Okay, okay, okay! Just about everyone has had enough of this arctic weather. And if one more weatherman points out how it is warmer in Nome, Alaska than it is here, I, for one, may move!

The snow was kind of nice...beautiful, crisp and clean. But then came the ice...and there just was no way to relax and pay attention to whether the ice was beautiful or not...one was entirely too busy trying to keep life going on without some sort of accident.

As if to assure that we wouldn't forget the ice anytime soon, Mother Nature set into freeze everything...solid.

And along the way she did a fair job of freezing pipes, water drains and washing machines.

Now, of course, up north folks live with near zero, or way below, temperatures all the time. But the difference is that they KNOW that it will come each winter, and prepare accordingly. We don't get it but once every thirty years or so, and just are not prepared.

Our houses aren't built to take it...our pipes, or our vehicles. Batteries give up the ghost, tractors won't crank, and folks just get plain old tired of the stuff. At night people can lay in bed and listen to their central heating run...and run...or keep their fires turned up way high.

Those with fireplaces and wood stoves can watch the woodpile shrink at an alarming rate.

And stockmen. They can watch their cattle double their hay consumption, and still stand bowed against the arctic wind from the north.

Most folks have been giving long and careful consideration to moving to southern California, or at least dreaming about it.

So come on, Mother Nature, we're children of the SOUTH...give us a break...and a thaw!

New Year's Offers Opportunity

By Nanalee Nichols
New Years. It comes on a Saturday night this year. And, as usual, it will herald a lot of worry and trouble in the world.

Fighting, invasions, crime, unemployment and world hunger all figure in the picture for the coming 1984 year.

It can be a very depressing situation.

But there is little to face in 1984 that hasn't had to be faced in previous years. And in some years past things have actually been a lot worse! Instead of the threat of world peace there has been massive world war. Instead of some unemployment and hunger there has been massive depression.

And through the years there has been little that the average citizen could do about the situation.

Not being powerful politicians, or statesmen, or military leaders, the average American must content himself with feeling pretty powerless in the face of the world's problems. But there are things everyone can do, and the world's problems would decrease if each and every one of us tried to do them.

If everyone gave serious consideration to whom we cast our ballots for...not just in major elections but in the little ones, we could eventually improve the quality of our leaders. Remember, little political positions are the door to the major ones.

If we bothered to vote...in every election.

If we didn't spend so much time worrying about what was going on in the rest of the world...but tried to make things better right where we are.

That one thing alone could make a major difference!

If we worked hard at controlling our own tempers, irritability and actions, things would be just a little better.

If everyone, all over the world, did this, then the big problems would begin to disappear.

Of course, it won't ever happen that way. But, if we quit worrying about that, and just took care of the world we personally touch, things WOULD get better.

This year, when we make up the usual resolutions about losing weight, not exceeding our budgets, or whatever, give serious thought about making resolutions that can really make a difference. Make a resolution to help make the world around us a better place...and let the bigger matters be less worrying.

Try it, 1984 could be better for it!

Final Tax Payment Due Soon

Taxpayers who did not have enough 1983 federal tax withheld, or whose amended income estimates for 1983 changed substantially during the last quarter, are required to pay the final installment of estimated income tax by January 16, 1984, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The IRS notes that there is an exception to this rule for the final installment for those taxpayers who file their returns and pay all taxes due by February 1, 1984. This exception applies whether the declaration is an original or amended one.

Generally, taxpayers must file estimated tax if their tax is expected to be $300 or more and if they have more than $500 in income not covered by withholding.

For additional information, a free copy of IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax," can be ordered by calling the IRS number listed in the local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

Harsh Weather Hard On Area Livestock

By Paul D. Payne

Area livestock are taking the brunt of the harsh wintery weather encompassing the Red River Valley. The sub freezing temperatures, cold snow and rain coupled with blowing winds has placed extra demands on the beef cow and those needs should be met or massive weight losses can be expected.

Not only can one expect weight losses, but also a drop in milk production which will affect the performance of baby calves.

So, it is a good idea for cattlemen to provide extra protein and energy during these times. A dry cow that is receiving an eight percent protein hay can probably get by without extra supplementation. It would be a good idea to increase the amount of hay fed and keep the rumen working full time.

On the other hand, cows that are nursing a calf could use some type of supplemental feeding. The type needed will vary depending on the quality hay being fed. A cattleman feeding 10 to 12 percent hay could get by with feeding straight grain such as ground milo. However, if poor quality hay is being fed, it will take high protein supplement such as cottonseed cake, breeder cubes and etc.

If trough space is available, cattlemen with high protein hay might want to consider the ground milo route. Three pounds per head per day of ground milo will provide an additional one fourth pound of protein and two and one half pounds of digestible nutrients. This should meet the nutrient needs of a 1200 pound cow nursing a calf if 20 pounds of the top quality hay is fed.

Cattlemen without feeding equipment will have to consider liquid feeds, cubes, cakes and such.

All of these feed supplements are expensive, but the cattle must be taken care of during the bad

Life Tabernacle Schedules Singing

The Life Tabernacle Church of Cunningham will have a singing on Saturday night, December 31 at 8:00 p.m.

Special guests will be the Davidson Sisters from Blossom and Wayne Huffman from Bogata and anyone else that would like to sing.

Paper Sale Extended Due To Bad Weather

Because of the extreme bad weather and bad roads over the past two weeks, the newspaper sale has been extended for one more week.

Traditionally, the sale ends Friday, December 30, but because of the number of phone calls, especially from elderly people who have been afraid to get out, the sale will extend until Friday, January 6, 1984.

This is the opportunity to renew your subscription to the Deport Times, Blossom Times, Bogata News or Talco Times at a savings of $2.00.

It is also the perfect time for Blossom subscribers to save money as they renew, because 90 percent of all Blossom subscriptions expire on January 31.

Don't delay, take advantage of this extended sale if you haven't already!

Weekly Agricultural Update

Every good cattleman knows that the best protection for cattle during severe cold weather is a belly full of hay. The heat produced in digestion lessens the impact of the cold weather. Most cattlemen feed enough supplemental protein to insure at least seven percent crude protein in the cow's diet. This so-called maintenance protein level insures the proper nutritional environment for the microbial organisms which inhabit the rumen and actually digest the hay and forage that the cow consumes.

These functions can take place only if the cow has an adequate mineral program. Energy from hay and dry grass can be metabolized after microbial digestion only if adequate minerals are available.

One of the essential minerals, phosphorus, is necessary for metabolism of all energy. Manganese serves as a catalyst in about one-half of the energy metabolism reactions. Both of these minerals are usually deficient in hay and dry forage and should be adequately supplemented.

Most producers have best results from free choice loose minerals that contain six percent calcium, 12 percent phosphorus and four percent magnesium. Beef cows should consume about two ounces of this mineral per head per day on a year round average. Cattle that are phosphorus and magnesium starved will be very aggressive when this type mineral is first offered.

This total program of hay, protein, phosphorus and magnesium will prevent severe weight loss and avoid weak and downer cows.

During cold weather, small grains are not making much growth. Producers should not graze the forage too closely during these periods. This may be a good time to limit grazing of small grains to two or three hours per day or every other day. This management practice will help extend the grazing period. Do not graze small grains when the fields are muddy to prevent destroying the stand.

Small grains grow when the temperature is above 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Growth rate increases as the temperature increases.

Research has shown that producers can lose as much as 65 percent when round bales of hay are stored outside unprotected and on the ground. This compares to three and one-half percent loss when stored inside. Since the cost of hay is high, producers may want to consider storing hay inside or covered by some means.

Rings should be used when feeding round bales. Up to 25 percent of the bale can be lost by feeding it unprotected and on the ground. By using rings, the loss can be reduced to five or six percent. The amount of loss also depends on how fast the bale is consumed by the cattle. The longer consumption takes, the more potential for loss.

Seal In Indoor Comfort
With Caulk and Weatherstripping

Losses of heated air and cold drafts in your home waste energy by making your heating system work harder than it should. Keep your home comfortable and stop the flow of outdoor air into your home by sealing the cracks around doors and windows with caulk and weatherstripping. Having a good seal around windows and doors helps keep the warm air in and the cold air out. For more tips on how you can get the most from the energy you use, ask for our free booklet, "A Guide To Better Home Energy Management."

Footprints From The Past

Christmas in 1983 brings back many memories for me. The snow and cold weather reminds me of when I was small and we always were hoping for a snow or at least some cold weather. We always wanted to go skating on some of the ponds, I may be wrong but it seemed that it was cold enough at least once during the Christmas season for all the kids to bundle up in their warm clothes and went skating. Some times we would break through the ice and get wet but that was nothing to worry about as we would just build us a fire and dry our shoes and get back on the ice.

When I got to an age when I thought I was as big and knew as much as anyone we moved to Pattonville. We had some pretty good times there too.

I recall one winter that it snowed and then came a very hard freeze, then snowed again. Us kids had a ball playing on the ice and snow. There was one boy who had an old Model-T Ford and all there was of it was the frame with a gas tank...no seats.

It was just right for pulling a sled behind, so we made a big sled that seven or eight could sit on, and hooked to it with a long chain and loaded up.

The driver would start up and when he got going good he would turn real quick. That was about like popping the whip as we would swing out in a wide circle. It seemed like fun, but now we recall how dangerous it really was.

I remember too one night about seven of us got on the sled and went all the way to Paris...about ten or twelve mile.

When we got back I had a frost bitten big toe, it had been dragging in the snow all the way to Paris and back!

We had a lot of fun back then. We created our own brand of something to do.

I suppose we have grown out of the thrill a lot...but those were some of the best times ever!

HEAVY DAMAGE—And one injury resulted from the accident between a 1981 Toyota Corolla driven by William Pine of Baton Rouge, Louisiana and a Red River Trucking Company eighteen wheeler. A vehicle in front of the

Toyota apparently put on his brakes and skidded on a White Oak Bottom Bridge. The Toyota apparently then went into a spin, and the semi hit the rear end of it while trying to avoid the vehicle. One girl was injured in the accident. (Staff Photo)
