Does anyone know exactly why humans keep pets...most especially dogs?
Most everyone has at least one dog, and most everyone is very attached to the animal.
We aren't a bit different.
But we keep three very large, hefty labrador retrievers, all young, all eating like baby elephants, and all into everything.
The big problem right now is trying to plant things.
The silly dogs are convinced that whatever we want to plant must be something absolutely delicious, and must immediately be dug up and tasted. They have managed to gnaw on elephant ear bulbs, caladiums, an entire package of wildflower seeds, several shrubs and two threes.
One of the trees was six feet high and had a trunk as big around as, oh, say a water hose! That trunk is reduced to a stump about a foot high!
In between times of tasting the delicacies we have put out for them...they think, the dogs are sneaking around scaring the heck out of visitors.
They will wait until a vehicle is leaving, then sneak up from behind and let loose a barrage of tremendous barks, causing the driver to invariably jump about a foot into the air.
They also take an occasional jaunt up onto the porch...knowing full well that there is no way they are going to be allowed up there. So, they wait until we aren't home, then trespass into the forbidden territory.
They bark when the moon is full. They bark when something a mile down the road is going on. They drag up tree limbs wanting them to be thrown for them to fetch.
They swim, then run a quarter of a mile so they can shake off next to us.
So why bother? Well, in the evening they sit quietly next to us. They follow our every step. They are fiercely protective of us and all we own. They are more loyal than the most dedicated friend. In short...they love us, and we love them. And I'm willing to bet that is exactly why just about everyone keeps dogs, no matter how much trouble.

Straight Answers to Your Questions

Q: When are ladders unsafe?

A: You have probably heard it before—but more serious accidents take place in the home than most anywhere else. Some of these accidents can be blamed on carelessness with the common ladder. Obviously, falls are responsible for a number of accidents, but you should take great care to be sure you and your ladder do not come in contact with the electrical wiring. Once a ladder contacts a powerline, it becomes energized, and a severe electrical shock can occur. Be sure to keep all television and radio antennas away from powerlines too.

Electricity provides many conveniences in our homes, but practice safety to avoid accidents.

TNP Vice President-Corporate Services Lloyd Parker supervises electrical safety training experts at Texas-New Mexico Power Company.

THE GRADUATING class of Bogata High School, 1965, will hold a reunion at the Bogata School Cafeteria in April 13 at 2 p.m. This is the way the class looked back when they graduated!

Dear Editor,
Next Saturday is school board election day. I hope the News will continue to give maximum publicity to this election, as the ballots that day are probably the most significant ones we cast all year. The school board sets the policies that determine the quality of the education Bogata's children will receive.

Voters should be aware that the balloting system is tricky. Each of us is entitled to vote for three candidates, but if we cast all three, the third vote works as a vote against our first two preferences. That is because Bogata's top vote-getter and Talco's top vote-getter are winners, but the third winner will be the next-best vote-getter, whichever town he may be from.

I plan to vote for my neighbors Eddy Denny and Drue Pirtle. Both of them stand for giving Bogata's children the best possible education preparation for future life. I will not cast my third vote, because one of the other candidates will be trying to beat out one of my two favorites!

Casting two votes, not three, seems to me the best way to assure that our excellent school system continues to improve.

Yours truly,
John Howison

WHAT ARE HOMESTEAD EXEMPTIONS?

A homestead exemption reduces the taxable value of your residence homestead. Various types of homestead exemptions are available in Texas and, if you qualify, they can lower your total property tax bill. Read on for details.

What Exemptions Are Available?

School districts offer a residence homestead exemption to all homeowners and additional exemptions to people who are disabled or over 65.

Counties offer homestead exemptions on their farm-to-market or flood control tax rates and may offer exemptions to the disabled and elderly.

Cities and other taxing units may offer exemptions for the disabled and elderly.

All taxing units offer an exemption for certain disabled veterans on one designated property.

Some taxing units offer an additional local-option percentage homestead exemption to resident homeowners.

How Do I Apply?

If you received a residence homestead exemption on your present home in 1984, you will not need to apply again for 1985, unless the chief appraiser requires you to file.

If you were 65 or disabled on January 1 and have not previously applied for the over-65 or disability homestead exemption, you will need to apply this year.

Or, if you have never had a homestead exemption on your present home, you should file your original application in 1985.

Apply for all exemptions to the county appraisal district at the address below. Forms are available from the appraisal office.

Is There a Deadline?

You should apply before May 1 for 1985 exemptions. While late applications for exemptions may be accepted in certain instances, you can fully protect your rights by applying before May 1.

The State Property Tax Board has a pamphlet, Taxpayers' Rights, Remedies, Responsibilities, to help you understand your local property taxes. Get a free copy at the appraisal district office or contact the State Property Tax Board in Austin.

FmHa Offers More Credit Help

New Farmers Home Administration regulations allow commercial banks and other lenders to write down interest rates for farm borrowers who could not otherwise get a production loan for spring planting according to Texas FmHA State Director J. Lynn Futch.

The regulations, published in the Federal Register Feb. 15 are in addition to earlier rule changes which helped lenders make loans to some farm borrowers who were having trouble making payments on their loans.

The earlier changes, announced last September, offered an FmHA guarantee on a portion of the loan if the lender agreed to write off at least ten percent of the principal. The FmHA guarantee is an agreement that the Federal government will make up part of the loss to the lender if the borrower defaults.

Banks and other lenders told FmHA that they could help more farm borrowers if they could write down interest rates instead of, or in combination with, writing off part of the principal. In response to their requests, FmHA made the rule change allowing the interest write down in exchange in lieu of the write off. The borrowers loan payments must be the same under this option.

Futch said the new rules will enable many lenders to help some farmers, whose loans are classified as substandard. "Lenders, who feel this debt adjustment program can help, will review loans they now have with farmers who are having trouble repaying. They will determine whether or not the farmer could make payments if the loan is reduced by at least ten percent. If so, the lender can come to FmHA to get our guarantee on part of the remaining debt.

"With the assurance that a large portion of the debt is guaranteed, the bank or other lender is in a better position to extend credit to farmers for production expenses this spring, Futch said.
