CITY BUILDING CODE SET TO IMPROVE OR ELIMINATE SUB-STD. STRUCTURES

-- By Jacquelyn Smyers

This week Abernathy began a project to improve its appearance. In accordance with the building code adopted by the city in May, a building inspector was hired to inspect and identify substandard buildings and houses. Owners of these structures must bring them up to city standards.

The purpose of the project is to rid the town of abandoned eyesores and unsafe housing. Removal of the worst buildings will provide better sites for commercial construction than are now available. Some buildings in a state of disrepair have historical value. The city will take this into consideration and work with owners to reach a satisfactory solution.

Substandard structures vill be "red tagged" by the inspector. Owners will be notified by the city that the buildings cannot be occupied until they are brought up to standards specified in the city building code. Time limits are set for notification and compliance.

If you think there's a substandard building or house in your neighborhood, call city hall and they'll arrange for an inspection. The inspector will routinely deal first with buildings on Avenue D because that's most noticeable area.

Abernathy's new building inspector is Max Garza, who is a building inspector in Lubbock but lives in Abernathy. New construction must also meet building code standards and, since Garza will be available in Abe mathy only after regular working hours, the city needs co-operation from local builders in asking for inspections two days ahead

Some towns cannot spare water for athletic fields in summer and some lose their grass as a result. ### EMT RANKS NEED MORE VOLUNTEERS

EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICE

(By Jacquelyn Smyers) Abernathy's Volunteer Emergency Medical Service is fast approaching a crisis. The service, which began operations in October 1975. is short on volunteers and in danger of losing more.

In an effort to help the situation, the city of Abernathy has offered to pay each EMS volunteer $100 per month to ease, in a small way, the sacrifices made by volunteers. Some volunteers would welcome the remuneration; others are reluctant to accept it. The service started with 16 trained, qualified volunteers--enough for five crews, three people per crew. It no v operates with 12 people in four crews. Each crew is on call 24 hours a day for one week, on backup duty for another week, then off two weeks. On duty crew members carry pagers with them at all times, stay in town, and are ready to leave work or jump out of bed at a moment's notice to answer Backup crews are calls. similarly restricted. It puts a good deal of pressure on volunteers and their families and ties them down half of each month. NEED REST Nine of the present 12 volunteers have been with the service since it began Councilman Jerry Givens and badly need the rest a six months vacation from duty would provide. There's no prospect of that however until new volunteers can be enlisted and trained.

The volunteers are dedicated people who care about others and want to help the community. Some, however, make their living at jobs in which they get paid by the hour. When
