Tattoo of the Plains set for this evening

Volunteers, the Friends of Reese, Honorary Squadron Commanders, the families of servicemen still missing in action, and former prisoners of war will be honored this evening at sunset.

The annual Tattoo of the South Plains ceremony will begin promptly at 8:15 p.m. The main gate will close to vehicular traffic at 7:45 p.m. and the pedestrian entrance at the main gate will close at 8:10 p.m. Both will remain closed until the conclusion of the ceremony. There will be plenty of seating available and everyone should be in place by 8:00 p.m.

Prisoners of war and those still missing in Southeast Asia and their families will be recognized for the struggles they have faced over the past decades. POWs and MIAs are the American heroes who proudly served our country during the Vietnam conflict. Their families are heroes in their own right, having encountered the many burdens over the unknown fate of their loved ones.

A special segment of tonight's ceremony will honor these and women with a wreath-laying at the POW/MIA Memorial, a 21-gun salute and a Missing Man Flyover by four of Reese's T-38s.

Another special group to be honored at tonight's ceremony are the people who give freely of their time and effort helping others—volunteers.

Volunteers are increasingly vital resources to our services, especially in light of recent budget cuts and funding constraints.

Three people in particular will be recognized for their volunteer contributions to the Reese community.

Mrs. Josie Payne, Family Services coordinator at Reese, has contributed over 3800 hours of volunteer work in family services over the past three decades. Her 812 hours of service last year alone led to her selection as Family Services' Volunteer of the Year.

Lt. Colonel Rufus Hutchinson was the project officer for the renovation of the Reese picnic grounds. The numerous volunteer hours he devoted to planning, organizing and implementing this base-wide self-help project exemplified the true spirit of leadership and teamwork.

After serving his country for 30 years, Col. (Ret.) Haynes Baumgardner has spent the past several years volunteering his leadership and management skills to the once dormant Retiree Activities Office here. His enthusiasm in the pursuit of the challenge of rejuvenating the local chapter has led the organization's two offices to serve area retirees on a full-time basis with 19 volunteers.

The evening will be filled with pride and patriotism. Our country's heritage will be marked by fly-bys of vintage aircraft flown by the confederate Air Force; music will be performed by the Air Force's Band of the West from Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio; a performance by the Reese Drill Team; and fly-bys of our own T-37 and T-38 aircraft will enhance the importance of this traditional ceremony.

Honorary Squadron Commanders welcomed

Thursday, twelve Lubbock citizens became members of a group known as Honorary Squadron Commanders.

During the evening ceremony, each Honorary Commander, assigned to one of Reese's 12 squadrons, assumed his or her "command" by receiving that squadron's guidon flag from Col. Mark H. Lillard III, Commander, 64th Flying Training Wing, and that squadron's commander. This is a traditional military ceremony done when a commander relinquishes or assumes the command of a unit.

The ceremony was the highlight of a full day's activities which included a tour of the base, tours of the individual squadrons by their respective commanders, and a special dinner at the Reese Officers' Club.

Colonel Lillard initiated the program as an effort to enhance the positive relationship Reese has already established with the surrounding community.

The members of the "Janus Group," as it has been formally named, are Lubbock civic leaders in various career fields. They will serve a one year term volunteering their time strengthening the bond between Reese and the community.

Relocation service now being tested

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The Air Force is encouraging commercial companies to provide mortgage and relocation services to Air Force members similar to those offered employees of private corporations.

"By doing so, we hope to reduce both the turmoil and out-of-pocket expenses for the Air Force member," said Eric Thorson, deputy assistant secretary for Manpower, Resources and Military Personnel.

Merrill Lynch, Century 21 and Travelers are the first to offer relocation packages for members moving to another base. These companies are conducting a test of the concept in the Washington D.C. and Southern California areas starting June 1. The test will run for 90 days and may expand nationwide during that time.

"We expect more companies to participate and offer relocation services as the word gets out," said Mr. Thorson.

The Air Force is promoting the concept, but is not endorsing participating companies.

The incentive for companies to join the program is "a tremendous market that is financially stable and offers great volume," said Mr. Thorson.

"Nobody has put together a program where you could reach the entire service at one time and have access to that kind of volume."

Current proposals include prequalification and preapproval of mortgages, lower origination fees, reduced commissions and loan processing fees, consideration of expected spouse income and rental assistance. The companies believe they can save members money in "up-front costs" while reducing inconvenience and out-of-pocket expenses associated with a PCS move.

The Air Force is encouraging two other services in addition to what each participating company proposes. "We suggested the companies consider having a toll-free number for a single point of contact for the entire relocation and nationwide network for their services," said Mr. Thorson.

Members will be notified during their PCS briefings that some real estate companies are offering relocation packages and to check with the Housing Office for more information.

Names of those moving cannot be provided to the companies.

Those interested can go to the Housing Office and research the different companies and services, and call company representatives.

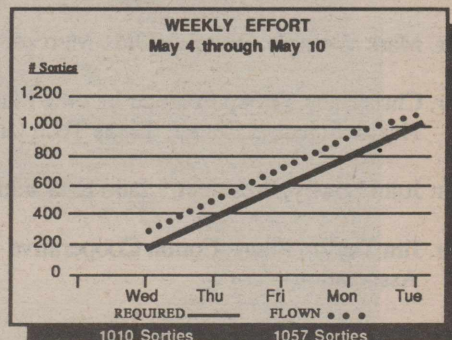

All business is between the individual and the company he chooses. The Air Force is not involved in any contracts and does not pay the companies to participate. Any transactions will be "member to vendor."

There is absolutely no contractual arrangement between the government and the company. The program brings together the market and the suppliers. From then on it is up to the companies to attract and sell the members of their particular product and company," said Mr. Thorson.

If the program is successful, it may expand throughout the Department of Defense.

Mission Milestones

Another great week for the 64FTW! We flew 47 sorties over what was required. The timeline hasn't changed much since last week...T37s are 4.1 days ahead and T-38s are 6.6 days ahead of the timeline.

Bits & Pieces

Janus Group...

As I mentioned last week, Janus was one of the four superior Roman gods; in particular, the god of doors, gates, entrances and hence of travel and all beginnings. As guardian of entrances and new beginnings, Janus bridges past and future.

Looking to the future, the 64th Flying Training Wing and its mission will experience a myriad of changes. In these changing times we seek to build on the long-standing bond between our two communities, Lubbock and Reese, to better enable us to cross the bridge and meet the future with greater understanding and mutual respect. What better symbol to represent Reese-Lubbock brotherhood than Janus.

Letting our pride show...

On Wednesday, we hosted the 12 distinguished individuals from the Lubbock community who were selected to be the charter Honorary Squadron Commanders. We began by giving them a wing mission brief in the wing conference room, followed by a tour of the base. I want to thank everyone for their efforts toward insuring that the base looked just superb. It is easy to be proud of something when you know that folks put a lot of their time and pride into the preparation. It shows!

Following the tour each Honorary Squadron Commander visited his or her honorary squadron and got the opportunity to look around and meet some of the folks who work there. I'm sure some of you saw and met your honorary squadron commander. Later in the day we had all of them over to the club for a social hour, followed by a great dinner. Special thanks to Pauline and the O'Club staff. They were then treated to the "Legacy of Reese," eloquently rendered by Capt. Dan Sanders, and the inspirational "Lee Greenwood" slide show, produced by Capt. Keith Clifton and the wizards of the audio-visual branch.

All in all it was a great day for Reese and our new Honorary Squadron Commanders. As Honorary Squadron Commanders of the 64th Flying Training Wing, these individuals help unite the Lubbock and Reese communities and continue a long tradition of civic-military involvement on the South Plains. As the doors to Janus' temple always remained open, so also do the doors of Reese. The men and women of Reese extend our welcome to the charter members of the Janus Group.

Tattoo of the South Plains...

The Tattoo of the South Plains is going to be held today in front of the Wing Headquarters Building, beginning at 8:15 p.m. We at Reese are proud to do our part to support this time-honored tradition by recognizing our American heroes who served as Prisoners-of-War and those who are still Missing-in-Action from all wars and the Vietnam conflict in particular. The theme of this Tattoo is "Volunteers Through the Years," and is in recognition of the increasingly vital contributions that volunteers do make. People like Mrs. Josie Payne, Lt. Colonel Rufus Hutchinson and Colonel (ret) Haynes Baumgardner have exhibited those qualities that are absolutely necessary if we are to keep our traditional institutions vibrant. I urge all Reese members to come out and enjoy the ceremony. I know that you will be glad that you did.

Defenders return...

Congratulations to our Reese Defenders for an outstanding team effort to get everybody through a very demanding course during Volant Scorpion. Our folks returned to say that there were very few injuries. The experience gained will make our Security Police Team better. Super job!

Very special visitors...

We will once again have the privilege of receiving a visit from the Commander of Air Training Command, Lieutenant General John A. Shaud. He is coming to Reese to attend the Texas Tech Army-Air Force ROTC Commissioning Ceremony to be held on Saturday in the Officers' Open Mess. He is coming here to preside over the swearing-in of 14 new 2nd Lieutenants into the United States Air Force. A proud moment for all of those young men and women, and General Shaud as well.

And, we also have coming to Reese, a very special pair of guests. Brigadier General (select) James W. McIntyre and his wife Karen will be visiting Reese between Wednesday and Sunday of this week. I can think of no prouder alumnus of Reese, whose contributions have both meant so much to, and done so much for, the people of Reese. I know that they still think of Reese as their home, and that the people here occupy a very special place in their hearts. Welcome home!

By Col. James Higham
64th Air Base Group Commander

This evening at 8:15 p.m., Tattoo Of The South Plains will begin. If you have never been to a TATTOO before, and even those who have, I encourage you to attend this very heartwarming and patriotic ceremony. It is an emotional and proudfest experience!

Tattoo is a must-see ceremony

The Tattoo ceremony originated about 300 years ago. The British Army of King William III was housed in the towns and villages around the battlefields in The Netherlands. In those days, wars were waged in a much more informal manner. The soldiers would go to the local inns to spend the evenings. Drummers would march through the streets as a signal to the soldiers that it was time to leave the pubs; and to the innkeepers that it was time to turn off the taps. We would have heard them say Dew Den Tap Toe — meaning Turn Off The Taps. But the troops learned only the last two words, Tap Toe. As the years progressed, Tap Toe became Tattoo.

The theme of tonight's ceremony is Volunteers Through The Years. We will recognize volunteers from Reese AFB who help make Reese an outstanding place to work and live. They give unselfishly of their time and freely share their personal experiences to improve the welfare of their neighbors (and yours and mine). I personally applaud all of them.

After the volunteers are recognized, the band has played, the airplanes have flown, and our POWs/MIAs remembered, the sun will gently set on our West Texas sky.

Day is done, gone the sun,
From the lake, from the hill,
From the sky.
All is well, safely rest,
God is nigh.

Fading light dims the sight,
And a star gems the sky
Burning bright.
From afar, drawing nigh,
Falls the night.

Parking Rule Changes

For approximately the past six months, we've had people working on sandblasting the paint off our curbs. We are in the process of changing parking—no parking areas from color-coded curbs to parking spaces marked by white lines.

Areas of particular concern where I see people parking in no parking areas are in front of the Gym, Recreation Center, and on the side of the Child Care Center. The guidelines are if you don't see a parking space marked by white lines, don't park there. You will be ticketed.

Wing supplement to AFR 125-14, Motor Vehicle Traffic Supervision, was changed to reflect this new rule on parking. There is plenty of parking on Reese AFB although a lot of it isn't as close to your particular building as you would like it to be. Please pay attention to where you park.

Be certain of your pay with Sure-Pay

Sure-Pay is a system designed to directly deposit paychecks in a financial institution of a military or civilian employee's choice each and every payday. It is the fastest, safest, most efficient and economical method of being paid.

The advantages of Sure-Pay are numerous. If a person's check presently goes to a mailbox each payday and for one reason or another it does not arrive, this unfortunate individual will have to wait to see if the check shows up before a substitute check can be issued. Most checks usually don't show up for two to five days.

When your pay is deposited by Accounting and Finance in a bank or credit union on payday, the chances of losing the money or becoming a victim of theft are greatly reduced.

There are individuals who come to the Accounting and Finance Office each time they are scheduled for TDY to make arrangements to have their checks forwarded to the TDY station. If the check is sent to a financial institution all they need to do is take their checkbook with them.

Check cashing facilities are available at all military installations. Married personnel with joint accounts benefit from Sure-Pay, as spouses have ready access to funds to meet household expenses.

Persons with checking accounts can use their personal checks to pay bills instead of purchasing money orders. However, if you don't like the idea of maintaining a checking account, your paycheck can also be deposited in a savings account.

The bottom line is: why burn up the lunch hour on payday waiting in line at the bank or credit union to deposit a check when Accounting and Finance can do it for you?

The Air Force would ultimately like to have everyone's check going to a financial organization. If you are one of those not participating in the Sure-Pay program, the Air Force encourages you to do so.

To enroll in Sure-Pay, contact the military or civilian pay section at your base accounting and finance office.

Partner/Spouse are forever indebted

By Col. James F. McKeon
RAF Fairford, England

Spouse.
That's a peculiar word, hanging out there on its own.
It's one of those words that has always been around but little used until we acquired a consciousness of the fact that the "better half" of a military member doesn't always spell w-i-f-e.

Spouse literally means husband or wife — but there's a deeper meaning for those of us in the military which is simply not covered by Mr. Webster. In the Air Force lifestyle, spouse has come to mean partner.

I think it's crystal clear that those of us who have the understanding and backing of an enthusiastic spouse make daily gains in every endeavor.

Our leaders understand the significance of the spouse enough to have a day of recognition — May 13. But how do we honor them? First, we say a great big "thank you."

Then, we can match word with deed by including them, to the maximum extent possible, in our military lives.

Tell them what is going on at the base. Take home those fliers from MWR that have valuable information about myriad interesting things. Encourage them to participate in the military community by letting them know about spouse clubs — when they meet and what they do. Bring them with you for re-enlisting or going regular. Let them share in your NCO status or promotion ceremonies.

The payback doesn't sound like very much in comparison to all the burdens of the military marriage that are borne by the spouse.

In truth, there is no way we can pay them back because the supremely beautiful thing about what our spouses do for us is done with love; with the same commitment and zeal we should all feel about doing our duty.

They don't ask for repayment. But we must never take them for granted; must never fail to acknowledge their contributions and understand their frustrations; must always say "thank you."

Maybe the real backbone of the Air Force is the military spouse.

Military Spouses

The military uses "spouse."
Referring to a wife
Or husband, as the case may be.
The mate we take for life.

I'd rather call a "spouse" a saint.
Who waited while we're gone
To World War One, and Two and more.
Korea, Vietnam.

Perhaps a better word would be
An "angel." Closer to it.
Or "devil," when we paused,
because,
She knew that we must "Do it!"

All these things, mine's been to me.
My partner all the way.
I love you Dear, and thank you.
"Happy Spouse's Day."

I am the symbol of America

The Flag

Hello! Remember me?

Some people call me Old Glory, others call me The Stars and Stripes; I have also been referred to as The Star Spangled Banner. But, whatever they call me, I am your flag. Or, as I proudly state...the flag of the United States of America. There is something that has been bothering me, so I thought I might talk it over with you, because it's about you and me.

I remember some time ago, I think it was Memorial Day, people were lined up on both sides of the street to watch the parade. The town's high school band was behind me, and naturally, I was leading the parade. When your daddy saw me coming along, waving in the breeze, he immediately removed his hat and placed it against his left shoulder so that his right hand was directly over his heart. Remember?

And you. Yes, I remember you, standing there straight as a soldier. You didn't have a hat, but you were giving the correct salute. They taught you in school to place your right hand over your heart. Remember little sister? Not to be outdone, she was saluting the same as you.

Oh, I was very proud as I came down your street. There were some soldiers home on leave and they were standing at attention giving the military salute. Also, some V.F.W. veterans with their caps at jaunty angles were saluting smartly. Ladies as well as the men, paid me the reverence I deserve.

Now, I may sound a little conceited. Well, I am. I have a right to be, because I represent the finest country in the world—the United States of America. More than one aggressive nation has tried to haul me down, but they all felt the fury of this freedom loving country. Remember—many of you had to go overseas to defend me.

What has happened? I'm still the same old flag. Oh, I've had a couple more stars added since you were young. A lot more blood has been shed since that Memorial Day parade long ago. Dad is gone now. The home town has a new look. The last time I came down your street, I saw that some of the old landmarks were gone, but in their place, shining majestically in the sun were a number of new buildings and homes. Yes sir, the old home town sure has changed.

But now I don't feel as proud as I used to. When I come down your street you just stand there with your hands in your pockets and give me a small glance then look away or turn away. When I think of all the places I've been—Anzio, Guadalcanal, Battle of the Bulge, Korea, Vietnam—I wonder what's happened? I'm the same old flag. But now I see children running around and shouting as I pass by. They don't seem to know who I am.

I saw an old man take his hat off, and then look around. He didn't see anybody else with theirs off, so he quickly put his back on.

Is it a sin to be an American Patriot anymore? Have you forgotten what I stand for? Have you forgotten all the battlefields where men fought and died to keep this nation—your nation—free? When you salute me, you are actually saluting them.

Take a look at the memorial honor rolls some time. Look at the names of those who never came back and are resting beneath white crosses on faraway shores. Some of them were friends or relatives of yours, maybe even went to school with you. That's who you are saluting when you revere me.

Well, it won't be long until I come down your street again. When you see me, stand straight, place your hand over your heart, and you'll see me waving back. My salute to you. I'll show you that I, too, remember.

Your Flag

"We Cater to Families"

Reese hosts first CATO class

The Civilian Automated Training Office (CATO), created in 1987, visited Reese last week. The reason for the visit was to conduct a 32-hour Civilian Personnel Management Course for supervisors of three or more civilian employees.

According to Mr. Charles Witchett, CATO team leader, "This course exposes Reese supervisors to the many practices, procedures, provision, and intricacies of the federal Civilian Personnel Program. It gives them a basic understanding of what is expected of supervisors who accomplish their unit mission through civilians, as well as what they as supervisors can expect of the civilians who work for them."

Mr. Witchett indicated that the CATO concept is new, and is being looked at as a test project. This concept is the new way of business for Air Training Command. The Reese session coupled with the two previously given at Lackland and Randolph, show that the idea will work.

"We are looking to economize on funds, relieve the local CBPO staff of the tasking for conducting the CMPC, and yet provide the necessary training for supervisors of civilians," Mr. Witchett said. All three of us have been extremely pleased with our visit. The supervisors attending the course were excellent students; the CBPO staff has been very helpful and supportive of our efforts; and you base is really impressive, both in the physical plant and the services provided. We now understand what people mean when they speak of the Reese standard," he added.

Mr. Witchett was assisted by Mr. Hal Shanteau and Mr. Ed Diaz of the CATO office.

Those supervisors attending the first CATO presentation at Reese are assigned to:

Deputy Commander for Maintenance: Mr. Bill Montis, SSgt. Sharon J. Sharp, Mr. Raul Ramirez and TSgt. Melvin S. Dudley.

Deputy Commander for Resources: Mr. Jerry Mullenix, TSgt. James Washington, MSgt.

Schimaine Williams and Capt. William C. Peek.

Civilian Personnel Branch: Mr. Jeffrey Z. Wilbur.

USAF Hospital, Reese: 1st Lt. Cindy LeMay, TSgt. Lafayette Butler, and Mr. Robert A. Gregorio.

AFCOMS: 2nd Lt. William A. McNeill.

64th Civil Engineering Squadron: Mr. Jim Bertrand and SSgt. Mark Amel.

Deputy Commander for Operations: 2nd Lt. John Fuss.

Throughout the second quarter, the Rattlers were able to keep the Cool Arrows at bay, and Kunde was able to score.

Other scorers in the game were Bob Montgomery, who was assisted by Steve Cook.

Thursday's game was the last in the indoor season. Outdoor practice will continue, however, to be held on Sundays at 2 p.m. on the Youth Center football field. For more information, contact Bob Montgomery at 3191 or Chuck Kunde at 791-2420.

Be prepared for spring storms

By SSgt. James A. Norton
Air Base Group Disaster Preparedness

Now that spring is upon us, we need to be thinking about the spring storms which occur over the South Plains.

The following information is provided for you to help you plan to protect yourself and your loved ones should a spring storm happen near you.

There is a distinct difference between a watch and a warning. A watch, whether it be for a tornado, severe thunderstorm, flash flood or whatever, is issued by the National Weather Service when weather conditions are favorable for development of that particular weather condition.

You should not ignore a watch. Continue with your normal activity, but "watch" weather conditions carefully. In case of a severe thunderstorm, or tornado watch, "watch" for large dark clouds moving toward you.

It is during a watch that each member of the family should know exactly what to do if the weather turns dangerous; whether they are at school, work, or just out and about.

By the time a warning is issued, it may be too late to think of what to do.

A warning means that a particular weather condition is presently occurring and you are being warned. Now is when action to protect oneself is necessary.

A tornado warning means that a tornado has actually been sighted. Listen carefully to the warning for the tornado's location and movement. If the tornado is moving toward you, take cover. If you own a shelter or basement, go to it immediately.

In your home, crouch in an interior hallway, closet, bathroom or under heavy wooden furniture. Do not open windows; in fact, stay away from all windows and doors. Protect yourself from flying debris with a heavy quilt or mattress.

Stay away from buildings with large open areas, such as gymnasiums or auditoriums. If caught in a shopping center, move to a lower portion of the mall and take cover in an interior rest room or small shop. In open country, lie flat in a ditch or depression away from trees and cover your head but be alert for flash flooding. Never try to outrun a tornado in your vehicle. Always evacuate vehicles and mobile homes.

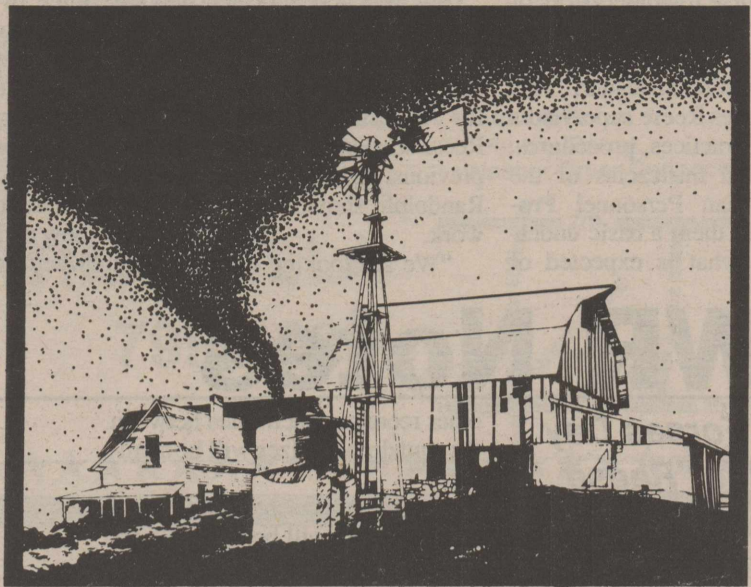

A duststorm warning means considerable blowing dust is occurring or is likely to occur. High winds can be expected and there is a danger of damage to property. Store loose objects that could be blown through windows.

When driving, exercise extreme caution due to sudden wind gusts and reduced visibilities in blowing dirt. Peak winds have been known to exceed 100 mph on the High Plains.

A thunderstorm warning means that a severe thunderstorm is moving into your area. Watch for hail, high wind and heavy rain. Take normal precautions to protect yourself, your property and small animals.

Store loose objects that could be blown through windows, such as garbage cans or lawn furniture. Stay away from windows. Avoid using the telephone except in emergencies because of possible shock from lightning that may be associated with the storm.

A flash flood warning means rapidly rising water is occurring and that you should move to a place of safety immediately. Protect property if you have time, but don't allow escape routes to be closed by rising water.

A 10 to 15 foot wall of water moving down a creek bed can carry everything in its path.

An electrical storm warning—to protect yourself from dangerous lightning, get inside a home or large building, or inside an all-metal vehicle. (Remember that you don't want to be inside a vehicle if a tornado forms.) If you are outside, with no time to reach a safe place, do not stand under a natural lightning rod such as a tall isolated tree in an open area.

Avoid projecting above the surrounding area as you would do if you were standing on a hill top, in an open field, on a beach, or fishing from a small boat. Get out of, and away from, open water.

Get away from tractors and other metal farm equipment. If you are isolated in level field or prairie and you feel your hair stand on end—indicating lightning is about to strike—drop to your knees and bend forward putting your hands on your knees. Do not lie flat on the ground.

You may survive the storm, but you still could be seriously injured. After the storm, you should be alert for sharp objects such as broken glass, nails and sharp pieces of wood. Also, watch out for downed power lines which could electrocute you. Broken gas lines have also been known to explode due to negligence of smokers, or others who cause a spark.

These safety procedures are not a 100 percent guarantee that you will be safe from injury in these types of weather conditions. They are designed to protect you in a much safer manner than if you just sat around and did nothing to protect yourself.

This information is provided by the 64th Air Base Group Disaster Preparedness Branch, 3701.

Seatbelts can save lives

You may only need a seatbelt once in your life. Sgt. Conrad Butzer of the 64th Security Police Squadron, used that once on the morning of April 10.

Sergeant Butzer was traveling west on Fourth Street in his 1986 Ford Tempo. Just before he reached the intersection of Quaker Avenue and Fourth Street, a 1984 Chevrolet, traveling east on Fourth attempted to make a U-turn in front of him. Sergeant Butzer struck the Chevrolet on the passenger side.

There were no passengers in Sergeant Butzer's car. There was passenger in the Chevrolet. Both Sergeant Butzer and the passenger were wearing seatbelts. The driver of the Chevrolet was not wearing a seatbelt, and had been drinking.

Sergeant Butzer sustained minor injuries to the chest area. The driver of the Chevrolet is still in critical condition. The passenger died eight days after the accident from massive head injuries sustained from the impact.

Lubbock police investigating the accident believe Sergeant Butzer's seatbelt saved his life.

A-76 Update

The Statement of Work (SOW) for the Aircraft Maintenance contracting out initiative has been sent to HQ ATC for their review. We expect their inputs by late May or early June. Once we have an approved SOW, these documents will be furnished to the 3303d Contracting Squadron at Randolph AFB.

Concurrently, selected base personnel are working on a more efficient organization -- the government's plan to reorganize and streamline the maintenance operation. Maintenance personnel and union officials are encouraged to provide innovative management ideas to this group.

Convention leads to changes

Reese AFB was represented at the annual Six and Ten Convention held at Wichita Falls by Air Force Sergeants Association Chapter 1068 representatives CMSgt. Steve Greenwell, president, and CMSgt. Ski Wilchenski, vice president.

Chapter 1068 received the first place award for chapter percentage growth and was also named as the most improved chapter.

Chief Greenwell was elected as the fifth trustee for Division 10. He will now be responsible for the plans, programs and awards for the division as well as representing the division in the Texas area of Reese, Goodfellow, and Dyess Air Force Bases.

Chief Wilchenski will now fill the position of Chapter 1068 president. He will be inducted into office at the next general membership meeting on Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the Enlisted Open Mess.

Defining the sexual harassment problem at work

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of three articles on sexual harassment.

By TSgt. Sharon Coleman
Equal Opportunity and Treatment
NCO, Vance AFB, Okla.

Our nation was formed on the principle that the individual has infinite dignity and worth. The Department of Defense must always be guided by this principle. In all we do, we must show respect for all military people, recognizing their individual needs, aspirations and capabilities.

The following quote, from a DOD document, illustrates the need for the Air Force to eliminate sexual harassment in the work environment: "As commanders, supervisors or workers, we must be aware that sexual harassment produces adverse morale trends which impact on mission effectiveness. We cannot avoid this issue any longer, but must learn to understand and recognize it."

What is this sexual harassment phenomenon and what does it mean? It is a complex problem in the work place that is difficult to define and takes many forms. In its most severe form, it is job threatening. In its mildest form, it may merely be an aggravation or a nuisance.

One form of sexual harassment is unwanted physical contact—touching, patting, brushing against an employee's body, even pinching.

Sexual harassment involves verbal abuse—subtle forms of behavior such as remarks about an employee's clothing, body or sexual activities. It involves blatant demands for sexual favors, such as propositions, repeated requests for dates, off-color jokes and sexual slurs.

The last form of sexual harassment is nonverbal abuse—leering looks, explicit graphic displays and cartoons.

These three types of sexual harassment all have the potential for being offensive and should be considered improper. There will always be some form of sexual behavior between men and women on the job. It becomes sexual harassment when the man or woman does not want it, and it doesn't stop. The key element in defining sexual harassment is that, regardless of the form of behavior it takes, it is unwelcomed by the recipient.

Sexual harassment is a definite problem and the effects, if not controlled, can be totally devastating to the mission. Often, sexual harassment is looked on as being a women's problem only. This assumption is a myth and must be dispelled immediately. Sexual harassment affects everyone in the Air Force family—military and civilians, men and women, and family members. It is not exclusively a woman's issue, but a work performance issue. Sexual harassment is not a personal problem. It is a personnel problem.

Ipecac Syrup recall update

A national product recall has been issued for the following products due to a mix-up in labeling of the products.

Product	Manufacturer/Distributor	Lot Numbers
Ipecac Syrup	HUMCO Laboratories	All lots
Ipecac Syrup	Bright-Life Brand distributed by BBDC	Lot 0415 (expires 7-92)
Iodides Tincture	Bright-Life Brand distributed by BBDC	Lot 4713 (expires 2-92)

HUMCO Laboratories has issued a general product recall of all lots of their brand of Ipecac Syrup. Some bottles of the Ipecac Syrup manufactured by Humco Laboratories contain eucalyptus oil which is known to be very toxic if taken orally.

Bright-Life Brand Ipecac Syrup is being recalled because some bottles of Iodides Tincture were mislabeled as Ipecac Syrup. None of these involved stock numbers have been issued at Reese AFB. USAF Hospital, Reese, however, is coordinating the recall for all military personnel in the area.

Please return any bottles of Humco brand or Bright-Life brand of Ipecac Syrup to the Pharmacy at Reese AFB. Another brand of Ipecac Syrup will be issued to you.

Please return the Bright-Life brand of Iodides Tincture distributed by BBDC to the place of purchase. If you have any questions contact the Pharmacy at USAF Hospital, Reese AFB, at 885-3172.

Through your interest in young people, and your purchasing of Girl Scout cookies, your Girl Scouts have earned four camp scholarships, and the troops have earned for their own programs, a combined total of approximately $1443.60 (634 cases of cookies).

Your generosity and caring attitude toward your youth has also contributed significantly toward the improvement of the council's camp, which is available for use by Girl Scouts and support groups.

The council thanks you mightily for buying Girl Scout cookies.

Revolutionary War outcome is remarkable ...considering

By Marty Brazil
Company of Military Historians
Keesler AFB, Miss.

The outcome of the Revolutionary War of 1775-1783 is quite remarkable.

Consider the common soldier.

Great Britain, arguably the greatest military power in the world at the time, fielded a small, but well-equipped, highly-trained, combat-tested, professional army.

The army put together by the colonies equipped itself. The soldiers brought their own weapons with them, and the result was a mishmash of every type of firearm imaginable. By and large, they fought the entire war with such weapons.

For three years, most colonial soldiers wore the clothes on their backs into battle. With a few exceptions, such as state regiments from Delaware and Maryland, uniforms were homespun brown or gray hunting shirts, varicolored coats and vests and broad-brimmed hats.

It wasn't until 1778 and the arrival from France of brown and blue coats with red facings that Gen. George Washington's "multitude of people under very little discipline, order or government" could be called a uniformed force in the conventional sense.

America's first fighting men were rank amateurs. These were farmers and merchants, doctors and lawyers, students and teachers, common laborers and ne'er-do-well land owners, not soldiers. Few had ever received any form of military training. Fewer still had actually been in battle, and those in a mere handful of engagements against the French or Indians.

Not that the British had no problems — they did. Commissions in both the infantry and cavalry were bought, producing large numbers of mediocre officers.

The troops themselves were recruited from the worst elements of British society. Often, today's redcoat was yesterday's beggar, thief or worse.

Small wonder the British came to rely heavily on mercenaries to do their fighting for them. More than 30,000 troops from six different German states were hired and sent to the colonies during the war. The best of these came from Hesse-Cassel, thus the nickname "Hessians."

Uniforms weren't everything either, as the British demonstrated. The redcoats had colored lining, facing and piping, lace trim and brass or pewter buttons, with high, stiff leather collars that restricted head movement. The equally decorative tri-cornered hat was awkward, cumbersome and included neither a brim nor visor to shield the eyes.

For sheer flamboyance, however, the British uniforms paled by comparison to those of the French, who became allied with the colonials in 1778 and joined the fight two years later.

The French cavalry wore light blue jackets trimmed in yellow, yellow breeches, plumed hats and fur-trimmed capes. Each of four infantry regiments had its own distinctive, multicolored uniforms.

Fortunately for the Americans, their French allies were not all glitter. There was gold inside those uniforms, the flower of King Louis XVI's army. And Rochambeau, their commander, was clearly the best French general available.

For soldiers on both sides, the fighting style of the Revolutionary War was decidedly European.

The British and French trained for and excelled at the close-order line of battle. Commanders drew up their battle lines approximately 500 yards from the enemy — just beyond effective artillery range. The assault line formed, dressed in ranks, and marched toward the enemy as if on parade.

Due to the limited, 80-to-100-yard range of the flintlock musket, the principal weapon of the foot soldier, volley firing, loading and firing on command, made up in firepower what it lacked in accuracy.

Firing at a high rate of speed was also vital. Compact, solid masses of troops, advancing across open ground made perfect targets. Consequently, troops were drilled to fire one shot every 15 seconds, or about two effective volleys during an average charge.
