Total quality management on the mark

By TSgt. Michael Kelly
HQ ATC Public Affairs

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS) — The pursuit of quality is an admirable goal for any organization, but even more so for Air Training Command, the largest training system in the free world.

How does ATC stack up in this quest for excellence? In the words of ATC commander Lt. Gen. Robert C. Oaks, the focus across all aspects of the ATC mission is right on the mark. "The goal of providing a quality trained airman is emphasized in every aspect of ATC's training," he said.

General Oaks' remarks were in response to a Department of Defense memorandum emphasizing a focus on quality as the vehicle for achieving higher levels of performance across all levels of command.

The total quality management concept has already achieved reduced costs and increased efficiency in several DOD components. Now the emphasis is being expanded to all military services with the ultimate goal of having satisfied, quality-equipped and quality-supported soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines.

Just as other services or commands might look at the quality of their development and acquisition programs, ATC has sharpened its focus to look at training processes to see if they are providing maximum quality.

The answer to that million dollar question is a definite yes, according to General Oaks. "I believe the focus across all facets of the ATC mission — recruiting, flying training, technical training and medical services — complements the DOD posture on quality."

Recruiting is a key area where quality is paying off, the general noted. "Thanks to the success of our recruiting efforts, the young men and women entering the Air Force today are the best educated and of the highest quality ever. We are continually fine tuning our courses to meet both the increased abilities of these recruits and the changing complexities of our weapon systems."

That's a hefty commitment considering each year some 350,000 people are trained in more than 350 specialties needed to support, operate and maintain those weapon systems. The general pointed out that help in monitoring and evaluating ATC's training effectiveness comes in many forms. The process begins with the Randolph AFB Occupational Measurement Center's interaction with each functional community to assess its training needs.

Direct input from major command users through occupational surveys and utilization and training workshops helps determine what and how much training is needed, the commander said.

"Then, during training development, each step is reviewed to ensure we meet those needs and do it efficiently."

The quality control process continues with direct observation of the instructors, measurement of student success and direct feedback from the students. And as if that isn't enough, ATC follows up on its graduates to determine if, in the eyes of graduates and their supervisors, they met their needs.

General Oaks spoke confidently of ATC's ability to carry on the goal of providing quality-trained airmen.

"This command has a reputation for finding better and less expensive ways to enhance readiness. We'll keep our emphasis on quality to achieve the maximum performance possible from ATC."

Lt. Gen. Robert C. Oaks

Bits & Pieces

Tops in Blue are tops...

There is no doubt that quality of entertainment produced by the folks in Tops in Blue ranks among the very highest I have seen. I feel quite certain that everyone who viewed the show came away with a remarkable appreciation for the amount of effort that went into not only producing the show, but the superb talent of the performers themselves.

It is amazing to me that all of those fine folks are all blue-suiters, and are not professional hired entertainers. The members of the cast are selected from the more than 250 talent contest finalists at the Air Force Worldwide Talent Contest. These 250 were in turn selected from literally thousands who competed in base-level, and command-level contests all over the world. Once at the worldwide competition, contestants are subject to extensive competition, interviews, and auditions lasting more than a week. I think it is easy to see that these folks are truly the cream of the crop.

And I know for all who attended the show, it was more than just a show. It was family entertaining family. I doubt there exists today another program on the scale and magnificence of Tops in Blue. Financed by the Air Force MWR Board from non-appropriated funds generated within the Air Force, its value is inestimable, in terms of morale and retention. Still the idea remains simple; family entertaining family — the most simple, direct and intimate form of show business.

Special thanks to Ms. Jean Ray and the entire staff of the MWR Services. I thank you for the outstanding support you provided both to Reese AFB as well as to the Tops in Blue members. We all had our lives enriched and made a little brighter by your efforts. I sincerely appreciate the professional manner and demonstrated skill shown the entire evening, and, on behalf of everyone in attendance, I thank you for a memorable evening.

A unique idea...

Another example of the innovative displayed by Reese folks, can be seen with our static display aircraft. We are currently in the process of installing working position lights on all of our display aircraft. Our goal is to enhance their evening appearance, and to save energy at the same time.

In the past we kept the flood lights on the static aircraft burning all night long. There is little doubt that these displays add a great deal to the appearance of our base after dark. But the fact is the base gets very few visitors after 11 p.m. Also, the energy required to run the floodlights amounts to a substantial cost when viewed over an annual period.

So, we decided to install position lights in each of the aircraft, reduce the wattage of the flood lights illuminating the displays, and install a timer to cut the flood lights off after 11 p.m. By installing position lights we are able to reduce the wattage of the flood lights, putting the display aircraft in a 'shadow' without reducing its attractiveness. In fact, I feel their appearance has been enhanced. Cutting the lights off after 11 p.m. just makes common sense.

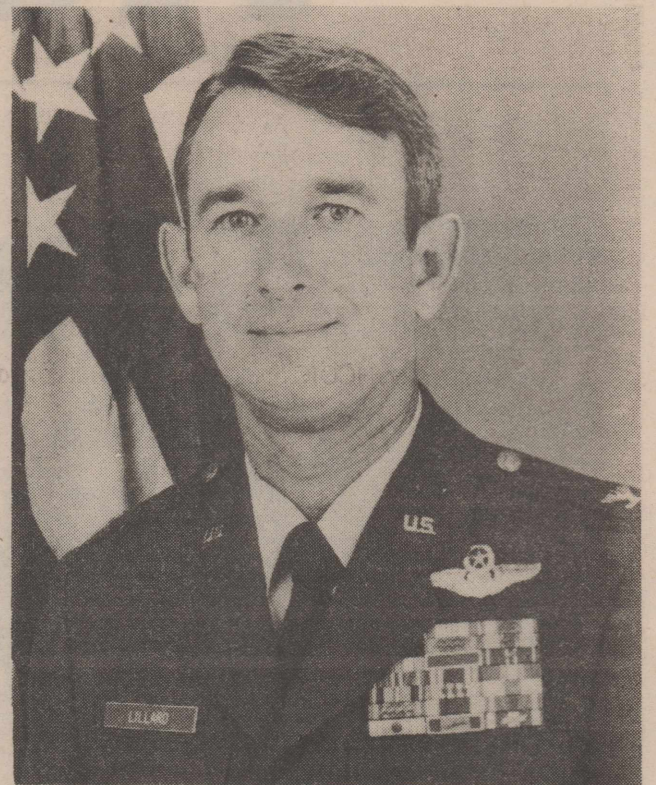

Special thanks to the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron crew who are doing all the work to complete the project. Mr. Charlie Atkins, project supervisor, is being ably assisted by AIC Russell Wells and Amn. Kevin Johnson. Special thanks to all who helped and will help make this project successful. The T-28 and T-38 have already been completed, with the B-25 and T-33 to be completed soon. Keep looking for those great ideas — this idea had been staring us in the face for a long time before we found it.

Officer's call...

There is an officers' call today at 4:45 p.m. in the Officer's Open Mess. I have requested that all available officers please be in attendance. I will be discussing implementation of the new OES system and exactly how it will work a Reese, the new assignment system for FAIPs that will begin next month, the upcoming self-inspection month of September, year-end funding and flying hour allocations, and the ATC Torchlight Competition. I encourage everyone to bring any questions you may have for me or the staff.

Kudos to...

TSGT. Dwayne E. Settle for his expert assistance to the AT-38 Accident Investigation Board held at Holloman AFB last month. "Without Sergeant Settle's expert knowledge, determining the cause of the mishap could have been delayed to the point of endangering the lives of every T-38 pilot in the command" — Lt. Gen. Robert C. Oaks, commander, ATC. Outstanding effort!

Capt. Craig Hughes for being selected as a distinguished graduate of Squadron Officer School Class 88-D. Out of 799 members, he was selected as being in the top 6 percent. Well done!

'Wild Weasel' was answer to Soviets' SA-2 missile

By Marty Brazil
Company of Military Historians

KEESLER AFB, Miss. (ATCNS) — Prior to June 1965, U.S. Air Force aircraft on raids over North Vietnam were relatively safe at high altitudes. The North Vietnamese air defense, a maze of antiaircraft fire, was deadly down low.

This all changed with the arrival of the Soviet SA-2 surface-to-air missile in Hanoi. The SA-2 SAM was most effective at an altitude of 20,000 feet. U.S. aircraft were now vulnerable high and low.

In July, less than a month after the SAMs were in place, an F-4C became the first U.S. victim of the "flying telephone pole," so nicknamed because of its 35-foot length.

The SA-2 weighed 5,000 pounds and carried a 286-pound warhead. The fuses could blow it up close to the target, on impact or on ground command. If an SA-2 exploded within 200 feet of an attacking aircraft, "it was adios, amigo," said one pilot.

The SA-2 could go 11 miles straight up or 30 miles horizontally. The missile reached its maximum speed of Mach 1.5 very quickly and rode the center of a radar tracking beam homing in on its target.

Placed in batteries of six launchers a piece, the SA-2s were arranged in a star pattern about 45 feet apart. Even though the launch equipment weighed over 100 tons, the North Vietnamese moved their missiles constantly to protect them from retaliatory strikes.

When an American pilot spotted a SAM (white smoke from the first stage), his best move was to dive toward the missile, then veer off sharply, a move the missile couldn't make. However, for a lot of pilots, diving at a SAM was like leaning into a left hook.

Air Force officials realized that the most sophisticated aircraft in the world was no good if it was shot down by a SAM or forced to lighten its load by dumping its bombs prematurely.

The answer was the "Wild Weasel." Fifty two-seater F-105G trainers were converted into missile and missile site killers.

The F-105 Thunderchief, or "Thud," had been in the Air Force inventory since 1958. Originally, it had been designated as a single seat tactical bomber. The early Thud didn't have much armor. Its size and weight also worked against it. But, with the new underwing pylons to hold more than six tons of bombs, more armor for the pilot and crew and range-extending fuel tanks, the F-105 became a formidable fighter-bomber.

The Thud gained a reputation in the Vietnam War similar to the B-17 in World War II — it could absorb incredible battle damage and keep flying and fighting.

To make F-105Gs into Wild Weasels, they were crammed with state-of-the-art electronic countermeasure gear known as ECM. Thuds could detect and jam radar equipment, then use their missiles, which followed radar signals back to their source, to knock SAM sites.

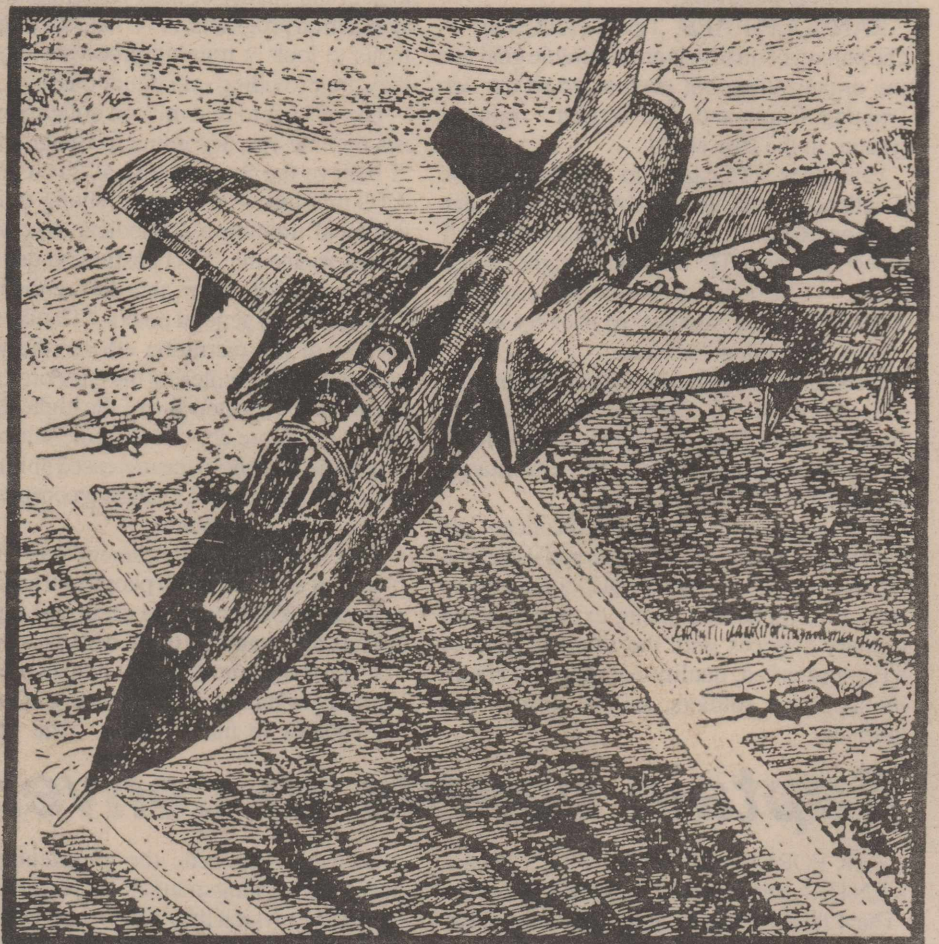

The man behind the Wild Weasel pilot was the electronic-warfare officer or "bear." It was the Bear's job to seek out the SAMs with his special equipment. Once the bear locked onto a SAM radar signal, he passed its location to the pilot, who then jammed the radar tracking beam or fired a missile that would ride the signal back to its source. Wild Weasels could also jam SAM guiding signals and throw the missile off target.

It got so the mere presence of a Wild

Weasel prevented SAM operators from turning on their radar. SAMs could be fixed without radar, but were almost no threat to American aircraft that way. And reducing the SAM threat was what the Wild Weasel was all about.

NDI Lab finding hidden problems

The 64th Field Maintenance Squadron Non-destructive Inspection (NDI) Lab is responsible for checking the structural integrity of the assigned aircraft. This is done by inspecting various components and area using a variety of different methods. As the name implies, the inspections are completed without causing any damage to the specimen being tested. Some of the methods used are the dye penetrant process, magnetic particle inspection ultrasonic and radiographic inspection or X-rays.

"We are supposed to be here pulling for the part, hoping that it's good," said MSgt. Eddie Parker, NCOIC of the NDI Lab. "But deep down inside we hope we find a crack. It lets us know we're doing the job we're here for."

Each inspection process has benefits and limitations: therefore, the inspector must use his knowledge and background to determine the method of inspection best for the part being tested. The dye penetrant process is primarily used on non-ferrous metal (metal having low iron content) and magnetic particle inspection is used on ferrous metal. Although dye penetrant can be used on ferrous metal, magnetic particle is normally faster and more sensitive. Ultrasonic and radiographic inspections are both used to find flaws that are not readily visible to the naked eye. The ultrasonic inspection method uses high frequency sound similar to radar to inspect the part. Sound is sent into the part and reflects back when it strikes a flaw.

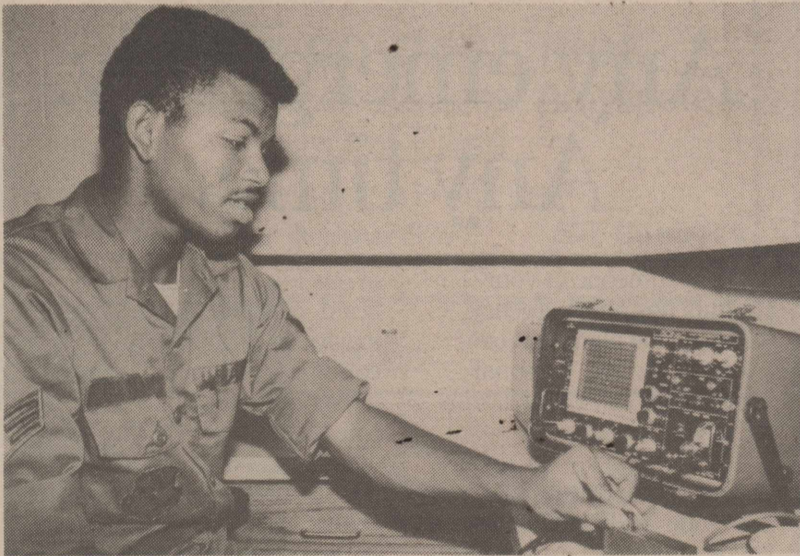

Senior Airman Susan Drake x-rays an engine diffuser for cracks and welds. This is the first step of the x-ray process.

"We are always getting new pieces of equipment that we must learn to use, and with all the inspections and parts to check, it never gets stale around here," said Sergeant Parker. "There are 13 people assigned to the shop, and we check approximately 300 parts a week."

Due largely to the inspections being performed, numerous parts have had their service life extended which saves the Air Force thousands of dollars.

Staff Sergeant Antonio Buchanan dips a brake housing in penetrant while checking for defects. This is the first step of the inspection process.

Senior Airman Eric Benjamin does an ultrasonic inspection of an aluminum standard looking for sub-surface defects.

Sergeant Valorie Riffle uses an eddycurrent unit, which sends an electromagnetic field which checks for surface and near surface cracks.

Senior Airman Susan Drake inspects the x-rays of various aircraft pieces. This is the second step of the x-ray process done on many aircraft parts.

Performance appreciated

"Tops in Blue" presented Wednesday evening at the Base Theater, was absolutely sensational. I hope as many of you as possible were able to see it. As with all programs, it's the people behind the scenes who really make a program like "Tops in Blue" a success. I would like to thank Ms. Jean Ray and her Mathis Recreation Center staff for doing the superb job they always do. Jean and her staff did all the coordination for the "Tops in Blue" group while they were here.

Watch out for kids

School is starting soon. A word of caution:

CMSgt. Coy Martin

Please watch out for children. This includes while driving through Reese Village and along 4th Street.

There is a cross walk across 4th Street close to Reese Elementary, and there usually is a cross walk guard. However, you never know when one of our kids might dash out into the street.

"Stay away from drugs"

In case you missed reading about it in the local newspaper, drug charges were brought against five men who were arrested last Friday at Reese.

The men, four civilians employed by the base and one other employed by a contractor currently working on Reese, were arrested by U.S. Marshal deputies. The indictments in-involved the sale of cocaine, "crack" cocaine and marijuana. The sales were made off-base, but the fact that they were employed at Reese is the reason our own OSI led the investigation. Bottom line: You better not do drugs on my base in any way, shape, form or size! I do not tolerate it by anyone.

Inspection preparation

Finally, September is "self-inspection month." Air Base Group squadrons and divisions are well diversified and into the "customer service" type of activity. This is something the inspectors look at.

If you feel we can do it better, please let me know. I'll personally look into it. We want to do things better and smarter!

Enjoy the rest of the summer, safely!

Col. James Higham

I like a winner!

By CMSgt. Coy Martin
Senior Enlisted Advisor

To borrow from John S. Swift Company, a winner is always part of the answer; the loser is always a part of the problem.

- The winner sees an answer for every problem, the loser sees a problem for every answer.
- The winner always has a program; the loser always has an excuse.
- The winner sees a green near every sand trap; the loser sees two or three sand traps near every green.
- The winner says, "It may be difficult but it is possible"; the loser says "It may be possible but it is too difficult."
- The winner says "Let me do it for you";

the loser says "That's not my job."

• The winners are those who bury negative thoughts and proudly find opportunities where they can say positive things about their organization, our base, Air Training Command, the Air Force and our country.

Some of us would say "I never get the opportunity to speak out on the issue." Be careful — don't be negative.

Every coffee break, social event or shop meeting can be an opportunity to provide positive vibes about your organization, Reese Air Force Base, the Air Force and our country.

Winners make good things happen—be a winner.

International chili cook-off set

GOODFELLOW AFB, Texas — "Chili's Great in '88" is the slogan for the 15th Annual Armed Forces International Chili Cook-off, hosted by Goodfellow AFB Sept. 9 and 10. The cook-off will feature red-hot competition and even hotter bowls of "Big Red," as military people from around the world join with the local competition to see who will be crowned this year's champion.

What once started off as a local competition has since evolved into an international competition with people coming from states as far away as California, Wyoming, Florida and Michigan to compete along with the teams from overseas.

The first West Texas Air Force Chili Cook-off, as it was known in 1974, was the result of a challenge as to "who could make the best chili" and entries were limited to the first 10 teams who wanted to brag about cooking chili.

The first cook-off was held in a World War II vintage aircraft hangar — not by choice, but because it rained.

The fourth chili cook-off saw the contest becoming the World Armed Forces Cook-off with "chilitary" members from all branches of the armed services competing.

T.C. Carter, one of the organizers of this year's event, said "there will be everyone from airmen to retired three-star generals competing in the cook-off. It's a time when anyone can come out and let their hair down. The Air Force Band of the West is expected to be on hand to further add to the atmosphere of this West Texas tradition."

"It's all for fun and the morale of the troops," adds Lee Adams, a member of last year's first place team. "While most just enjoy the day—the chili, the good times and their friends — some take it seriously."

Entry is open to all active duty military, retired and Department of Defense civilians. Anyone interested in entering may obtain a registration packet by calling Goodfellow's Recreation Service Branch at (915) 657-3853. Entries will be accepted until 11 a.m. the day of competition, Sept. 10, at which time a team captains' meeting will be held.

AFA executive writing course at Reese

The Air Force Academy Executive Writing Course offers middle and senior managers in government practical and proven ways to improve the writing they do every day. Because executive writing is almost always correct technically, the course doesn't cover grammar and punctuation. Instead, it offers advice—presented in a lively manner—on how to get to the point fast, how to write as though speaking, and how to write concisely. The course works with real-world examples to illustrate principles managers can apply as soon as they return to their offices. No grammar test, no tedious lectures, no contrived examples.

Now in its 14th year, the Executive Writing Course reaches 6,000 people annually throughout government. It has been presented at such places as the White House; the Department of Commerce; the Johnson Space Center; major commands of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, CONUS and overseas; and many Department of Defense schools, including the National War College. Recent endorsers include Edward C. Aldridge, Jr., Secretary of the Air Force; Admiral William Crowe, chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff; and General Larry D. Welch, chief of staff, U.S. Air Force.

The AFA team of instructors will be at Reese for two sessions at 9-11 a.m. and 1-3 p.m., Sept. 19. As many people as possible are encouraged to attend. Because space is limited, all deputates have been given a quota. Contact the POC in your deputation to sign up.

If your deputation does not have sufficient quota or you need more information, please contact 1st Lt. Summer Scott, Base Administration, 3377.

Blood donations needed Sept. 1

The Blood Mobile from United Blood Services will be at the Mathis Recreation Center Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Blood is needed due to the upcoming Labor Day Weekend.

What is United Blood Services?

United Blood Services (UBS), a nonprofit community blood center, provides blood and blood products for patients in area medical facilities. Community-minded, volunteer blood donors supply the material out of which these products are made. UBS is an operating division of Blood Systems, Inc., a nonprofit corporation. Blood Systems, Inc. operates 21 blood centers, which provide blood for patients in nearly 800 hospitals throughout the United States.

What's it like to donate blood?

The blood donation process is easy, and usually takes just 30 minutes. Most donors find it a painless and heart-warming experience.

What happens during the donation process?

A brief interview is the first step. You'll be asked about your medical history and current health. Next, your temperature, blood pressure, pulse and blood hemoglobin levels are checked.

The actual donation takes only 10 minutes. You'll relax in a comfortable chair while a technician draws a unit (approximately one pint) of blood. After donating, you'll be invited to rest and enjoy light refreshments. You may then resume your usual routine.

How will I feel after I donate?

You should feel fine! Since the human body averages eight to eleven pints, it's easy to spare one. Is it possible to contract a disease while donating blood?

Absolutely not. All materials used during the donation process are sterile, and are used only once.

If I, or someone I know needs blood, what can I do to ensure blood will be available?

As your community blood provider, UBS is dedicated to ensuring that blood will be available to anyone needing it, whether they donate or not. We hope that you will give blood, but if you cannot, you can support your community blood program by encouraging others to donate.

Test pilot selection board to convene

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, Randolph AFB, Texas (AFNS) — The next Air Force Test Pilot School selection board will convene at the Air Force Military Personnel Center Jan. 16 to select pilots, navigators and engineers for classes beginning in July 1989 and January 1990.

Pilot selectees will fill positions in the fighter, multi-engine or helicopter categories. Eligibility criteria are outlined in AF Regulation 53-19, USAF Test Pilot School.

apply at any time during the year. However, completed applications must arrive at HQ AFMPC/DPMRPC4, Randolph AFB, Texas 78150-6001, by Dec. 2; for the January board. Also, those who currently have an application on file must ensure it is updated by Dec. 2.

More information is available from classification and training units.

Training milestone

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (AFNS) — Twenty-five years and thousands of students preceded him as Capt. Bruce Young stepped forward to become the 20,000th graduate of the 4315th Combat Crew Training Squadron here. The St. Louis native and 18 fellow missileers were presented their missile badges July 27. Captain Young will be assigned to the 90th Strategic Missile Wing at F.E. Warren AFB as a Peacekeeper intercontinental ballistic missile crewman.

Environmental quality

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Vandenberg AFB, Calif. is winner of the 1987 Secretary of Defense Environmental Quality Award for Installations. The annual award recognizes leadership and progress in pollution abatement programs to clean up and safeguard the environment at military installations. Vandenberg has removed 191 unused underground storage tanks, developed a hazardous waste management system, obtained new air permits for key facilities and produced an environmental impact statement for petroleum reserves development. The award will be presented at the Pentagon Sept. 29.

Voters Week

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Armed Forces Voter's Week, which begins Aug. 29, is emphasizing early registration and requests for ballots. In the 1984 presidential election, Navy (64.5 percent) and Air Force (60.4 percent) had the highest voting rates among the services. Army trailed with 43.2 percent. The majority of those who did not vote in 1984 said they did not know how to get a ballot. Federal Post Card Applications for registration and absentee ballots are available through unit voting officers.

Conservation award

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Goldwater Air Force Range in Arizona is winner of the 1987 Secretary of Defense Natural Resources Conservation Award for installations. The award recognizes natural resources management in the United States.

Goldwater range, the largest in the free world dedicated to training pilots, consists of 4,000 square miles of unspoiled Southwest desert environment.

In the last two years, the range has researched surface and underground water resources, controlled soil erosion and assisted in a study of endangered Sonoran antelope.

Safety award

KELLY AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Retired CMSgt. Jerry D. Smith is the winner of the 1987 Air Force Chief of Staff Individual Safety Award. Chief Smith, who retired in June, was the Air Force Commissary Service's Chief of Safety. He began command-wide safety workshops that helped reduce accidents by 30 percent from 1986 to 1987.

Commissary accidents cost the government $916,000 in 1986. The cost dropped to $316,000 last year.

Constitution Week

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci says Constitution Week, Sept. 17-23, presents commanders with "an excellent opportunity to sustain the momentum of this significant commemoration."

The secretary encouraged commanders to participate in "Bells Across America," a nationwide tribute to the Constitution on Sept. 17 at 4 p.m. EDT, when Americans will simultaneously ring bells for 200 seconds and release red, white and blue balloons. He noted that more than 450 defense activities participated in the event last year.

Women's equality

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Women's Equality Day is today. The date marks adoption in 1920 of the 19th Amendment, which gave women the right to vote.

Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci, in a memo to the service secretaries, said civilian and military women "have responded to the challenges of citizenship with courage, dedication and perseverance."

He continued, "Department of Defense women have every reason to be proud of every aspect of their achievements. Their contributions are vital to the security of our nation."

DLM applications not routinely approved

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, Randolph AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Some Air Force members with foreign-born spouses are still unaware that designated location move applications no longer are routinely approved.

Some members received DLMs before the approval criteria became more restricted in November 1985. These people have volunteered for assignments to dependent-restricted areas with the expectation that they will be permitted to relocate their foreign-born spouses to the spouse's native country. From 1975 to 1985, DLM applications were liberally approved.

However, on Nov. 1, 1985, the Department of Defense made DLM approval criteria more restrictive in response to unified command and overseas major command concern about the saturation of support facilities, especially DoD schools.

The DLM is an exception to assignment policy that permits foreign-born spouses and accompanying children to return to the spouse's native country while the member serves a dependent-restricted tour. Applications are approved when it is clearly documented that the spouse will be unable to function independently in the continental United States during the member's absence.

DLMs are approved only when members can fully document the inability of spouses to cope on their own in the United States. The unit commander must comment on the member's application as to why, despite efforts by the member, the spouse isn't able to function independently.

Air Force urges members to review and understand their responsibilities for preparing their spouses to cope during any absence. Those with foreign-born spouses should be aware of the restrictive criteria for DLM actions before they submit their volunteer statement for assignment to a dependent-restricted area.

More information is available from consolidated base personnel office customer service units.

Master records reviewed by mail

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, Randolph AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Air Force members can review their master personnel records through an enhanced "Review-by-Mail" program without the inconvenience of traveling to the Air Force Military Personnel Center.

Last year, 7,559 officers and enlisted members reviewed their records at AFMPC and 6,871 reviewed their records by mail.

To make the program better and to encourage more people to take advantage of it, several new features have been added. There is now an updated fact sheet explaining the content of the record.

An abbreviated computerized printout of key items contained in the AFMPC computer also will be included.

To review their master personnel records by mail, Air Force people must submit a written request to include their name, social security number, signature, grade and a valid return address to HQ AFMPC/DPMABR4, Randolph AFB, Texas 78150-6001.

Requests will be completed within 10 workdays after receipt at no cost to the applicant.

For additional information, consult base personnel offices or HQ AFMPC/DPMABR4, AUTOVON 487-2998.

On the job . . .

Airman First Class Rico Vioria, a records clerk, files personnel records. The records section is open Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Personnel should review their records at least twice a year. It only takes about 30 minutes.

FOD Prevention: everyone's responsibility

By: Capt. Pat Dever
Wing FOD Officer

One problem we are currently dealing with here at Reese is FOD (Foreign Object Damage). FOD is damage to aircraft, engines, and support equipment caused by an object that is alien to an area. Currently for fiscal year 1988, Reese AFB is last in the command for the number of FOD incidents and total dollars spent on FOD.

When a problem area arises, we can do one of two things: 1) Ignore it and hope that it disappears or, 2) make a concerted effort to improve on what we are doing and try to eliminate the problem. We have chosen the second course of action through a revitalized FOD prevention program. A good FOD prevention program can improve readiness and save material, manpower, lives and money.

If you do not work for maintenance, you probably are thinking that you do not need to read any further because FOD prevention only applies to maintainers.

WRONG! FOD prevention is a responsibility shared by everyone who works on the base, especially those who work on or around the flightline. We all would share the tragic feeling of unnecessary loss if an airplane crashed and lives were lost because of FOD incident.

What you, the individual, can do to help prevent FOD is simple — practice good housekeeping, clean up after yourself, and if you see foreign objects anywhere, pick them up. If you find something that is a potential FOD hazard, do not hesitate to call 6247. Report it, and we will investigate it immediately.

Everyone needs to feel responsible for FOD prevention and all supervisors need to ensure that their people are doing these things every time they work. If everyone makes the effort to become more FOD aware, we can eliminate this unnecessary destruction of resources from our base.

Public notification of lead in drinking water

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has determined that lead in drinking water is a health concern at certain levels of exposure.

The EPA sets drinking water standards and the current standard is 50 parts per billion (ppb). Reese AFB has a lead level of less than 20 ppb in the base drinking water, according to 2nd Lt. Joe Feaster, Base Bioenvironmental Engineer.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water due to adverse effects on human health. "Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system and red blood cells," stated Maj. (Dr.) Michael D. Jones, chief, Aeromedical Services at USAF Hospital-Reese. "The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women."

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform people of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though Reese water may not be in violation of the current standard. Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

"It's obviously good that we have less than one-half of the allowable level, but the bottom line is that the Reese public is not only being informed of lead in drinking water, but also its health effects and its main source," added Lieutenant Feaster.

That main source of lead is most likely pipe or solder in a home's plumbing, according to the EPA. The most common cause is corrosion of the solder joints due to "soft" water. We definitely have "hard water" and that is probably one reason for Reese's low lead level in the drinking water," replied Lieutenant Feaster.

The EPA report continues with other likely reasons for high lead levels:

—If your home or water system has lead pipes;

—If your home has copper pipes with lead solder;

—If the home is less than five-years-old;

—If you have acidic water;

—If water sits in the pipes for several hours.

Major Per A. Korslund, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, said that Reese doesn't fall into many of these categories. "There are no lead pipes, housing is much older than five years and our drinking water is definitely not acidic," said Major Korslund. "Lead solder on copper pipes and water sitting in pipes for hours is typical of a water distribution system."

Nonetheless, there are two basic methods the EPA study recommends to minimize one's health risk. The first is to "flush" the cold water faucet if the water has been in contact with your home's plumbing for six hours, such as overnight or during your workday. This could take as little as five to 30 seconds if there has been recent heavy water use.

Otherwise, it could take two minutes or longer, the study says. It also recommends using only water from the cold faucet for drinking, cooking and especially for making baby formula.

"We want to emphasize that Reese's drinking water is fine and its lead level appears to be healthy," stated Col. James Higham, base commander. "It is Air Force policy to periodically test drinking water for lead content, and report the results to the public."

Bioenvironmental Engineering Services 3327 or the Environmental Health Office, 3536, can provide additional information of drinking water quality.

ATC NCO saves lightning victim

By MSgt. Kathleen Grey
HQ ATC Public Affairs

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS) — CMSgt. John D. Logan believes everyone should be trained in cardiopulmonary resuscitation. He has reason to believe—he and his wife recently saved a young boy's life with it.

The chief and his wife Martha had just arrived home from work about 5:30 p.m., July 27. The sky was dark with clouds, there was thunder and lightning, but no rain.

In a field about a quarter of a mile from the Logan home, about a dozen children were playing ball. A 12-year-old boy was the second baseman, another boy was running toward the base. Just as he got there, lightning struck the 12-year-old in the neck, traveled through his body and came out one of his sneakers.

He fell to the ground.

The boy's sister, seeing a sheriff's deputy driving by, called out to him that her brother was hurt. The deputy called the emergency in, thereby involving the Logans.

Since Chief Logan is head of the Montgomery Drive Fire Department, the call came in to his house, and he and his wife jumped in the car. Because the field was so close, they were first on the scene. The deputy said, "I think we have a DOA (dead on arrival)." Chief Logan says the boy had no pulse.

"My wife and I started CPR immediately," the chief says. "I did the chest compressions and Martha did the breathing. When my firemen got there, they put the boy on oxygen."

After about 15 minutes, an Emergency Medical Service unit got there and electrically shocked the child in the chest twice. Then, the chief continued chest compressions. "After 20 minutes, we got a pulse," he said. An ambulance took the boy to the hospital.

What was going through his mind? "While doing the CPR, I was afraid we'd lose him," the chief said. "In fact, I told my wife that I was sure the boy was dead. But, in CPR training, we're told to continue until the victim revives or a competent medical authority tells you to stop. It was a tremendous feeling when he came back."

Martha Logan has been CPR trained for six years, her husband said, and she just jumped right in to help. "Once the boy was put on oxygen," Chief Logan said, "Martha's job was done and she just walked away, thinking he was dead. After we got a pulse, somebody told her and then she collapsed emotionally. This was the first time she's used her training; I was real proud of her."

The chief, who's been fire chief since October and an assistant fire chief for three years before that, said the boy's condition has been upgraded to serious.

Brain scans and other tests don't indicate any damage. Although still comatose, doctors believe he's coming out of it.

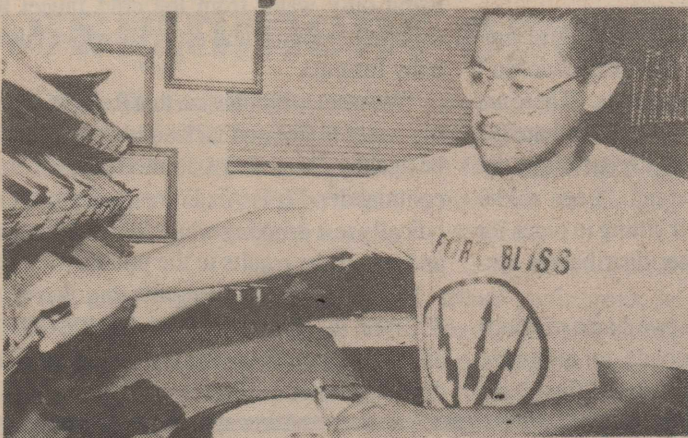

"The important thing here is that people need to know CPR. You just never know when you'll need it," Chief Logan emphasized.

The chief is noncommissioned officer in charge of the Procedures Branch for ATC logistics.

Good news for VW/Audi owners

By Maj. Howard Altschwager
Staff Judge Advocate

Under a 1988 Federal Trade Commission order, Volkswagen of America has established a mediation/arbitration program for all owners of VW or Audi cars and light trucks with engine problems. You may be able to obtain one of the following: refund of money you spend on repairs; repairs at no charge to you; or a VW buy-back of your car.

To participate, you must contact either the Better Business Bureau (phone 800-442-1456), or VW (phone 800-822-8987, or 800-822-2834).

The arbitration program, which costs you nothing, has two phases. First, the Better Business Bureau will try to mediate a settlement between you and VW without an arbitration hearing. If you are not satisfied with the results of mediation, you have the right to an arbitration hearing.

Arbitration is the next step when mediation fails. The basic difference is that the parties do not settle the problem between themselves. They present their claims to an impartial third party called the arbitrator who is the decision maker. Informal in nature, you do not need a lawyer. If you do not accept the arbitrator's decision there may be other options available to you. However, VW must accept the decision as final.

Small Claims Court would probably be the best forum for you if the Arbitrator's decision does not match your expectations. Normally, in Small Claims Court you will not need a lawyer and the format is informal.

If you desire to write for additional information on this program, contact the Federal Trade Commission at 100 North Central Expressway, Dallas, Texas 75201.

Seat failure in Chryslers

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) announced that it has opened a formal safety defect investigation involving alleged failure of the driver's electrically powered seat in more than 195,000 model 1985 and 1986 Chrysler, Plymouth and Dodge vehicles manufactured by Chrysler Corp. The models involved are the Chrysler LeBaron, Laser, and New Yorker; Dodge 600, Daytona, and Lancer; and Plymouth Caravelle.

The federal safety agency said it has received 132 complaints, with seven accidents and three injuries reported by consumers. It has also conducted tests on failed seat assemblies. There are two potential failure modes, both involving the front outboard seat attachments. Failures could result in the driver's seat suddenly reclining rearward, causing a potential loss of vehicle control while driving. Loss of seat strength could also potentially increase the severity of injury in a rear-impact crash. Chrysler is aware of the two failure modes and has taken action to correct them, but, has not conducted a safety recall. It has issued two service bulletins and notified vehicle owners and dealers that it has issued an extended lifetime warranty for this item. Chrysler strengthened the power seat frame and the adjuster in later model vehicles to avoid future failures.

Drivers who experience driver seat failure should take the following action:

- Attempt to maintain vehicle control and carefully drive to the roadside.
- Place an object behind the driver's seat back to prevent it from reclining.
- Carefully drive to any Chrysler dealer for free repair.

NHTSA urges any owner or driver of these vehicles who has experienced driver seat failure to write to NHTSA, Office of Defects Investigation, 400 Seventh St., S.W. Washington, D.C. 20590, or to call the agency's toll-free Auto Safety Hotline at (800) 424-9393 (366-0123 in the Washington, D.C. area).

ATMs coming to ATC

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS) — Air Training Command is proving to be "the first command" once again, this time in the financial area.

ATC is the only major command in the Air Force to use automatic teller machines for its accounting and finance function. Lackland AFB, Texas, has had two ATMs since May 1987, paying basic trainees. Plans now call for them to be installed at seven other command bases. Since they were installed at Lackland, the machines have disbursed more than $27 million.

Lackland will get one more machine. Keesler AFB, Miss., will get three, Sheppard AFB, Texas, will get two, and there will be one machine each installed at Mather AFB, Calif., Columbus AFB, Miss., Randolph AFB, Lowry AFB, Colo., and Chanute AFB, Ill.

Tentative plans call for Keesler's ATMs to be installed this fall, with the rest being operational in early 1989.

All active duty people benefit from these ATMs, said Col. Larry McVay, director of accounting and finance for ATC. At our technical training centers, students will receive their pay through the machines until they establish an account with a bank or credit union. If they want to, trainees can get all their money at once or withdraw funds as needed while in school, then get the balance when they graduate, Colonel McVay said.

Permanent party people with automatic deposit can get a designated amount of cash each month from the machine. "The person tells his accounting and finance people he wants $200 a month from the ATM," the colonel explained. "Then, he goes to the ATM whenever he wants during the month and gets his $200 cash. An advantage is that the ATMs are 'open' 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

Finally, people who still receive a paycheck through the mail can get the entire amount from the ATMs.

Long range plans include paying travel advances and settlement vouchers through ATMs, Colonel McVay said, adding that bases nationwide will have the machines someday.

Physical fitness and your health

By Veronica Irvin
Aerobics Instructor

I want to start a running program. Is now a good time to start or should I wait until cooler weather comes?

The answer to the question "When should I start..." any exercise program is always the same: NOW! But, now that the hottest time of the year is upon us, we must take some necessary precautions in order to avoid the harmful effects of the sun while exercising outdoors.

Aside from the common problem of sunburn, there are other problems caused by overexposure to the sun that we may fail to recognize. Two of these heat disorders are heat exhaustion and the more serious sunstroke.

Heat exhaustion, also referred to as heat prostration, results from long exposure to extreme heat or to the sun. Overexposure to heat or too much activity under the sun can cause excessive sweating, which removes large quantities of fluid from the body. When the amount of fluid in the body falls too far below normal, heat exhaustion may result.

The early symptoms of heat exhaustion are a headache and a feeling of weakness and dizziness, usually accompanied by nausea and vomiting. There may also be cramps in muscles of the arms, legs or abdomen. The victim of heat exhaustion turns pale and perspires profusely; there is an increase in his/her pulse and breathing. Body temperature will remain normal or slightly below and the stricken person ordinarily remains conscious.

In case of heat exhaustion, a physician should be called and the person should lie quietly in a cool place with loosened clothing. He/she should be given plenty of water.

Sunstroke is not the same as heat exhaustion. In sunstroke there is a disturbance in the mechanism that controls perspiration. Since sunstroke is much more dangerous than heat exhaustion and is treated differently, it is very important to recognize the difference between the two.

The initial symptoms may be similar: headache, weakness and dizziness. Sunstroke victims, however, experience an extremely high temperature and absence of sweating unlike the heat exhaustion victim. Sunstroke may also cause convulsions and sudden loss of consciousness. In extreme cases it may be fatal.

In case of sunstroke, immediate steps should be taken to lower the body temperature. The person should rest in a cool place, clothing should be removed, arms and legs should be massaged to maintain circulation and water should be given. A physician should be called immediately.

In order to prevent such heat disorders we should avoid long exposure to sun or heat. When the weather is very hot it is essential that we drink plenty of water. Regular breaks are wise, and in the event of dizziness or weakness one should rest immediately in a cool area.

Exercise care with rental leases on apartments, houses

Frequently, legal assistance clients ask questions about rental leases for houses or apartments that they already have signed or plan to sign.

Many questions arise because of misunderstandings or disputes after both the renter and landlord have signed the agreement.

The following is a list of suggestions that can be used to avoid common pitfalls that often lead to trouble.

* Make certain that the lease contains a military clause. This clause will permit the renter to terminate a lease prior to expiration of the lease term if the renter receives PCS orders.

* Always read the lease agreement completely. Do this before you sign the lease. If you have any questions, contact the legal office.

* Never rely upon oral agreements that contradict the lease agreement. If a landlord is willing to agree to something orally, he should also be willing to put it in writing.

* Always sign the same lease agreement that you read. Be sure you get a copy of the lease that is exactly like the lease retained by the landlord.

* Never sign a lease that waives a warranty of habitability. You could end up with a residence that is undesirable and unlivable.

* Whenever you have any doubts, seek legal advice.

Hopefully, these suggestions will help you to avoid aggravating problems with regard to a leased residence.

Do not rush to sign a lease or any other kind of contract; instead take your time and read carefully all of the provisions prior to signing.

1. Nearly half the entire federal budget goes for defense.

False. However, a national public opinion survey by Market Opinion Research recently found that the average American believes we spend almost twice as much on defense as we actually do

In reality, only 27 percent of the total federal budget actually goes to the military. You have to go back to the '50s to find defense consuming more than half of the federal budget — and in the 1950s the United States was clearly the pre-eminent military power.

With Soviet advances in the quality and quantity of weapons systems, the United States does not enjoy the clear military pre-eminence that we did in the 1950s.

POW/MIA efforts continuing

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The United States is continuing efforts to account for all POWs and MIAs, while President Reagan encourages the next administration to retain the issue as a top priority.

The president's statement came while he addressed the national League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia at its 19th annual meeting recently.

President Reagan told the assembly that the governments of Indochina know an unresolved POW/MIA issue could critically affect any attempts by Hanoi to normalize relations with the United States.

By arriving at a political settlement with Cambodia and resolving the POW/MIA issue, the president said, Hanoi can position itself for a new era.

"The longer this wound persists, the more likely that it will be permanent. We will not weaken in our resolve to resist attempts to use this humanitarian issue for political gain," the president said.

He told the families present that more than 100 people in Defense, State and intelligence agencies work full-time to find their missing family members and bring answers.

The president praised the league's persistent efforts to account fully for every missing soldier.

"We can find encouragement in the knowledge that through these efforts over 100 of you have received answers," he said.

"You spoke with a unified and unflagging voice, and you were heard.

"A decade ago we were told that after so much time had passed there was little chance any remains could be recovered," President Reagan said. "After Operation Homecoming in 1973, there remained over 2,500 Americans unaccounted for." As of Aug. 16, there were 2,393 unaccounted for throughout Indochina.

The president said the devotion and long-term commitment of each league member has served to arouse concern in the American public and has "embedded a message in the consciousness of the country."

"America cannot move forward by leaving her missing sons behind," the president said, responding to those who would close the book on the missing.

"Every American who has perished deserves to rest on U.S. soil. Should there be anyone remaining voluntarily, their family deserves to know. And until our questions are fully answered, we will assume that some of our countrymen are alive."
