PEOPLE GETTING MORE CRAZY

The Free Press is in receipt of a letter from William Oglesby who is the manager of the Wynne convict farm near Huntsville, and by his permission, we quote the following from his letter, thinking it will be of interest to his friends in this county.

"Wife, children and self in fairly good health, but we have no political peace. It seems to me the people are getting more crazy every day. They get more handles to their politics and religion all the time. Who ever heard of "progressive democracy" until late years? The fathers of democracy, Thos. Jefferson and others, who founded democracy, built on principles and the principles exist to this day as they did in the days of Patrick Henry. We just as well say progressive land. The land does not progress. You can take two farms, side by side, and one of them will make a bale of cotton to the acre, while it may take ten acres of the other to make a bale. Now the good land has not progressed. It is the difference in the cultivation and handling; just so with democracy. It has not progressed, but in order to mislead the masses, the shrewd politicians apply these handles. Such is not democracy. Let's have pure democracy, equal rights to all and special privileges to none. Just so with religion. Christ established a religious system known as "Christianity." In these days you rarely ever hear Christianity mentioned. It is all "religion" and every fellow has his own religion. Temperance is one of Christ's strongest pleas. What does Christ mean by temperance? Does he mean prohibition, or does it mean to be temperate in all things. A man drunk on prohibition is just as intemperate as the man drunk on whiskey. An anti-prohibitionist the same. I was at Austin during a session of the legislature, and it was a disgrace to the state to see those drunk antis and drunk pros, not on whiskey, but drunk on the one issue, and the result was that they cost the tax payers dollars and accomplished nothing, and it looks to families and themselves. me like we are on the eve of another two years of the same sort of drama. I am in favor of the man who says let state wide care boast of the advantages offered of itself, and equally against the man who says we will protect the whiskey interest to the detriment of our colleges and universities, our good roads and especially our penal system. The fearful condition of things is not the Governor's fault, but lack of harmony with our law makers.

"The law makers pass the laws putting many poor fellows in the penitentiary, and provide no means of supporting them, and this brings to mind the fee syswise would not be there. I wish the people could know how this fee system is working and how little two by four lawyers, backed by the peace officers, are growing rich on the downfall of this one evil, and could not tell half the facts."

Mr. William Oglesby, who has been manager of the Wynne farm for the past few years, has done much for the parole system as any man. The commissioners court paid the bounty on twelve thousand rabbit scalps this week.

It took about $600, to pay the bill. The officers had the ears strung on a joint of piping and had them potographed. This makes about twenty thousands rabbits that have been paid for by the county. Indian Maiden

By F. A. MITCHEL

Haha was the name given by white settlers of Kentucky to an Indian girl who lived more than a hundred years ago because her real name was to them difficult to pronounce. It was something meaning laughing girl, the latter part of it being "haha." This appellation was given her on account of her musical laugh-not that she laughed a great deal, for the Indians.

One spring morning Donald, who was fond of wandering, struck a the edge of the water from which it stood was a wooded plain, where grew the wild rye, pea vine and other herbage, interspersed with various flowers. The birds were singing, the air was fragrant-indeed, nature was that morning in its virgin condition, undespoiled by man.

Suddenly there rang out a peal of melody, a laugh. It had scarcely died away before its echo came back from the cliff opposite. A mocking bird on the branch of a tree over Donald's head heard it and was mightily astonished. Indeed, he looked indignant that any creature should dare to make more beautiful sounds than he. His throat swelled, and out came a very Tells all about sex matters; good imitation of what he had heard what young men and women, and, like its predecessor, came back in

How a Curate's Daughter Became a Marchioness

By EDITH V. ROSS

One day when the Marquis of Rally. shannon was hunting, hot and thirsty. be came to a well from which a girl was drawing water. Dismounting, he went toward her and asked her for a drink. She told him that she would be happy to give him one, but there was no cup at hand. The marquis said that he would drink from the bucket. At this the girl made a grimace, looking from the marquis to the bucket, as much as to say, "It's no fit thing for a gentleman to drink from." Then, making a cup of her two hands, she dipped them in the bucket, filled them with the cool water and offered the marquis a drink from the improvised

Though the girl was but a country lassie, her hands were beautifully shaped, and while the marquis was drinking he looked up into her two liquid eyes and drank of the soul behind them as well as of the water within her hands. Not a great deal of water can be held in such a cup, certainly not enough to quench the thirst of a hot and tired huntsman. So the marquis drank a number of times from the improvised receptacle, and every time he looked into the girl's eyes till at last he drew drafts of love.

When he was ashamed to drink any more he left a kiss in the cup, withdrew, mounted his horse and rode away. The girl stood looking after him till he reached the crest of a rise in the ground, when he turned, threw her a kiss from the tips of his fingers, then descended the opposite side of the declivity and was lost to sight.

Somehow after this the marquis could not refrain from thinking of the lass, and the lass was constantly dreaming of the marquis. But it was a long while before they met again.

There was war between landlord and tenant in those times, and all Ireland was in commotion. A landlord riding on a lonely road was shot; another receiving an unknown visitor was found a short time afterward stabbed to the heart. At the height of the trouble the Marquis of Ballyshannon was riding to his home one evening after dark when he saw a figure step from the side of the road into the middle of it in front of him. On account of the troublous times he went armed, and, drawing a pistol from his bolster, he cocked it and aimed at the figure in

They're concealed."

The girl by this time was standing very near the marquis. Hending down he kissed her, then turned his horse to the field, as she had advised, and, crossing it, rode safely in through his rear gate. As he was doing so he heard a shrick. Turning, he rode back to the road. It was too dark for him to see anything distinctly, but as he left the field he heard a moan which seemed to come from the road on which he had entered. Then he caught sight of a dark substance lying in the road. It was a woman. "Who is it?" he asked.

"Kathleen.

He did not know the name, but he recognized the girl who had made the cup for him and had only a few minutes before saved his life by warning him. He did not doubt that she had paid the penalty for doing so. Taking her up in his arms, he car-

But the other had interfered and saved her from whit would have been a fatal blow. Hearing a horse's bootheats and not knowing who was approaching, they had made off just as the marquis returned.

Kathleen was the daughter of farmer. A servant maid had heard the two men, her brothers, planning to kill the marquis and had told her mistress, Kathleen had thus taken steps to prevent the murder. Kuthleen was not able to leave the place where she was cared for for some time and when the did, the marquis took her in his carriage and was closeted with the furnier, her fa-

Some Breaches of Promise

When Hiram was ten years old he was the homeliest boy in any twostates in this Union. At twenty-one he had the face of a baboon. One day, after looking at him a long.

time, his father said to him: "Hiram, what in thunder is going to become of you anyhow?"

"I'm thinking it over," was the reply. After thinking things over for awhile and having a very serious talk with a fruit tree agent Hiram announced one Monday morning that he had mapped. out a career for himself, and half an hour later he drove away from the farm with a hired horse and buggy.

Within a radius of ten miles were wenty-three widows. Fifteen had been made such on one and the same day by the falling of a highway bridge. Not one of the women was poor, while some had bank accounts. All hade seen Hiram Spooner several times over. Hiram had prepared a list, and he began his calls according to cardsystem. As he drove up to a house he wriggled out of his buggy and wriggled along to the door, and when its was opened to him and he was invited in he began: "Widow Blank, I am trying to desomething to make a living. Did your know that you can grow two crops of the Oklahoma cucumber?"

"No. I never heard of it." "I sent and got some of the seeds Here they are. I shall charge you but little more than for the ordinary seeds, and you can have two crops in place

"Well, I will buy them to help you along."

"That is kind of you. I need money, but there are times when I fairly long for a word of sympathy."

"I know you must, and for years I have wanted to tell you how very, very sorry I was and am. There is no one in the world I pity as I do you. If you have anything else to sell bring it

Hiram had tears in his eyes as he left the house, but before climbing into his buggy he took out his memorandum book and made some entries under the proper date.

It took over thirty days for him to get around to the last widow, but he finished his business in good shape. Half a dozen times his father had demanded:

"See here, boy, what kind of a game are you up to with the widows?"

"I'm picking out the best of the lot to propose to," was always the reply.

Soon as the last widow had bought some Oklahoma cucumber seeds to help-Hiram Spooner along with his laudable ambitions and to raise a double crop of cucumber pickles the first one called on received a note from Hiram It stated that his heart had been deeply touched by her kind words and, be ing sure in his own mind that it was a case of love at first sight with both of them, be had decided to accept her generous offer and boped that it would be no sacrifice on her part. At what date should the wedding take place? Was the betrethal to be announced at once or later on? What ministers did she profer? How many and what guests should be invited?

The widow rend the note over the first time with wonder. The second time she was amuzed, and the third she gasped out: "Why, what can the crazy donkey mean?"

The widew sat down and wrote a note repudbating everything, even to the Oklahoma cucumber seeds. These seeds had been fed to the chickens just before the note was written.

Hiram enine buck with a written statement that she had deceived him and crushed his young and crippled heart. She had led him to believe that she loved him, and in return he had given her all his affections. To be thrown down now would be a blow that he could never get over. No money could ever healthis feelings, but she must requite him to an extent as a moral leason to her not to fool with the hearts of the male sex.

The negotiations consumed two weeks, and the wklow paid over to-Hiram $300 rather than go luto court His little game was worked on every single one of the widows. From some he got as much as $500 and from oth ers only a single hundred.

Not until the very last did Hiram's father understand what he had been up to, and then he indignantly exclaimed:
