Last chance to enjoy the Tree Extravaganza

Runnels County publications going online

The Winters Enterprise and Ballinger Ledger, two regional newspapers in Runnels County spanning over two centuries of combined experience in bringing the latest news, announcements, editorials and advertisement to area residents, entered last week into a new era by going live with a new website.

From now on, by typing www.MyRunnelsCounty. com in the address bar of your web browser, you will gain access to the same news, obituaries, advertisement and photos that have placed both publications among the top choices in readers preference.

The Internet era is also bringing a whole new world to our readers, by continuing the two-way communication that we've always had toward our community, the only difference is that now that will be made in an expedited way. The public will be able to post their own photos, letters, videos and any kind of announcement or community news just by typing and clicking a few clicks in our website.

A few weeks ago our newspapers began this new life cycle by opening a page on Facebook, many friends already "liked" us and are up to date in regional news with our daily posts. We reached the first 100 fans and our community network is growing rapidly.

However, the traditional reader, the one that still enjoys the feel his or her newspaper in the morning, the one that is patiently waiting on Wednesday for the paper to be delivered to the racks, and the one that is waiting for his issue to arrive by mail, has nothing to worry about. Our print edition will not only remain, but it will also be enriched by the content and contributions made by our web page.

The upgrade to our products is made possible thanks to the vision and support by our parent company the Brownwood Bulletin, and American Consolidated Media, a news media corporation with a commitment to the small community journalism with more than 100 publications across nine states.

Times are changing, and as we take advantage of the new technologies our commitment to the same dedicated, accurate and truthful community journalism stays the same.

Remember, stay up to date in news by visiting MyRunnelsCounty.com and follow us in Facebook at Ballinger Ledger.

Conaway says jobs are priority number one

WINTERS ENTERPRISE

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Rep. K. Michael Conaway voted in support of H.R. 3630, The Middle Class Tax Relief and Job Creation Act. The legislation extends a number of provisions scheduled to expire at the end of the year and includes fully paid-for extensions of the payroll tax rate and a reformed unemployment insurance program.

"Plain and simple, priority number one is jobs. This bill addresses that concern right away by expediting the Keystone XL pipeline and rolling back job-crushing EPA regulations, both of which will help create hundreds of thousands of new jobs.

Although this legislation is not perfect, it prevents a tax increase on working families and begins several long delayed reforms to our public assistance programs. These reforms will lay the groundwork for much needed renegotiation of our entitlement programs. According to Rep. Conaway's office this bill will reform the unemployment insurance (UI) program by decreasing the number of weeks from 99 to 59; and lift the ban on drug testing, allowing states to test UI recipients among other measures.

Holiday music fills the air. Bright lights twinkle to herald the season.

At AEP Texas, we never forget the value electricity brings to our lives. That's why we work each day to deliver affordable, reliable electric service and help you stay safe while using it. AEP Texas reminds you to use only safety-approved holiday lights and extension cords, check light strings carefully and never overload outlets. We're more than electricity. We're AEP Texas, connected to your life.

Power meters to be changed in January

RUBEN CANTU-RODRIGUEZ

WINTERS- AEP Texas scheduled the installation of new digital smart meters for the Ballinger and Winters area on January 5, 2012. According to the company these state-ofthe-art electric meters will enhance reliability, improve customer service and help customers gain control over their electric

The company started a couple of weeks ago leaving door-hanger notices at homes prior to installation of meters to inform customers about the installation and tell them more about the benefits of smart meters.

The meters will provide up-to-date usage information so that customers using an in-home monitor or viewing their usage online will be able to make informed energy choices to lower their bills.

Once fully deployed, AEP Texas won't have to enter a customer's property to read the meter since it is done remotely. The only time the company will need access to a customer's property will be for periodic testing and maintenance. Connections and disconnections for residential and small commercial customers can be done remotely, which will enable the company to respond more quickly to customer service requests.

"These meters are better for the customer because they use digital technology, the meters will be able to collect information on power availability and consumption and send it to the company, but they are also capable of receiving information to turn the service on or off," said Fred Hernandez, AEP's Manager of Community Affairs in San Angelo.

The new devices, remarked Hernandez, are two-way communication capable.

Advanced Metering Infrastructure systems (AMI) are an essential part of the company's gridSMART initiative, which uses digital technology to enhance customer service," said Joel Murphy, AEP Texas Director of Customer

Services. Other smart meter

features include outage signal, when an outage occurs, these meters send a signal to the electric grid indicating a power outage. AEP Texas will be able to quickly note a power outage; customer service fees associated with connections and disconnections will be reduced as meters are installed throughout the company's service area; customers will have the option to buy in-home energy monitors to view their energy consumption and start conserving electricity; customers can register their smart meter at SmartMeterTexas.
