Mission Milestones

Both flying squadrons are making a big push to get ahead before the short days and bad weather of winter are here. The wing gained 168 sorties last week which put T-37s at 4.6 days ahead and T-38s at 5.8 days ahead.

Pav raise

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Pay for active-duty service members and drilling members of the National Guard and Reserve will increase 4.1 percent Jan. 1. Federal civilian workers will receive a 4.1 percent pay raise then, too.

The January pay hike will increase basic military pay and subsistence allowances by 4.1 percent. Housing allowances will increase an average of 7 percent in January, depending on pay grade and dependent status. The BAQ rates have not yet been set.

Just a reminder

Regarding the new smoking policy in Air Force facilities, squadron commanders or civilian equivalents will designate smoking areas for their buildings. If a building already has a designated indoor smoking area, it will be evaluated against the criteria set forth in AFR 30-27 as supplemented by ATC. If existing indoor smoking areas cannot meet these clean air requirements (currently, none do) then a substitute outdoor smoking area will be designated. Every effort, within dollar constraints, will be made to provide acceptable designated indoor smoking areas. In the interim, smokers will only be allowed to use designated indoor smoking areas during inclement weather, such as when it is raining or snowing.

Flying training

A selection board that convened at the Air Force Military Personnel Center at Randolph AFB, Texas, picked 92 applicants for undergraduate flying training. The board chose 45 navigators and 35 non-rated operations and mission support officers for undergraduate pilot training, and 12 non-rated operations and mission support officers for specialized undergraduate navigator training.

Reese proves impressive at Torchlight

Twenty-eight Reese maintainers and operations personnel competed in Torchlight '88 last week. Reese won "Top T-37 Chief Team," "Top T-37 Aircrew" and "Top T-37 Squadron." With a total of 3,742.4 points out of a possible 3,950, the 64th Flying Training Wing's combined efforts and competitiveness placed Reese second overall.

With only 68.3 points more than Reese, the 47th FTW, Laughlin AFB, Texas team racked up 3,810.6 points to reign as Air Training Command's best of the best for the second consecutive year.

"This year's Torchlight was an extremely close competition, with the Reese team putting in a very solid performance," commented Maj. Bruce Gamble, project officer for the team. The 82nd FTW, Williams AFB, Az., placed third with 3,661.8 total points.

In addition to Laughlin, Reese and Williams, five other bases competed in the fourday event which took place at Randolph AFB, Texas, Oct. 12-15. Also competing were: 14th FTW, Columbus AFB, Miss.; 323rd FTW, Mather AFB, Calif.; 71st FTW, Vance AFB, Okla.; 80th FTW, Sheppard AFB, Texas and the Officer Training School Flying Screening Program at the Hondo Field in Texas.

Competitors began arriving Oct. 11, although, competition didn't begin until early Oct. 12, with maintenance events. Aircrews competing for the best arrival time in the T-41, T-37, T-38 and T-43 aircraft followed. In this competition, pilots had to fly over a designated point at a specific arrival time while being monitored by base operations. Missing best arrival time by only .01 seconds, Reese's T-38 time of .48 seconds came in a "very close" second to Williams' T-37 win.

The Top Wing score was determined by a combination of operations and maintenance events. Each Undergraduate Flying Training Wing had two teams for each type of aircraft. Each team flew a composite and low level navigation sortie. On the composite sortie, the teams took off in formation and had to accomplish a variety of formation maneu-sible on their low level sortie.

Maintenance crews were judged on personal appearance, tool kits, aircraft forms and launch and recovery tasks. A tire change competition took place the morning of Oct. 12, and an engine change competition early Oct. 15 was the last event of Torchlight.

In addition to the Top Wing, Laughlin took first in operations with a 2,287 out a possible 2,400, and first in maintenance with 1,523.6 out of a possible 1,550.

Following suit, Reese took second in operations with 2,224 points and Williams finished behind them with 2,140. The Williams team also took second in maintenance with 1,521.8, followed by Vance with 1,519.3 points. Reese scored a total of 1518.4

The Laughlin T-38 team of SSgts. Chris Meloskie and Dereck Trudel and A1C Ron Guerico also took first in the T-38 Engine Change.

> Although Vance's T-38 score of 38 points out of a possible 40 took top honors as the Best aircraft in appearance, Reese's two T-37s were close behind with 37.8 points each.

Major General Thomas A. Baker, ATC Vice Commander, presented the overall Torchlight awards. Brigadier General W. In individual competition, Sgt. Sam Hook John Soper, ATC Deputy Chief of Staff for presented the operations awards.

The crowd's anticipation was obvious as they packed to the front of the cordon, continually glancing at their cameras to be certain they would not miss such an opportunity as the Blue Angels. The concessions were booming, and everyone seemed satisfied with what they

The Blue Angels, fresh from a demonstration in California, were one of the hifghlights at the Commander's day, which also featured displays of several U.S. military and civilian aircraftr.

Following their practice Sunday morning, the Blue Angels performed at speeds in excess of 600 miles per hour, intrigued the multitude of visitors below.

Col. Mark H. Lillard, III, wing commander, said "The event went very, very well. There were so many people involved that put in so much hard work into making this event successful...I'd like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for their industriousness and commitment to excellence."

From the looks and the smiles of the over 100,000 attendees, everything seemed to run smooth and exactly as planned. "It went as well as I've ever seen one go," said Lt. Col. Bob Futoran, project officer. "The planning for Commander's Day took 20 people working for four months, and the key workers' continuous efforts for the final two weeks."

Bits & Pieces

A job well done

Last week the cumulative hard work of a great many people came together at Torchlight '88. The atmosphere at the competition was infectious. I can only liken it to the feeling of being in the stadium for the homecoming game of your favorite team. The members of the team were charged up to win not for themselves but for everyone back at Reese. I can't begin to tell you all how proud I was of them. They all did an outstanding job. I want to especially recognize Sgt. Samual Hook and SrA. Michael Williams for their first place showing in the T-37 Crew Chief Competition. SSgt. John Goff and A1C Roy Paz came within a few points of tying their T-37 counterparts from Reese for the T-37 Top Crew Chief honors. The flying team of Capts. Craig Hughes and Kevin Christensen won best T-37 Flight Crew honors overall. The top T-37 squadron overall was also right here at Reese, the 35th Flying Training Squadron. My hat is off to all of you.

To all the members of Reese, thank you for the extra effort to prepare and send this team off. Often you were counted on to take an extra shift, pull an extra RSU tour, or fly an extra sortie in order for Torchlight team members to practice for the competition. Our efforts at Randolph were not from just that team but from a whole community. We can be very proud fo our second place finish overall, but we can also plan for a first place finish next year. I know you will accept the challenge.

Think Safety

First, I want to note that our record of seatbelt usage off base has been very good this year. In all accidents recorded off base this year involving military personnel, 100 percent of those individuals involved were wearing seatbelts. It only makes good common sense.

In the Air Force we spend a great deal of time recounting the horrors of automobile accidents and hailing the benefits- Awards and Changeover Luncheon. I know the incoming of seatbelt wearers in those accidents. It deeply disturbs me coordinator, Mrs. Terri Pace, will be just as successful.

then, when I see personnel on base not wearing seatbelts. During spot checks a week ago, only 78 percent of drivers entering the base were wearing a seatbelt. Anything below 100 percent concerns me about your safety. Accidents can happen anywhere. That includes on base!

I want all of you to be safe, so do me and yourself a favor and Buckle up. You are all an integral part of the Reese team.

A second topic of safety I want to mention is about work being done to renovate buildings. The spirit of volunteerism here at Reese is outstanding. All of you go out of your way to contribute to self-help projects.

The only problem is that all of us who help are not master craftsmen. The potential for accidents is high. I want to urge all of you to wear personal protective equipment, heed the advice and direction of supervisors, and use good common sense when taking part in these projects.

Lastly, we can't fix what we don't know is broken. If you see a problem or a hazard, please take the time to fill our a report or inform wing safety. Let's make Reese AFB a safer place for all of us to work.

Moves

I would also like to take this opportunity to congratulate Brig. Gen. Jeffrey T. Ellis, ATC/DO, for an outstanding job directing the future of ATC. Welcome to the new ATC/DO, Brig. Gen. Clifton C. Clark.

Kudos...

To retired Air Force Col. Haynes Baumgardner for his outstanding stewardship of the Retiree Appreciation Days. The retirees contributions are not forgotten.

To Mrs. Josie Payne, outgoing Family Services coordinator, for her outstanding contributions to the Reese Community. I was honored to attend the Family Services Quarterly

Many Thanks to all!

I am taking this opportunity to personally pass along my sincere thanks to all Reese AFB personnel who helped put on a truly successful Commander's Day! The tremendous planning, teamwork in execution and plain old-fashioned hard work by a whole group of Reese folks made this past weekend a source of pride for everyone. From what Marie-Jacques and I saw, everyone of all ages had a great time. It was a family day in every sense — and perhaps that is the most important thing.

Parents, children, folks both young and old, and who knows, probably a few future Air Force pilots...over 100,000 people climbed all over various aircraft static displays and were thrilled by the precision flying demonstration of the Navy's Blue Angels. Nobody could have left disappointed.

We were lucky to have wonderful weather all weekend long for both UPT Career Day on Saturday and Commander's Day on Sunday. But it takes more than blue sky to make a weekend such a great success. Join me in a big round of applause for the overall coordinator, Lt. Col. Bob Futoran, 35 FTS, and his committee members. They displayed their dedication and pushed themselves to the limit to make the whole weekend run smoothly.

Because so very many of you were involved, it's difficult to thank all of you hard workers in the letter, but a few people do deserve special mention. If you run into these folks, remember to give them a pat on the back:

Comm Squadron celebrates 40th year

By Capt. Gerald L. Brown Commander, 1958th CS

The 1958th Communications Squadron holds an open house today from 11-4 p.m. The Reese community is invited to stop by Bldg. 20 for a tour of the facilities 40 years of continuous service.

On July 1, 1976, the proud colors of the 1958th were transferred to Reese AFB from Anderson AFB, Guam, and replaced the 2053rd Communications Squadron, whose colors were retired. At Reese, the mission of the 1958th Communications Squadron remains basically the same as when she was first commissioned — to provide the best possible communications support.

As the base level communications squadron, it provides telephone, message, data automation and visual air traffic control. We provide maintenance for critical radio, navigational aids and weather equipment. We also provide all public address system support for official base programs.

Throughout the years, we've increased our scope of responsibility and added a few milestones.

In 1983 we were one of the first Air Force bases to install a completely computerized telephone switch. That same year, the 1958th became one fo the first units in the Air Force Communications Command to contract out the base communications centers and telephone switchboards. The 1958th has since then served as a model for other units completing contract action.

In 1986, responsibility for all base level data processing was transferred to the squadron and the UNISYS Sperry 1100/60 computer was upgraded in 1987 to support the Air Force Core Automated Maintenance System (CAMS). In 1987, aging navigational equipment was replaced and in 1988 a $257,000 upgrade to the air traffic control tower was Future programs include upgrading critical weather equipment, collocation of the base communications center and data processing center, and the installation of the emergency 9-1-1 system.

With the installation of the Emergency 9-1-1 system in January 1989, Reese will become the first base in the Air Force to have it's own dedicated system for emergency

Air Force Recruiting Service

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS) — "We're selling more jobs in fiscal year 1989," says George Germadnik, chief, Marketing and Research at Headquarters Recruiting Service.

"Compared to past years, there are several major differences in our approach to allocating new fiscal 1989 goals.

* First, we are allocating goals to the group level; the groups, in turn, break out the goals to their respective squadrons."

Mr. Germadnik said when goals were being established for the field, Recruiting Service Commander Brig. Gen. Daniel Cherry asked that the goal formula for the new fiscal year be "simple, reasonable and understandable."

Groups and squadrons have had a direct input in developing the new goals. Headquarters Recruiting Service hosted two goal allocation conferences with group deputy commanders and selected squadron superinten-

What is the Comptroller Division?

By Lt. Col. Stephen Maddox

Deputy Commander for Resources

As you may have noticed from my last two articles on Contracting and Transportation, I'm writing a series to let folks know what the Resource Management Organization does. So, what is a "Comptroller?" My dictionary says it is a misspelling of the word "controller," but don't let the definition confuse you. The Comptroller Division manages the wing's checkbook and provides the mechanisms to help keep our spending under control. The Division includes Accounting and Finance, the Cost Branch and the Budget Branch which join forces to execute a $147 million annual budget in order to accomplish our wing's mission. I'd like to briefly describe each branch and give you a feel for what they do.

The Budget Branch has only three people, but they are the heart of Reese's entire financial system. Through careful planning and detailed record keeping, the budget folks provide expert monetary assistance to commanders and resource advisors. Through this kind of team effort, Reese AFB gets the best possible value for our limited pot of dollars. We ask each of you to conserve supplies, utilities and take care of equipment so we have the money to improve facilities and enhance mission accomplishment. You are a key part of the resource team and the Budget Branch is the coach.

As a result of this team effort, you'll see several new projects in the next few months. During fiscal year 88 we saved enough to renovate and air condition a portion of the gym. All new weights and equipment will turn our existing weight room into a complete fitness center. We've also funded major projects to rebuild several streets and improve some of our older buildings. We bought additional computerized energy management equipment which will more than pay for itself in energy savings. These are but a few examples of what our Budget Branch has accomplished with everyone's help and co-

The Accounting and Finance Branch is the part of the Comptroller Division familiar to most of us. I'm sure each of you have visited travel pay and military pay to do some business. The civilian pay section processes biweekly time and attendance sheets to make sure each of Reese's civilian employee's gets a timely, accurate paycheck. The two sections that are the unsung heroes of Accounting and Finance are the Materiel and Services Sections. Literally everything this base buys comes through these folks. Obviously, if we want the checkbook to balance, these folks have to do a good job — and they do.

The last branch under the comptroller is the Cost Analysis Office. First Lieutenant Joan Kinsey and her staff of wizards are here to provide management consultant services. They do not analyze management — they analyze for management. They can tailor a management assistance service for your specific needs and it can be kept confidential at your request. Also, they can provide an economic analysis to help you make decisions such as: repair or replace; lease or buy; continue or cancel contracts. If there's a problem that can be quantified, they'll give you the numbers to help you make a decision.

Well, there it is in a nutshell. Whether you call it comptrolling or controlling, we help the Wing Commander get the most "bang for

Reese Readiness to meet with Gorbaci

By Maj. Russ Jenney Chief, Readiness Division

Scenario: In a joint statement with the Department of Defense, the State Department announced that the Readiness Division of Reese Air Force Base would meet with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Moscow at a time to be announced at a later date. The statement further said that...

Now that I have your attention, I would like to talk to you about the need to be ready. As Reese's new Readiness Division Chief, I know that the accomplishments of my predecessor, Lt. Col. T.J. Wyrick, have left the Readiness Division and Reese AFB in outstanding shape.

After all, Air Training Command

1987 is quite a billing. And yet, for the past weeks, the people I have talked to throughout the base have left me a bit concerned. You see, the tendency for complacency has started to gain a foothold throughout the installation.

I see this as a three-fold problem. First, the accomplishments of the past (superb MCI, Readiness Division of the Year, and so on) have had a tendency to sucker us into resting on our laurels. Second, the revision of the UEI-MCI inspection date from January to a later date in the year has set the mood as "...phew!

This gives us more time to prepare." When this is translated into plain English, it comes out as "...

Readiness Division of the Year for Now I can put all that MCI-Readiness stuff way back on the back burner." And third is the attitude that readiness preparation is an additional duty.

While this problem is three-fold in its symptoms, the root cause is quite simple. Readiness is a continuous state of mind and training in our primary duty; that duty being to serve our country whenever it calls, and to be ready to answer that call. A Prime Beefer had better be ready to perform his or her primary duty if deployed to an Air Force base hit by a hurricane or tornado, and be ready to do that duty in whatever environment he or she encounters.

Somewhere at 35,000 feet in a C-5 is no time for that individual to be come when you're signing in to taking the initial readiness or disaster preparedness training, simply because he or she blew it off while at Reese, or because the MCI was seven months away, and mobility is an "additional duty. "Likewise, the concept that... 'I work for operations,' 'I work for maintenance' or 'I work in supply' and none of these fall in Air Base Group where the Readiness Division lies, and readiness is not in my primary duty career field."

This holds very little water when an actual tornado hits the ramp, the base siren is wailing a 3-5 minute steady tone, and you're digging through your wallet or purse trying to find out what the siren means.

The rude awakening will really your new assignment at another base in another command.

Coming from an Air Training Command base, you will be expected to be already trained and proficient in such things as chemical warfare suit donning and the like. And I am sure that the excuse, "...but Reese is only a stateside training base with no warfare commitment," will really endear you to your new supervisors.

We in the Readiness Division are committed to prepare you for any eventuality, but you must do your part.

Regardless of the time of year, regardless of the inspection schedule, regardless of your peer pressure - get trained, get smart, GET

Fraudulent claims against government made clear

By SSgt. Annette M. Connolly NCOIC, Claims

Due to an increasing number of fraudulent claims being filed against the government, the following Federal Statute must be made clear: (Section 287 of Title 18, USC)

Whoever makes or presents to any person or officer in the civil, military, or naval service of the United States, or to any department or agency thereof, any claim upon or against the United States, or any department or agency thereof, knowing such claim to be false, fictitious, or fraudulent, shall be imprisoned amount provided in this title.

Fraudulent claims include, but are not limited to, overinflated estimates of repair (usually a misconception that the claimant passes on to the repairer that "the government is paying for it, so it doesn't matter shall be subject to a fine in the what the cost is."), overstated damages and claiming that an item cannot be repaired and must be replaced with no foundation for this assertion.

> Filing a Government claim is not a game to see how much you can get without getting caught. Serious consequences can come about by filing a fraudulent claim.

Integrity is expected of all service members, from Airmen Basic to General. If you have any doubts or concerns about an item you are claiming, contact the claims section of the Legal Office.

The newly formed Lubbock Community Theatre will hold auditions for its first show "The Gift of The Magi" on Thursday, Oct. 27 from 6 to 9 p.m. at 1901-B 50th St., The Junior League Building, located next to Southwest Savings.

Two men and five women both young and old are needed for the cast.

The Lubbock Community Theatre performance of "The Magi" is being performed for the Lubbock Junior League and will be presented during this year's Holiday Happening, Nov. 18, at the Civic Center Banquet Hall.

People are needed to assist with all phases of production. Anyone needing more information can contact Karen Copple at 794stage for a food drive that will officially begin Nov. 1, and will be a part of a national drive by scouts to benefit various food banks.

Board members of the South Plains Council of Boy Scouts of America and of the South Plains Food Bank were present as were members of the Executive Committee of the U-Can-Share Food Drive, area volunteer "Scouting for Food" chairmen and professional scouting staffers.

The drive will involve between 5,000 and 7,000 scouts who will be working as part of a scouting effort to gather food and canned goods for food banks to be used to feed the hungry across the South Plains during the holiday season.

While this will be the first canned food drive the South Plains Council of Scouts has been involved in, it is a part of a national drive by the Scouts of America.

The concept started four years ago with scouts in St. Louis and spread from there.

Scouts will canvass their neighborhoods, and the drive will involve 200 area merchants who will serve as collection points for persons dropping off food.

The goal of the scouts and the South Plains Food Bank is to collect ten tons of food. The drive will end Nov. 19.

MHMR Center promotes public awareness

The Public Information members of the community. Committee of Lubbock Regional Mental Health Mental Retardation Center (LRMHMRC) has introduced DESTINATION DIG-NITY, a long-range program to promote public awareness of the worth of individuals who suffer mental and emotional disabilities.

The concept is that these individuals have value and worth; they deserve a quality life and should be treated with dignity and respect.

The staff at the Center has, for the past twenty years, exhibited a commitment to helping these individuals. Through activities at the Center, the mentally disabled members of the community are helped to reach their maximum functional potential. They can hold jobs and become productive

Woods Banquet set by NAACP

The Lubbock Branch of the NAACP invites the public to the First Annual George Woods Banquet scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 22, with a social time at 7 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 p.m.. The banquet will be held at the Holiday Inn Civic Center, 801 Ave. Q. A $15 donation is requested from all in attendance.

The public can also play a key role in aiding the efforts of the staff of the Center in Destination Dig-

The public can help by not discriminating against individuals with mental disabilities and by giving them the same consideration and respect they would to "normal individuals."

Members of the community can also assist by joining the Volunteer Services program of the Center. Volunteers may perform a variety of duties, provide transportation and assisting case managers in direct services to clients. One example of a need is volunteers to assist coaches in recreational and Special Olympic activities.

Anyone interested in volunteering should contact Lois Norman, LRMHMRC Volunteer Coordinator at 766-0202.

from Texas Tech University

The Texas Tech Museum traces the development of the South Plains from 12,000 years ago when prehistoric man first inhabited the region.

The Llano Estacado, or staked plains, was a name Spanish Conquistadors gave to this region of West Texas.

The Museum moved from Holden Hall on the Texas Tech main campus to its present location at 4th and Indiana in 1970.

False. In reality, arms control agreements which reduce the number of nuclear warheads place the responsibility for maintaining a military balance with the Soviet Union more heavily upon conventional forces - tanks, troops, aircraft and ships.

While a reduction of nuclear warheads is essential, it will, unless we can convince the Soviets to make assymetrical reductions in their conventional forces, most likely require that we

Physical fitness and your health-cooling

By SSgt. Randy Pratt Physical Fitness Instructor

If you have questions about exercise, fitness or sports, write them down and send them to the Reese Physical Fitness Center, 64ABG/ SSRS, or call 6020 and ask your question. We will provide an answer to your question in writing and publish the best ones in the

You're having a super workout. It feels great to be getting in shape, and today in class you are really pushing yourself; your heart rate is 150 beats per minute. But you're planning to leave class early today, in about five minutes, in fact. What should you do?

A. Use the five minutes to take a nice hot shower to prevent muscle

B. Do some gentle stretching to help cool down your muscles?

C. Do as much of the cool-down routine with the class as you can, or jog slowly in place to decrease your heart rate gradually?

D. Eat a quick lunch so you'll have plenty of energy throughout the afternoon?

If you chose C, you were right. An active cool-down is important, after a vigorous workout.

What is a cool-down?

A cool-down is a period of lowintensity activity that follows a moderate or vigorous workout and helps your body return from exercise to a resting state. A cool-down is sort of like a warm-up in reverse. While the warm-up helps your circulatory and metabolic systems gear up for oxygen delivery and energy production, a cool-down helps them return gradually to a resting level.

Why is cool-down so important?

Irregular heartbeats are more common when exercise suddenly stops than when it gradually tapers off. No one knows exactly why this is so but it probably has something to do with the changes in circulation and metabolism that occur following exercise.

Blood flow is regulated by a number of intricate physiological mechanisms. During exercise the blood vessels that bring oxygen and nutrients to your working muscles are wide open. The cool-down helps the blood return to the heart by alternately contracting and relaxing the muscles.

If you stop moving, the blood 'pools" in these wide-open blood vessels, especially in the legs. Not enough blood returns to the heart, so the heart attempts to beat faster to increase the flow. Dizziness or light-headedness results when not enough blood reaches the head.

A hot shower, sauna or hot tub session immediately after exercise compounds this problem. As your body dissipates heat by increasing blood flow to the skin, the volume of blood returning to the heart is further decreased. People have been known to faint in a hot shower after vigorous exercise.

What's the best way to cool

Repetitive movements of large muscle groups performed at low intensity provide a pumping action that aids circulation. Any aerobic activity-walking, jogging, cycling, swimming, rowing, aerobic movement routines-performed slowly can serve as a cool-down. Do whatever is convenient and

Some examples: if you've just played an hour of vigorous tennis, five or 10 minutes of walking may help bring your heart rate down. After a hard run, do some slow jogging or brisk walking. A slow routine at the end of a vigorous aerobic session helps you cool

Continuous movement should not be stopped until your heart rate is below 120 beats a minute. People with heart problems and/or those on special medications that slow heart rate should cool-down to lower heart rate levels. check with your physician and/or instructor if you are in this category.

Rattlers crowned champions

The Reese Rattlers were crowned champions during a weekend single round robin event soccer tournament, held here Oct. 8 - 9.

The Rattlers found themselves up against some stiff competition throughout the tournament. During the first game against Holloman

AFB, N.M., the Rattlers started out a bit sluggish.

As the game progressed the team woke up and they were able to get their act together with Chuck Kunde and David Busenitz each scoring two goals, and John Martelin and Harvey Osborn both scoring one goal, making the score 6 to 3.

In the second game, the Rattlers beat the Warriors of Lubbock 4 to 2.

In the third game of the tournament, the Rattlers were in a battle against United of Lubbock. David Busenitz scored to tie the game in the last 30 seconds, 1 to 1.

During overtime play Jay Barney scored the tie breaker and assurance goal to give the Rattlers the
