Heldenfels Bros., Rockport contracting firm, was awarded a con-CAA air field three miles north of Rockport.

The contract was given the lo-cal firm on a low bid of $830,000, according to advices from the CAA.

An original allotment of $777,-000 was made for con struction of the air field to be used by the Navy for the duration. The contract was let at a much higher figure and it is reported tha an additional $100, 000 will be made available for the Heldenfels Bros. previously had been awarded a contract for the clearing and grubbing of the almost a mile square area to be included in the field. The construction con tract calls for building 4,500 foot runways and other facilities needed to make the field available for Navy use.

More than half of the land inluded in the air field site has already been cleared of brush.

While there has been no official announcement of confirmation, rumors persist that the present contract is only the first phase of construction, and that the field vill be more fully developed by the Navy as a seaplane base. Floyd Huffman is engineer in charge for the CAA. The county is furnishing the necessary land and the CAA is building the air field. After the war the field will be used as a public air port.

NEW YORK .- For many a long year if you'd asked any member of the Boy Scouts of America. who was the Chief Scout, he'd have Million Scouts Hail told you, Dr. James Him as 'Chief' and E. West. Now It's for Keeps Now the ti-tle has been made official, and Dr. West has been promoted to a rank held previously by only one man, Ernest Thompson Seton, another lover of the outdoors with a powerful interest in boys.

Dr. West joined the Boy Scout movement January 2, 1911. It was in its infancy in the United States then. He took the job of Executive Chief on a six months' trial basis. He stayed 32 years, finally relinquishing the post February 1 last. On Dr. West's 65th birthday in May, 1941, President Roosevelt told him: "To you belongs much of the credit for the effectiveness of Scouting in this country."

Dr. West's great interest in youngsters was spurred by the difficulties of his own boyhood. His father died when he was very young, and his mother, when he was six. There were no near relatives, and the boy grew up in an orphans' home in Washington, his native city. To add to his problems, he was crip-pled and on crutches. He saw to it that he had a good education, though, and he worked his way through the law school of National university. He was practicing in the capital when Scouting called him.

That wasn't his first task in behalf of youngsters, however. His efforts gave Washington its first juvenile court, and in 1909 he persuaded President Theodore Roosewelt to call a White House conference on the care of dependent children.

He has had four children of his own, two boys and two girls. Both boys became Eagle Scouts. While in command, he saw his beloved Scouts grow into an organization more than a million strong.

years now. His first stint in that line came as a cub reporter on the Louisville Times. There he harvested his initial facts from a police sergeant who had been a Confederate soldier. He had learned about newspapers long before that, however, from his father, Josephus Danlels, editor of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer and secretary of the navy under Wilson. Young Jonathan started out to be a lawyer. He even spent a year at the Columbia law school after graduating from the University of North Carolina. He never practiced, though. He had been rubbing elbows too long with printer's ink. After trying his wings in Louisville, he returned home to work for his dad. Later he wrote a novel. "Clash of Angels" it was called, and it helped him win a Guggenheim Fellowship and a couple of years' study in Europe. When the elder Daniels shifted his activities to the United States embassy in Mexico City, his son moved into the editor's chair. In World War I a Daniels gave the orders to a young assistant secretary of the navy named Franklin D. Roosevelt. Now it will be the other way around.

Accepting President Roosevelt's exhortation, the War Labor board will "hold-the-line." In a unanimous decision, the WLB refused to grant cement workers a wage increase which would have brought their earnings up to the same level prevailing in other plants of the same company. However, the workers were allowed a small boost-in line with the WLB's "Little Steel formula," which permits a general increase of 15 per cent in wages over those of January 1, 1941, as an offset for rise in living costs since then.

In its decision, WLB said that the President's order freezing wages allowed for increases only within the 'Little Steel formula" or in cases where wages would remain substandard even after such an increase. Consequently, WLB said, it was powerless under the order to grant boosts merely on grounds of equalizing wages throughout certain industries.

The WLB's action will affect some 10,000 cases before it. Regional oranches were instructed to immediately make studies within their districts of sub-standard conditions. In a midwest regional war labor board the chairman said that ap proximately 2,500 of the 3,000 cases on file would be affected by the na tional board's order, which is be ing observed in the "literal mean ing.

ALL this fussing about food shortages seems to me unworthy of the people of the greatest nation in the world.

That we ARE the greatest nation in the world is more evident every day. Our ideals are the highest, our purposes in war and peace the most fair, and our people the most fortunate. There are millions of men and women in the world who would thank God all their days for a chance to get to America. And there are very few other countries to which these imprisoned, oppressed, starved, expatriated folk would care to go.

That's why it seems to me beneath our dignity to keep up this anxious talk about food. We'll always have plenty of food; nobody's going to be hungry. drawer, but here he is urging over the Atlantic cable that every man be allowed five wives. What peace is likely to come out of that idea, and who would expect a Brains Truster to trot it out!

Dr. Joad, who is also a philosopher and peddles long-haired notions from a chair in the University of London, argues the war will leave so many women without mates that they must be provided with substitutes, even piecemeal ones. Oldsters will remember that the same argument followed the last war but no substitute replaced the timedefying practice of pairing off.

Like Shaw, who goes along the same road far enough to insist tha. any woman should prefer a fifth share of a first rate man to a whole share of a fifth rate man, Joad throws off his recommendation from behind a barricade of whiskers. Grayish whiskers now, because he is 52.

RUSSIA:

Lull Before Storm

The lull continued before the storm in Russia. Both sides reported minor action. The Reds claimed to have thrown back small waves of German infantry that tried to run over Russian positions on the Volkhov river southeast of Leningrad.

The Reds also announced that artillery and machine gun fire was concentrated on German positions work hardship on a wife, child or before Smolensk as part of a plan to reduce the outer defenses of the Nazi bastion.

For themselves, the Germans reported continued secondary action along the west bank of the Donets river below Kharkov. Here, they said, artillery fire raked the entrenched Russian forces. Neither side claimed major advances. RUML PLAN:

Potatoes boiled in their jackets with butter and salt and hot milk have nourished many a strapping young colleen or gossoon in Ireland. In France a simmering "poton-the-fire" gets a little of everything; last week's chicken bones, the ham bone that was bought when every bit of meat was gone from it; beans, cabbage, carrots, turnip, toasted odds and ends of bread, and scallions galore, and the result is the delicious, mellow, velvety, filling 'potage paysanne" that with a salad, and long cuts of sour bread, makes 300 suppers a year.

Years ago we used to save all the stale bread until Friday. Then it was toasted in the oven, put in a tureen, salted, and covered with several quarts of hot milk in which butter was melting. It was served in soup-plates, and was by no means uncertainty as to whether one's share would be mostly bran, rye, graham or raisin bread was a part. of the charm. Bread was never wasted, and nobody left the Friday supper table hungry. If dessert could be something extremely popular; say deep apple pie or a chocolate custard, all the better. But no matter how plain this fare looked to us when the realization came. "Friday again!" it always left us satisfied and happy. We used to call it "crusts" and "poor house chowder"

"At all events, Amy is a determined young lady and knows her own mind. She may mold him into just the husband she wants," Kelly said comfortingly. And then to Fran: "You telephoned that you wanted to see me about something?"

"Could we talk for a few minutes, Kelly?" Fran asked, rising. "Something has happened," Cherry heard her say as they went away together, "and I don't know how serious it may be."

Cherry's own heart sick with apprehension, she went through the gloomy big halls up to her own room a few minutes later. It seemed to Cherry that life would never be right and happy again. She was trying to master her tears when May came in with the message that Mr. Coates would like to see her a moment.

Kelly looked at her a moment. then squared her gently about with his big hands and asked her why she had been crying.

"I've felt-so horrible!" Cherry faltered, fresh tears welling in her eyes. She could not face him.

'What about Marchioness? Nerves? Is all this beginning to get you?"

"Oh, Kelly, I'm so wretched about those letters! I knew-of course I knew," Cherry faltered, "that you were fond of Fran; I knew that just as soon as I met her, or you! But it hurts me so-it hurts me sowhen I was so happy thinking that you and I would be together-to have this happen now! To have the police get them and the newspapers; it spoils everything!"

"Why does it spoil everything?" he asked gravely, still holding her lightly with both hands behind her shoulders. "Look at me, Cherry. This doesn't spoil anything. Do you mean that you don't want to come to Sausalito now?"

She smiled up at him through tears.

"Oh. Kelly, but it makes it all so horrid!" she said, even though hope was dawning in her voice.

"Cherry, you just said that you knew I'd cared-or that at one time some months ago, I thought I was crazy about Fran. I never asked her to come to Sausalito and run me; I never thought of her doing any such thing."

"Didn't she tell you about the letters?"

"Of course she did."

"You-you comfort me by just s-s-saying anything!" Cherry said, laughing with wet lashes. She seated herself in a big fireside chair, and Kelly came to sit on the broad arm, holding tight to her hand.

"Let's have it. What about the letters?'

"Don't you think sometimes of the fact that if things had gone just a little differently you might be a rich woman, Marchioness?" he asked, as they walked along the wet sidewalks, leaning against the wind. "No; I never thought of it, really. I wouldn't want it. I'll feel so rich as your wife, Kelly," Cherry said, "that it would just be a bother to me. Just to be over there, alone with you," she continued, gesturing towards the far hills, "there's no money in the world that could tempt me to give up a minute of it!"

"It's going to be a great adventure." Kelly said. "It's going to be heaven! I can't believe it yet." They paced along together, facing the wind. "Oh, I'd forgotten, what with Amy and everything," Cherry said suddenly. "Yesterday when I was in Fran's room, and she was showing me the overnight case that the police had broken open when they got your letters, she went into the bathroom to take a shower and while she was there the wind blew in through her closet-and I went in to close the window-and one of her dressing gowns blew against my hand, and Kelly-she'd wiped a pistol barrel on it! No mistake. Grease and gunpowder, and it was all puckered up "What are you talking about?" the man demanded, interrupting. "Fran had wiped the barrel of a revolver on one of her dresses?" "One of those negligees she wears. And that was what she had on when she ran downstairs that night-when we'd all heard the judge shouting and we all ran to our doors. The minute I saw it I remembered it. although I'd forgotten it until then."

"Forgotten what?" "That that negligee was what she had on."

But it strikes me-it's seemed to me all alongthat her position is that of someone who knows something, or thinks she does; she's protecting someone, But who? Amy? The old lady? I don't know . . . Here are our oysters." "It's just one o'clock," Cherry said, "and I think I'll telephone home that I'm not coming." When she came back she sank into her chair, gripping the table, trying to speak. "Cherry, what is it? What's the matter?" Kelly stammered, catching at her hands. "It was Mullins," she whispered. "They want us to come straight home. She said-she said she and Jud had quarreled-over you. Fran has confessed!" When they went out onto the wharf looking for a taxi, Cherry held Kelly's hand tightly.

"Promise me that no matter what happens now, no matter how tangled things get, you and I are-forever and eternally-bound to each other!"

"Why, my darling, my darling," he said, "my life is your life now. Here we are!" he finished abruptly, as the cab drew up at the imposing Marshbanks doorway. "Now we'll try to see what all this is about." now, instead of the usual one or two: Fran was there, too, silent, very pale, tragic-looking, with her crimination.

like substance of waterproof char-Chemurgy Opens Industry to Agriculture; Urge Production of Many New Plants.

"The proportion of usable wealth to be derived from an acre's production is becoming larger. Chemurgy has meant maximum utilization of maximum production. It has insisted that ways be found to use the high as well as the low values of the harvest—the stalk as well as the grain, the shell as well as the kernel, the weed as well as the crop."

With those words, Wheeler McMillen, president of the National Farm Chemurgic Council, describes the revolutionary effect chemurgy promises to have on agriculture. With a national purchasing power to support the new products of this industry, farmers will not only be obtaining additional income from standard crops, but they will derive revenue from the use of the vast submarginal lands now lying waste.

Dandelions, milkweeds and cattails-all of these, and many more, were once considered the useless and even pestiferous embroidery of the lonely plains. But today they have been proven to have real commercial value.

Although American experiments with the dandelion have not been as extensive as those in Russia, efforts are being made here to convert the latex of this colorful little plant into rubber. In this field, we were concerned with the guayule shrub, and although the project later was abandoned because of the steady flow of natural rubber from the Indies, it has now been revived in the sandy Southwest.

But if we have lagged in our development of the dandelion, not so with the milkweed or the cattails.

Milkweed Yields Fiber

According to Dr. Boris Berkman, milkweed produces two fibers. A pioneer in milkweed development, Dr. Berkman says one fiber is tubular with an air chamber. It is 58 per cent alpha cellulose, 20 per cent lignin and is covered with a vegetable wax of a high melting point. This fiber is found in the pod.

Known as milkweed floss, the fiber is buoyant, has a high insulation value and promises to be valuable for soundproofing material. Dr. Berkman predicts its use in life preservers; life jackets; aviator suits combining insulation value for high atmosphere with buoyancy in case of a landing in water; sleeping bags; mattresses; pillows; and surgical dressings.

The other fiber of the milkweed is ind in the outer layer of the stalk In different species of the plant, it represents between 10 and 20 per cent in weight of the entire stalk. Known as Bast, this fiber has a great tensile strength, and the high alpha cellulose content of 92 per cent. Dr. Berkman says that studies show that Bast fiber ranks second to manila hemp in breaking and tensile strength. Running about three-fourths of an inch in length. the fiber is soft, pliable and much finer in texture. It has good possibilities for use as textile. Seventy-two per cent of the milkweed found growing wild in Michigan was on No. 4 submarginal land. Approximately 85 per cent of milkweed seed germinates. In experiments last year, milkweed pickers earned from four to seven dollars a day, and they included women and children. The tall, somber cattail that stands silently in the marshes today may soon be the base for a flourishing industry. In experiments conducted under the direction of C. F. Burgess, noted chemist, this lowly plant was found to have high heat insulating, sound absorption and water resistant properties.

spirit, haunted his dreams and spoiled a good part of his pleasure. It has even tangled up the nerves of the stars. And it really means nothing at all.

"What par means to Byron Nelson, Craig Wood, Ben Hogan or Sammy Snead is something entirely different from what it means to the average player, the mass that make up the game.

An Illustration

"Here's an example. The average golfer walks to the first tee, on a 440-yard hole, where he sees par four inscribed on the card. He knows he can't get home in two strokes. He is beaten before he starts. He takes six and his whole round is spoiled. "On that same hole Snead, Nelson, Hogan and others are home with a drive and a six or seven iron. On a 500-yard hole, a hard par five for many players, they are home with a drive and an iron.

"The point is that the great mass of golfers are playing against certain fixed figures set for the few stars. These figures are far out of reach, where the 90 per cent are concerned. Yet they keep on batling against impossible situations.

"Did you ever hear of par in football? Or baseball? Or tennis? Or boxing? Bill Tilden never had any par at which to shoot. He was just out to beat his opponent.

This month will witness the first test of how united the United Nations are. The first of the conferences of representatives of the countries allied against the Axis are to meet the duffer's or the average golfer's and discuss food. On the success of that gathering, much will depend. It may be just as well that the governments linked together under the very general and very idealistic statement of principles, the Atlantic Charter, are going to begin with a very material, a very down-to-earth and likewise a very vital questionfood.

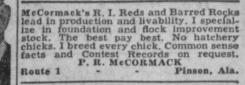

It would be too much to expect to begin at once to discuss the abstract subjects which are bound to arise when the larger implications of the philosophy of government are considered. People have to eat to live.

It seems reasonable to believe that the food question can be handled. Of course, it can easily be disposed of if the United States simply agrees to continue a lend-lease operation indefinitely with no demand for remuneration except vague promises. That, of course, is what the cynical say will happen.

And that brings me to the crux of the whole question of America's role in world affairs. If we go on the assumption as the isolationists do, that heads you win, tails we lose, and that America is going to be played for a sucker, we might as well throw up the whole idea of international co-operation now and put our heads back into the sand until the next Pearl Harbor.

They could then switch needed, to bring more fun go out and battle with their opponents, with the wind and the sand, with the rough and the ponds, with no mocking ghosts of par following them around the course."

Craig Wood, Open champion, backs up this viewpoint.

What Is Par?

"What is par, anyway?" Wood asked me. "I've seen Jimmy Thomson get home with a drive and a six iron on a hole 540 yards in length. So far as distance goes, that hole is an easy par four for a Thomson, a Snead or other big hitters. But it is a tough par five for the 90 per cent. Or take that eighth hole at Oakmont. It is around 265 yards, labeled a par three. That's the target the average golfer faces. It doesn't make sense.

"So let's all forget about par, a figure that means nothing to the expert and makes the great majority miserable. Let's bring back the fun and recreation that belong to golf, including the six or seven-mile tramp in the open which older men now need. Let's make it a game of player against player-and not a game against the score card."

To all of which your correspondent subscribes 100 per cent, with the backing of some 2,000,000 or more hackers, who have been harassed by this will-o'-the-wisp from a midnight swamp. Nothing is more heartbreaking to the average duffer than his battle against a cold, inflexible par. He can't hope to match it-all he can do is play and perhaps swear.

Russia, if not an obstacle, is at least a problem for several reasons. With an Allied victory, Russia, both because of her contribution to the victory and because of her size, position and strength, is a vital factor in any world organization-or disorganization. She is not actually a member of the United Nations but rather an associated power as the United States was in the last war. She has not made a clear statement of her war or peace aims.

She is, at present, occupying territory of what was once free and independent nations; a part of Finland, all of the Baltic states, a part of Poland.

Recently, Gardner Cowles, presumably speaking as a member of the Office of War Information, said: "If Americans don't make an effort to understand Russia and the Russian place in the scheme of things to follow this war, I fail to see how we can possibly hope to build a worth-while peace."

That, of course, is true. However, that is only half of the story. It is mutual understanding that is necessary. Mr. Cowles might have said: "If the Russian government does not encourage the people to understand America, we can't build a worth-while peace."

It is a two-handled jug.

We do misunderstand much about Russia. We are misinformed on some points. The Russian government has failed to inform us on others. For instance, few people in this country know and many are probably unwilling to believe what Cowles, who ought to know what he is talking about, says about private property under the Soviets.

About Property

ity."

"Workers may acquire any amount of consumer goods." he tells us, "any amount of furniture, an auto, etc., for their own use. The distinction from our economy is that in Russia, an individual may not own income-producing property."

cogent book of his, "Let the People Know," concludes one chapter with these words: "In the old days, we felt impelled to burn a man alive if he did not attend our church. Never, mer were sure, could those of the true faith live at peace with heretics. But they found that men of different faiths could live together; that they could keep their differences, yet be loyal to each other in the achievement of their common purposes. Religion is not less than nationalism. What is possible in the one field is possible in the other."

Whether we agree with Mr. Angell or not, there seems to be no sensible reason why we shouldn't try to find out if he is right. Peace is worth the effort.

Broadcaster's Diary

The other day, I received a letter that shows that commentators are of some practical use in the world after all. It was from a lady from Long Beach, Calif., who wrote:

"I wanted to phone for a plumber one day last week. Each time I tried to use the phone, two women were talking (about nothing) on the '3-party' line. I tried every five minutes for nearly half an hour, never saying anything, only picking up the phone and having to hang up again.

"One of the times, I heard one of them say 'some woman wants the line but l pay for it just as much as she does'! You, Mr. Baukhage, were just about to finish your regular broadcast," my writer goes on, "and some imp of mischief from my youth returned to my 50-year-old heart as I suddenly connected that remark with the closing words of your program. You had about two minutes yet to go, so I hurriedly plugged my portable garden radio into the electric socket which is near the phone table and just at the right moment lifted the receiver off the phone. Yes ... they were still talking ... so -just as you said: 'That's all, and thanks very much,' I put the phone mouthpiece right next to the radiosnapping the latter off at the right second. Then, I listened on the phone and heard one woman say in an actually meek voice, 'I guess we have talked pretty long. See you later. Good-bye. "After I stopped laughing, I called the plumber but you helped me, so l do think you deserve to be thanked. Also for a real laugh."

Chicken and Rice-Fine Favorite for Easter (See Recipes_Below)

Easter Essentials

How differently you will plan your Easter dinner this year! You may have to forget many of the traditional foods and use only what your ration points will allow you-or what you can obtain at the grocer's. Many of you in former times had baked ham or leg of lamb, but perhaps this year it may be chicken, or whatever ration points will A allow. So, get out your ration points and put on your 5112 thinking caps, ladies, and see what we can have to make this dinner a success. Markets throughout the country will have different meats available for your selection. A lot will depend upon how well you have saved your points to splurge on this occasion. If you plan chicken, stretch it with

Something Wrong it KAF Pilots 'Put Up a Black'

The RAF has developed a language all its own. Many of the terms, such as "Browned off" for bored, and "Put up a black" for doing something wrong, have been adopted now into common usage. Some expressions have been borrowed from the United States, including "Flinging a woo," which means to have a date with a girl, and "Roughneck" which, in the RAF does not mean a tough guy, but an unlikeable person.

"Gen" means the real, inside information on anything, and, similarly, "duff gen" means wrong information. A "flap" is a sudden operation. To be in a "flap" or in a "flat spin" means to be busy on a job, too busy to do anything else.

Don't beat carpets or rugs with a wire contraption. It loosens and may cut the pile. If drastic methods are required, clean the rug or carpet first on one side, then on the other, with a vacuum cleaner. Daily cleanings will keep the floor coverings in such excellent condition that severe methods will be unnecessary.

Any meal becomes a feast with these tempting-texture biscuits! Made with tasty KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, they'll make a hit with everyone!

All-Bran Buttermilk Biscuits

 ½ cup Kellogg's
 1 teaspoon baking powder

 ¾ cup buttermilk
 1 teaspoon salt

 ¼ cups flour
 ½ teaspoon soda

 ½ cup shortening

Soak All-Bran in buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and soda together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse corn-meal. Add soaked All-Bran; stir until dough follows fork around bowl. Turn onto floured board, knead lightly a few seconds, roll or pat to ½ inch thick-ness and cut with floured cutter. Bake on lightly greased pan in hot oven (450° F.) about 12 minutes.

Some of you will perhaps be fortunate enough to obtain lamb. If you cannot obtain a leg of lamb, a shoulder cut will be nice to serve with this barbecue sauce:

> Lamb Shoulder, Barbecued. 4 pounds shoulder of lamb 1 medium onion 1/2 cup chili sauce 1 teaspoon salt 1/8 teaspoon pepper Dash of cayenne 1 tablespoon vinegar 1 cup water

Mix onion, chili sauce, seasonings with vinegar and water. Pour over lamb which has been wiped with a damp cloth and place in pan with tightly fitting cover. Cover. Bake at 350 degrees for 31/2 hours.

*Orange and Greens Salad. (Serves 8)

4 cups coarsely shredded greens (lettuce, endive, watercress) 1/4 cup sliced, stuffed green olives 1/2 cup diced orange sections 1/4 cup chopped green pepper 1/4 cup salad oil

4 tablespoons lemon juice 1/4 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon celery seed

1/2 teaspoon worcestershire sauce Combine salad greens with oranges, olives, green pepper. Mix salad oil, lemon juice and seasonings. Just before serving toss lightly together, mixing well together.

Lynn Says:

How to Save Ration Points: If your old recipes call for tomato juice, tomato soup and other canned tomatoes, substitute brown gravy. In most cases, it will work quite well. Substitute fresh fruits for canned and dried fruits in desserts and buy heavily of citrus fruits. Serve them sectioned or sliced. Use seasonal fruits generously, as applesauce and rhubarb.

Store any excess water from cooked vegetables, and have it well covered when stored. Use in soups, gravies and stews.

When cookie recipes call for dried fruits, omit them or use them sparingly.

Omit chili sauce, catsup and chow chow from menus. Use them for seasoning foods such as meat when cooking or for sandwiches when necessary.

like, or fruit cocktail which does not take as many points as other canned fruits. *Rhubarb Upside-Down Cake.

(Serves 8) 4 cups cut rhubarb 1 cup sugar 1% cups sifted flour 2 teaspoons baking powder 1/8 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup shortening 1 cup sugar 2 eggs 1/2 teaspoon almond extract

1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract 1/2 cup milk

Cook rhubarb over low heat until juice begins to run. Add sugar and mix well. Simmer about 10 minutes and pour into a greased cake pan. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream shortening, add sugar, and beat until fluffy. Add egg yolks and flavorings and beat thoroughly. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold into mixture.

Pour over rhubarb and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 40 to 50 minutes. Loosen cake from sides of pan and turn onto platter. If you desire a simpler dessert, try these: Lemon Sponge Cups.

(Serves 6) 2 tablespoons butter 3/4 cup sugar 4 tablespoons all-purpose flour 1/4 teaspoon salt 5 tablespoons lemon juice 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind 3 eggs, separated 1½ cups milk

Cream butter, add sugar, flour, salt, lemon juice and rind. Add wellbeaten egg yolks which have been mixed with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased custard cups. Set in a pan of hot water and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Cool and unmold.

Table Decorations

If your food is simpler this year, don't feel that your table need lack festivity suitable for the Easter occasion. In many of your gardens daffodils or jonguils and tulips will be out-ready and waiting to do their nicest for your Easter dinner. An effective centerpiece can be made from as few as a half dozen daffodils with their own green foliage in a shallow bowl. Have table accessories harmonize with this color scheme by using a pale yellow or white cloth with napkins.

If your taste-or your garden runs to tulips, try deep red tulips with white snapdragons.
