We painted the office last week. It needed it. The leaky roof that was fixed last year had provided the walls with long brown streaks, the ceiling tiles looked like they had served for a tobacco spitting contest (water stains, again) and the places whee we had moved things hanging on the walls revealed pale patches of clean (by comparison) paint.

The painting was uneventful. The resultant cleaning is probably typical. The new paint necessitated some furniture moving, which meant cleaning out some stuff crammed into the back recesses of drawers and shelves. I swear, we found an American flag so old it only had thirteen stars!

Well, if you don't believe that one, right alongside of it was a Texas flag so old that it served at the battle of San Jacinto.

But, seriously, the stuff we threw out was old, unused and dirty. Still, we hated to part with it, and didn't with all of it.

After the walls and ceilings looked so good, the furniture looked awfully dirty. So, we enameled all the wooden bookcases, cabinets and copy drawers. Those ancient pieces of wooden furniture were actually made from old shoe crates....one shelf unit even has a wild peacock decorated panel of wall paper on the back. They have been, not necessarily in order, grey, brown, green, bright yellow, beige and now dark blue.

Of course, when the wooden furniture looked bright and nice, the metal desks and tables looked dirty. So, we dug out the cleaner and started scrubbing THEM! It seemed like a never ending snowball situation. Finally, things put back in place, desks scrubbed, furniture painted, walls and ceilings all nice and neat, we looked at the whole thing with something closely akin to relief!

Only thing is, now that concrete floor looks really grubby. That means, you guessed it, we're going to have to paint the FLOOR!

Robert (Bobby) Dickey Candidate For Commissioner Precinct 1

We have had a favorable winter and I have been able to maintain a constant upgrading program to our roads and bridges. Some roads have been neglected so long that the users felt that it was futile to ask if something could be done to improve their area. Something can be done and without recidess spending of our money. I have proven this by using better management, permanant improvements and a policy that all county material and all work done by County personel will be strickly for the County and distributed fairly throughout the Precinct. Serving you as Commissioner is my main priority. Thank you for your support and encouragement.
