

Seat Belt Law Effective September 1

Effective September 1, 1985 the Seat Belt Law will go into effect. Whether one likes it, or whether one doesn't, will no longer be a matter of concern, for the fact is, seat belts will be required on the following:

Passenger cars include light trucks with manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of no more than 1,500 pounds.

Persons commit an offense if the person: is at least 15 years old; is riding in front seat of passenger car while it is operated on a road, street or highway of this state; or occupying a seat that is equipped with a seat belt; is not secured by a seat belt.

A person commits an offense if the person: operates on a road, street or highway in this state a passenger car that is equipped with safety belts; and, allows a child at least four years but less than 15 years old to ride in the front seat of the vehicle to be secured by a seat belt.

A passenger car is deemed to be equipped with seat belts. If vehicle came from factory with seat belt anchors or belt holds it must have safety belts.

Penalty: Punishment by fine of $25.00 and not more than $50.00.

Exemptions: The law does not apply to persons who possess a written statement from a licensed physician stating that for medical reasons the person is unable to wear a seat belt. It is a defense if person presents a doctor's statement not later than the 10th day after the offense.

The law does not apply to U.S. postal workers while performing duties requiring the operator to service postal boxes from their vehicle, which requires frequent entry into or exit from their vehicle.

This Senate Bill No. 500 becomes law on September 1 but enforcement does not begin until December 1.

The leaves know a secret. They know that fall is coming and summer is putting up its last big fight before the long, slow slide down to autumn!

If we look closely, the leaves and various other signs will reveal the fact that even though the temperature hovers at about 100 degrees, a good rain would be welcome.

Sitting and watching a tree isn't terrible exciting, but can be informative. Within seconds a leaf is bound to drift slowly down. It's usually yellow or brown, usually has an insect bite or sting on it, but knows that its time has come. Look a little closer at the tree and hundreds of the leaves, pale and tremulous, are decked out throughout its surface.

It isn't drought that does it, there has been no drought. It isn't heat, for these trees have survived hundreds of years through much hotter summers than this. It is, simply, that the trees are some of the first things to recognize the approach of the fall season.

Geese are getting restless. They honk and pace and wander further afield than usual. That ancient drive to migrate is taking over. The purple martins, who have hung around all summer, have vanished as completely as if they had never been. There aren't too many robins left, either.

It may be imagination, but kids seem to be a little "antsy" too. As school approaches they become restless, wanting to begin school and not wanting to. Perhaps some ancient instinct that winter is coming triggers their emotions too?

Whatever it is, the slightly cooler temperatures and northern breeze has brought home those feelings. Time is running out. Fall will slowly advance and summer has slots its battle yet again.

Enjoy the end of summer, anticipate fall, it's all part of that slow, enjoyable chain of seasons that affects us all, indoor or outdoor people that we may be.

School Brings Memories

It's over once again. School begins, for most area children, on September 3.

For most youngsters, the arrival of yet another year of school comes as a shock. How could all that unending parade of days have ended?

How can three months have ended so quickly?

There are still frogs to be caught, turtles to be chased and swimming to be done. They simply haven't accomplished all the myriad projects that they were going to achieve throughout the summer.

What happened? Where has freedom gone!

But like it or not, to school they must go. And within a week, with the absolute adaptability of youth, they cannot imagine how they filled those empty days when school was out.

How did they manage without sports, without association with their friends every day. How sweet those weekends are after being confined during the week!

Remember back to those days, if you will. There was anticipation of seeing friends. And fear...fear of new teachers, whose reputations had grown in the telling. Fear of not being able to handle the approaching grade. Each year, fourth graders told third graders how hard their work was, sixth graders told fifth graders, each grade trying to impress the grade below!

There was the pleasure of a newly painted classroom, and the musty, almost alien smell of the school building after a summer of being shut up. The sound of heels pounding down the hall absolutely invited one to stomp harder!

But it took a few days to quit talking in class...and learn to write notes again instead!

To a child, education is not the primary reason for going to school. Education is a secondary by-product of attending school...something that interferes with visiting between classes, playing hard, and learning to relate to one another.

For the children, school is a magic place, but one they frequently complain about!

They are getting ready to re-enter the world of education once again. And watching them, it's not difficult to hark back into the past, when it was ourselves who were returning.

The food, flowers, cards, telephone calls, and many other acts of kindness have helped to ease the burden of our sorrow.

To James Wood, who gave so much of himself during our time of need and for taking care of the burden of so many necessary arrangements for us.

To Rev. Randy Newkirk for conducting such a beautiful service for Mike. It has given us so much comfort, and a clear path to follow as we walk through our valley of healing.

To Tim and James Wood, Donna Robinson and Neva Dell Burns for the lovely and meaningful musical tribute given.

Words cannot truly convey the gratitude and appreciation we feel in our hearts, but to each of you we say Thank You and ask God's blessings for you in our prayers.

The National Secondary Education Council announced recently that Lisa Umphries has been named an Academic All-American.

The NSEC has established the Academic All American Scholar Award Program in order to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the Academic disciplines. The Academic All American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or better grade point average. Only Scholars selected by a secondary school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsor are accepted. EASY NO-BAKE COOKIE DESSERTS

Everyone loves desserts—but no one likes spending long hours in a hot kitchen preparing them.

The casual moods of fall especially invite us to forego elaborate dinners and instead serve light, seasonal meals requiring a minimum of effort. Still, the question of what to do for that final meal-capping course leaves many cooks in a quandary.

When the occasion calls for something special, consider a cookie dessert. The following recipes all feature chocolate chip cookies. The delicious flavors and crispy, chewy texture of Duncan Hines ready-to-serve cookies add a true homemade taste to these easy-to-make desserts. With a little imagination, and even less work, you can create mouth-watering cookie confections without going near the oven.

SHERBET-MINT DELIGHT

1 package Duncan Hines Mint Chocolate Chip Cookies

1 quart sherbet (lemon, lime or orange) fresh lemon, lime or orange.

shaved chocolate or miniature chocolate mint chips, optional

Place 3 or 4 Duncan Hines Mint Chocolate

Chip Cookies in dessert bowl. Top with one scoop sherbet. Garnish with fresh fruit slice. Sprinkle with chocolate, if desired.

COFFEE ICE CREAM PIE

1 package Duncan Hines Almond Fudge Chocolate Chip Cookies

2 tablespoons almond extract

1/2 gallon coffee ice cream, partially thawed

1/4 cup slivered almonds, blanched or toasted

2 cups whipped cream, optional

In food processor or blender, crumble one package Duncan Hines Almond Fudge Chocolate Chip Cookies. Transfer to large bowl, moisten with almond extract. Press mixture into 9-inch pie plate. Why did TNP Employee Dane Schutz check his insulation?

Prudent businessmen have to stay on top of things to be successful—checking invoices, controlling costs, paying bills, and meeting the wants and needs of their customers. TNP Employee Dane Schutz of Texas City, Texas, knows that checking his insulation now, before bad weather arrives, will help him make the necessary improvements that can help control his heating costs this winter and his cooling costs in the coming summer.

The energy experts at Texas-New Mexico Power Company can help you know what your insulation needs are. For information on all types of insulation that can improve the energy efficiency of your home or your business property, call our office for complete details.

School Clothes Give Children Confidence

By Mary Lou Williamson
Most adults know that looking good is an important part of feeling good. But parents sometimes overlook how important feeling well dressed is to children, states Dr. Ann Beard, Extension Clothing Specialist from Texas A&M University.

Children who have confidence in how they look tend to be more positive in their schoolwork and their relations with classmates. Research studies also show that teachers believe school age children with an attractive appearance are more intelligent and do better in school.

Parents can help children have that extra bit of confidence by planning clothes carefully. The basic element in selecting school clothes is that they should be attractive, comfortable and safe. But beyond that is an enormous range for choice - a choice to be made with the child's input.

Here are some suggestions on how to make shopping trips for clothes a success. First make a money plan. Know how much you have to spend on clothes for everyone before you begin buying. The greatest amount of money spent on children's clothing usually goes for a back to school wardrobe.

Have a closet check at the beginning of each season. Decide what is usable, stylish, still fits and in good repair. Agree on what to buy and when, since you do not need to have everything at once. School age children grow fast, so purchase only a few things at the beginning of the school year to avoid outgrowing garments.

Buy clothes that fit according to your child's size, not by age. Most manufacturers base sizes on weight and height so if you cannot shop with the child, take actual measurements along. Since sizes may vary by manufacturer, it is best to have the child try on the clothes.

Dr. Beard recommends when buying children's clothing check for quality and safety. Look for straight seams, check buttons, zippers, belts, ties and pockets, for strength, finishing and ease of handling. Select fabrics that are sturdy but comfortable, colorfast and have easy care requirements.

Always read labels before you buy. Permanent labels give you details for laundering. Hanging tags often carry additional information on fabric properties.

Children's clothing has many purposes in addition to providing something to wear. Clothes give children the means to: be like other children; develop a sense of ownership and responsibility; gain self-confidence and independence, learn about decision-making; acquire freedom of activity in relation to growth stages; use their imaginations.

Tax Publications Available For Small Businesses

Small business owners are being reminded by the Internal Revenue Service of two free publications that explain federal tax requirements and procedures.

Publication 334, "Tax Guide for Small Business", goes into detail on such subjects as setting up a tax records system, determining net income, and tax credits and business assets. Publication 583, "Information for Business Taxpayers" explains what a small business person needs to know to meet tax obligations, such as how to file form sand to compute the tax.

Taxpayers can obtain these free publications by calling the IRS number listed in their local phone directory.
