SOURCE OF PROTEIN FOR CATTLE IMPORTANT

Livestock feeding is in full swing and producers are faced with paying a high price for a major protein supplement, cottonseed meal. What are the alternatives?

Cattlemen should consider whole cottonseed as a substitute along with guar meal, castor meal, alfalfa hay, dehydrated alfalfa pellets, and commercial dry supplements.

However, the price of a whole cottonseed may increase due to pressure from the high priced cotton seed meal which is now more than $150.00 a ton. In determining whether to feed whole cottonseed or the 41% cotton seed meal, consider the cost of each as well as handling and hauling costs.

Feed the whole cottonseed if 100 pounds of it seed meal and 65 pounds of milo.

In feeding whole cottonseed or any other alternative protein supplements, the main concern is to provide the minimal amount of protein for livestock. Feeding no more than five pounds of whole cottonseed per cow per day since it contains 22 percent fat which is laxative to cattle. The five pounds is usually more than enough to meet the protein needs of the beef cow. Since other protein supplements combining these supplements with a high quality forage to minimize the amount of supplement need. Forages can be tested for protein content, so that the cattleman can determine the amount of supplement to feed along with the forage to meet the daily protein requirement of his stock.

This information is furnished by Dr. Dennis Herd, extension beef cattle specialist.

INDOOR FOLIAGE PLANTS NEED SPECIAL CARE

Keeping indoor foliage plants clean and attractive requires a little extra effort, says Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural extension service.

"Leaves may be kept clean by using a soft camel hair brush, or damp cloth or sponge once or twice a month to remove dirt which collects. Care must be used when cleaning as bruising and kinking the leaf surface will cause discoloration and blemishes," points out the specialist.

To get a high gloss on some flat foliage, gently brush the surface with a soft cheese cloth or a soft, fine brush. Natural oils and waxes on the leaf surface will usually produce a high gloss. If leaves are extremely soiled, wash them with a mild soap and warm water solution before polishing, suggests Janne. Allow them to air dry before polishing.

"Several commercial leaf polishes are available. If such materials are used, water the plants several hours prior to treating. This prevents dry plants from absorbing the material so rapidly, causing foliage burn. Do not use oil of any kind," cautions the horticulturist.

Plants with pubescent or hairy leaves are more difficult to clean. Occasional syringing of such plants with clean, warm water is beneficial. Do not use water colder than room temperature as it can cause leaf spotting in certain plants. Occasional syringing will also help keep plants free from red spider mites and mealy bugs, adds Janne.

Constant Pressure Is On Cotton Farmers

The pressure is on for farmers to get preparations under way for spring planting, states County Extension Agent

This includes getting soil tests made and arrangements for fertilizer applications finalized.

Late harvests and unusually wet soil have seriously delayed fertilizer applications in most of the West Texas area. This means that when conditions permit, fertilizer dealers will be hardpressed to get applications made before planting time. For this reason, farmers who anticipate soil testing needs should allow a few days for soil analysis before ordering fertilizer applications.

If anyone has reservations about how much and what ratio of fertilizer is needed for a particular crop, Wise explains, "Soil tests made by the Extension Soil Testing Laboratory at the Texas Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock can help. Tests are made for pH, nitrate nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium and zinc on a routine basis.

Desired, tests for the micronutrients iron, zinc and manganese can also be made."

Reports stating the amount of plant nutrients needed for the yield goal given by the producer are based on the soil test values and the field research that has been conducted by the Texas Agricultural Experiment station researchers working in soil fertility on typical soils in the West Texas area.

"Nitrate nitrogen and phosphorus generally rank first in importance among the determinations made on West Texas soils," Wise says. "By using a fertilizer-use program on a recent soil test, a producer can avoid deficiencies and excesses, either of which can cost big money in a farming operation."

For information on soil sample collection and mailing, producers should contact the County Extension Agent's office. The soil testing laboratory at the Extension center is currently caught up with its work and can return reports within a few days after receiving samples.

Jaybirds Almost Topple McAdoo

The fighting Jaybirds of Jayton almost pulled the upset of the year here on Tuesday night, when they were hosts to the McAdoo Eagles. But they finally lost the hot contest 40-38.

As the game drew to the closing seconds, the Jayton fans were excited, and the McAdoo fans were scared, but they outlasted the Jaybirds. Also for personal honors, Allen Kelley and Jimmy Neff were fighting it out at the net, but Neff finally nudged him out with 22, and Kelley came in with 20.

The Lady Jays were also downed in a defensive game 34-21. Billie McMeans was high for the Lady Jays with 8 points.

After School Snacks

After-school snacksters have good reason to "drink up" if the family shopper reads labels to compare ingredients and prices of real juices, imitation juices and synthetic juices.

Most synthetic drinks containing vitamin C are two or three times more expensive than real fresh, frozen or canned orange juice.

Some synthetic drinks may be less expensive source of vitamin C, but they may not contain all of the other important nutrients.

For example, although we drink orange juice primarily because it's rich in vitamin C, it also contributes vitamin A, thiamine and the minerals calcium and iron.

In drinks such as instant breakfast drink, imitation lemonade mix and instant soft drink mix, sugar is present in the greatest quantity, followed by citric acid, several chemicals, vitamins, artificial flavors and color—but no real fruit juice.

Some imitation orange juices, however, contain not less than 10--and some up to 50--per cent orange juice.

Drinks made with a substantial amount of real fruit juice deserve priority over entirely synthetic drinks, because they're likely to provide more food value.

In addition, they eliminate the excess of sugar so injurious to teeth or the caffeine—not recommended for growing youngsters--included in cola.

He died at 8:45 p. m. Thursday in Hendricks hospital in Abilene.

He was a native of Hop kins County, and moved to Kent County in 1953.

Survivors include three sons Gilbert of Memphis, Hohn of Snyder and Jerry in the Merchants Marines, three daughters, Mrs. F. D. Hall of Jayton and Mrs. Jarri Parker of Jayton, and Mrs. Ruby Faye Risenberger also of Jayton, also three brothers, one sister and eight grand children.

Home Spending Is On The Increase

More families are planning to buy new houses within the next year than in any year since 1967.

According to Patricia A. Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension service, Texas A&M University, this increase--reported by the Commerce Department--indicates a strong continuation in home building.

Consumers also have increased plans to purchase major appliances

The latest consumer survey indicates that 28.7 households of every 100 probably will purchase major appliances within the next year.

Of the households surveyed, 28.8 percent plan to buy furniture and carpets within the next year.

Plans to spend money on home improvements equalled 8.6 per cent, the specialist concluded.

Illustrated Talks

Several 4-H girls are planning illustrated talks to give to their clubs. Teresa Wright, Angie Long, and Penny Gregory will give an illustrated talk to the Girard 4-H Club February 6.

Melodie SoRelle and Kathy Smith have prepared a series of talks on nutrition to give at the Clover Girls food project meetings.

Each talk will correspond with the food group that is to be studied during the meeting. This is the first year for Melodie and Kathy to give a talk and they are doing a good job. Rena Bural, Cheryl Pickens, and Lesa Pickens gave talk to the Girard 4-H Club on the procedures of the County Food Show.

THIS WEEK IN JAYTON

The Vietnam war, which was not a declared war, was extremely costly to the United States. Not only in money, but particularly to the unity of our country. Never before has there been such division among the rank and file as to the right and wrong of a war.

Tuesday night of last week, as the Ralls Banner was being printed, the president came on the air and announced that a plan for peace had been signed and a cease fire would be ordered Saturday.

Surely there is some good reason for the cease fire coming four days after the signing of peace, but an ordinary lay man like myself, and many others have no idea what it is.

At the time of the talk several of us were talking about it. Our thought was, why should the fighting continue? And how would you feel if your son or a brother, or someone close to you should be killed in action in the time between the signing and the actual order to stop fire? And sure enough it happened to a Linden, Texas boy. Surely, there is a good reason -- but I don't know what it is.

Most people that I hear talk are not exactly sure how they feel about the peace. Most people have their figures crossed about it, if I may use a term we used when kids.

Most people don't seem to trust the North Vietnamese, or the Chinese.

But there is another angle to the story that may paint it another color. It is certain that the peace papers call for reparation of the damage done by the American bombs in North Vietnam, and perhaps we are even committed to a redoing of some of the damages in the south as well.

This means that literally billions of American dollars will be spent in the north building new houses, factories, roads, etc. etc. So, anticipating the receipt of rivers of U. S. money, tell me why the North Vietnamese would jeopardize the free flow of American money into their country?

The Vietnam war, which was not a declared war, was extremely costly to the United States. Not only in money, but particularly to the unity of our country. Never before has there been such division among the rank and file as to the right and wrong of a war.

Apocryphal thing, just about everyone not connected with the operation of the conflict was against it, but those on the inside of it were for it.

The events and political decisions leading up to our military entry into Viet Nam had its beginning under President Truman, as well as Eisenhower. Then Kennedy started the action to rolling, and Johnson get us really into the action in Southeast Asia, and Nixon continued on with Johnson's commitments.

It has not been a party affair. All the presidents have been completely agreed, and all have followed exactly the same line.

Many in high places, even in the Congress have differed with them, even violently, but all of the chief executives have taken exactly the same stand and moved in the same direction. Which leads us to the opinion and conclusion that those who really knew the score all along, either democrat or republican, felt we had to do what we were doing.

Anyway, just about everyone is glad it is over, or seemingly so.

When we sit down and try to look objectively at the war, we wonder what did we accomplish? And who won? Well, this is for sure, no one won. We may have gotten out with some face-saving but it is very doubtful.

About the only thing we will have accomplished, if it is accomplished, is to get the American boys out of the prison camps and bring them back home.

This may make it all worthwhile.

This is the great thing about America. It does put a great value on human life, and let's hope and pray it remains that way.

As long as human life means something, there is still hope for our nation.

BE CAREFUL WITH SALT TO ELIMINATE ICE

Use extreme caution when applying common salt to sidewalks, streets, and driveways to keep them free of ice. Why? Because the salt may injure the nearby trees, shrubs, and other growing plants. AS ice and snow melts, the water may drain into the lawn area, carrying the salt into root zone of nearby plants. Visible effects of the salt injury may not appear until early summer as hot and dry weather approaches. Tree damage may vary from marginal burning of the leaves, complete browning and death of the leaves, or, in extreme cases, loss of a prize tree or shrub.

What can be used to rid walkways of hazardous ice? Using ammonium nitrate where drainage moves the water into lawn and shrub borders. This will fertilize the plants as well as melt the ice. If ammonium nitrate isn't available, any commercial fertilizer high in nitrogen and potassium may be used. Use only enough material to melt the ice since continued use over a long period can also damage plants.

Sand can be used on icy walks and drives to provide a better traction.

So before using salt on drives and walkways check the drainage pattern to make sure its use will not damage valuable plants. A LITTLE CAUTION AT THE time of application can prevent damage to valuable landscape trees.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Obstructing an Officer

Without any doubt, punching a policeman in the nose would amount to the crime of "obstructing an officer." But what about the assorted lesser confrontations that arise daily between citizen and constable? Where does the law draw the line?

Generally speaking, you may be guilty of this offense even if you do not resort to any force at all. Take the case of a youthful demonstrator who "went limp" when the police ordered him to climb into a patrol wagon. Charged later with obstructing an officer, he argued that he could not be punished for simply doing nothing.

Nevertheless, the court found him guilty as charged. The court said his refusal to obey a lawful order not only delayed and obstructed his own arrest but also delayed and obstructed the arrest of others.

Affirmative action, of course, is even riskier. Thus: A motorist lost his temper when he found a meter maid beside his parked car, writing up a ticket that he felt was unjustified.

First, he refused to accept the ticket. Then, when the meter maid tried to put it on his windshield, he blocked her path and deflected her arm.

A court concluded afterward that these actions, added together, did constitute the offense of obstructing an officer.

This does not mean, however, that a policeman has to be treated with kid gloves. Reasonable remonstrance is within a citizen's rights.

In another case, while a man was being placed under arrest in a tavern, his wife informed the police—with vigor—that they had no right to take him away. Still, she did not interfere physically with the arrest. Nor did she use threatening language.

Haled into court for obstructing an officer, the woman was found not guilty of any offense. The court said: "Policemen are no more exempt from criticism than cabinet ministers."

Cotton Quality Is Still Good, Expert Thinks

Despite abnormally extended periods of moisture laden weather on the Plains this Fall and Winter, as yet there is no reason to believe field-stored cotton in the area has suffered any serious deterioration, according to Donald A. Johnson, Executive Vice President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

Rumors to the contrary notwithstanding, says Johnson, "to our knowledge there are no confirmed reports of rotting or seed sprouting in cotton placed in ricks by rick-compactors in accordance with recommendations."

The relatively new (in modern times, at least) practice of storing cotton on field turnrows until after the rush season at gins spread rapidly in 1972 following research by Cotton Incorporated which led to the development of mechanical rick-compactors in 1970. CI research has shown that cotton placed in ricks by these machines retains basic quality characteristics far better than cotton left of weather on the stalk.

Several "someone said" reports of severe deterioration in ricked cotton produced the PCG staff to survey ginner, producers, cotton technologists and other involved in monitoring field-stored cotton.

"The results, so far, are encouraging," says Johnson.

No great amount of ricked cotton has been ginned to date, but ginner reports that what has been ginned came back from the classing office with grades, staples and micronaire readings comparable to early season ginnings from the same fields.

Dr. Milton Smith, associate professor of industrial engineering at Texas Tech, who did much of the rick compactor development work under a grant from Cotton Incorporated, has placed thermometer in various ricks around the Plains to check on possible heating. Temperatures have ranged from as low as 20 degrees to around 60 degrees inside the ricks, depending on outside temperatures for different days.

Recording thermometers ricked three feet inside the ricked cotton, he reports, are fairly constant with very little variation between night and daytime readings. This would indicate that the outside layers of cotton are serving as excellent insulation and would tend to prevent seed sprouting even in the unlikely event of exceptionally warm weather for a few days.

A check of weather records reveals that only about 22 out of 76 days between November 10 and January 26 this season were "fit" for harvesting because of excessive rain and snow.

"Such weather naturally has concerned us all," Johnson stated, "but as of now it appears our field-stored cotton is coming through just fine. And if it turns out there is no loss of quality in cotton ricked on the turnrow under these adverse conditions."

PRECIOUS PACKAGE

This picture of Carla makes me think of an old proverb my mother used to quote: "Precious things come in small packages."

Go ahead, mark me down for a doting dad. I'm quick to admit that my little girl is precious to me. With her loving arms about my neck I feel richer than a king. I walk into a room and see her eyes light up — so who wants to be president? As she snuggles down among the blankets, I kiss her and tell myself that I'll give her the best, now and always.

That's why I take her to church every Sunday. I want God to be a part of Carla's life from the very first. I know that an understanding of God and His love will ensure my daughter's well-being far beyond any material gift I could give her.

God's goodness is yours for the taking. Enrich your life. Go to your church, and take your family with you.

Dear Editor,
I meant to get the enclosed check off several days ago, don't want to miss a single issue of the paper. But you know how it is during the holiday season, every one so rushed hither and there and everywhere.

Hope every one down your way is fine and dandy. I know Kent County has had plenty of cold weather. We watch the weather map daily and keep an eye on Texas. Our weather out here is ideal of course, one lovely warm day after another. The city of Los Angeles really gave youngsters a treat this Christmas. Had tons of snow brought in and turned the kids loose..... You can imagine the delight of hundreds of children who had never seen any snow. We watched them on TV, they really had fun.

We had many cards and letters from Kent County this Christmas, as we do every year. How dear those people are to us, we will never forget them. So few of our relatives are left though, just Mrs. Barfoot and Erma, Mrs. Lulu Brown and Zephie, Mrs. Alma Brown, and Mark Montgomery and wife.

Take care and stay well. I really enjoy recipes. I am sure she is a marvelous cook.

As always,
The Powells

School Program

He has been giving lectures for about 15 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Smith attended the funeral of Mrs. Smith's father in Austin recently.

Mrs. Ed Murrell and Delores were in Lubbock Saturday visiting Mrs. Gene Murrell and Gene, and Harold Murrell.

Mr. and Mrs. Milt on Sandell Jr. of Hamilton, and Frank Sandell visited Mrs. M. S. Sandell and Hartense North recently.

Mrs. Greg Jones of Midland visited with her parents Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Wade.

Dear editor,
The following letter was received by a father from his son who was attending college, and I am sure that it expresses the sentiment of a great number of college boys.

At that time, shortly after the death of President Truman or rather after the alleged police action in Korea?

THE LETTER

Dear Daddy:

School is about to open and I am prepared to begin my third year of college, but at this time there is something hollow in the prospect. FOR YEARS I have worked for what I believed was a master key to a good and a happy future which is a college.

But now the guns are booming, and it looks like that total war is in the making, and every picture from abroad tells me you will soon be in this and Daddy, I am sure that there is no longer value to study to cloistered class rooms to calm discussion in a world no longer interested in remaining sane. I don't care how much, I will probably have to rededicate my talent and ability from the ends I had planned them to the ends that national security will prescribe for them, again I say I don't care, and until I am called I will stop living my own life, and begin living the life that insanity and blind fury have decided shall be mine. As every your son John.

In 1950 the graduating class of Annapolis Naval Academy were made commissioned officers and all were shipped to Korea where forty died defending a worthless and useless cause. General Phil Sheridan truly said War is Hell.

Love to all,
Adolphus Moreland

FUEL SHORTAGE RELIEF SOUGHT

AUSTIN—Greater oil and gas production to pare down Texas energy shortages is the aim of companion bills introduced in the Texas Legislature this week.

The measures would liberalize unitization requirements for oil and gas fields so as to increase production of oil and gas reserves, according to sponsors of the legislation, Sen. Jack Hightower of Vernon and Rep. Dave Finney of Ft. Worth.

They said the legislation would help accomplish one of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's goals: To get the maximum recovery from reserves as one of the means to solve the energy shortage.

A major obstacle, aside from technological aspects, preventing the tapping of part of the 98 billion barrels of Texas oil reserves has been an obsolete oil-gas unitization law that requires 100 per cent agreement from operators and royalty owners in a field to unitize, the lawmakers said. The requirement has been so restrictive that only one of every 10 Texas fields now operates as a unit.

Under terms of the Hightower-Finney proposal, a consent majority of 75 per cent of all interests would be required. It is believed that several billion more barrels of fuel can be recovered by removing restrictions, the legislators said.

Both legislators warned that their proposal was not a cure-all for energy shortages, but would be a step toward greater energy supplies.

LIVE 'n LAFF

"I dare you to carry me outside and say that!"

LBJ

The late President Lyndon Johnson achieved more in the social and domestic legislative field for the average American than any other President since Franklin Roosevelt, LBJ's idol.

Johnson left a lasting imprint on the life of the nation through historic civil rights, medicare and educational laws—among many others. He had been a master tactician in the U.S. Senate and used this vast knowledge of the American legislative process, plus friendships on Capitol Hill, to get his program enacted after a landslide victory in 1964, and also to get much of the late President Kennedy's stalled program enacted after Kennedy's assassination in 1963.

By greatly escalating an already-made commitment to fight a ground war with U.S. troops in Vietnam, Johnson lost his immense popularity among fellow Americans. History is yet to make a final judgment on his foreign policy; his action demanded courage and conviction and was what he thought right and best for America, as U.S. Presidents have traditionally acted.

The Watergate Trials

There is a disturbing contrast, to those who think unemotionally, in the atmosphere surrounding the Watergate trials and that at the average trial on burglary, conspiracy or telephone interception charges.

Without attempting to excuse the accused, it nevertheless should be said that the crimes charged are not the most serious of crimes. No one's life was endangered.

Judge John Sirica refused to accept the guilty plea of Howard Hunt because he pleaded guilty to only three of six charges against him (making him liable to a sentence of 25 years in jail) and forced him to plead guilty to all six charges, if he would avoid a trial.

It was a rare action. And both the prosecuting attorney and the defense attorney had agreed to the plea. (Hunt, who lost his wife in an air crash in December, had said he didn't feel up to a long trial and needed to be with his children.) Judge Sirica's decision made Hunt liable to a 35-year sentence.

Any newsman who has covered trials on burglary or breaking and entering charges in Washington knows the average resulting sentence is not a long one. The fact that the seven accused in the Watergate affair were involved in a political operation lessens somewhat the seriousness of the case, if it affects it at all.

Yet there is an attitude among some today almost equal to that of an emotional witch hunt, which demands examples be made of the seven men. That is not justified; the men deserve punishment no more severe than that meted out regularly in other similar cases. They are already up against majority public sentiment (Democratic) in a Washington, D.C. court by having worked for the Republican cause.

Defense Costs

Only a few years ago, in the late sixties, the percentage of the U.S. taxpayer's defense dollar which went to salaries and personnel costs was about one third.

By next year it's estimated sixty per cent of each defense dollar will go to salaries. Thus, whereas only five years ago the taxpayer was buying weapons and hardware with two-thirds of each defense dollar, next year he will buy weapons with only forty cents of each dollar.

In other words, a 2.4 million-man defense force will be paid more next year than a 3.5 million-man force was paid in 1968. Obviously, savings must be made in weapons, if this trend continues, or the defense budget vastly increased.

Savings in weapons are often impossible, because of inflation; logically, then, personnel costs must be one source of the solution. Automatic pay increases for defense employees should be terminated.

Likewise, the draft should be continued for non-combat service. One reason personnel costs are skyrocketing is that higher pay and other costly benefits are being offered in an effort to create an all-volunteer military service.

There is much merit in all youngsters serving the nation, as a duty, for one or two years, however; this hasn't proven harmful to other generations, but helpful.

The decision to end the draft this summer was based on a naive concept. No western nation has ever maintained a defense force of two million persons voluntarily, and none probably ever will, and remain solvent.

Just As Soon
Caller—I'd like you to paint a portrait of my late uncle.
Artist—Bring him in.
Caller—I said my late uncle.
Artist—Well, bring him in as soon as he gets here.

A Matter Of Fit
The floorwalker of a department store noticed a young man looking very confused, so he went to him and asked, Floorwalker—Can I help you, sir? You seem puzzled about something.
Fellow—I am, I was supposed to buy either a camisole or a casserole, but so help me, I can't remember which.
Floorwalker (amiably) -- Perhaps, I can help you if you will tell me what sort of chicken you intend putting in it.

Very Clear
Two women were standing in the snow discussing the fuel shortage.
"Yes, that's it," said one. "If we'd have got the cold winter in the summer when it's warmer instead of in the winter, we'd be able to do without a fire and save fuel."

Not Worth It
Aunt—No man would catch me running along a beach in a costume like that.
Niece—I don't think he would try Auntie.
