Mission Milestones

Where has all this bad weather come from? The wing fell 118 sorties short during the past week. T-37s have dropped back down to 3.5 days ahead of the timeline and T-38s dropped to 3.0 days ahead.

17-year NCO earns BCD

By Maj. Howard R. Altschwager
Staff Judge Advocate

Technical Sergeant Hollis O. Hopwood of the 64th Supply Squadron was tried by courts-martial Aug. 23-25 in the United States Courtroom in Reese's headquarters building. He was represented by both civilian and military defense counsel and chose to have his case heard by officer members. Sergeant Hopwood entered pleas of not guilty to charges of making false official statements and forgery. After reviewing all the evidence, the court returned findings of guilty to all charges.

The misconduct, which brought this non-commissioned officer to trial, began when he arrived at Reese in March 1987. Sergeant Hopwood falsely claimed to have a college degree which he had never earned. When those falsehoods went undetected for a time, Sergeant Hopwood also claimed to have started work on his master's degree at Texas Tech. This too was untrue.

In January of 1988 he masqueraded as his brother in order to fraudulently purchase a 1988 Nissan Maxima from a local dealer. In the process, Sergeant Hopwood forged the signatures of both his brother and sister-in-law. Both relatives were subpoenaed to testify at the trial.

The prosecution of this case was due to investigative work by special agents of the AFOSI and the cooperation of local witnesses, civilian and military, who had come in contact with the sergeant during the course of his misconduct.

The consequences of TSgt. Hollis Hopwood's criminal labors include a bad conduct discharge from the United States Air Force. When that punitive discharge takes effect a few months from now, he'll have to start a new life after 17 years in uniform. We can imagine the difficulty he'll face trying to explain his 'almost' successful Air Force career. The lesson we can carry from U.S. vs Sergeant Hopwood is clear: when it comes to matters of personal honor and integrity, 'almost' isn't nearly good enough.

ATC members go for another record

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS) — Records are made to be broken, but the record Air Training Command people intend to break has nothing to do with sports. It's much more important than that — it has to do with life.

In 1983, ATC established a record low number of 13 fatalities. So far in fiscal year 1988, with about a month left to go, ATC has had 12 fatalities — 12 individuals lost, 12 separate tragedies.

"We mean to break that 1983 record low of 13," said Brig. Gen. Albert A. Gagliardi Jr., ATC inspector general, "but not for the sake of the record. We mean to do it for you. But the only way to accomplish that is for you to do it for you. We need you to stay alive. We need you on the job. Your family, friends, co-workers — they all need you."

So, what can you do? What are your responsibilities? General Gagliardi said, "The first thing you can do is buckle up every time you get in your car; it's your responsibility to do that. Three of our troops didn't — and died.

"Your second responsibility is to not drive drunk. Drinking and driving will kill you. It's already killed three of our people this year.

But, it's not just your drinking and driving that can kill you — you can be killed by drunks. Four of the people we lost were killed by drunk drivers. You have to 'think defense' to survive."

The general said the final responsibility is, if riding a motorcycle, fasten the helmet down tight, don't speed, and don't ride drunk. "Our last fatality was a motorcyclist who broke all three of those rules. We don't want you to be the next one," he added.

"Yes, we need you, not just for the record. The record isn't all that important to us, but you are."

Security Police building begins upgrading

If you've driven past the Security Police building recently, you've probably noticed some excavation taking place.

This work begins a $538,000 improvement project to the existing facility which will approximately double its size.

According to CMSgt. Clayton Spahr, Jr., chief enlisted manager, 64th Security Police

Squadron, the project will consolidate all the the security police functions under one roof, except for Pass and I.D., which is located in the CBPO. Many of the security police offices, such as training, quality control, investigations, arms and equipment, supply and Combat Arms Training Maintenance located in Bldg. 132 across from the theater, will be moved into the new SP building.

Besides providing an enlarged armory and larger training and investigation rooms, new space will be available for weapons cleaning, mobility NCOs, NCOIC training and two orderly rooms.

Add to this space for quality control, administration, evidence storage—plus more storage space—and you have a Security Police facility that will finally meet the squadron's needs.

This Army Corps of Engineers project is scheduled for completion in June 1989 and will include complete landscaping and an additional parking area west of 5th Street.

Earthquake? No, but the Security Police building will become larger and better as all SP functions are consolidated into the same complex. (USAF photo)

Bits & Pieces

New Officer Evaluation System

Just as I discussed last Friday during our quarterly officers' call, the new Officer Evaluation System is now in place and ready to go to work. I hope everyone shares my enthusiasm and support for this new system as I believe it will eliminate many problems associated with the previous one.

First, the new system has the ability to give direct feedback to the rater from his/her supervisor. This feedback will occur in a private meeting and is designed to provide a realistic assessment of the officer's performance, without having any adverse repercussions. The feedback does not become part of the officer's record and cannot be shown to anyone else. I believe this will eliminate the need to say everyone 'walks on water.'

Second, and most important, raters will consider performance of primary duties only, and will record this information on an Officer Performance Report (OPR). Duties include any of the taskings assigned to you by your supervisor. They will not consider or evaluate the probable impact of PME, advance degrees or career broadening assignments.

The rater's task is to focus on performance and potential based on the performance. A common complaint with the old system was not being rated on performance of job duties, but rather extra tasks accomplished. This is no longer true. Job performance analysis will be based on excelling within your own specialty as well as the eagerness you display toward added responsibility. The Air Force recognizes that almost everyone does his or her job.

Another feature to reduce inflation is that each block on the new OPR is rated on a two block scale. Either someone "meets standards" or "does not meet standards."

Lastly, a promotion recommendation is only given when an officer is in the zone for promotion. This eliminates the pressure of feeling one has to compete for promotion every year during the OPR cycle. For the majority of officers, this means they will only compete for promotion one time. The promotion recommendation is broken down into three categories: "promote," "definitely promote," and "do not promote."

Percentages of "definitely promote" are controlled according to rank, but there is no requirement or quota to give any "do not promote" ratings. Also, the promotion rating is not retained with the officer's record following the promotion board, so each board is essentially a clean slate.

The simple fact that the Air Force has a high-quality force makes competition for promotion inevitable. I feel the new system does not attempt to reduce or eliminate this healthy competition, but rather ensures that all officers compete on the correct basis by measuring the proper qualities and attributes.

Torchlight...a base-wide effort

TORCHLIGHT '88, the annual ATC flying and maintenance competition held at Randolph AFB, will run from Sept. 12-16 this year. The purpose of the competition is designed to test instructor pilot proficiency, maintenance capability, enhance esprit de corps, increase training efficiency and recognize the best pilots and maintainers within the command. It is my desire that this be a base-wide effort and that the team members we've selected be the best representatives of Reese AFB.

We have selected 12 pilots and 14 maintainers to represent us at the competition. The pilots will be judged and scored on such events as exact arrival time, precision of the wing landing, a composite of formation, contact and instrument skills, and timing along a low level flying route.

The maintainers will be in competition for aircraft judging, timed tire change and timed engine change.

There will be an internal competition on Sept. 28 and 30 and I encourage everyone to come down and cheer our representatives on. I believe a warm-up in front of the home crowd will do much to relieve any anxiety the team may feel, as it is always more difficult to perform in front of those you know. Exact time and place will be announced as we get closer to that date.

The chief for this year's team is Maj. Bruce Gamble and his team:

T-37 PILOTS

T-38 PILOTS

T-37 MAINTAINERS

MSgt. Jimmy Jones; SSgt. John Goff; Sgt. Anthony

Col. Mark H. Lillard III, Wing Commander

Hardwick; Sgt. Samuel Hook; SrA. Michael Williams; A1C Richard Angell; A1C Roy Paz.

T-38 MAINTAINERS

CMSgt. Arthur Lowery; SSgt. Glenn Belton; SSgt. Fred Winchester; SSgt. Angela Schmidt; Sgt. James Ashmore; SrA. Steven Ashley; Amn. Todd Korn.

Kudos to...

Mrs. June Rose for 30 years of faithful and dedicated service.

Mr. Larry Hagan for the Quarterly MIP award. He proposed the preparation of one contract with a triplicate signature page, results in ATC annual savings of $2,880.

MSgt. Thomas Madigan, Senior NCO of the Quarter.

TSgt. Michale Burns, NCO of the Quarter.

In last week's column, while discussing the addition of position lights to the static display aircraft, I failed to mention a key player involved with the overall project. Amn. Alan Gilliam from the Structural Repair Shop of the 64th FMS, assisted in all areas of removing and installing panels and whatever assistance throughout the entire project. Thanks for your contribution.

Training Vietnamese pilots gets U.S. involved

By Marty Brazil

Company of Military Historians

KEESLER AFB, Miss. (ATCNS) — By 1961, the situation in Vietnam was getting too hot for President Kennedy.

After much debate within his cabinet, he elected to send a detachment of the 507th Tactical Control Group to South Vietnam to establish a radar warning station at Tan Son Nhut AB, near Saigon.

Air Force pilots and mechanics were not new to Vietnam. There had been Air Force presence in the country during the French Indo-China War, and a B-29 raid had been considered to help the defenders of Dien Bien Phu.

Like so many decisions involving Vietnam, the B-29 raid proposal became mired in politics and Dien Bien Phu fell before anything was done.

As the 507th TCG was setting up in Vietnam, Gen. Curtis LeMay, then Air Force chief of staff, established with President Kennedy's approval the 4400th Combat Crew Training Squadron. The squadron, an air commando unit specializing in counterinsurgency operations, became known as the Jungle Jims.

As 1961 wore on, the situation kept getting worse for South Vietnam. President Kennedy sent more units to Southeast Asia, including a squadron of C-123 defoliation planes and placed a brigadier general in charge.

By January 1962, the 4400th CCTS was deployed and operational. Four RF-101s had also arrived at Tan Son Nhut to fly reconnaissance missions over Vietnam and Laos.

To help the South Vietnamese upgrade their fighter capability, the U.S. sent 30 T-

28s. Air Force pilots started training the Vietnamese pilots to fly them.

Dubbed Farm Gate, this operation was designed to teach Vietnamese pilots tactics most suited to the war in Vietnam. Night flying was stressed. Before long, U.S. pilots, flying SC-47s, were dropping flares to light targets for South Vietnamese Air Force strikes.

Although still regarded as advisers, Air Force pilots got more and more involved in ground support missions and providing forward air controller work for the government's ground forces.

By January 1963, it was apparent the South Vietnamese Air Force was stretched too thin for the job it was trying to do. One squadron each of T-28s and B-26s, two RF-101s and RB-26s, all flown by Americans, were sent in for photo reconnaissance.

By April, all Air Force units were in place and operating. The T-28s out of Soc Trang were especially busy, providing air cover and ground support for South Vietnamese Army operations in the Mekong Delta.

Late in 1963, the Jungle Jims began operating under their true colors. They had been flying combat missions for some time, but always with a South Vietnamese student pilot in the back seat so they could refer to air strikes as training missions. Now, they were redesignated the 1st Air Commando Squadron.

Although the conflict in Vietnam kept growing, it was still the Americans' intention in 1964 to pull the Air Force out just as soon as the South Vietnamese Air Force could function on its own.

By April of that year, it was clear to the Jungle Jims things were not working out as intended. Their effectiveness was hampered by losses to the North Vietnamese and the aging T-28s. A month later, U.S. advisers were ordered to stop flying combat missions and strictly limit themselves to training South Vietnamese Air Force pilots.

Everything changed Aug. 2, 1964, the day North Vietnamese torpedo boats attacked U.S. ships in the Gulf of Tonkin. In response, the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution was passed, and the U.S. was involved in a real shooting war.

1988 B Captain Board picks 3,965

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, Randolph AFB, Texas (AFNS) — The 1988B Central Captain Board that convened July 11 selected 3,965 first lieutenants for promotion.

The board picked 3,695 of the 3,896 considered for a selection rate of 94.8 percent. Among line officers, 3,412 were selected out of 3,599 eligibles for a 94.8 selection percent.

Selection rate in and above the zone for pilots was 99.2 percent; navigators, 97.9 percent; non-rated operations officers, 94.2 percent; and mission support officers, 92.3 percent.

Other eligibles selected were 174 nurses, 17 staff judge advocates, 58 biomedical sciences officers, 29 medical service officers and five chaplains.

The board considered all first lieutenants with a date of rank of June 30, 1987, or earlier, except judge advocates, whose date of rank was June 27, 1988, or earlier.

Get to know the candidates

Have you ever asked the question, "How do I get information on the candidates and issues?" If you have, there is now an easy way to become an informed voter.

Coinciding with Armed Forces Voters' Week Aug. 29 through Sept. 2 will be the inception of a new DOD voting information center. The center will be providing recorded messages for president, vice president, US Senate, and governor candidates. The length of each message is two minutes for presidential/vice presidential hopefuls and one and one-half minutes for senatorial and gubernatorial candidates.

AUTOVON numbers have been established with worldwide access for military personnel and their dependents. Access to this system can be made by either rotary or touchtone phones. The touchtone number is AV 285-4333 or commercial (202) 504-4333. The rotary dial numbers are AV 221-6100 or commercial (703) 325-6100.

Callers using touchtone phones can select the messages they want to hear. Callers having rotary dial phones will reach an operator at the center who will connect them with the messages they request. Anyone desiring additional information may leave their name, address, and telephone number along with their request with the voting information center and the information will be mailed.

In addition, the 1958th Communications Squadron has designated 6888 and 6889 as Voter Action Hotlines for Reese AFB. If you need voter registration information, and do not know who your unit voting representative is, you can call either extension between 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and they will put you in contact with your representative.

Commander encourages all to vote

By Lt. Gen Robert C. Oaks
Commander, Air Training Command

Once every four years, we have the privilege of casting our ballots to elect a president. This freedom to choose our national leadership is an important part of our heritage; our forefathers fought for it, and our Constitution guarantees it.

Voting is a fundamental right and a civic duty. We must encourage our people to exercise that right and duty this year by expressing their choices in the coming election.

For those of us who dedicate our lives to the defense of our country and its ideas, this election is especially important.

We have the unique opportunity to participate in choosing our commander-in-chief, as well as the officials who represent us in Congress.

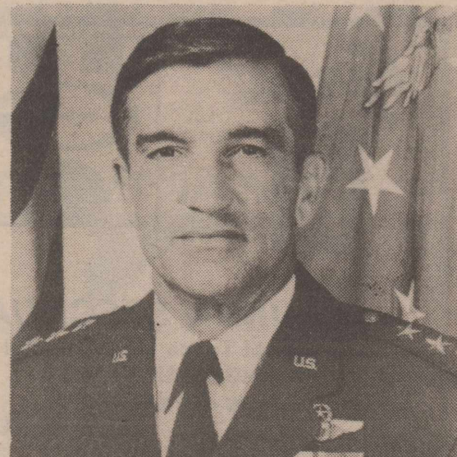

Active duty members and their dependents make up a significant constituency; we must make every effort to encourage them to make themselves heard through the voting process — from registration to the casting of ballots, whether in local precincts or by the absentee process.

I urge each of you to encourage your people to exercise their freedom of choice through voting.

For those who reside outside of their home states, there is not much time left to register and request absentee ballots.

For all, this is a citizenship opportunity and responsibility which should not be ignored. Literally, the future of our nation depends on their input and that of their fellow citizens.

Lt. Gen Robert C. Oaks

Commander's Column Let's be safe over Ready for cooler days Labor Day weekend and challenges ahead

By Col. Ford H. Barrett
Deputy Commander for Maintenance

The 64th Flying Training Wing's jets and aircraft maintenance organization have come through the hot summer months in good shape. One of the most important measures I look at is the Mission Capable (MC) rate or the percentage of the aircraft which are flyable at any one time. Today, the wing's August MC average for T-37s is over 88 percent and the T-38 rate has reached 80 percent.

The T-37 Branch has been doing a superb job of keeping their jets up and ready.

On the T-38 side, however, it has really been a long hard pull. Probably the greatest pressure has been on Aero Repair (AR). Those skilled AR mechanics have experienced a summer of 12-hour days and extended work weeks as they contended with major safety of flight inspections and preventive repairs generated by aircraft accidents at other bases. Major work on the canopy and flight controls (mixer assembly) kept the mechanics and technicians busy and the mission capable rate down. My hat is off the SMSgt. Michael Hall and Mr. Jimmy Chacon and to AR for their superb work.

Maintenance is gearing up for the ATC Torchlight competition. A team of strong contenders has been working under the leadership of Capt. Steve Mawn, CMSgt. Arthur Lowery and MSgt. Jimmy Jones to bring home the trophy for the wing. Four of our best flying T-37s and T-38s have been selected and are being prepared for competition. Significant efforts by our Structural Repair, Egress and Paint (corrosion control) shops and the Torchlight team who are molding those jets into award-winning shape. You will be proud of both the maintenance folks and the machines when they are publicly unveiled.

The national budget reductions are impacting the status of Reese jets. Today, we have three T-37s grounded because proportioner pumps are not available and the lack of air-conditioning packs has grounded three T-38s.

We understand that the Air Force Air Logistics Centers have fewer dollars to work with—Kelly AFB primarily for us—which has caused them to slow down purchases and repair work. We can expect to be under this handicap for the upcoming months.

What I have been impressed with is the smart, aggressive way Maintenance and Supply have worked to minimize the impact on our pilot training mission. Robusting benchstocks, forward supply points, minimum levels, supply difficulty messages, exceptional repair programs, cannibalizing parts from grounded aircraft to keep good ones airborne—all are being done to ensure that we are ready for the 64th FTW aviators.

We on the flight line are ready for the cooler fall days and the challenges that await us.

By Maj. Robert W. Nebel
Chief, Safety Division

Ah—at last, a three-day weekend. The official end of summer is finally here and everyone has a chance to relax with their loved ones and have some friends over for some good times.

Some common thoughts that most everyone has as the Labor Day holiday weekend approaches are driving over to see some pals or relaxing with a cool one.

But wait, can we allow ourselves to lower our guard, to lower our safety awareness?

I would submit that we, as Air Force members, cannot and should not stop being safety conscious for one minute.

The Labor Day holiday weekend is the end of the "101 most critical days" in which most off duty injuries and fatalities occur during a year. Recently, this base had a member who, while driving his car, ran into the rear of a slow moving truck and he, the driver, sustained a broken leg. His wife sustained a broken rib injury and a small child, who was secured in a child type safety seat, escaped injury.

The use of seat belts can never be over emphasized.

Again and again, graphic and dramatic proof presents itself on TV and in the newspapers about drivers and passengers.

Don't drink and drive. Our younger portion of the base population historically has the most problems here and we all can do our share for safety by watching out for one another at weekend festivities.

Another area that is a potential problem is long distance driving.

Always allow yourself plenty of time to get to your destination and don't drive when you are fatigued.

The bottom line is simple—just use some good ol' American common sense and we'll all come back from a great holiday weekend refreshed and ready to take on the wing's upcoming challenges.

Can you separate myth from fact?

Part 2 of a 10-part series. The Roundup will run one question each week from the National Defense Exam. This week's question is:

True or False —

While other parts of the budget have been cut, defense has maintained, if not increased, its share of the federal dollar.

POW/MIA week set at Reese

The week of Sept. 11-16 is set aside nationally to honor Prisoners of War and those still missing in action in Southeast Asia.

September 16 is National POW/MIA Recognition Day, established by Congress and proclaimed by the President. This special day honors these people and their families.

Reese is holding several events during that week to recognize POW/MIAs. The week begins with a 10K race at 9 a.m. The meeting place is the base picnic grounds. For more information or for sign-up sheets, contact SSgt. Randy Pratt at 3783 or go by the base gym.

Sunday, Sept. 14, during regular worship services, special prayers will be said for the POW/MIAs and their families.

A luncheon is set Sept. 14 at 12 noon at the Officers' Club. The guest speaker for the luncheon is Mr. James C. Spenser, a former POW. Tickets are $6 and can be purchased from 1st Lt. Doug White at 3636.

That Thursday, Sept. 15, there is a formal retreat ceremony scheduled for 5:30 p.m. in front of the wing headquarters building. Eight POWs will receive medals honoring their bravery and patriotism.

Attendance at these events demonstrates unified support and concern for all POW/MIAs — especially for those still prisoner, missing or unaccounted for from the Vietnam War. For more information, call Capt. Dan Kennedy at 3588.

Commentary

Labor Day is our day

By MSgt. Allan W. Ackerson
Public Affairs
Space Communications Division
Peterson AFB, Colo.

In 1882 P.J. Maguire of the Knights of Labor had an idea. He wanted a day set aside to honor the American workman. Through perseverance and hard work (appropriately), he succeeded, and in 1887 the Congress of the United States authorized the holiday which we know as Labor Day.

Originally the day was observed with parades and celebrations. Many today see it as just a three-day weekend. Most view it as a peculiarly civilian institution. But before we so casually dismiss it, let's take another look at labor and the military.

Labor Day should have particular significance for the military member. It is a paradox of military life that we work in order that our specialty — the successful application of violent force — not be employed. With rare exceptions, no one else practices so hard something its practitioners fervently hope will not be used.

For us in the military, it is an unusual labor. It knows no set hours — over a career, a military member can often expect to work extended hours. It has a fixed basis of reward — no matter how much a person works, the compensation remains the same. By its very nature, it defines and limits the people it can employ. War, being strenuous as few pursuits are, must employ people who are capable, fit and, usually, young.

It is unforgiving labor. In war, the tolerance for error approaches zero. Wrong decisions are measured immediately in human lives; in the long term, in the fate of nations, perhaps of the world.

It is labor contradictory in its effort. At its worst, it crushes liberty, destroys societies and reduces men to brutes. In its finest form it upholds freedom, checks aggression and raises men to extraordinary heights of courage and nobility.

It is labor which many abhor, yet most deem necessary. No one prefers war to peace, death to life, destruction to creation. However, human history, absent the leaven of might for right, is a chronicle of miserable subjection to cruel and capricious rulers. Only when military might is harnessed to enforce the rule of law, to protect the weak from the strong, to provide for the common defense, is mankind's condition elevated and civilization advanced.

The profession of arms is an honorable one, a labor which springs the fundamental rights of free men. As we observe Labor Day this year, let us remember that it is our day, too.

To help you learn more about ways to get and stay healthy, the Air Force Commissary Service is co-sponsoring "It's high time to lower cholesterol."

It's coming to your commissary Thursday through Sept. 17 as part of the American Heart Association's National Food Festival.

Special banners and posters will be featured, identifying items recommended by the American Heart Association to help lower cholesterol. Many of the items will be available at special low prices during the sale.

Lapel stickers and educational information will be passed out to customers.

The second edition of AFCOMS' popular 'Healthy Heart Shopping Guide to Better Eating' will be available to customers.

The new guide has been improved thanks to suggestions and ideas from people who read and used the first edition.

Commissary construction

Due to construction of the commissary's meat market, it will be necessary for the commissary to carry prepackaged meat. This began Sept. 1 and will continue for approximately three to five weeks.

CGOC meeting

The Reese Company Grade Officer Council is dedicated to career enhancement, base and community involvement, and the promotion of a social network among company grade officers at Reese.

The next meeting is Wednesday, 4:45 p.m. in the Jack Davis Room of the Officer's Open Mess. For more information call 2nd Lt. Jennifer L. Kowalski, 3953.

Volleyball tryouts

Tryouts for the Reese Men's Volleyball Team is tomorrow, Sept. 10 and 17 at 8 a.m. at the Physical Fitness Center. The team will begin its season in October. For more information call SSGT. Glen Cruz, 3635.

NCOAGA meets

The Noncommissioned Officers Academy Graduation Association holds its monthly meeting Thursday, 11 a.m. in the Enlisted Open Mess. If you are a graduate of the Noncommissioned Leadership School or Academy, please come by and join in.

Sidewalk sale

The commissary holds a sidewalk sale tomorrow from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Shoppers can take advantage of extra savings and participate in free drawings for a gas grill and bicycle. For more information, call 2nd Lt. William A. McNeill, commissary store manager, 3425.

Stop smoking class

Ready to stop smoking and need some support? A Smoking Cessation class is being held from 4:30-5:30 Sept. 13, 15, 20 and 22. Discussions focus on the changes which take place when you stop and how to deal with them.

Join the Smokebusters' Hall of Fame. Call the Health Promotions office at 3140 for more information.

Well-baby clinic held

USAF Hospital-Reese holds a Saturday Well-baby Clinic beginning Sept. 10. Well-baby checkups should occur at two weeks, and two, four, six, 12, 15 (optional) and 18 months and 2 years and the 4-6 year period.

It is extremely important to monitor the growth and development of a child.

Reese beneficiaries are encouraged to take advantage of the clinic. You can make appointments at 3245.

Check cashing

Attention AAFES check cashers: The rules for presenting checks for purchase or for cash change effective Sept. 1, 1988. All I.D. information must now be placed on the face of the check. I.D. information can no longer be put on the back with the exception of an endorsement signature, which must fit in the top one and one-half inches.

The back of the check must be left blank. This change is due to a new federal law designating the open area on the back for banking use only.

AAFES officials encourage customers to have personal checks preprinted with all necessary information to preclude customers having to cram information into the limited open spaces on the front of their checks.

This new federal reserve banking regulation will effect all check cashing agencies, exchange, commissary and the like.

Refuse pick-up for housing

Base housing occupants are reminded that due to the Labor Day holiday, the monthly pick up of bulk refuse items is scheduled for Tuesday. If you have any items you want to dispose of, please set them on the curb (not by the dumpsters) prior to 9 a.m.

Weekend pool party

MINORITIES IN ACTION of Reese is having a Labor Day weekend pool party at Innsbruck West Apartments tomorrow at 7 p.m. Everyone is invited to come enjoy to fun, music and food. For more information about MINORITIES IN ACTION Black Cultural Awareness Association, or the pool party, contact Lt. Cecily Christian at 3410, TSgt. Randy Sutton at 3311 or A1C Earl Sino at 3790.

"Jail Your Commander"

For a mere $20, the security police will put your favorite boss, commander, first sergeant or supervisor in Security Police Confinement area for one hour today.

You can watch the arrest as your supervisor gets carted off by the SPs for such crimes as assault with an ink pen (paper pushing), excess lawn mowing abuse, or being grumpy in a "no grumpy" zone.

To be released, the jail birds must pay $25 in "bail" or complete a one hour sentence. Bail can be raised by the prisoners only if they can use his phone calls effectively.

For jail reservations or information, call 3614. "Nobody knows the trouble they've seen."

Car rental program

Government car rental is made available to DOD travelers on official TDY orders, however, the statement "Rental Car Authorized/Hire of Special Conveyance Authorized," or similar language must be on the orders to determine the travelers eligibility for the government discount rates.

There are many Rental companies which have an agreement with the government. They offer unlimited free mileage, plus full comprehensive and collision coverage (CDW) on the rental vehicle.

When making your travel arrangements, your SATO office will be able to confirm whether or not the rental company you choose has an agreement with the government.

When renting from companies or in cities not in agreement, travelers should be reminded that if they pay a fee for CDW they will not get reimbursed.

Call SSGT. Dominique Woolcock, 6143 for more information.

Bowling lanes close

The lanes at Windmill Lanes bowling center are closed today through Tuesday for resurfacing. The snack bar is still open during regular duty hours.

Executive writing course

The Air Force Academy Executive Writing Course is being offered at Reese in two sessions on Sept. 19. The first session is 9-11 a.m. and the second is 1-3 p.m.

The course offers middle and senior managers in government practical and proven ways to improve the writing they do every day.

The course offers advice—presented in a lively manner—on how to get to the point fast, how to write as though speaking, and how to write concisely.

For more information, call 1st Lt. Summer Scott, 3377.

Hispanic contributions — past to present

Hispanics, since the beginning of our nation, have always contributed gallantly to our defense.

Six Hispanics died among the Alamo's defenders. Almost 10,000 served with either the Union or the Confederacy. Several rode with the Rough Riders in the Spanish American War and in WWI, Pvt. Marcelino Serna was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross (DSC) after being wounded and capturing 24 Germans.

As many as 500,000 Hispanics served in WWII, with 53,000 from Puerto Rico alone. Twelve of these men were awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest proportion of any ethnic group. One unit of Hispanics, the 141st Battalion of the Texas 36th infantry Division won three Medals of Honor, 31 DSC's, 12 Legion of Merits, 492 Silver Stars and 1,685 Bronze Stars.

In Korea, Hispanics won nine Medals of Honor, and the third highest ranking Air Force ace with 14.5 kills was Col. Manuel J. Fernandez, Jr.

In Vietnam, Hispanics were among the first to answer America's call. One of the first Americans captured while fighting the Viet Cong was SFC Issac Camacho in November 1963. After 20 months, he escaped and was awarded a battlefield commission, later winning a Silver Star and Bronze Star.

The first American pilot shot down was Lt. Everett Alvarez who was lost in the first Tonkin Gulf raid. He would serve eight and one-half years as a prisoner of the-North Vietnamese.

In Vietnam, 13 Hispanics were awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, 10 posthumously. Again, the highest proportion of any ethnic group. From Texas, among the 3405 casualties, 771 Hispanics died in Vietnam or 22.6 percent of the total. This represents the highest percentage of any ethnic group.

A study done on five states: Arizona, California, Colorado, New Mexico and Texas shows that 19 percent of the casualties during the Vietnam War from these states were Hispanic, even though Hispanics represented less than 14 percent of the population of those states.

But Hispanics have not only served down in the ranks during our Nation's history, they have reached the highest levels of military command.

In the Civil War, Adm. David Farragut, the son of a Spaniard who fought in the American Revolution and the War of 1812, captured

New Orleans, La. and Mobile, Ala, for the Union.

Horacio Rivero, who graduated third in his Naval Academy class of 1931, became a four star admiral. When he retired in 1972 he was made Ambassador to Spain.

Another Hispanic, Brig. Gen. Luis R. Esteves, the first Puerto Rican to graduate from West Point, was the first of his 1915 class to be promoted to general, ahead of his classmates, Eisenhower, Bradley, Van Fleet and McMarney.

The Army's first four star Hispanic General was Richard E. Cavazos, a native of Kingsville, Texas and a graduate of Texas Tech, a school at which his brother is now president. General Cavazos served in Vietnam in 1967-68 and was III Corp Commander at Ft. Hood in 1980. During his career he won two DSC's, two Silver Stars, two Legion of Merits, five Bronze Stars, the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Purple Heart.

Thirteen other Hispanics have reached the General or Flag ranks in the regular armed services, of whom at least five are Vietnam veterans. In addition, 19 other Hispanics have reached the general ranks in the reserves or the National Guard.

In 1975 aboard the last American helicopter to leave Vietnam was one MSgt. Juan J. Valdez. Once again for America, Hispanics were among the first to fight and the last to leave.

New weapons trainer being tested at Lackland

By Sgt. Bertrand Washer
Lackland Public Affairs

LACKLAND AFB, Texas (ATCNS) — Instructors at the 3280th Technical Training Group's Combat Arms Training Division have begun learning how to operate a new advanced individual combat arms trainer. The new trainer will be used for teaching the students weapons operations.

The device, known as a Firearms Training System, is under a six-month operational test and evaluation period.

"The system is a laser-aimed computer-based trainer which looks like a video arcade machine," said MSgt. Edward Scott, resident writer of the Combat Arms Training Development Branch. "The device is comparable to those used in the civilian community by several law enforcement agencies.

"The Air Force is looking to use the system to evaluate students' problems using firearms and aid in their training," the sergeant said.

"It will help save time training the students in the use of firearms and also help in reducing costs by saving on the use of ammunition and firing range time."

A video disc is used to display a target image on a screen which students fire at using a weapon linked to the computer. The computer then evaluates the students' performance by scanning the screen and reading the areas fired upon by the laser-emitting weapon.

"The simulator uses many important features of a real weapon such as noise and recoil," he said.

It can be used to train on a variety of weapons from the M-16 rifle to the 9mm pistol. The video disc can be changed to offer different targets and training situations.

"This system gives us the opportunity to show the basics of firearms use to students and then later upgrade it for more advanced training," Sergeant Scott said.

"Combat arms instructors are being trained on the use of the system with students scheduled to start using it soon during an operational testing of the system," he added.

The system is under a six-month lease to the Air Force to evaluate its effectiveness in training combat arms, law enforcement and security police students.

ATC officials explained this new training method will not take the place of live-fire training. It is designed to supplement remedial and refresher weapons training.

Transportation to visit ill provided for family members

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, Randolph AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Family members of a seriously ill active-duty Air Force person may now be provided round-trip transportation from their residence to visit the member in a medical facility in the continental United States or overseas.

A similar DOD program previously was available to family members that provided transportation from ports of debarkation to overseas, but not within CONUS.

The 100th Congress passed legislation allowing each branch of the service to pay for the travel both overseas and CONUS. The Joint Service Travel Regulation has since been changed to include the legislation.

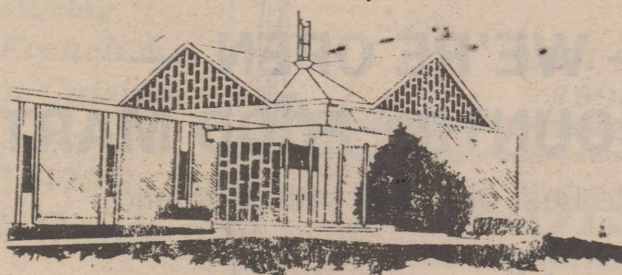

Under the new DOD program, up to two family members may travel within or outside the CONUS area to the hospital where the member is hospitalized. "Family member" is defined as the individual's spouse, spouse, children, brothers and sisters, and parents.

Travel must be recommended by the attending physician and approved by the hospital commander. The travel must be of value from a medical standpoint to aid in the recovery of the individual.

This change allows the Air Force to pay for travel to or from the next of kin's residence, but does not include payment for incidental expenses such as food and lodging. Additionally, it does not allow for funded travel for family members of dependents who may be seriously ill or injured.

For additional information, consult base personnel office personal affairs unit.

Air Force News Briefs

Drug free

KELLY AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Congress declared Oct. 24-30 Drug Free America Week "to get the message across that illegal drug use will not be tolerated." Citing public opinion polls and surveys that report 23 million Americans age 12 and over currently use illicit drugs, the resolution said Americans perceive drug and alcohol use as serious threats. However, those surveyed credit awareness efforts for the lowest marijuana use in 11 years and for increasing the number of high school seniors who associate great risk with trying cocaine once or twice.

Strength figures

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Air Force strength declined in July by 1,444. At the end of July there were 578,978 people on board, down 27,859 from the same time last year. Army strength increased by 3,842 people, Navy gained 5,450 and the Marine Corps added 679.

Energy Month

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Energy Secretary John S. Herrington and the Department of Energy have designated October as Energy Awareness Month.

The 1988 theme is "Energy makes America work."

The observance marks the eighth annual National Energy Awareness Campaign.

Energy Awareness Month encourages all Americans to learn more about energy by promoting a better understanding of the role of energy in the economy and its importance to the health, welfare and national security of the American people.

The Air Force, in conjunction with the Department of Energy, other federal and state agencies, and private sector organizations, is cooperating in support of this national volunteer energy awareness effort.

Information and promotion materials are being prepared for national distribution by the Department of Energy.

For more information, contact Lt. Col. Don Rogers, HQ USAF/LEYSF, Washington, D.C. 20330-5130, (202)586-6250.

DDP disenrollment

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — The Air Force recently established a three-part change to its policy regarding enrollment or disenrollment from the Dependent Dental Program.

The change was made to provide coverage for those in a transient status.

Coverage isn't effective until the first day of the month following that month in which the member initiates enrollment.

Those transferring between United States, Puerto Rican and Virgin Island bases may disenroll within 90 days of arrival at their new duty station if they haven't used the DDP.

Those moving from a base in the United States, Puerto Rico or Virgin Islands to overseas may disenroll while outprocessing at the Continental U.S. base, or after inprocessing at the overseas base.

If the disenrollment is at the overseas base, no retroactive disenrollment back to the outprocessing date is allowed.

Individuals transferring from an overseas base to United States, Puerto Rican or Virgin Islands locations may disenroll either at outprocessing at the overseas site, or within 90 days of the date of arrival from overseas.

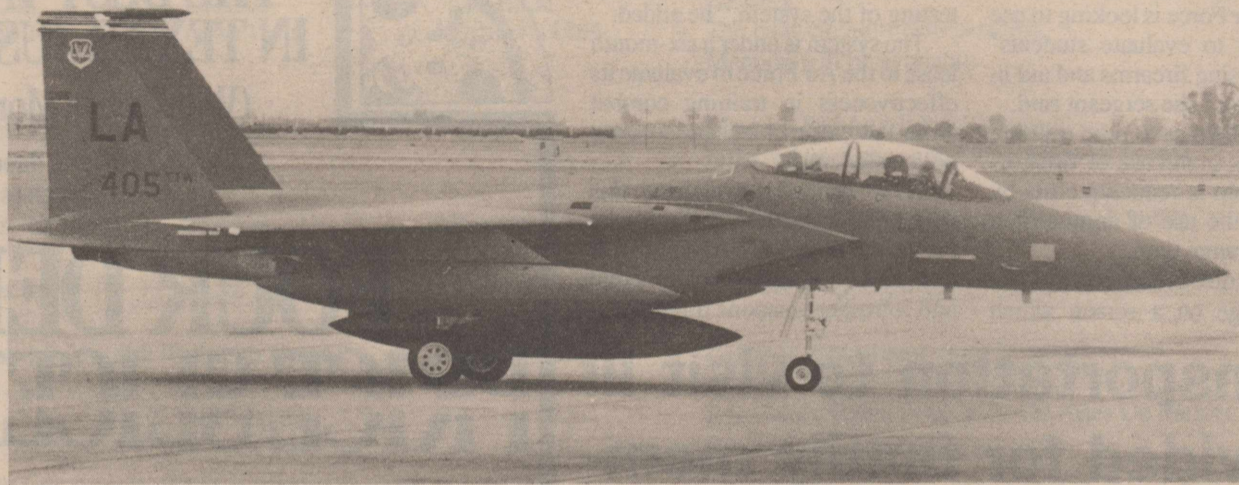

More information is available from the Base Personnel Office Customer Service unit, 3276.

Turkish language

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — The Air Force is seeking a master sergeant in Air Force Specialty Code 60273, Traffic Management Supervisor, for duty at Izmir, Turkey.

Applicants should be proficient in the Turkish language. Those who are not proficient in the language but are interested in attending language training are eligible to apply. They must attain a minimum score of 89 on the Defense Language Aptitude Battery Test to be eligible for language training at the Defense Language Institute, Presidio of Monterey, Calif.

For more information, contact the Base Personnel Office Customer Service Unit, 3276.

LUKE AFB, Ariz. (AFNS) — The 461st and 550th Tactical Fighter Training Squadrons are changing maintenance and aircrew training from the F-15A to F-15E. Tactical Air Command's newest front-line fighter officially joined the Air Force inventory in July. Unlike other F-15 models, the "E" uses two crew members, a pilot and a weapon system officer. First Lt. Robert B. O'Connor dons the Combat Edge vest before a cockpit compatibility test. The vest was designed at Brooks AFB, Texas, using technology that developed the tactical life support system. Lieutenant O'Connor is assigned to the crew technology division of the USAF School of Aerospace Medicine. (USAF photo)

New safety vest for pilots

BROOKS AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Researchers are designing a breathing system to protect jet fighter pilots from G-force induced blackouts.

Researchers with the Human Systems Division here say a new system they call Combat Edge could be ready for Tactical Air Command fighter pilots in two years.

The new system would require pilots to wear a vest over the standard flight suit.

The vest and the G-suit would plug into a breathing regulator that triggers pressurized breathing assistance when certain G-loads are reached. That assistance would combat gravity-induced loss of consciousness that occurs when G-forces, created by high-speed aircraft maneuvers, draw blood away from the brain.

In a joint effort to combat G-forces, the School of Aerospace Medicine here has been teaching fighter pilots how to strain certain muscle groups to keep blood in the upper part of their bodies.

Now, through the development of Combat Edge, the pilot will have automatic help.

The program "is an integrated effort between Air Force Systems Command and Tactical Air Command," said Maj. Gen. Fredric F.

Doppelt, HSD commander.

"This kind of project transforms the concept of meeting the user's needs into the reality of our mission," the general said.

Normally, projects demonstrated by HSD are passed to other AFSC organizations to develop.

However, with Combat Edge, the division has a full-scale development production program office.

HSD will test Combat Edge in the centrifuge, altitude chamber and at various altitude pressures.

Ground and air tests could be completed by 1989 and the system in use by 1990.

National Defense Exam - Answer

Can you separate myth from fact?

2. While other parts of the budget have been cut, defense has maintained, if not increased, its share of the federal dollar.

False. Congress has cut deeply into the president's annual defense request every year. Since 1982, Congress has cut the defense budget authority by a total of $148 billion while increasing domestic programs* $323 billion beyond the president's request. According to Office of Management and Budget statistics, in 1983 alone, defense was cut $18 billion and non-defense was increased by $84 billion.

Pregnancy fitness and questions

By SSgt. Randy Pratt
Physical Fitness Center

If you have questions about exercise, fitness and sports, write them down and send them to the Reese Physical Fitness Center 64ABG/SSRS, or call 6020 and ask your question. We will provide an answer to your question in writing and publish the best ones in the Roundup.

Is it safe to exercise during pregnancy?

Check with your obstetrician first. Most doctors recommend mild to moderate physical activity for their pregnant patients.

Generally most women can continue their regular exercise regimen into their pregnancies.

However, in some cases it is not advisable to exercise because of complication. Keep in touch with your doctor throughout your pregnancy and ask his or her advice about your exercise program.

Most doctors advise pregnant women to avoid activities that involve jumping, twisting and quick direction changes. Ligaments soften during pregnancy and joints are more easily injured. High impact aerobics may be too stressful. If you've been weight training and know how to avoid joint injury by lifting correctly you may continue, as long as you don't strain. Never hold your breath. Racquet sports may be continued with care.

Always keep your doctor informed of what exercise activity you plan to participate in. If you are afraid something is wrong or if you experience bleeding or pain, you should stop exercising immediately and see your doctor.

My doctor says I can continue my exercise class. Is there anything I shouldn't do?

Many pregnant women can continue with exercise classes as long as they monitor their heart rates and adjust their pace. Your center of gravity changes with pregnancy and it's easier to lose your balance. Exercises that require lying on your back should be avoided after the fourth month since this interferes with circulation.

Avoid bending forward at the waist with straight knees to prevent back strain. Be careful not to overstretch, and never hold your breath. Again, talk to your doctor about your exercise plans.
