Old Age Pensions And Taxes

Old Age Pensions and Taxes played a very large part in the Governor's race. Gov. Allred upheld before the people of Texas the existing old ago pension law, under which payments are made on the basis of need, while all of his opponents adv cated the payment of pensions to a citizens sixty five or more years of age. It seems to us that the majority by which Gov. Allred obtained the nomination is conclusive evidence that the people of Texas have a common-sense attitude regarding the old age pensions, they endorsed the present state law. Futhermore, it is worthy of note that Governor Allred consistently stressed in his or apaign that few new taxes are need , in Texas; he pointed out that the State needs no more taxes for his ways, that it needs no more taxes for education, that it needs no more taxes for general government, and that the only new taxes needed are such as will be sufficient to supplant already existing fights pain and ill in a Canadian fur funds necessary for the complete pay- trading post with inadequate equipm of old age pensions. A Special Session of the Legislature is a question that is being agitated in some quarters now that the primary is out of the way. The advisability of such session is questionable, to say the least. Texas's financial condition is sound: no new taxes are needed to care for the regular expenses of the State Govern ment. The only new taxes needed are Lich as [!! provide revenue to supplement the liquor tax in order to continue payment of old age pensions. Funds for the payment of pensions are believed to be adequate fi the present, and a special session of the Legislature would cost the taxpayers of Texas something like $150,000. The needless expense of another special session of the Forty-fourth Legislature is a good reason against it, but there is another reason which is even better, and that is the fact that the Fortyfourth Legislature na longer represents the people of Texas. since a good many of its members were repudicted by the voters in last Saturday's primary. The danger of "lame duck" sessions of law-making bodies is widely recognized, and it has been only a short time since an amendment to the Federal Constitution was adopted to prohibit such sessions of Congress. Under the Texas Constitution, the Governor can, of course, call a "lame duck" session of the Legislature, for there is nothing in that document to prohibit it. But the fact remains that, quite aside from the question of the cost of such a session, the Fortyfourth Legislature can no longer be said to represent the will of the people of Texas, and it follows that the Legislature has no real right to make laws of any nature affecting the people. The voters will complete in the August 22 primary the job, which they begun last Saturday, of selecting legislators to represent them for two years. These legislators will assume office in January.

"The Country Doctor" With Dionne Quints As Drama Film Stars

In the picture that is the entertainment scoop of the year, Daryll F. Zanuck makes movie stars of the first rank of the world's front-page darlings, as he presents the Dionne Quintuplets in their first full length feature, "The Country Doctor." which comes to the Palace Theatre in Jayton for the Prevue Saturday night, Sunday, and Monday.

Adapted from an origional story by Charles E. Blake, Chicago newspaper man, "The Country Doctor" finds its drama in the life-and-death conflict that a physician enternally wages in the Canadian wilds in his unselfish work. It is warm with romance, brightly alive with delightful humerous touches, fresh with the antics, the crooning and the play of the world's most famous babies.

I know of no man in Texas that I hold higher than I do Colonel Thompson, I ! know of no man who is as keen, as bright, has as alert a mind as Colonel Thompson, and I feel like every citizen of Texas ought to be proud that we have such a man as Chairman of the Commission. To The Voters of The 118 District

In the closing hours of the last called session when the house bill 46 was locked in a conference committee, and the Senate had placed an amendment calling for a mxury sales tax of one percent, Bob Calvert offered a resolution stating that the house would accept a reasonable sales tax on luxuries in order to get the bill out and pay the pensions as provided by law. This bill was the revenue bill to pay the old age pensions, and taxed oil, gas, sulphur and many other commodities and with the Senate Amendment a luxury sales tax. This was truly a selective sales tax bill. Some of the members that had pledged the people against any form of sales tax was about to decide to vote for this bill but to their surprise the lobbyists for special interest showed them their home paper with their pledge against any form of a sales tax. These pledges in their home paper kept you old folks from getting sixteen million dollars annually which this bill would have provided and sent all the lobbyist home rejoicing over the fact they had prevented the old people from getting his money that the people had voted four to one that you

WATERMELON RINDS USED FOR RELISH

"I find that watermelon rinds make a delicious relish that is very much like green tomato relish," said Mrs. O. C. Osman of Clairemont.

Mrs. Osman used the following recipe in making the relish:

2 cups ground rind (soaked previously in lime water using 1 lb lime to 1 gallon of water), 1 cup ground onion, 1 cup ground preen pepper. 6 pods hot red pepper. Cover with vinegar, add 1 cup of sugar, 1 tps. mustard, and 1-4 tsp. celery seed. Stir well and cook for 30 minutes at boiling temperature. Pack in hot sterilized jars.

Mrs. Earnest Clark, farm food supply demonstrator for the Jayton club, is storing her canned foods in a cellar that is neither cemented nor ceiled, but she is making it into a clean, attractive pantry by lining the walls with strong cardboard from large boxes. SPICE SHELF ADDED TO KITCHEN

"The shelves in my kitchen cabinet are too wide for small boxes of spices," said Mrs. C. Barton, kitchen improvement demonstrator of the Lost Lake club. "I spend too much time taking down one box looking for another when they are placed several rows deep on these wide shelves.

To remedy this situation Mrs. Barton plans to have a narrow shelf just wide enough to hold the spice boxes, built under the wall cabinet above the work surfaces of the cabinet. Placed single, the labels car all be seen, and will be accessible at
