NUMBER TWENTY-ONE

Large Crowds Flock to Haskell Frontier Days And Rodeo

We love a Parade! Said about 4000 Haskell Countians, as they gathered in and around the square in Haskell last Thursday afternoon to watch a mile-long procession of bands, riding clubs, bicycles, tractors, trucks, cars and otherwise moving contraptions pass their review.

"Miss Hey Day," Rhonda Woodard, "Little Miss Hey Day," Terri Gideon, and "Miss Cotton" of Haskell County, Debbie Campbell of Weinert, graced the parade with their beauty.

A model "T" looking vehicle honorably carried the reigning "Frontier Day Queen," Mrs. H. O. (Sue) Abbott, as well as runners-up Mrs. Waymond McBroom and Mrs. A. C. Richardson.

1969 Rodeo Queen Glenda Gayle Chapman and Haskell County Sheriff's Posse hosted seven visiting riding clubs, including Martin County Sheriff's Posse; Seurry County Sheriff's Posse; Fischer County Sheriff's Posse; Fischer County Junior Riding Club; Nolan County Sheriff's Posse; Stonewall County Sheriff's Posse; Stamford Junior Sheriff's Posse.

The Haskell High and Junior High School bands played "Duke" Gay and Roger Sharp, caged in the county jail they had been convicted of stealing, rode less than willingly on a truckbed, beset by frightened young ladies, an example to the good people of Haskell of what not to be jallbirds!

Leiza Nanette Morales, 7 month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Snuffy Morales, was the youngest entry in the parade. She rode spirited black Taylor Buck, complete with cowboy boots, pants and vest—and diaper, securely held by her mother, Nancy.

Following the parade more than 300 persons were served a "sumptuous" chuckwagon dinner at the Corral Building, catered by Felker's Restaurant.

Two Aspects To Consider In The Selection of Curtains, Draperies

A homemaker selecting curtains or draperies for the house has two aspects to consider: she wants to make sure the curtains or draperies look good from the outside, and she wants to be sure they are attractive when seen from inside the house.

The window wardrobe problems can be solved easily with these suggestions from Mrs. Barbara Elliott, County Home Demonstration Agent.

Start with the best quality fabrics available. Good quality curtains will hang better and laundry or dry clean much more safely.

Eliminate the possibility of draperies hanging unevenly by placing them on the rod, unhemmed, and pinning the hemline into position, as with a dress.

Sheer undercurtains should be still-length at kitchen, nursery and bathroom windows. Floor-length sheers should be used for the more formal settings of living and dining rooms.

Mrs. Elliott suggests the French custom of extra-deep hems on draperies. Floor-length styles can use a six to ten-inch hem. The tighter the fabric, the deeper the hem. A heavy velvet will look elegant with a six to seven inch hem. A printed linen or cotton chintz could take 10 inches.

Careful installation is another detail that pays off. Drapery rods must hang at the same height on both sides of the window and be parallel with the ceiling line.

Extra rod supports may be needed to prevent sagging draperies on wide windows. Heavy-weight drapery treatment dictates the use of heavy duty brackets with related hardware.

Decorative wooden poles need lacquering, not painting, to provide a slick surface over which the curtain rings ride smoothly.

Good curtain construction includes straight seams and hems, with patterns carefully matched. It also includes clipped-off selvage edges. If the curtains are unlined, with narrow, handsewn side hems.

The girls and their directors extend a special invitation to the public to share with them their last time together in song.

Present members who will present Sunday's concert are: Judy Therwhanger, Rhonda Woodard, Diana Davis, Sue Wilkinson, Susan Wainscott, Karen Pippin, Cathy Money, Pat Harris, Katie Darnell and Ellen Walling. Many Exes are expected home to join the girls under their rainbow for the traditional singing of The Lord's Prayer, which will officially end the Nine-Teens. The program will feature many of the songs that have become favorites with Nine-Teen audiences. The girls feel this only fitting that in their last moment of glory that they should bring back many "moments to remember." "This is the end of a perfect day, near the end of a journey, too." The end of a perfect twelve years will long be remembered as "over the rainbow" goes the memory of the Nine-Teens.

Mink's Little Luxuries Sing a Spring Salute

NEW YORK (ED)—Younger than springtime, apple-blossom soft . . . the mini-minks are the little luxuries that make a girl think spring. Newest, now, are the tiny wraps; just enough fur for graceful gliding, just in time for the return of The Lady to fashion's favor. No wild beasts, here. The Embea elegancies are bred to their calling: keeping a lady good company, through all the sweet sociabilities of this soft-spoken spring.

Life Of Haskell's Troy Post Is Truly A 'Rags To Riches' Story

Troy Victor Post hasn't traveled far in his 63 years... from a four-room shack in Haskell, to metropolitan Dallas.

Yet, the small farm where he grew up was a million dreams away from the world of high finance where it takes an icy-nerved, wheeler-dealer to survive.

But Troy Victor Post bridged the huge gap to hammer out a personal fortune which he estimates at $100 million. Others insist he is worth twice that much.

A few years ago, it was estimated that Post quietly and carefully controlled organizations with assets of more than $2 billion.

The boy who lived in the crowded shack with four other brothers and sisters became the man who rules an empire that is involved in insurance, banking and real-estate and other projects.

A straight-forward kind of man, Post said last year, "If I wanted to do it, I believe that within 10 years I could be the richest man in the United States... or in the world."

Post points out there was nothing glamorous or instantaneous about his success. In a recent interview, he said:

"It wasn't any get-rich-quick business. I made it in the area of hard finance in which length of time is a necessary ingredient."

"My motto has been to live and let live. I've never been a hard trader. If I wanted something another man had, I made a good offer. In many instances, the people I traded with got what they first asked for."

"Certainly I've been aggressive... that's really part of a man's makeup. He sees and seizes every opportunity."

"I don't believe a man can chisel his way into a fortune. He may be a tough, hard nut

... but he ages in the process." However, Post doesn't appear to have mellowed one bit.

When he was 6, his father gave up trying to scrape out a living from the farm and the family moved to Waco. His father tried his hand at real estate, but that venture failed and he went broke when young Troy was a sophomore in high school.

Post quit school and got a job as a delivery boy, at a grocery store. His brothers and sisters also dropped out of school to help support the family.

The Post family had to struggle to make ends meet in those days. But hard-working Troy managed to save enough money to take a printing course at a Fort Worth vocational school.

His first job was in the print shop of the First National Bank in Fort Worth, and for a year he made $80 a month.

Then he accidentally overheard that a similar printing job was opening in an insurance company. He applied and was given the position at a salary of $150 a month.

Two years later, when he was 22, Post decided to check the job opportunities in Dallas. He heard of the Fidelity Union Life Insurance Co., and its rapid progress under Carr P. Collins, Sr. He applied for the job as an insurance agent and was hired.

"There were just four of us in the Dallas office," Post recalled. "I worked long hours, learning everything I could. One Saturday when I was working late in the office, Mr. Collins said he wanted to talk to me."

Collins and Fidelity had decided to recruit 40 to 50 agents and Post was promoted to assistant to the vice-president in charge of agents for the almost unheard of salary of $200 a month in the depression year of 1931.

In 1932, he took a position in Fort Worth as vice-president and agency supervisor of Trinity Life Insurance Company. One year later, at the age of 26, he made the biggest decision of his life.

With $138 in the bank, Post left Fort Worth, returned to his old home town of Haskell and started his own company... Pioneer Life Insurance Co.

"People knew me there," Post said, "as 'that Post kid', and I still had relatives there. I somehow sold every lawyer in the county an insurance policy. Then I'd tell the farmers: 'If you want to know if the policy is good, ask your lawyer.'"

When the operation became too much for him to handle, Post took on a partner, Roy Saunders. Within two years, the firm sold $1 million in policies.

However by then Post was ready to move on, but his partner wasn't. Post bought out Saunders and shifted the operation to Dallas. Pioneer Life remained in Dallas until 1940, when Post and his 150 employees moved to Houston.

With entry into World War II, Post was assigned to the Pentagon (1943-44) as a lieutenant. He was discharged as a major and assistant chief of finances in the Pentagon.

Returning to Houston, he found "some of my buddies had moved in" to control Pioneer Life. Unshaken, he set up a new company in Fort Worth at the end of 1945 with $17,500 borrowed capital.

A new partner, Hubert Foster, also put up $17,500 and Life of America was born. Later the firm's name was changed to American Life of Fort Worth. In just four years, the $35,000 investment had been parlayed into a $4-million dollar business. Again Post decided it was time for a change, so he bought out Foster for $2 million and returned to Dallas.

By 1950, American Life was worth $12 million and was so solid that Post purchased American Life of Alabama.

It wasn't long before the superb wheeler-dealer acquired Franklin Life for $8 million, as well as Gulf Life and Amicable Life.

In 1962, Post created a new corporation called Greatamerica to control all of his business interests. Greatamerica bought First Western Bank and Trust Co. of Los Angeles in 1963 for $68 million, and a controlling interest in Braniff International in 1964.

In January 1968, Post sold Greatamerica to Ling-Temco-Vought for securities valued at $500 million.

MY SCRAPBOOK: SUMMER '70

GOING NATIVE IN HAWAII. I took a long stretch of sunshine in my Celanese Fortrel polyester popcorn knit outfit. Beachy keen, it's impervious to sand, sea and surf, so I had only nice thoughts to think about. Lazed away the hours in the maxi-midriff-exposing long sleeved sweater and matching funnel pants by Alexa, day-dreaming about sun-bronzed men and toying with the idea of never going home!

IN GREECE, TAKING THE ADVICE OF my own private oracle, I made it to Delphi in a Celanese Arnel skirt and striped Arnel undershirt, both by Century of Boston, without a wrinkle, with a minimum of washing.

AND HERE I AM IN TAHITI—pretending to be a castaway on my own special island. This is as formally dressed as I ever got—in a long shape of Celara Acetate by Lynn Stuart that covers, yet clings to my lines.

GETTING DOWN TO THE KNITTY GRITTY OF Brazil, I landed at the airport, then headed straight for Ipanema. Wrapped both scenes up without changing in my little body knit of Celanese Fortrel by LaContessa. What a carefree way to travel!

Plans Shaping For Cowboy Reunion Rites Are Held Gathering At Stamford July 2, 3, 4 For Brother Of Christine Greene

The 1970 Texas Cowboy Reunion will be held on July 2, 3 and 4 at Stamford, marking the 40th annual gathering for the world's largest amateur rodeo, judged according to the number of entries. The first show was held at the same location as the present performances in 1930 with only 98 contestants, all of whom were working cowhands on area ranches. Since that first show, the Texas Cowboy Reunion has innovated many events such as the Cowgirl Barrel Racing, American Quarter Horse shows, wild cow milking, wild mare racing, cutting horse contests and others with more than 500 contestants every year.

Carl Swenson, chairman of Rodeo events, states that the stock will be furnished by Jack Ratjen, KOW Bell Rodeo, from Mansfield Texas. He expects entries to be even greater than last year.

The Reunion opens with a gigantic street parade in downtown Stamford on the afternoon of July 2 at 4:00 p. m. The parade will be led by Highway patrolmen, Rodeo dignitaries and important visitors with band music furnished by the Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band. This band first played for the Reunion in 1932. It will also play during the performances. Floats, chuck wagons and approximately 20 riding clubs and sheriff's posses will ride in the parade.

Charles Stenholm, Quarter Horse chairman, has announced that Willard Davis will judge the show this year, which is held in connection with the Reunion. Mr. Davis is presently engaged in ranching, buying and training quarter horses at Waxahatchie, Texas. He has judged Quarter Horse shows for 13 years including the Dixie National at Jackson, Miss., the National Cutting Horse Association finals at Las Vegas, Nevada and the National Cutting Horse Futurity.

The schedule of events for the Quarter Horse show are:
Open Youth Activities Show, 8:00 a. m., July 2.
Registered AQHA Halter Class, 8:00 a. m., July 3.
Registered Youth Activities, 1:30 p. m., July 3.
Registered Performance Classes, 7:30 a. m., July 4.

Funeral for Harrison Thomas Hall, 41, who passed away on Wednesday, May 13, in Wichita, Kansas, was held Saturday

Here's a wish for the future... May whatever path of endeavor you choose—be it the business world, further schooling, homemaking or the Armed Forces—hold rich fulfillment of your hopes and also the wealth of knowledge and wisdom that comes only from experiences greeted with an open mind.

Hangover cure.

Nobody likes a sloppy range. Especially if it's a result of hangover heat. After all, heat that hangs on after your range is turned off isn't your fault. But you have to clean up after it. However, gas ranges turn on and off instantly. No heat's left over to scorch your food, burn your pans or cause food to boil over. Buy a new gas range, sure-cure for hangover heat.

Maidens Beat Some of Own Records But Fail To Qualify At State Meet

Last Friday, before a large crowd that almost filled the field stands, the Haskell Maidens track team bettered some of their own records but failed to place at the meet held at ACC stadium in Abilene.

Haskell's record in the 400 relay fell when Helen Cadenhead, Pam Colbert, Nancy Middleton and Paula Middleton, ran a 5:0.4, shaving 2.3 seconds off the old 52.8 record. Angleton won first in state with a 49.2 time. Mary Elliott, Pam Colbert, Nancy Middleton and Paula Middleton comprised the team that ran 1:52.3 in the 880 relay in regional competition. They bettered that with a 1:49.9 at Abilene. Rivercrest won that event with a 1:45.4 showing on the stopwatch.

Rivercrest also took first in the mile relay at 4:07.2. Haskell's team, Chapman, P. Middleton, Colbert and Klose, were clocked at 4:28, 1.6 seconds better than their regional record. ACC has an all-wheat track.

Haskell failed to win any field events, but now the Maidens know what to expect next year, when they will compete against only Class AA.

Other girls participating in Friday's events were: Debbie Burson, Janice Medford, Karen

STUDENTS SHOULD GET SS CARD FOR THEIR SUMMER WORK
 Thousands of students across the country will go to work for the first time this summer. If you are one of these, you will need your social security number card, according to R. R. Tuley, Jr., district manager in Abilene.

You must apply for a social security account number to get this card. The number on that card is used to keep your record throughout life. No two persons are given the same number.

Your employer will ask for your number as soon as you begin work, and many companies will not hire you until you have a number. If you are a young man about to go into military service, your military records will all be recorded by use of your social security number.

To get a number, or to replace a lost card, you must complete an Application for a Social Security Account Number and submit it to a social security office. The application form may be obtained at any social security office, or the post office in your town.

Although a student is a long way from retirement age, other protection can begin in a very short time, Tuley said. For instance, if you were to become severely disabled while you are still young, you could receive disability benefits if you had worked as little as one and a half years. These benefits would continue for the rest of your life if you did not regain the ability to work.

If you are planning to work this summer, the most important numbers to you probably have dollar signs in front of them. However, your social security number is your key to a more secure future.

Sweep Or Tillage Type Plows Proven To Be Very Successful Tillage Tools

For proper management of small grain residues following harvest, sweep or chisel type plows have proven to be very successful tillage tools, stated Ernest L. Cowger, Soil Conservationist, assisting the California Creek and Wichita-Brazos Soil and Water Conservation District.

When residues are left on the soil surface wind and water erosion is reduced. Soil intake of rain water is increased and surface crusting is prevented. Temperatures of soils with residue cover left on the soil surface are lower during hot months and evaporation is reduced to a minimum.

Crop residues left on or within the soil surface usually demay more readily as large amounts of oxygen are available for use of soil bacteria. Surface roughening tillage to prevent soil blowing, is kept to a minimum through proper residue management, Cowger said.

Residues of 1,000 pounds or more per acre are needed for good soil protection depending on the soil type. Sandy soils are very susceptible to wind erosion and clay soils which are less absorptive are very subject to water erosion.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR WORK

A brief news item may help explain why it is so difficult to obtain repairs on a car or home appliance. It says, this country needs 50,000 more auto mechanics each year, but the actual net increase is only about 16,400. The figures are taken from findings of the U. S. Department of Labor. Another news report notes that college students with the highest academic degree, doctor... philosophy... are among the hardest hit by the shrinking job market. Demand for college graduates in many fields is declining, and one college placement official observes, "... young people are going to have to work a little harder..."

After the millennium of a college education for everyone has been reached, the old virtues of willingness to work and common sense will reassert themselves, and those who possess them in the greatest measure will find opportunities on every side...including the repairing of automobiles.

HASKELL COUNTY HISTORY

30 YEARS AGO (May 24, 1940)

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Sherrill, only living charter members of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, were honored guests at the program last Thursday night observing the Fifteenth Anniversary of the establishment of the church in Haskell. The program was held in the chancel area, was attended by practically every member of the congregation, and a number of visitors. Rev. C. W. Williams, minister of the church, presided during the evening's program, and Rev. Shurley C. Guthrie of Graham was the main speaker. Highlight of the evening was the introduction of Mr. and Mrs. Sherrill as charter members of the church by R. C. Montgomery and a gift of a beautiful lamp from members of the congregation as a memorial of their long and faithful membership and work in the church. Mrs. Carrie Williams presided at the table centered with a birthday cake lighted with fifty candles, and at the conclusion of the program, refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Herren and children and Mrs. Ed Henshaw visited relatives in Sweetwater on Wednesday.

The pre-schoolers were so cute singing their songs, and ending with a Little Miss Muffet song, and all ran away when the spider came to sit by Miss Muffet. They were accompanied by Miss Pauline Roberts.
The first four grades rendered their songs well, and some of them were difficult.
The fifth grade through high school sang several songs. They were accompanied by a string band, Terry Sanders, Donnie King and Chet Forehand, with Mrs. Berry at the drums, and directed by Mrs. Don Davis.
The Seniors served ice cream and cake after the program, which was well attended.
Nine FHA girls and their sponsor, Miss Glenda Hudson, went to the Rice Springs Care Home Sunday to sing hymns to the Golden Ageds. They sang some of their own selections, and also requests of the patients. Then they gathered at the park for a salad dinner and played games.

Activities of The Negro People

By Ethel Phea
Marie Stillwell and Gussie Billington were pianists for the Inspirational Service, Saturday, May 16, at the Independent Baptist Church. O. D. Johnson gave the welcome.
There were about 54 young people and 19 adults present.
Young people were present from Anson, Rule, Rochester and Haskell.
The Community chorus was made up by Karen Johnson, Minnie and Juanita Billington and Beverly Hill. Gussie had the solo lead in "The House Where I Used to Live." Marie had the lead on "Sell Out." You missed a spiritual treat by not being present. The Symposium panelists were: Era Mae Session, Rochester, Mary Kirk and Beverly Hill, Haskell, Charles Dalbert Anson.
A 7 year old boy from Rule named the books of the New Testament. The Rule choir also sang. Selections were given by the Kirk sisters. Beautiful selections were given by the choir from Rochester. George Washington is guitarist for the group.
An address was given by William Jackson of Anson. Mr. Jackson is a member of the Bethsadia Baptist Church, Rev. J. L. Lee, pastor. Mr. Jackson pointed up the point and meaning of the "MOD" expression, "I'm Black and I'm Proud." He emphasized that being Black is not an insult, neither is Proud. He emphasized that being proud is not in the sense that it is being accepted. But to be proud as comes from the dictionary and dignity is to 'Think well of one's self...feeling or showing pleasure or satisfaction in having a becoming sense of what is due one's self, one's position, and one's character: to be proud is also too proud to fight (ignorantly). Being proud of who you are and having a pleasant satisfaction of being who you are."

It was a pleasure to have a young man like Mr. Jackson to speak to the young people. Time and space will not allow to go on about the things concerning youth. People in the congregation were lifted to tears of joy to see the youth in action. Let us pray for our children. One young lady stood and asked would the adults help them to grow up. Can you hear the voice of the lost child in the woods? Let us turn our eyes to our youth. Instead of criticizing—let's see if we can help. Let us pray for a youth revival. There was a time when our youth were active in the church. Let us pray for that revival. Let us forget what others might think about us as we try to help someone. Then our living will not be in vain.

Locally-Led Conservation Programs Have Reduced Forms of Pollution

Locally-led conservation programs have dramatically reduced many forms of pollution and have improved the quality of our environment, according to Clyde W. Graham, head of the Soil Conservation Service for Texas and J. C. Yeary, Jr., District Conservationist for the SCS at Haskell.

"Many of us who have been concerned with conservation for a long time find it a little startling that our goals of conservation, purer water, and a better environment are now in the middle of a national crusade," Graham said. "Reforestation, establishing grasses and legumes, terracing, and other conservation practices installed by Texas landowners have had a big impact on pollution abatement."

The SCS has been giving technical assistance to local soil and Ready To Move Outdoors?

On a hot summer day, nothing is more refreshing than a shaded garden filled with an array of colorful blooms. And now's the time to start planning that move outdoors, especially if you enjoy tubers like the Belgian Begonia.

One of the reasons begonias enjoy widespread popularity is their long blooming season—from early June until the first frost, usually in September. But to get the most out of these tubers, they should first be planted indoors about six weeks before transplanting them in your garden.

Start the tubers only after a pink sprout appears, using either shallow nursery boxes or pots. Basically, the planting medium should be a mixture of peat moss or leaf mold and sand. Place the tubers evenly in the boxes with only the sprout tips showing.

After the first watering, the tubers being their real growth—slow at first, then much more rapid, especially if the temperature is right (60-75 degrees) and they are receiving strong, but not direct lighting. You'll see the roots emerging, the "eyes" changing into good-sized shoots, and tiny leaves beginning to sprout. After about three to four inches of growth, your Belgian Begonias are ready for the big move outdoors.

Belgian Begonias will flourish in pots, window boxes and garden beds as long as two basic requirements are met—plenty of full indirect lighting and rich, sandy soil that's properly fertilized. Aside from these two musts, begonias require very little care throughout the summer months.

While the "care and feeding" of begonias is simple, the rewards can only be termed magnificent. Belgian begonias come in a dazzling variety of colors and sizes, ranging from pure whites to deep scarlets. With proper care they'll keep your garden in a blaze of color—even after the leaves have started to fall.

water conservation districts with conservation programs since 1939, according to Graham.

"Sediment, for example, is the largest pollutant of water," Graham said. "Sediment washes from unprotected land into streams and lakes. The soil particles can carry disease and wastes, ruin fishing and increase the cost of purifying water."

"More than 30 years of conservation work by the landowners of this country has greatly reduced the volume of soil washing from rural lands," he continued.

Graham pointed out that a large portion of sediment pollution today comes from urban construction sites, road banks, parking lots, and other nonfarm uses. He said many conservation practices that are effective on farmland can also be used to curb nonfarm erosion.

"Air pollution from agricultural sources is a rare, localized problem now," Graham added. "But wind-blown soil from farmland once polluted the air on a grand scale."

"Clouds of dust blew from land that had been mismanaged and over-used, darkening the skies over Washington, New York, and other eastern cities. Air pollution of this magnitude has been eliminated by conservation programs. Permanent cover, tree windbreaks, wind strip-cropping, and better management in many ways are keeping the landowners' soil at home—and out of the air."

"Burning woodlands, prairies and crop residues once sent natural plant nutrients up in clouds of smoke that blanketed the countryside in some parts of Texas for weeks at a time," Graham said. "Now, thanks to enlightened conservation methods, indiscriminate burning is no longer practiced. This source of pollution from our farmlands has been almost eliminated."

"Some people may be surprised to learn that conservation farming reduces the need for chemical pesticides and herbicides which are sometimes guilty of air and water pollution," Graham continued.

"Crop rotations are used to conserve and improve the soil and fight insects, weeds and diseases," he explained. "Certain plants kill nematodes, for example. A rotation to include these plants will help control nematodes."

"The conservation farmer strives to reduce soil loss and run-off," Graham said, "and this reduces the likelihood of fertilizers and chemicals wash-

Baccalaureate And Commencement Services Set For Rule High School

Baccalaureate services for the Rule Senior Class will be Sunday night, May 24, at 8:00 p. m. in the high school auditorium. Baccalaureate speaker will be Pastor Ted Steenblock of the Grade Lutheran Church of Abilene and the Faith Lutheran Church of Sagerton.

Mrs. Bobby Lusk will give the special music. Others on the program will be Marja Beakley, Mr. Ronnie Wood, Rev. Leonard Molone and Delle Davis.

Commencement exercises will be Monday night, May 25, at 8:00 in the auditorium. Mr. W. J. Wilson of Huntsville will be the guest speaker, being introduced by the class president, Sonny Self. Special music will be by Mr. Sam Turner. The class will sing their class song, "somewhere." Marja Beakley will be the pianist for the evening. Others on the program will be the class valedictorian, Bill Jones; the class salutatorian, Marilyn Moore; Superintendent Connor Horton; Mr. Lavon Beakley, high school principal; Mr. Ed Fouts, secretary of the school board, and Mr. Bobby Lusk.

A good example of the positive approach may be seen in the Texas Hill Country. Ranchers are joining with ornithologists in a program to inventory and preserve nesting sites for a songbird of limited range—the golden-cheeked warbler. SCS land-use information is helping locate stands of ash, cedar, which the golden-cheeked warbler must have to build his nest.

"This is a unique example of planning ahead to avoid detrimental activities," Graham said, "but the same positive principle can be used in planning for recreation, industry, housing developments, and the like. Such planning should begin with the land and its related resources."

Graham said that most conservation work is done in rural areas by farmers and ranchers—but that the technical help that has been proven successful in rural programs is also available for nonfarm use.

Yeary stated that salt pollution was becoming an alarming situation in the areas of Haskell and Jones Counties. The problem has been taken under consideration by the Boards of Directors of both the California Creek and Wichita-Brazos Soil and Water Conservation Districts. Information is vitally needed by the Directors to ascertain the extent of salt pollution. If such a problem exists on your farm or ranch, please inform your local Soil Conservation Service technician or conservationist. This information is needed to make a positive approach to the problem.

Graduation exercises for the Rule Eighth Grade will be on Friday night, May 22, at 8:00 in the school auditorium.

Miss Linda Simpson will be the pianist for the evening. Mr. John Greeson, pastor of the Rule Church of Christ, will give the invocation.

Cynthia Carroll will introduce the speaker, the Reverend Luther Molone, of the First Baptist Church.

Elementary principal, Bobby Lusk and Superintendent Connor Horton, will present diplomas and awards. Mr. Ronnie Woods will give the benediction.
