the British at Dunquerque, a loss which has not yet been replenished. And no invasion of the continent could be successful without a powerful tank force.

Also, despite the strength of the Nazi army on the Russian front, a total of 47 well-equipped German divisions are stationed in western Europe. This is approximately 700,000 men.

Recent discussion of British aid to Russia has turned to the Near East and a British move from the Gulf of Persia, through Iran to the Russian oil fields of the Caucasus. These oil fields are one of the chief goals of the Nazi army, and once Hitler succeeds in taking the Ukraine, it would be relatively easy for him to cut off this supply.

DRAMA:

It was high drama, that passage of the bill which makes the service of selectees, guardsmen and regulars 18 months more than they signed up for. The closeness of the vote, 203 to ness with which it came, the bitterness of the press and forensic fight on the measure, gave the battle its punch and severity. The climax came when the calm voice of Speaker Sam Rayburn an-

202, was part of it, but the sudden-nounced the totals, a victory for the administration by one vote. This was met by a tumult in galleries and on floor of almost indescribable excitement. It had been one of those things that no one could have predicted, and in which both sides felt sure of victory until the totals had been announced. As the count grew late, low and apprehensive whistles were heard from the members of congress as the vote balanced and then unbalanced each other. The vote found the widest split of delegations in many a year. There were 182 Democrats for the measure and 21 Republicans; 65 Democrats and 133 Republicans against, 14 paired and 14 not voting.

This vote did something that legislation seldom does, in giving each representative a keen realization of the value of his single vote.

Rogers said. The trip across normally requires 11 hours, but it takes 11 days to return by boat. During his brief visits in England, Rogers learned of tricks the British had played on German air raiders.

"There was an airport near London that was bombed regularly," he said. "The Nazis are methodical. If they bomb you Tuesday of this week they come back the same day next week. "So the English built a dummy

Best Fishing, Swimming and Boating on the Texas Coast

Your Pleasure is our business, and upon the service we render depends future visits from you, and we are always ready to do everything possible to make your stay with us the most enjoyable you have ever had on the Texas Coast. Let your wishes or needs be known. We'll do our best to please! As an added courtesy we are co-operating with the Rockport Pilot in bringing this newspaper to our guests each week. On this page, and elsewhere in the paper, you will find information that will be of assistance to you in making all your vacation hours count, including suggestions on where to go and what to do.

Rockport, Fulton, Lamar and adjacent areas along the 15-mile coastline of Live Oak and Lamar Peninsulas form the most ideal "family playground" on the Texas Coast. Here stretches fifteen miles of tree-lined beaches and natural bauty that comes from blending of skies, water and trees, bathed in a semi-tropic sunshine and tempered by cooling Gulf breezes. Here one can enjoy the activity of fishing, boating and swimming, or just loaf in an Eden-like atmosphere, so different from the usual highly commercialized tourist resort.

Approaching Marriage of Rockport Girl Announced at Tea Sunday

Miss Verna Brundrett, daughter f Mr. and Mrs. George Lee Brunirett of Rockport and a popular nember of the younger sets of orpus Christi, Austin and her ome city, will be married on next hursday to John D. Haseman, III, f Wodsboro, Verna and John will light their troth here in the First resbyterian Church at 8:30 o'clock on the evening of August 28.

The engagement and approachng marriage of Miss Brundrett to Mr. Haseman was made known here Sunday afternoon at a tea given by the bride-elect's mother, the nnouncement coming as a surorise to many friends of the couple hroughout this section. Scores of riends called at the Brundrett nome during the afternoon and were greeted by the honoree, her nother, Mrs. Brundrett and Mrs. Herbert Mills and Miss Genevieve Brundrett, sister and cousin of the bride-elect.

Tiny corsages of feverfew, atached with green ribbon to cards earing the inscription: "Verna-John 8-28-41," were presented to the guests as they arrived and registered in the white leather pride's book, presided over by Mrs. J. F. Brundrett, aunt of the brideto-be. Mrs. Herbert Mills presided over the punch bowl and Mrs. Norvell Jackson served white cake squares that were topped with sugar-spun green roses. Arranged on the table also were dainty sandwiches, salted pecans and mints in keeping with the color scheme of green and white.

Coming down from Victoria to spend a week at Forest Park Cottages, Judge and Mrs. Joe Woodhouse and their friend Bill Lanier last week decided to stage a raid both on the bay and gulf. The result is shown in the above Pilot photo. The long string of mackerel, with trout sandwiched in between, numbers forty. (You count 'em and be sure). Judge and Mrs. Woodhouse are among the many regular visitors from Victoria, who come down several times ayear for outings on the coast. Pictured left to right, Mrs. Woodhouse, Bill Lanier and Judge Woodhouse.

It was voted not to include him. "Jeff Brand."

"A bad man from Texas," explained Tod Collins of the Antelope Creek Ranch. "One of the worst of story in Cheyenne, Denver, and Salt the Hart gang." Others corroborated this. Brand went on the death list. "Roan Alford." "No"-Terry spoke with sharp decision. "He's a rancher, not a rustler. I've known him all my life." A score or more of names were read and discussed. Some were put on the black list, and others pardoned because of insufficient evidence or extenuating circumstances. "Lee Hart."

"We all know where he belongs," a redheaded cowman replied. "Put him on the list to be hanged and pass on to the next."

No voice was raised in his behalf. The next name was read.

"Sheriff Nate Hart." Terry broke the long silence that followed. "It's known that the Harts are enemies of mine. I don't get along with Nate any better than I do with the rest of them. mess of thieves." The cool gaze of Terry swept the room slowly. "Gentlemen, you are proposing to take in too much territory. Maybe we can round up most of the known thieves and get away with hanging them. I think we will be lucky if we do. But we can't kill the duly elected sheriff and commissioners of a county and expect not to pay too high a price for it. Right then we would lose the support of the public all over the country." Doctor Porter gave his support to Terry.

"His name goes off," Ellison answered.

The roll call went on. Ellison read the next name a little reluctantly. It had been handed in by one of the stockmen present.

Jack Turley, the name was. The No, By Joe superintendent ran a pencil through it. "Known not to be a rustler," he said.

"Who knows it?" Terry asked. "He spends most of his time with Lee Hart and Jeff Brand. If he isn't a rustler, why does he run with thieves?"

Ellison hesitated. "I can give him a clean bill of health," he said at last. 'How can you do that?"

"All right"-Ellison threw up a hand in surrender. "He's a detective for the association. We sent him into the Buck River country two years ago to get information about the thieves' activities."

The meeting broke up late. Before anybody had left the room the man on watch outside came in with a telegram just arrived for Doctor Porter.

"Just a moment, if you please," he said. "I have a message with important news sent me by my secretary." The hum of conversation died down.

"Jackman wires me that yesterday a meeting of small cattlemen, including rustlers, no doubt, was held at Round Top to form an independent ranchers' and stock-grow-

Every man present knew what this meant. By means of these ranches would collect and brand the into action. All calves not followof their own.

Doctor Porter waved his telegram for a cessation of talk.

"There's another piece of news in my wire, gentlemen. Jackman says that early this morning the body of Pete Tolman was found in front of his cabin. He had been shot through the forehead by a bullet from a

CHAPTER XI

At the Sleepy Cat Ranch dance very little was talked of except the murder of Pete Tolman and its relation to the other two killings which had preceded it. The victims had all been active and flagrant rustlers.

Real fear, though generally concealed, was plainly in evidence at the dance. Ellen read it in the nervousness of those she met, in the lowered voices and furtive whisper-

He laughed. Whoever else might be worried, Jeff Brand was not. "You chose the wrong beau, hon-

He was a graceful scamp, and he danced as no other man in the room did.

Her gaze held to his, interested and a little puzzled. "Everybody else is worried and unhappy about what happened today. You seem to be on the top of the world. Wasn't Pete Tolman a friend of yours?"

"We rode a lot of trails together," he said.

"I ought to be pulling a long face, you think. My idea is different. Pete did a lot of living in his twentyfour years. She still was not quite satisfied to drop the subject. "You know what is worrying everybody."

"Why don't you leave this part of the country-start tonight for Montana?" she asked impulsively. His cool eyes rested on her. "Why,

I was glad to see that the house of representatives, in considering postmaster's daughter, declares she was the tax bill, did not accept the idea of joint income tax returns for husband and wife. Do we believe that work of any kind, honestly performed, creates work? If so, then it is an advantage to have every individual using his abilities productively. It is true that machines have taken over the work of human hands to a great extent, but the real problem before us is how to make the work of the machines a benefit to human beings and not a detriment.

I do not think that, fundamentally, the way to solve the problem is to say that people should grow lazy and not use what abilities and wits a kindly Providence may have given them. I realize that this is a question which can be argued from many points of view and this column is too short to cover it adequately. I am only trying to point out the fact that we have some decisions to make in the future, and we had better think them through intelligently and make sure of what we really believe.

AN EXPLANATION

A letter has just come to me which I want to quote and answer in this column: "Referring to a recent article the following is your statement: 'In the United States there are many areas where children cannot get to school and besides there are many families who have no clothes for their children. For more than eight years your husband has been the directing head of the United States and his announced policy on taking office was the 'forgotten man.'

Experience alone can prove whether plans undertaken can have permanent value or not.

Some of them have already been in operation long enough to prove themselves. Others are in process of trial. The social security program as a whole, housing, WPA and NYA have all been factors in meeting the needs of what my correspondent calls the "forgotten

We can only be grateful for the fact that more people are aware of the problems of forgotten children as well as forgotten men and women, and that we are working together to make our corner of the world a better place for all of us to live.

I have just been told that there is a great shortage of young women "My goodness, you go right to the entering the nursing schools. At this time nurses are much needed, before. Ever hear of Audioscopix? Of course you have and most likely you've seen one or two of them at comes the latest of Pete Smith's third-deminsional subjects termed week Metroscopix and titled "Third Dimensional Murder."

Just in case you've forgotten, these are thrilling, hair-raising 10 minute short subjects involving third deminsion. Ordinary pictures present only two deminsions on a flat screen surface-height and breadth, but by use of trick photography and a pair of colored glasses-one green lense and one red one-issued to every patron at the door, depth becomes apparent and screen images become life-

In this new Metroscopix, Pete Smith has devised a murder mystery involving a haunted house, a skeleton, a cannibal, a wooden Indian, Frankenstein's monster and assorted other delectables. Missles are tossed at the audiense, molten lead is poured on them, a clutching hand reaches out for them and snakes are put in their laps, which, with the illusion, has the audience 'participating" in the mystery and ooking to their own "safety."

Here's one you'll want to see while sitting close to your best girl! This subject alone will be worth the price of admission, to say nothing of the screaming comedy feature, "The Big Store" with the Marx Brothers-both on the same program at the Rio Theatre, Sunday and Monday, August 24-
