He stopped, and the meter said $3.60. I gave him a five and indicated it was his.

No doubt he could tell I was a country boy, because as he let me out he warned me to be careful crossing the street, because the traffic was rough, and they would not mind running over me.

But he was real nice, had heard about the NY City Cabbies.

Every person, some time in life should go to New York and ride the sub way trains. It is an experience not to be forgotten. They have double tracks and two kinds of trains. The locals stop about every two blocks and pickup the local traffice. The Express trains stop only about every 12 or 15 blocks, and move very fastly.

There never seems to be a time you can not board a train. It may seem full, but people will continue to crowd on.

The Train cars are quite long, and have two sets of double doors on each side. Of course you use the doors on the dock side, and the dock is the same level as the floor of the car.

A train may consist of five or six cars, long enough to completely parallel the dock.

A car can be completely full, pull up to the station, and within about 10 seconds it unloads and loads again, and is on its way again.

You buy tokens to ride the train. Then the fare was 20¢, You get this as you go down into the subway system. And then you can ride, and change cars and continue to ride as long as you wish, until you come up out of the my son. They pointed all the way across the building, to his desk. I started to park my bags by the wall, and walk across to where he was, but I was warned I had better take them with me.

There no one trusts anvone else.

Then, with this in mind, I had another very skocking experience.

Charles lived over in Staten Island. To get to Staten Island from Manhattan, you caught the ferry, went out the harbor channel, by the Statue of Liberty, a ride of about 30 minutes. One day about noon we decided to walk about five blocks from their high rise apartment to the shopping center and have lunch. So I decided to take a suit and have it pressed.

Well, we passed the pickup station for cleaners, and I left my suit, with the elderly lady that was in charge.

Then we walked about a half block on down the street to the restaurant to eat.

About 45 minutes later we were walking back, and imagine to my surprise as we passed the cleaning shop, I heard a woman in a loud voice say 'Mr. Richards." I turned and looked and it was the lady. She said she had found some money in my suit pocket, and handed me the $25 in cash I had left in the suit. My son anddaughter inlaw almost fell over. They said it was a one-in-a million happening, a n d that must be my day. My first visit to New York was quite exciting.

Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Healer will be honored on Sunday, July 14, with an open house in celebrating the 50th anniversary of their wedding, hosted by their children and grand children, at the community center in Jayton from 3 o'clock until five o'clock in the afternoon.

July 4th

On the Fourth of July of every year the people of this country take note of the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, which ranks as one of the most important documents of history.

In it, Thomas Jefferson, the author, set forth the inalienable rights of man and the theory that governments are instituted by men, not set up by God, and, therefore, derive their powers from the consent of the governed. This was something of a revolutionary doctrine in 1776. Moreover, the Declaration makes plain the right of the people to alter or abolish their government and to institute a new government in such a form as they may deem most likely to provide for their safety and happiness. The historic Fourth has become identified as a day of leisure, marked by deaths, accidents, games and amusement, but there are occasional programs which point out the significance of the Declaration and the principles that it expresses, too often forgotten.

Federal School Controls

For twenty years Congress defeated proposals for federal financing of public schools because most parents feared giving up local control of their schools.

In the end, the barrier of resistance was overcome (during the Johnson Administration) and massive federal aid to the public schools was begun. With that came increased conrols (although the Supreme Court had already, in 1954, ordered an end to so-called separate but equal schools).

The most recent new controls proposed by the Secretary of Education and Welfare, Casper Weinberger, concern sex ducation and school scholarships -among other things. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare now prooses boys and girls get their sex education in the same lass, even in elementary schools, for one thing.

For another, it says colleges cannot assist clubs, fraernities, and sororities, etc., that limit membership to one ex. Another federal proposal is that differing curfews for ifferent college dormitories be eliminated as discrimina-

While one accepts federal financial aid for the schools, ist what opponents of federal aid predicted is now hapening. Bureaucrats in Washington are setting up rules for Il elementary, secondary and college level institutions. nless these rules are obeyed, schools will lose their fedal money, which by now they have come to depend on.

General guidelines for schools, from Washington, are aceptable. More than that is undesirable. Few Americans, nd even fewer parents, want Washington bureaucrats tellg local community school officials what rules they must llow on such minor questions as mixed or unmixed classes r sex education. Congress or the President should curb is HEW intrusion, however well-meaning.

etter Mileage

This fall's new automobiles will get better gas mileage an earlier models with anti-pollution devices, and much tter mileage than experts felt likely just a year ago.

The latest estimate is that many 1975 models will achi gain of twenty per cent or better over 1974 models. Rus Il E. Train, administrator of the Federal Environmental rotection Agency, says that agency's earlier 7 per cent provement estimate was too conservative.

Some estimates for General Motors cars are that gas savgs of better than twenty per cent are possible on some 75 models. The increased mileage is due to improved anti-Ilution devices.

Those who have recently bought gas guzzlers may evenally benefit from the new technique also, though all that's rtain now is that new-car buyers will get more miles per llon-which will tend to reduce fuel consumption. That, d continued observance of the 55 m.p.h. speed limit, could event a new fuel shortage in coming months.

ough Steak?

If your steak is tougher lately (if still eating steak) i ay be because today's beef steers are not being sold to eders before slaughter.

The Department of Agriculture says operators of feeder ts, who normally fatten steers for slaughter with corn, we been forced to curtail operations because of the high ost of corn and lower prices being paid for beef on the of. That squeeze has already produced losses for many

Thus the steak you eat today often comes from a steer old by the cattleman directly to the slaughter house. In at case, instead of corn the steer would have eaten grass the ranch or farm before being slaughtered.

The answer may lie in lower corn prices, reduced middlein profits or higher beef prices, again. Whatever it turns t to be, perhaps a combination of the above, steaks might slightly tougher for a time.

HARVESTING and Planting of several crops in this hig State are going on at the same time. The first bale of rotton of Texas' No. 1 crop was ginned June 10, while cotton planting was going on on the Low and High Plains, Crispin Gamez, who had the first bale in 1971 and 1972 brought the first bale to Pharr, in the Rio Grande Valley. Most of the 1974 cotton crop has been planted but there is some replanting of cotton hailed out on the Low and High Plains. Sorghum crops are in about the same situation as cotton, with harvesting underway in the Valley and South Texas and some replanting going on on the Plains where ail and sand damaged some crops. A lot of rice is heading out, and combining may begin any day now. Most of the peanut and soybean crops are planted over the State but ome planting remains to be done.

HAY BALING is underway over much of the State, especially in East Texas where rains have been accommodating. Prospects are good in some areas for third and fourth cuttings. Baling wire and twine shortages and/or orices have been a handicap, running costs of baling higher than they have been in years. Prices on baling wire and ine are about double what they were last year. Ranges, for the most part, are in good condition, except on areas of he Trans-Pecos, Southern High Plains and Edwards Plateau where rain has not been adequate. Polls And Government

Public opinion polls have become highly popular in the United States in recent decades. Not only do they often foretell the outcome of elections, but they also provide the public with entertainment, and to a degree, news.

But public opinion polls, though represented as scientific, are not always reliable. They do not justify government action. Instead, the leaders of the nation must do their best in carrying on the country's official business, as they were elected to do.

If polls were the basis for government action, as some suggest, American governments (administrations) would in reality be operating under the English parliamentary system. Under that system if the government loses majority support (in Commons), it is turned out.

If American governments fell when they lost majority support in public opinion polls, we would have taken a step toward the instability feature of so many western European governments. That was one of the themes behind Secretary of State Kissinger's undiplomatic remark recently (for which he later opologized) that Europe has few legitimate governments, and has had few in recent years.

What Kissinger had in mind was the superiority of the American system because of its stability, which allows an administration four years to accomplish its goal, or eight if the administration wins reelection, as contrasted to the splintered, factionalism of certain western democracies, rendering them almost incapable of continuity of policy.

Most American Presidents would have been turned out of office at one time or another if tenure had been dependent on public opinion. Presidents cannot and should not engage in popularity contests to stay in office. Unless tried by the Senate after impeachment and "fired," they should serve their terms, public opinion polls notwithstanding.

"Seek ye first the Kingdom"

- a weekly message relating the world of today to the lessons of Faith and Church . . .

In the day of prosperity be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider.

-Ecclesiastes VII, 14

An empty row of mailboxes on a long-unpainted wall signify a vacant, unused house. Is this a house that waits for people to come and make it a home again? Perhaps no one will come, only the demolition man with his steel wrecking ball. Time and neglect has brought this house to the day of adversity, and its remaining days are numbered. In the good days of life, let us be joyful, yet still attentive to the needs of the moment. In the midst of happiness, our failure to meet the needs of the NOW time can bring about sadness for tomorrow.
