A visit from capital hill . .

We at Reese were indeed fortunate to have the honor of a visit from Senator Phil Gramm this past Monday. The purpose of his trip was to come to Reese, visit with our people and to see first hand our preparation for the MCI. I just wanted everyone to know he was totally impressed with Reese, its people and the outstanding job that you are doing. It was a very proud moment for me to be able to accept such praise on your behalf from the senator.

I would like to comment on just how sharp the Honor Guard and the Color Guard looked that afternoon. It is easy to be filled with pride when we have a dedicated group of folks who will put in the extra time and effort to insure that they really look good. Their neat uniforms, shiny boots, crisp movements, and well-practiced synchronization made it obvious to all that they care a great deal about what they do and how they present themselves. My hat is off to them for their fine efforts, and especially to 1st Lt. Nick Vite and Sgt. Doug Thomas for organizing and coordinating the unit in such a superb fashion.

Senator Gramm toured a mobility processing line while he was here at Reese and saw first hand what our unit mobility teams would be required to do should the need to deploy our forces arise. He followed TSgt. Rafael Becerril through the processing line and remarked at how thorough and complete he believed the process to be. Adopting a professional, dedicated attitude and carrying an exercise through to its logical conclusion is the only way to realize any deficiencies or weaknesses. It was clearly demonstrated to me that all of the practice as of late has paid great dividends. Great job!

Also, the senator was given an opportunity to view a demonstration of the chemical suit donning exercise. TSgt. Bill White, Sgt. John Wolfe, and A1C Mike Murray were the demonstrators who were dressed in various stages of the ensemble to show what is involved with donning the equipment. I know the senator came away from the demonstration with a new perspective on how capable and prepared our Air Force is to face challenges from any potential adversary. In fact, his closing remarks just prior to his departure left no doubt concerning the strong confidence he feels for how we are doing our job defending this great nation. Always remember that we are a vital cog in the defense machinery, and the American people rely on us to do a thankless, but none-the-less perfect job.

Special thanks go out to the instructors and crew chiefs who were present to brief the senator on the T-37 and T-38 static display aircraft. Capt. Keith Rosenkranz, Capt. Dan Sanders, SSgt. Gary McNeece and SrA. Shawn West did an impressive job briefing the Senator and handling his questions. As a direct result of the impressive folks we have working here at Reese, visitors like Senator Gramm are able to leave with very positive impressions of the way we do our business

Award winners every one . . .

I was pleased to be able to introduce the annual award winners from Reese to the senator. I am always proud to display our best and take every opportunity to do so. MSgt. Paul Neumann - Senior NCO of the Year, MSgt. Roy Prince - First Sergeant of the Year, TSgt. Don Minis - NCO of the Year and SrA. Doug Smith -Wing Airman of the Year. Congratulations to these proud winners for their dedicated efforts in supporting the Reese mission in an outstanding manner.

Col. Mark H. Lillard III, Wing Commander

Kudos to: . . .

Air Training Command annual Security Police winners: Outstanding Senior NCO - MSgt. Ronnie C. Holiman. Outstanding First Term Airman - SrA. Felix R. Saenz. Outstanding Enlisted Individual Mobilization Augmentee - MSgt. Robert P. Heckerman.

Careline

The CARE Line is prepared by Col. Mark H. Lillard, III, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict-confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the CARE Line only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARE Line number is 885-3273.

We pay, no service

I live in the NCO dormitory and as of Dec. 1, we pay a $5 common use fee. I'm told that the money is used to clean up the general area. Yet, during the last ice storm, the stairs were iced over and treacherous to walk on. I'd like the straight scoop as to why we have to pay to live in the dormitory and just what is the $5 being used for.

The common use areas in the Unaccompanied NCO Quarters have to be maintained by either the occupants or the Billeting Office. In the past, the occupants were maintaining these areas. I'm told however, numerous problems were experienced with occupants not cleaning these areas. This required us to take action to insure these areas were up to standards.

In accordance with AFR 90-9 (Unaccompanied Personnel Housing and Temporary Lodging Facilities), a fee for common use area cleaning can be assessed and required as a condition for occupancy.

I'm also told that our personnel were out trying to remove the ice and snow but the weather did not cooperate and numerous problems were encountered. In addition, a work order has been submitted to CE to winterize those stairwells and second floor walkways. Thank you for calling.

When do we move in?

I'm calling because I keep getting the run-around from the people at Base Housing. We have been on the waiting list since November 1 and they told me that we should be moved in by January. Now they tell me it will be six to eight months. Could you get a straight answer for me?

I'm sorry that you feel that you are being put off by Base Housing personnel. Unfortunately, there are so many things which affect the waiting times that Housing personnel are really giving you their "best guess" based on experience. The Whole House renovation project has impacted significantly on the waiting times and it has progressed much slower than anticipated. Austere funding has slowed PCS moves to the point that the entire waiting list is not moving at all. Until you reach the top 10 percent of the waiting list you can be continually moved down by personnel arriving on Reese from a remote tour. Housing personnel are only required to notify you at least 30 days in advance when being offered base housing—but to provide better customer service they try and give an approximate waiting

Have a safe weekend

During the period of December 27, 1987 through January 15, 1988, Air Training Command personnel experienced six fatalities and one serious injury. One individual died from carbon monoxide poisoning in his home and the one injury/five fatalities resulted from PMV 4-wheel mishaps. Alcohol was a contributing factor in four of the five traffic related fatalities.

This Washington's Birthday period, our efforts will be tested again. ATC would like for this holiday period to be a positive turning point for off duty mishaps in 1988. To assist in preparing for this challenge, units should expand their pre-departure safety briefings to make travelers aware of the foregoing expetations. Overcrowded highways, seat belts, illegal high speed driving, and the hazards of mixing alcohol and driving should be top priority briefing items.

MCI to debrief Saturday

The Mission Capability Inspection debrief will be held Saturday, 9 a.m. at the base theater. All personnel are invited to attend. Dress is uniform of the day.

irman is convicted

Airman First Class Rhonda Ozanich used marijuana in April and July of 1987, and had various items of drug paraphernalia and marijuana in her home, purse and car. She was brought to face the consequences of her drug use Saturday, January 30th in the Reese Federal Courtroom. There, a jury adjudged a sentence which included six months confinement, reduction to Airman Basic, and a bad conduct Discharge.

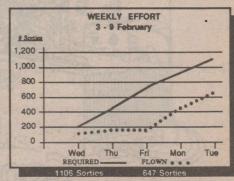

Mr. John O'Shea, Airman Ozanich's attorney, challenged the admissibility of urinalysis test results and physical evidence offered as government exhibits. Nevertheless, that evidence was admitted, as well as the testimony of eyewitnesses to her marijuana use.

Airman Ozanich was a member of the Field Maitnenance Squadron. Because of her drug involvement, she had been assigned to the base Blitz Team, performing routine cleaning and minor maintenance tasks, while awaiting trial.

Air Force policy on drug abuse is, and has always been, quite clear-military service and marijuana do not mix.

Changes made in hospital budget

been ordered by Headquarters Air Training Command, effective immediately, to absorb a $195,000 reduction in funds for the fiscal year 1988 budget. This cut was necessitated by less than anticipated Congressional appropriations for the Department of Defense, and reflects Reese's fair share of the command-wide reduction in the hospital budget.

Every attempt has been made to keep completely intact those services the hospital provides for inpatient care. There will be few, if any, reductions in this area. Also, cuts that would result in an adverse impact on any of the larger areas of out-patient care are being avoided. The primary focus of our efforts have been to reduce care the least in the areas used the most. In this manner we feel that for each dollar we

The USAF Hospital here at Reese has spend, the actual benefit gained for each tant, emergency room nurse, and three member is maintained at the maximum level possible, with any cuts being absorbed by those areas that are more peripheral and less utilized.

> The most significiant reduction in service will be in the operation of our hospital emergency room. The emergency room will be reclassified from the present level III, down to a level IV-A. This means the emergency room has been designated as an "Acute Care Clinic" with reduced operating hours.

> Level IV-A operation goes into effect on Tuesday, March 1. At that time the Acute Care Clinic hours of operation will revert to 7:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. on weekdays and 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

> After March 1, the Acute Care Clinic will be staffed during its operating hours with the same doctor or physicians assis emergency room technicians as have always manned the Emergency Room.

During non-operating hours, a doctor will not normally be present in the hospital due to limited manning by active duty doctors and reduced funding that required termination of a contract that used area doctors to staff the Emergency Room during weekends and

However, one important emergency service—ambulance transportation will be available to Reese personnel. Ambulance service can be obtained by calling base extension 3373 or going to the present Emergency Room.

After March 1, on-base personnel, including Reese Village residents, needing emergency treatment should call or report to the Reese Hospital for an ambulance to transport them to a downtown emergency room. Off-base personnel should call a civilian ambulance or drive to a downtown hospital emergency

A survey was performed in the emergency room and the numbers of affected people are very small. In fact, less than one patient per month, as an average, was ever admitted to the hospital between the hours of 9 P.M. and 7:30 A.M. A doctor will still be on call to handle dire emergencies, and a staff technician will still be present 24 hours per day in the hospital to provide any needed assistance.

This cutback in present hospital services will result in a very significant savings to the Reese hospital and enable the hospital staff to continue to provide the majority of the other services just as they are now doing. Any other cuts will be made or absorbed with minimal impact on patient care.

Commander's column The preparation is well worth it

by Lt. Col. Kenneth Hess
Deputy Commander for Operations

This has been a landmark week for the Reese team. The ATC/IG will soon outbrief the Wing on how well we did on our Mission Capability Inspection—an evaluation designed to measure our preparation, dedication and level of sacrifice. A lot of work has gone into this inspection as we began to peak within the last month. There's another group of folks who arrived in Calgary this week prepared to test just how ready they are to meet the challenge of the Winter Olympics—it's an exciting time.

When you think about it, there are certain similarities between our preparation and theirs. There's an air of pagentry as last minute details of the IG arrival plan were placed in motion, just like Calgary is preparing for the arrival of millions who'll watch the games either in person or on television. I'm sure there are at least some citizens there who find the entire effort questionable. But not the athletes. Not those who have been preparing day and night for years for this one shot at being an Olympic champion.

There are young men and women who have dedicated their lives to their sport, who thrive on the competition and whose sole reward for the hardship is to be called champion. Many have had to deal with personal or family financial hardship just to stay in training. They are all excited and proud about competing for their country. When you listen to the interviews on T.V. or read about a particular athlete in the newspaper, one very striking theme is that they sacrifice to compete, not for total personal gain. There are many external factors that have equal or greater importance in their lives—God, country, family . . .

These young men and women have met the challenges required to get to Calgary. They have prepared diligently by dedicating their very soul to success. They have sacrificed in more ways than you can count. They are all champions! It will be exciting to watch them compete.

The men and women of Reese have also met the challenge, as the weeks of preparation and practice for the MCI come to a close. We have also prepared ourselves to show we are mission capable.

Safety is a critical mission element

by Lt. Col. Phillip Marzolino Chief, Safety Division

We've all just finished a very demanding week with the Mission Capability Inspection. Certainly we can relate our readiness posture with our ability to perform the wartime task of defending our country.

In the same way, however, our day to day safety awareness and practices impact our war fighting capability just as surely as our individual preparations for combat. A potential enemy doesn't particularly care whether or not our fighting force is degraded through lack of preparation, lack of training, unavailability of equipment due to mishaps, or the lack of people due to off duty accidents. It all goes into the equation he develops on whether or not he thinks he can beat us. If he thinks he can, then we've failed in our primary mission of deterring war, and if he's right, we fail our obligation to the country—that we win any war we enter. I believe a very strong case can be made that when we engage in safety practices that keep our people from getting hurt and protect the equipment we have to work with, we are making a substantial contribution to the defense of the country.

Unfortunately, however, I see a dark cloud on the safety horizon, MONEY! I'm sure it has become apparent to everyone that dollars have become extremely tight in the Air Force. This frequently leads to a wild scramble on the part of some units to figure out ways to continue to do the same job with less resources. Many times this is possible by working harder and smarter, but far too often we yield to the temptation to try and achieve results by taking shortcuts that don't really fall in the "smarter" category. Inevitably this leads to mishaps which result in the compromise of the mission we've been assigned-just the opposite of the goal we started with.

Over the next several months, all of us will be tasked with finding the smarter ways of doing the job to get the most out of every dollar we have. The Air Force has an established system to evaluate and validate new ideas that ensure there aren't any hidden bugs waiting in the system to cause an accident. I urge each of you to make full use of this system, but fight off the temptation to take individual shortcuts before they've been proven. This is the way we really can work smarter, not just harder.

Don't Gamble With Your Future!

All Individual Retirement Accounts are not alike. Many financial institutions require a sizeable initial deposit of $1,000 or more to open an IRA. Plus, you are required to lock in for a long period of time, and substantial penalties are charged for early withdrawal causing.you to lose the great "bonus rate" as well as three months or more interest earnings. Some institutions even tie your IRA to one rate with no compounding.

At Reese Federal Credit Union you can open an IRA with as little as $10 and add to it at any time. Your IRA earns competitive dividends which are compounded and paid monthly. There is no withdrawal penalty and absolutely no fees.

The government allows you to deposit up to $2,000 per year in an IRA, if you have a paying job. Taxes on the earnings are deferred and three of four taxpayers can still fully or partially deduct the contribution from taxes. If you don't have $2,000, deposit what you can afford. # The flag, a symbol of the people

by SSgt. Ruth Mitchell 64th Supply Squadron

Did you ever wonder what Betsy Ross was thinking when she designed the flag? Was it just a piece of cloth, with a pretty design and colors or was it an inspired symbol?

Betsy Ross was not alone in her efforts. Helping her were her deceased first husband's uncle, George Ross and Robert Norris. Mr. Ross' place in history had already been established as he was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Accompanied by General George Washington, this group visited Mrs. Ross in her Philadelphia home to ask her to make the flag. General Washington already had knowledge of Mrs. Ross seamstress abilities as she had sewn ruffles and other articles of clothing for him in the past.

Although Betsy Ross had little experience in sewing a flag, when asked, she replied that she would try her best. Assuming control of the meeting from this point, she began her efforts. The initial drawing of the flag was very rough, and she had the Commander in Chief redraw it into something more realistic. After viewing his drawings, she made several adjustments. Among these were the symmetrical arrangements of the stars, and using a five point star instead of a six point star. This last change brought some objection but Mrs. Ross quickly quieted this objection by showing how easy it was to cut out a five point star.

In due time, the requested flag was finished and shown to the Congress by the Commander in Chief. In presenting the flag, George Washington explained that, "We take the stars from heaven, and the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her; the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing Liberty." Now, what does our flag mean to you? Is it just a piece of fabric displayed or is it a symbol of a people united in a common cause, as we are in America?

Changing assignments

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, RAN-DOLPH AFB, Texas—Airmen returning to a continental United States Base from an overseas assignment can swap assignments with another person under the CONUS Assignment Swap Program.

Eligible overseas returnees must have:

•The same grade and Control Air Force Specialty Code.

•An estimated return date from overseas within the same two-month period as shown in Table 4-10, Air Force Regulation 39-11.

•The same Special Experience Identifier, if the assignment was an SEI-select assignment.

Airmen with a CONUS assignment can submit an updated Air Force Form 392, Airman Assignment Preference Statement, which allows selection of us to eight specific bases, locations, states and areas in the order of desired preference. To indicate any CONUS assignment, the eighth choice should state "CONUS-Wide."

The Base Personnel office handles swap requests. If the swap cannot be worked out, the original assignment remains firm.

Cholesterol level is important

By Evelyn D. Harris American Forces Information Service

February is American Heart Month + a good time to learn more about cholesterol, the fatty substance produced by the body and contained in animal foods. Some cholesterol is necessary to make hormones and nerve cells, but too much increases the risk of heart disease. Health officials estimate that 40 million Americans - one out of four - have cholesterol levels that are too high.

Watching the cholesterol level is as important to a 20-year-old as it is to a 60-year-old. That's because at 20, most Americans' cholesterol levels start to rise. "If you establish healthy eating habits while you're young, you'll prevent problems later," said Army Capt. Janet Tingle, who chairs the Department of Defense Nutrition Working Group.

How young is it necessary to start? "For proper development, babies should drink whole milk until they are 3 years old. But you are never too young to eat a balanced diet with adequate vitamins and moderate amounts of sugar, fat and cholesterol," said Tingle.

The three major risk factors for heart disease are smoking, high blood pressure and cholesterol.

You've heard a lot about the first two and not much about the third. But that's going to change. The National Cholesterol Education Program, sponsored by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, recently issued a report giving comprehensive guidelines on the detection, evaluation and treatment of high blood cholesterol. The institute is one of the Public Health Service's National Institutes of Health.

The report, written by a panel of the nation's experts on heart health, contains the first specific recommendations to doctors on treating patients with high cholesterol.

The panel's most important recommendation: A low-fat, lowcholesterol diet is the only treatment necessary for most patients and every patient with even a moderately high cholesterol level should know this. But drugs are available for patients for whom diet alone is insufficient, and the panel gives doctors detailed advice on the pros and cons of these

A survey of doctors found varying approaches to treating cholesterol problems. Many doctors failed-to put patients on special diets until their cholesterol levels were far above recommended levels. The National Cholesterol

Education Program hopes to change this.

Dr. James Cleeman, the program's coordinator, said, "If the recommendations are fully accepted by physicians, millions of Americans who would not have had their cholesterol level treated would have the benefit of cholesterol-lowering therapy." He estimates some 300,000 lives could be saved annually by the therapy.

There are two kinds of cholesterol in the blood. Lowdensity lipoprotein, or LDL, is sometimes called "bad" cholesterol, because it can lead to heart disease by causing fat to attach itself to artery walls - clogging the arteries and restricting blood flow. Levels of low-density lipoprotein higher than 160 milligrams place a person at high risk of heart attack.

Although younger persons are expected to have levels slightly lower and older persons slightly higher, for simplicity, the panel recommended that an adult's level of total cholesterol should be less than 200 milligrams per deciliter of blood.

High-density lipoprotein, or HDL, protects against heart disease by removing fat from the arteries. High-density lipoprotein should be above 35 milligrams.

The panel recommended that doc-choice for high cholesterol. It recommended use of drugs only if cholesterol levels were very high or if diet failed to reduce the levels.

The panel urged doctors to consider factors such as cigarette smoking, being male, having high blood pressure or a family history of heart disease in treating patients.

Finally, the government is mounting a public education program to increase cholesterol awareness. Currently, officials estimate that only about 10 percent of Americans know their cholesterol level.

Black History Week open to everyone

On behalf of the Reese Air Force Base Black History Week committee, it is my sincere pleasure to invite you to join us as we celebrate Black History Week beginning Sunday.

This year's activities focus on the contributions blacks have made towards the development of the Armed Forces, particularly the Air Force and aviation. Throughout the week, the committee will have activities which allow everyone to study and better understand the milestones made by these people.

We are fortunate to have joining us this year two people who, through their contributions to the military and aviation, helped pave the way for blacks in today's Air Force.

Our guest speaker for the Black History Week banquet is retired Lieutenant General William E. Brown, Jr. Brown had an extensive career as a military aviator to include two years in Air Training Command. Ten months of those two years were spent at Reese when he was Deputy Commander for Operations in 1973.

We also have a member of the famed Tuskegee Airmen Association joining us during the week. Dr. Lincoln Ragsdale went through pilot training at the segregated Tuskegee Army Air Field in 1942 and flew combat missions in World War II.

The insight these two gentlemen provide us with coupled with the many activities and programs planned by the committee are sure bets to making this year's celebration an educational, cultural and enjoyable experience for everyone.

The 40-person Black History Week Committee has worked very hard since November to develop these programs for the entire community. We hope you will join us in this memorable celebration of Black History Week 1988.

Wars pave way for equality

surrounding period of World War I also saw the first black aviator. Eugene Jacques Bullard, a U.S. citizen that immigrated to France to escape racism, enlisted in the French Foreign Legion. He served in a flying unit known as the "Swallows of Death" and became known as the "Black Swallow."

On the eve of yet another war, the War Department announced in 1939 that black strength in the armed services would be proportionally limited. World War II paved the road for the eventual equality in armed forces. This period was the first establishment of Negro pilot training, and employment in combat operations also became available. Initially, blacks served in segregated units, but towards war's end, the combat forces experienced some integration.

With the emergence of air warfare, the Blacks were also emerging as doctors, nurses, parachutists, and as officers leading patrols on tactical missions, among other fields.

> The Civilian Pilot Training Act was passed on June 27, 1939. The act created a reserve of civilian pilots to be called in case of war. Public Law 18 called for civilian schools to be contracted out to civilian firms and required at least one of the schools to train black aviators.

> On Jan. 16, 1941, the 99th Pursuit Squadron was formed and the Tuskegee training programs was born. The success of this program would predict the future of blacks in the Army Air Force. In May 1942, the redesignated 99th Fighter Squadron earned three Distinguished Unit Citations. The Tuskegee Experiment was a tremendous success and in 1948, President Harry Truman signed an Executive Order for equality of treatment and opportunity in the military.

The achievements of blacks in military endeavors were documented and accepted without debate for the first time.

The period after World War II proved to be important to black America. Blacks demanded full citizenship and an end to blatant racism. President Truman set up a committee to examine the racial policies within the armed forces and to determine the best way to implement his new policy.

The Korean conflict halted the implementation of the new policies towards black servicemen. By mid-1951, blacks constituted 13.5% of the total U.S. strength, though 80% of all black troops in Korea were assigned to

Historical perspective of military involvement

The U. S. Senate passed a bill in 1866 limiting the number of Regular Army regiments to 67. It also authorized the creation of permanent, all-black units. In 1869, these units were designated as the Ninth and Tenth Cavalry and the Twenty-fourth and Twentyfifth Infantry.

Scattered throughout the West, their mission was to suppress the hostile Indians, guard the mail, and protect both the railroad and settlers moving west. To carry out their task, they were issued grossly inadequate equipment. Despite these obstacles, the morale remained high, and they enjoyed the lowest desertion rate of all Army units. In the Indian campaigns, black soldiers fought in over 100 battles, and they became known as the "Buffalo Soldiers."

The Spanish-American War began with the sinking of the Battleship Maine in Havana Harbor. Twenty-two black soldiers lost their lives when the ship went to the bottom of the barbor. This war was also fertile ground for the development of a New Negro soldier. The Negro officer emerged as a leader of men. Several all-black volunteer units were commanded by Negro senior field grade officers.

With the closing of the Spanish American war and the emergence of a Jim Crow society, the Negro evolution in the armed forces was not encouraged.

The break out of the first world war in Europe meant that America would once again be tasked. Blacks, as in previous wars, had to agitate and pressure for a role in the

Due in part to the pressure, two Negro divisions were formed -- the Ninety-Second which served the traditional support task for the white units and the Ninety-third which was assigned to the French Forces under the command of General Pershing. The 92nd was rushed into combat poorly trained and gained a reputation of being inept.

On the other hand, the 93rd became known as "Hell Fighters." They called themselves "Black Rattlers." They distinguished themselves on the battlefield by staying on the front line 191 days, the longest front line service of any American regiment. They were eventually awarded the French Croix de Guerre for gallantry in action.

women

Military organizations, throughout history, have relied primarily upon men for the defense of this nation. However, on occasion women have served in combat capacities. But it was not until the twentieth century that a significant number of women were allowed into the armed forces.

Women were limited to traditional nonmilitary positions during the Colonial Period. They were also limited to the same roles during the American Revolution, but some women disguised themselves as men and fought in the Marines and Continental Army.

It was during the Civil War that the women's role was expanded. In addition to the traditional roles, women served as nurses and raised money to support the troops. Two black women of note were Susie King Taylor and Harriet Tubman. Taylor, in her semiofficial position, taught the troops of the 33rd USCT how to read and write along with her nursing duties. Tubman served as a spy and scout for the Union Army. She led the troops of Colonel Montgomery on a raid up the Combahee River to avoid Confederate

During the Spanish-American War the United States government reluctantly used women for the first time, due to a shortage of nurses. It was assumed that blacks were immune to typhoid fever due to "their Medals of Honor awarded to black Amerito receive the award personally.

thicker, darker skin." Thirty-two nurses were recruited to nurse typhoid patients, thus marking the first official involvement of black women in the armed service. The Army Nurse Corps was established shortly after the Black nurses volunteered their services again during World War I. They were initially rejected, but due to a shortage of nurses, the Army decided to "experiment" with 18 Negro nurses. They were soon recognized as being highly competent professionals and were acknowledged as members of the Army Nurse Corps.

The beginning of World War II saw great advances in the opportunities available to black women.

Due to Presidential Directives, DoD directives, and the creation of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps (WAAC), more jobs became available for women within the military establishment. In addition to nursing duties, women were assigned to clerical, cooking, and driving jobs.

Women are now represented in every branch of the military in various capacities, but are still excluded from combat duty.

acks win Medal of Honor

The Medal of Honor is the highest military award for bravery that can be given to any individual in the United States. This award was established by Congress on Dec. 21, 1861, to recognize the heroic deeds of servicemen and to express the nation's gratitude.

During the Civil War, 23 black soldiers and sailors were honored with this award. Eighteen were awarded during the Indian Campaigns and six during the Spanish-American War.

The periods of World War I and II saw no

cans. This is due to the fact of very limited combat experience and white attitudes of black ineptitude.

However, the 369th Infantry did receive the French equivalent in World War I. They were awarded the Croix de Guerre while attached to the French Army.

During the Korean and Vietnam Wars, blacks saw more combat duty than in both

Two blacks received the Medal for their efforts in the Korean War and 20 during the Vietnam era. Of the latter, only four survived

Bean Elementary Third Grade

Long before Blacks were making history on the playing fields, they were making advancements in the fields of education, explortation, medicine and science.

Education was a treasure because Negroes had little opportunity to get one. There were not enough people able to teach those who wanted to learn. Blacks did not let this keep them from getting their education. Booker T.Washington helped pave the way for Blacks by lifting the veil of ignorance from his people and pointed the way to progress through education and industry.

Booker T. Washington started his first class in an abandoned church. He visited surrounding counties and discovered that nine out of ten people were dependent upon agriculture for their living. Booker T. Washington decided to teach students how to farm to their best advantage. He was the founder and first president of Tuskegee In-

Mary McLeod Bethune, another educator who paved the way for Blacks, started a school in Eastern Florida. She had only six students. This little primary school grew into one of the important educational institutions in the deep South. In 1922, a Methodist school for boys in Jacksonville merged with it. The two became the Bethune-Cookman College. The school grew from 6 to a college of 794 students. Mrs. Bethune received many honors from colleges and universities.

In the field of exploration great Black explorers brought great benefits to America and our nation. One great explorer was Matthew A. Henson who after eighteen years and several failures finally reached the North Pole on April 6, 1909. Matthew Henson planted the American flag at the North Pole.

Medicine and science for many Blacks have become a world of wonder. Dr. Charles Drew born in 1904 was a teacher at Howard Medical School in Washington, D.C. and served as surgeon at Freedman's Hospital. He was most interested in the study of blood. Dr. Drew experimented and discovered that blood could be stored indefinitely through refrigeration. It would stay fresh and could be used for transfusion later. Because of his research, volunteers can today donate their blood to be stored in "blood banks" and used whenever

Dr. Charles Drew, an outstanding surgeon who pioneered in blood plasma research, was director of the Red Cross blood bank in New York City. He was in charge of the collection of blood for use by the United States Army and Navy. As a result of Dr. Drew's work, many millions of lives throughout the world have been saved. In honor of this great medical scientist a junior high school in Los Angeles today bears his name.

Dr. George Washington Carver, a great scientist, was born in 1864 near Diamond Grove, Missouri. As George grew up he wanted to know about many things. He especially wanted to know about plants. The Civil War made George free. One of the first plans he had for his future was to get an education. He workd his way through high school and college. Dr. Carver worked at Tuskegee Institute with Booker T. Washington. D. Carver found hundreds of things that could be made from peanuts. He made milk, candy, soap, oil, dye, ink, and paper. The next time you have a peanut butter sandwich think of Dr. Carver.

These great educators, explorers, doctors and scientists have paved our way for tomorrow

Bean Elementary Sixth Grade

"My name is Sojourner Truth. I was born the year of 1797. I was a slave in Ulster County, New York. My legal name is Isabella Van Wagener, and from my childhood I conversed with God. I lived and worked as a servant in New York City where I adopted my new name, Sojourner

"I took to the road as an itinerant preacher in 1843. I spoke out for women's suffrage as well as against slavery. I then joined the abolitionist crusade as a featured speaker. My usual opening was, 'Children I talk to God and God talks to me!' I also had an electric effect on my audiences in connecticut, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Kansas. Repeated attempts by mobs to silence me only spurred me on.

'My remarkable power as a speaker led some to question if I was indeed a woman. They forget I'm the mother of five children, one which I had recovered from slavery in a precedent-setting suit. At times rivaling Fredrick Douglass in eloquence, I often shared the podium with him. In my most famous encounter, when he moved a Pre-Civil War black audience to seek justice in revolt, I broke the spell by asking, 'Fredrick, is God dead?'

"A large measure of my support came from wide spread sales of the book, Narrative of Sojourner Truth, which was written by Olive Gilbert. My fame preceded me to Washington where President Abraham Lincoln appointed me counselor to the speakers on behalf of former slaves.

Now, let me speak as Gladys Foster, a sixth grade student. Sojourner Truth died on Nov. 26, 1883 in Battle Creek, Michigan, her last home. I think Sojourner Truth was a great lady. I feel that she was an important person in our history. If she had not been here, where we are now could be very different. So see-you never know just how much one person can do. I believe that her powers were very great and that she had a great relationship with God. I believe she had an important part in our history.

I am quoting below from a speech she made in 1851 to a women's rights conventin in Akron, Ohio.

'That man over there says that women need to be helped into carriages and lifted over ditches and have the best place wherever. Nobody ever helps me into carriages or over mud puddles, or gives me any best place. And ain't I woman? Look at me? I have ploughed and planted and gathered into bars and no man could head (do better than) me. And ain't I a woman? I could work as much and eat as much as a man-when I could get it-and bear the lash (whip) as well.

'And ain't I a woman? I have borne thirteen children and seen most all sold off to slavery, and when I cried out with my mother's grief, none but Jesus heard me. And ain't I a woman?

I believe Sojourner Truth helps us see and feel the desire for freedom and equal rights that all people feel now and tomor-

Pulp damage may cause problems

If the pulp of a tooth becomes badly diseased or injured, endodontic or root canal therapy may be needed to save the tooth.

The pulp is a soft tissue containing nerves, arteries, veins and lymph vessels. It's located at the core of the tooth and extends from the tip of the tooth root where it connects to the jaw, through the center of the root, and up into the crown of the tooth.

If the pulp is injured, perhaps by a blow to the tooth, by a deep cavity, or by periodontal disease, the pulp can become exposed to the bacteria in saliva. If the pulp is so damaged that it cannot repair itself, it dies and becomes a source of infection. The infection spreads through the pulp to the tissues that surround and support the tooth in the jaw. A dental abcess then forms at the tooth root.

Pain and swelling may accompany the infection. Even if no pain is felt, certain byproducts produced by the diseased pulp can damage the bone anchoring the tooth in the jaw. The tooth also may become discolored. When the condition reaches this stage, the dentist and patient have two choices: save the tooth by endodontic therapy or extract the tooth. Left untreated, the tooth eventually must be removed.

Endodontic treatment requires several office visits. To assure patient comfort, the dentist may adminster a local anesthetic before beginning treatment. The first step involves drilling a hole in the tooth to remove the diseased pulp. The root canal is cleaned, enlarged, and shaped to a form that can be easily filled. The canal is then filled and sealed with a material that prevents bacteria from reentering the canal. Finally, the crown of the tooth is retored to its natural color and proper function either by bleaching and filling the tooth or by placement of a crown.

Due to the number of visits required at the Reese Dental Clinic, endodontic therapy can only be performed on active duty patients. But endodontic therapy is preferable in most cases and often is less costly in the long run for dependent and retired patients who must pay for endodontic work themselves, and/or through CHAM-PUS and the Delta dental program. When a tooth is extracted and not replaced, the teeth surrounding thempty space begin to shift, which could result in loss of additional teeth. Chewing ability and appearance are also affected. If the tooth is removed, a replacement tooth dentist regularly.

or bridge should be placed. However, the cost of a bridge usually is higher than the cost of endodontic therapy, and placement of a bridge requires dental treatment on the teeth bordering the empty space. A healthy natural tooth is always preferable to an artificial one.

Your restored tooth could last a lifetime if you take good care of your teeth. The gums and bone that surround and support the tooth must remain healthy. This means daily brushing and flossing, eating a balanced diet and limiting sugary and starchy foods, using fluoride daily, and visiting the

Each time a network news program airs a story on the Strategic Defense Initiative, viewers are treated to an animated system of space-based lasers tracking and destroying Soviet ballistic missiles.

But much more must be done on President Ronald Reagan's research program before that animation turns into reality. A strategic defense system of this magnitude couldn't possibly be deployed all at once, say the experts. However, research on the overall program has yielded certain defensive technologies that could provide increments of protection from ballistic missile attack. This approach to strategic defense is known as phased, or incremental, deployment.

"The concept of phased deployment addresses the question of how to deploy strategic defenses in the event a deployment decision is made in the future," said Army Lt. Col. Ed Carlson, assistant director for engineering and support with the Strategic Defense Initiative Organization. "It does not constitute a decision to deploy. Such a decision cannot be made now."

Carlson stressed that phased deployment is not early deployment. "An extraordinary amount of research is being done in conjunction with the strategic defense system," he said. "The Department of Defense and the Strategic Defense Initiative Organization recognized that certain technologies that were maturing could have military uses."

The maturing technologies

Carlson speaks of are mostly kinetic-kill weapons. They are ground- or space-based rockets that destroy incoming ICBMs by the sheer force of impact. There is no nuclear blast or explosion.

"Kinetic-kill systems are not exotic technology," said Carlson. "The front end of our system is the size of a coffee can. It doesn't take much to destroy something moving as fast as an ICBM."

A phased deployment would also provide a deterrent. "A Soviet ICBM may have as many as 10 independently targetable re-entry vehicles," said Carlson. Phased deployment would give the United States the ability to destroy an ICBM and its multiple warheads in the boost phase with one kinetickill weapon. The Soviet planner has no way of knowing which missiles will get hit and which will survive.

"Having a kinetic-kill capability, even if it is not 100 percent effective, will go a long way toward making the Soviets think twice about whether to launch their missiles," said Carlson.

"It doesn't make sense to wait to deploy a 100 percent effective strategic defense system," said Carlson. "To do so, we would have to wait until all the technology involved with such a system matured. Those technologies such as lasers — are still far away.

"By doing it in phases as the technology matures, the United States can use these systems as they come around to achieve specific military and policy objectives and lay the groundwork for the deployment of subsequent phases, should they be needed."

Base bowling team selected

Military members have been competing in the base bowling team roll-offs for the past two weekends at the Windmill Bowling Center. Each person bowled a total of 24 games.

Competition was hit and miss for the bowlers throughout the tournament. Four men, two women and three alternates will represent Reese Air Force Base, in the ATC Bowling championship held at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas on April 11-14.

The top four men bowlers are: SSgt. Jerry Ballard, 4556 total pin fall, SSgt. Mark Orison, 4526 total pin fall, MSgt. Ray Moore, 4500 total pin fall, SSgt. Marty Donovan, 4461 total pin fall. The top two women were TSgt. Sheila Newman, 4069 total pin fall, and TSgt. Mary Washington, with a 3978 total pin fall.

Alternates are MSgt. Don Bushey, TSgt. Jim Perkins and SSgt. Paula Carnegie.

Physical fitness and your health

By SSgt. Randy Pratt Physical Fitness Center

We in the Reese Physical Fitness Center receive numerous questions daily regarding fitness, exercise and sports.

Beginning with this issue, I will reply to questions in a periodic article called "Exercise and Fitness." We encourage anyone who has questions regarding fitness, exercise and sports (excluding varsity and intramural scheduling inquiries) to submit them to the Fitness Center Staff. All questions submitted in writing will be answered in writing, and the best two or three will be submitted for publication in the Round Up.

Q. If I want to reduce the amount of fat around my midsection, I should do a large number of sit-ups. Right?

A. Wrong! Sit-ups will develop the abdominal muscles, but they will do little or nothing to reduce the amount of fat stored around the mid-section. Our bodies store fat for future energy needs. When we exercise (consume energy) our bodies draw the energy requirements from its fat stores from its total body fat cells and not from any one isolated location. So, doing 500 sit-ups a day will do no more for reducing the amount of fat around your mid-section than expending the same amount of energy doing bicep curls or any other exercise.

Q. What about the wide variety of spot-reducing gadgets that are advertised? Do any of them work?

A. No!! Not only do they not result in permanent weight loss, but many of these gadgets are dangerous. Let's examine some of the more popular ones:

1. Motorized exercycles and other motorized machines. These motorized machines move the "exerciser's" legs, arms and/or torso for him/her. Since the machine is moving the body parts, it is doing the work, not the "exerciser."

2. Electric Shock. This treatment is gaining popularity in the local area. It supposedly makes muscles contract involuntarily through small electric charges. Actually, the muscle movements are too small to consume enough energy to cause a Texas 79489, phone 885-6020.

Doctors believe certain of these machines can be dangerous to the heart and other organs which can respond to electric stimuli. A number of deaths in this country have been attributed to this kind of electric shock treatment.

3. Vibrating Belts. We don't see too many of these any more. A mechanical vibrating belt may relax a person and make him/her feel better, but it certainly will not remove the fat. Fat cannot be shaken, tickled, beaten or stroked from the

4. Rubber Clothes. These clothes, which range from belts, shorts and shirts to full outfits, are supposed to make an individual "sweat off" or "melt off" the fat and inches. Any weight that is lost is simply a result of dehydration, which is quickly replaced when the thirst is quenched. And none of the water that is lost when a person sweats comes from the body fat, since fat contains just a small percentage of water.

You've heard TV commercials which advertise body wraps that "simply melt the fat away." Well, in order to "melt away fat" you'd have to raise your body temperature to a point incompatible with human

5. Sauna and Steam Baths. You'd be surprised how many of our patrons still believe they can trim fat by sitting long periods of time in the sauna. As we examined above, we know we cannot "sweat off" fat, and at a meer 180-200 degrees we certainly cannot-"melt of" the fat in a sauna or steam bath.

So, how is it possible that fat is trimmed in a sauna? Well, it isn't! It is impossible to trim fat or attain a permanent weight loss by sitting in a sauna. Any weight loss seen is temporary dehydration which our bodies quickly replace when we drink or eat our next meal.

There are a myriad of questions, misconceptions and blatant deceptions regarding fitness and exercise in today's fitness conscious society. Send your questions to the Fitness Center Staff and I guarantee every question submitted will be answered! Contact SSgt. Randy Pratt, 64 ABG/SSRS, Physical Fitness Center, Reese AFB,
