Use Records To Plan Ahead

College Station.—Were profits made from your farming or ranching operation in 1959? If improvement is needed, consider carefully your plans for the new year.

When good farm records are summarized they may reflect vital points of slack in the business, points out C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist. Some operators are using their financial records primarily for income tax reporting. Others are getting an "extra" dividend of stabilizing their future plans by study of all records. Records may be used somewhat as a mariner's compass to direct the future course of operations.

How many cost reductions be made? One example may be by study of the major item of operating costs—that of machinery and equipment, says the specialist. As mechanization and labor-saving practices are extended to more operations, ownership of some equipment items may become prohibitive for smaller farms. Volume of business is often insufficient to justify overall investment costs. Careful consideration should be given to custom service or joint ownership of equipment items if savings will result.

Similarly, such practices as the purchase of feed in bulk or during seasons of lowest prices may reduce costs in livestock operations. A small percentage saving on major, recurring cost items can boost profits materially.

Now is the time to review last year's business to plan adjustments prompted by the current outlook situation. Also, emphasizes Bates, consideration should be given to every opportunity for reducing operations costs per unit of output.

Use your farm records in discussing plans for 1960 operations if assistance is desired from county extension agents. Records, Bates adds, may be especially helpful where credit is needed to expand or adjust operations.

See your local county agricultural agent for assistance in record keeping and management problems. Where intensive management problems exist, your county agent has access to trained specialists in the field of management.

Use Records To Plan Ahead

College Station.—Were profits made from your farming or ranching operation in 1957? If improvement is needed, consider carefully your plans for the new year.

Now is the time to review last year's business to plan adjustments prompted by the current outlook situation. Also, emphasizes Bates, consideration should be given to every opportunity for reducing operations costs per unit of output.

Use your farm records in discussing plans for 1958 operations if assistance is desired from county extension agents. Records, Bates adds, may be especially helpful where credit is needed to expand or adjust operations.

See your local county agricultural agent for assistance in record keeping and management problems. Where intensive management problems exist, your county agent has access to trained specialists in the field of management.

Employer Must Withhold Farm Workers Taxes

Farmer and rancher-employers with one or more employees are being asked two questions by John J. Sloan, Administrative Officer, of Internal Revenue Service, Plainview.
 "Have you paid an employee $150 or more in cash wages during 1959, or has the employee performed agricultural labor for you on 20 or more days during 1959 for cash wages figured on a time basis?"
 If your employees meet either of these two tests you must withhold social security tax from the cash wages paid to these employees at the rate of 2 1/2 per cent, together with another 2 1/2 per cent representing your share as the employer, must be sent to the IRS, district director in Dallas.
 Sloan says that farmers and ranchers subject to this tax are required to file a return, Form 943, with their district director of Internal Revenue before January 31 of the year following the year covered by the return.
 IRS recommends Circular A for non-technical explanations of Uncle Sam's rules for withholding of social security Tax from farm employees' wages.

INCOME TAX FAX

Agriculture teachers should be on the lookout for the order blank for the Teaching Taxes materials sent to the school principals by the Internal Revenue Service this past year. Thousands of farm boys and girls have been through the Teaching Taxes course designed especially for farm students during the past few years.
 The Teaching Taxes Program provides excellent teaching unit agriculture teachers. If your principal did not receive the material, contact Jim Hodges, Chief Administration Division, 2101 Pacific Avenue, Dallas, or call Riverside 8-5611, ext. 2286.

Ball And Bag Winners
 The two top bowlers during the Christmas and New Years week were given their choice of a beautiful bowling bag or a pair of top quality bowling shoes. There was a prize for each, a man and a woman. It so happened that the winning team in the Holiday Doubles also won the added attraction. It was not planned this way. They did it themselves.
 Mozelle Owens, the women's winner with a tremendous 599 scratch plus 102 pins handicap, ran off with a whopping 701.
 Jimmy Herring banged out a man sized 656 plus 78 pins handicap for an over-whelming 734 series. These prizes will also be awarded Thursday night.
 Football audiences estimated at 6,000,000 Texas citizens witnessed half-time shows staged by 530 school bands during the 1958-59 season.
 More than 11,000 junior and senior high school students entered 201 different solo and ensemble contests sponsored by the League in 1958-59.

PCG Objectives For Cotton Set

Directors of the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. adopted an eight-point set of objectives to apply to future farm legislative proposals in the last official meeting of 1959, held Dec. 17 in Lubbock. The group did not adopt a specific proposal for an overall farm program, but agreed on eight objectives as "broad principles" upon which the organization can stand until a farm bill is proposed.

The objectives call for a program "to protect farm income" and permit farmers to use land and equipment more effectively and efficiently. A one-price system for cotton to both domestic and foreign mills also was advocated. The group also agreed that a program is needed to reduce the surplus and prevent accumulation of new surpluses beyond that necessary for market stability, national defense or emergency. It should also provide means for orderly marketing and stability in price.

Another objective called for a program to increase consumption of cotton and expand production as needed. Cotton also should be made competitive in price and quality to synthetic fibers and foreign production.

The final two objectives called for a program to return cotton marketing to its normal channels of trade and to provide a public relations program designed to give the American public a true picture of agriculture.

PCG directors also toured the pilot spinning plant at Texas Tech and discussed cotton trailer licensing, farm labor issues, the vegetable oil situation and proposals by the American Cotton Producers Association and the Texas Cotton Association.

Wilmer Smith, vice president, announced that the USDA has announced that there will be no change in the skip-row planting program. Farmers will be permitted to plant this method if they so wish.

Visits To Area By Grain Sorghum Teams Pays Off

England paid hundred thousand dollars ($1,000,000.00) for the grain sorghum shipped to England from the United States. The main reason for the export of sorghum is that it is less expensive than corn. Tokoro has asked his government to send a team of specialists to the United States to visit in this area and study the nutritional value and milling procedures concerning grain sorghum.

Tokoro did not stop in Abernathy due to bad weather setting in. This was the first time the government of Greece has sent a team of specialists to the United States to study the nutritional value and milling procedures concerning grain sorghum.

Due to the efforts of Dean Thomas, who set up an American Farm School in Greece, sponsored by Americans, Greece has for the first time imported grain sorghum into that country.

The importing of grain sorghum into Greece was made possible by Public Law 480 whereby the government of Greece buys grain from the U. S. government. Thomas, through his efforts in the farm school feeding operations, persuaded the government officials to import a certain amount of grain sorghum for feeding operations.

First Football Plan for high schools in Texas was offered by the Interscholastic League in 1915. There were no districts set up and no organization provided for determining district, regional or state champions. There were many claims to championships by various high school teams during the period of 1915 to 1920 but none were official in any respect. Roy Bedichek, Athletic Director of the League in 1920, organized the first official state championship. Teams were not assigned to districts but were selected on the basis of their record and organized for a state play-off under the League's direction. The first official state championship game between Houston Heights (Houston) and Cleburne and resulted in a 0-0 tie. The game was played at Clark Field in Austin in the mud. Teams were first assigned to districts in 1921 and from that time up to the present there have been organized progressive play-offs in the state championships in football among our Texas high schools.

More Acres For 1960 Beet Crop

The U. S. Department of Agriculture announced today that the national acreage limitation for 1960-crop sugar beets has been established at 985,000 acres.

Except for a small reserve, this acreage has been allocated to States for distribution as proportionate share (individual farm acreage allotments in response to requests to be filed by farm operators on or before January 29, 1960. (Texas received 1,905 acres for the 1960 crop year, compared with an allocation of 1,781 acres in 1959).

The allocation is 60,000 acres more than the 925,000 acres allocated for the 1959 crop and exceeds somewhat the acreage recommendations of the majority of representatives of sugar beet producers and processors as submitted several months ago.

Since these recommendations were submitted, the 1959 beet sugar quota has been increased significantly and marketing allotments for beet sugar companies have been rescinded. Increased marketing opportunities in 1959 resulted primarily because of the prorating of deficits in marketings from other domestic sugar producing areas.

The acreage to be planted under the 1960-crop allocation is expected to yield sufficient sugar to meet presently anticipated beet sugar quota and carryover requirements.

The allocations for the 22 sugar beet-producing States have been established under the formula proposed by the Department at an informal public hearing in Denver on June 25, 1959, which met with almost unanimous approval. The formula recognizes for each State its 1959-crop allocation and average 1955-58 acreages.

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) State Committees will establish proportionate share area allotments and individual farm shares from State allocations. The use of formulas involving three, four or five of the 1955-59 crop years is required for new producers.

Although the provisions of the 1960 determination are generally similar to those for the 1959 crop, a number of minor changes have been incorporated to improve operations.

Farm operators desiring proportionate shares for their farms should file requests by January 29, 1960 on special forms which will be available through the ASC County Office and fieldmen of beet sugar companies. Copies of the effective procedures will be available for reference in these offices.

Protection Against Big Bills

For protection against big medical and hospital bills, the average American family today spends about $75 a year in insurance premiums. That's a good buy—no question. The partners and planners knew they must make A-1 a top-notch bowling place in order to compete with bowling houses in Lubbock. A-1 is not as large, but it is equally as nice as any in Lubbock.

Abernathy can be justly proud of his bowling place. It is a wonderful thing for the community. When there's nothing on their schedule, everyone likes to have a place to go and something to do, and A-1 has provided both.

Back to Sonny. He makes me feel my age... in actual years and years in newspapering. I knew his father, the late W. H. (Hop) Graham, who ran the Tribune before him.

The Interscholastic League first conducted track and field meets in 1913 but they were invitational and did not in any way involve an organized championship. During the school year 1920-21, an organized, progressive state championship was organized and during this year the first official track and field championships were determined. The winners were Sherman in Conference A and Rosenberg in Conference B.

"What the judge, who has handled thousands of juvenile cases in Denver has through—and not too tired—read a book.

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment. You: City or village does not owe you a living... You owe the world something. You owe it your time and energy and your talents so that no one will be at war or in poverty or sick or lonely again.

"In plain simple words, GROW UP; quit being a cry-baby. Get out of your dream world and develop a backbone, not a wishbone, and start acting like a man or a lady."

greater love that they have shown before in the lavish gifts of material things and extraneous freedoms which their children have not been trained to utilize properly or appreciate.

They can return the home to its central place of importance in the American way of life, in the Levelland way of life. But before they can cry out in unison, "Go home, teen-ager," they must first make sure they have a home—a real home—for him to go to.

Delinquent children? The charge of delinquency has been as frequently leveled at the parents who gave them life, and perhaps justly so.

They have promoted rather than discouraged the unholy alliance among children who take a mile, inch by inch with the tormented fearful cry, "everybody else is doing it." Parents have been soft-hearted and yielding, and at the same time soft-headed when they have relinquished by neglect, and through lack of strong personal ideals of their own, the rearing of their children to their neighbors.

They have left instruction about God to the Sunday school teacher and the preacher, instruction in the basic tools of learning to the school teacher alone, and in the knowledge of the personal matters of life and love to the filthy scribbles on the restroom walls and the commercial pornography of a sick publishing industry.

They have been great contributors of money, as witnessed by the stacks of toys for the younger kids, and automobiles for the older ones. Such organizations as the Community Chest, and Boy Scouts and the summer baseball programs—all good within themselves—are further indications of the willingness of the American people to give of their money.

But where parents have fallen short is in giving of themselves as they also have given of their money.

How many of the parents have volunteered as managers of Little League teams, and how many have become cubmasters of scoutmasters, showing real personal interest in the work and play of their children.

How many have taught their children to be God-fearing by being God-fearing themselves? How many have gone with their children to church and Sunday school, rather than sending them? How many have knelt with them to pray? How many have taught them to be sober and law abiding by themselves abstaining from drunkenness and by obeying to the smallest detail the letters of the laws of honesty—on the highways, in the home and in business? How many have taught their children to be considerate for others by themselves being considerate?

You haven't done these things? Then maybe you as a parent should make a covenant with yourself and your child today. Tell him that, first, you'll make him a home and that you'll be a decent parent who'll make tougher demands, but who'll walk the distance with him.

Tell him you'll open your home to him and his friends. Form an alliance, born both of love and reason, with the neighbors and the parents of his friends to see that they do the same; that when you demand more of him than you've ever demanded of him before, you're going to ask his friend's parents to do the same with their own children.

Tell him that you're not going to relinquish the shaping of his life to people who have standards of conduct, religious principals, ideals or goals in life that are lower than your own.

Tell him that you're completely responsible for his life, and that you're going to hold him responsible to you for it.

Then you'll be in a position to say to him, "Come home, son. Stay home."

When he does, then make sure that you give him more than you have ever given him before—not of the material things, not of free time with nothing to do, but of love, of your own time, of your own personal guidance.

Maybe gradually at first, give him more responsibility than he's ever had before. Turn off the TV set or put down that magazine and see that he meets it. Praise him more, appreciate the smallest success, encourage in the face of failure and disappointments. Share with him more of your thoughts and aspirations, and tell him why living life your way is better than living it some other way.

And if it isn't then do the inward soul searching that will make your way of life better than it is.

In short, parents GROW UP. You may have to do it, too, you know, to command the respect of that son or daughter.

It may be a new way of life. But you'll be better for it. And so will your child.

Tech newspaper when he was a student in the Lubbock College, and continued it in his Ralls Banner. The school board, city council, churches, corporations and individuals felt the wrath of his column. He pulled no punches in fearlessly saying what he thought on any subject, local, county, state or national.

Joiner's reputation in this respect mushroomed with publicity in trade journals and political sheets over the state. It grew so big, in fact, that Joiner and Ralls hit the big time. He was written up in grand style in TIME and was that magazine's guest on a trip to New York City where he appeared as a guest on a national television program, viewed in this area over KCBD-TV.

The TIME and TV publicity won for Joiner the offer which took him from Ralls to California and the trade journal editorship. Another result of the publicity was a deluge of subscriptions to The Ralls Banner from people in all 50 states and in eight foreign countries.

There are people in Ralls who are glad California now has Joiner, and there are some who think Ralls has lost a good editor. There may even be some newspapermen on the Plains who are a wee bit glad Joiner has gone to California. None of us match Joiner's journalistic fire-eating. None of us gained for our respective towns the nation-wide publicity enjoyed by Ralls. Joiner was the movie, television and fiction story version of what a small town weekly editor should be. While serving as editor of The Ralls Banner, Joiner was shot at, sued, cursed and threatened by the victims of his barbed journalism.

I have seen editors come and editors go from papers on the Plains since starting on The Review in 1932, and Joiner was the most colorful and controversial of them all.

To the people of Ralls, take your choice of the following statements: "Joiner was a good editor, the kind our town needed."

"Joiner kept our town, school and community in a state of chaos and confusion during the 14 years he was here, and I am glad he is in California."

PLAN YOUR FERTILIZER PROGRAM AROUND A SOIL TEST

An inventory of your soil now will provide a basis for planning a fertilizer program which will supply needed plant nutrients and help your crops produce nearer their potential.

A soil test will give this inventory by determining the level of usable nutrients in the soil, according to Ollie Liner, County Agent.

Soil tests are somewhat like finding out your bank balance. If it is low, it should be replenished. If it is well filled, you're in good shape.

Slowly available nutrients which are not available now but will be in the future are important as well as readily usable nutrients. Fertilizer recommendations based on soil tests take both forms into consideration.

Farmers should plan now to take inventory of their soil by getting a soil test. Local county agents can provide advice and assistance in taking a soil sample and submitting it for testing.

SLOW DOWN AND LIVE—THIS WINTER

DRIVING FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW

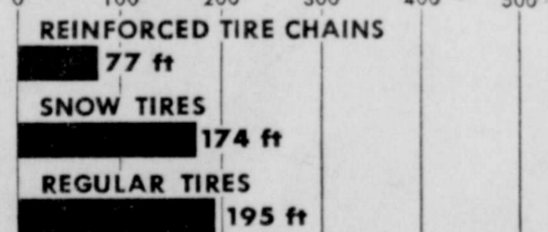

STARTING ABILITY ON ICE
Traction ratings, based on hundreds of tests, measure the pulling or hill-climbing ability of tires and chains on glare ice conditions. Index is expressed at 100 for regular tires.

STARTING ABILITY ON SNOW
Traction ratings, based on draw bar pull tests on loosely packed snow, also indicate relative ability to pull through deep snow or climb hills.

STOPPING ABILITY ON ICE
Average braking distances, based on tests from 20 MPH on glare ice. For comparison, average braking distance of regular tires on dry pavement at same speed is 21 feet, on glare ice 195 feet.

STOPPING ABILITY ON SNOW
This shows the comparative stopping ability of regular and snow tires and reinforced tire chains on loosely packed snow, from 20 MPH.

EFFECT OF TEMPERATURE
Rising temperatures make ice more slippery. A car with regular tires, moving at 20 MPH on glare ice, requires 114 ft. at 0° and 235 ft. at 30° above. Reinforced tire chains provide consistently shortest stops, about 77 ft., regardless of temperatures.

STOPPING ABILITY ON DRY PAVEMENT

REGULAR TIRES 21 ft

Above charts, provided by the Texas Safety Association, Inc., illustrate test results by National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards. For each "braking distance" above you must add 22 feet, which is distance traveled during average "reaction time" needed to think and get your foot on brake after seeing a reason to stop. Skidding and reduced visibility are the major added hazards of winter. Can you see and stop in time? Are your windshield wiper blades giving clear, streak-free visibility? Does your defroster work?
