NICHOLS' WORTH

By: Nanalee Nichols

Summertime... and childhood. For most of us that's just a memory. But watching my nephew playing the other running in the heat as though it weren't even warm, brought back memories of some of the favorite, and least favorite, things about childhood summers.

Remember summer rains, how they swelled the ditches, making perfect places to go wading. How good that cool, new water felt running over bare feet? And remember being told by older kids that a big ole' crawdad was going to fasten on to your toe? That added an edge of danger to the whole thing.

Remember trying to weave baskets or plait ropes from Johnson Grass fronds? And remember those cuts that came from the same leaf?

Some of the very finest things about summer were: watermelons, spitting seeds in the dust and feeling the cool juice run down your throat, ice water in a tall glass with chunks of ice rattling in it, no school, simply unending days of play.

Some of the not-so-fine things were: having to help out in the field or kitchen, such as picking peas, corn, hoeing cotton, or helping mama can; ticks, and most of all chiggers; knee scrapes from running or riding bicycles in shorts; sunburns. On those sunburns! They would make it impossible to sleep, and in a few days the brown patches were interspersed with pink patches where the top layer of skin peeled off.

Favorite summer activities were Vacation Bible School, where one could visit with friends usually unseen through the summer, make neat crafts and sing at the top of our lungs.

Swimming. Swimming was usually a big deal, since most small communities lack a pool. A trip to Paris, complete with a stop by the ice cream place, was just right for birthdays or special occasions. And did that concrete pool water ever feel great!

Summer nights with clear stars are just the thing for kids to lie on a quilt in the yard and look up at, and fireflies were made just to chase down.

Oh yes, summer is a magic time for children. Fishing, hunting, just wandering through the lazy days, horseback riding, reading favorite books, drinking "poly-pop" by the gallons, it seems that summers never end.

They will, of course, and after a time, the activities become a little less childish, and we realize we are "grown up". But few of us ever outgrow all those pleasures, and for most, summer still retains a little of that "laid back" not such a rush, feeling.

That's why it's summer, my friends. That's why it's a little special.

Buckman Discovers Fire

Thanks to Bill Buckman, several buildings on North Main Street were spared extensive fire damage late Sunday evening.

Buckman had gone to the drug store to fill a prescription and upon entering his store, smelled the faint odor of smoke. Buckman said the smell was so faint at first that he decided he had just imagined it, however, as time passed he became more definite that there was a fire nearby.

After a thorough search through his store, he called Morris Foster and Charlie Lewis. Donnie Strain arrived later and together the men tracked the smoke to the back of Bob Smiley's barber shop. Upon further investigation, they found that the fire had begun in a mattress which had been stored in the back of the barber shop. The mattress was pulled outside and the fire snuffed out.

"My timing was just right," said Buckman. "If I had been any earlier, I would not have noticed the smoke, and if I'd been any later, it would have done a lot of damage."

Losses From Round Hay Bales Calculated

By Paul D. Payne
A great percentage of hay harvested in the area is now being put up in the large round bale as opposed to the small square bale that was the predominate method 10 years ago. Hay producers have gone to the big bale mainly to cut down on labor required in hauling and at feeding time.

However, many producers are having second thoughts about the economics of using big bale in light of the big losses in hay and also quality. I ran across some information the other day that should be of interest to hay producers.

A fellow County Extension Agent down in South Texas conducted a demonstration last year aimed at studying weathering losses. They studied sorghum sudangrass that was baled in July and stored until the following January. Approximately 20 inches of rain was received during that time which is comparable to our area.

Five different storing methods were used: in the barn; uncovered, outside on the ground; uncovered, outside on a pallet off the ground; covered with plastic outside on the ground; and covered with plastic and stored on a pallet off the ground.

Caution Urged As Hwy. 271 Is Re-Surfaced

Highway 271 is being resurfaced, with work concentrated on Bogata through Bogata and Deport and on to Pattonville, at the present time.

A coating of oil and gravel giving the road a new, smooth surface, but causing inevitable problems from flying chips of the rock coating. Caution is urged in passing and driving because of the abundance of loose material, which will do serious damage to paint or windshields.

Weathered parts were removed and weighed to determine loss. Bales averaged 1575 pounds at harvest and 1400 pounds at feeding.

Largest losses were in bales stored on top of the ground because the hay acted as a wick and soaked up moisture from the ground. Uncovered bales on the ground lost 220 pounds on the average while covered bales on the ground lost half that amount.

However, those that were uncovered but stored on pallets off the ground lost 80 pounds while the covered bales on pallets lost only 35 pounds.

So hay producers need to give some thought to storing hay outside up off the ground. In this instance there was 63 percent less loss by just storing the hay off the ground.

The Lamar County Crops Tour will be Tuesday, August 4 beginning at 1 p.m. at the Byrdtown Community, located south of Blossom and northeast of Pattonville.

Individuals interested in these two crops should make plans to go on the tour.

An Open Letter to the People of the 1st Texas Senate District

Dear Fellow Citizen: Since I've decided to seek this Senate seat, I've been asked why I want this job.

I think the best answer is that I see the problems that are here in East Texas and I want to help rebuild a better future for our friends and neighbors.

As a County Judge, I believe I've proven my willingness to work hard and find creative, innovative programs that get problems solved. I believe that a government should work as hard as its people to find the kind of positive, resourceful alternatives that meet our challenges. Tired old answers are not going to solve new problems.

My daughter, Ashley, graduated from high school this year. She reminds me of the many young people in transition who leave our beautiful East Texas land and heritage... never to return. Not because they want to, but because they have to go elsewhere to find good paying jobs. When they go, they just may be taking our future with them. This is an area of families and tightly-knit communities. It breaks my heart to see economic necessity driving our future away.

As your Senator, I want Ashley and the rest of her generation not only to have roots here... but opportunity and hope as well.

If we provide the new jobs and opportunities, if we protect our traditional values and rich environment, and if we never lose sight of the dream which brought our ancestors here, then I believe our future can be secured.

I want us to export our oil, gas, timber and other products again. I want to put East Texans back to work! But as your State Senator, I want to be sure that East Texas never again is faced with exporting its children... because then all that we will have left will be our past.

During this campaign, I hope that you will come to appreciate the record of leadership and accomplishment that I submit to you. I hope you will come to understand the philosophy of government I will take to Austin as your next State Senator.

All I ask is that if we agree, you give me your vote, your support, and your prayers in this effort.

Sincerely,

Richard Anderson

The Tale of The Borrowed Cat

By Mollie Williams

Many of you may remember when Tom Underwood's little log beauty shop was on Main Street. I'm not really sure that I do, however, I do remember my sisters' reminiscing about the old days and mentioning it a time or two. One of those old tales they remembered was a time when my oldest sister, Tommie Joy, was a senior in High School. Her friend's parents were moving away and the friend, Wanda Lou Hale, didn't want to leave the school during her last year, so she moved in with us. She quickly became one of the family and shared in all the times of work and play around our house.

On one particular occasion, Wanda recalls that she and my older sisters, Tommie Joy, Martha Jo and Bobbie Lee were preparing to make their weekly trip into town on a Saturday afternoon, when my mother asked them to take the neighbor's cat, which she had borrowed to help in her fight against the mice, home. The girls agreed to do so, loaded the cat in the family station wagon and headed for town. The neighbor to whom the cat belonged lived right on the way to town, but for some unexplainable reason, the girls decided to take the cat into town with them and drop it off on their way back home.

All went well and the cat behaved himself beautifully until the group was ready to begin their journey home. It was then that the cat decided he needed to see a little of Bogata. He jumped out of the station wagon and ran speedily under the little log building that was Tom's Beauty Shop. Realizing the predicament they had fallen into by allowing the borrowed cat to escape, Wanda Lou, Tommie Joy and Bobbie Lee jumped from the car and hastily began calling the cat while crouching down on all fours, trying desperately to see the cat beneath the building. Wanda Lou was quick to remember that Martha Jo wasn't all that interested in finding the cat, her main concern was that one of her boyfriends would see them and she would be embarrassed, so she sat, mortified, in the car while the others continued their frantic search of the wayward cat.

At last the cat was coaxed into the car and the girls drove straight to the lender's house and then on home where the usual arguments of whose time it was to wash the dishes and whose turn it was to wear certain clothes resumed.

Though this incident was vividly clear to Wanda Lou, she could not seem to remember any reasonable reason why they decided to take the cat into town with them that day.

I suppose they probably did not have a reason, it probably was just a spur of the moment idea, much like crazy ideas that all of us have had in your younger days. However, it's memories such as these that help us to look back on those days of yesterday, with laughter, bringing into our lives today a ray of sunshine.

Wetlands Lost

Almost nine-tenths of Arkansas' original hardwood swamps have been drained, denying vital wetlands to migrating ducks, says National Geographic. In the contiguous 48 states, about 458,000 acres of wetlands are lost to farming and other development every year.

Middle Class Hit Hardest

Economic recessions are more likely to cause havoc in the lives of members in the middle class than in those of the rich or poor.

The unemployment rate appears to act as a barometer for the middle third of the population: The higher the rate climbs, the more probability of experiencing such negative life events as mortgage foreclosure, job lay-off, or car repossession.

Members of the lower class are vulnerable to negative events regardless of the unemployment rate. And those in the upper class have fewer undesirable events whether the rate is up or down. In fact, they tend to prosper even more when times are bad.

Travis Hale, superintendent of schools at Rivercrest, had announced that applications were to be taken for a new head coach at the school. Fall grid workouts were to be underway within a month, and Hale said he would like to fill the vacancy as soon as possible. The system was to be moving into a new building in September. The football team was to continue to use the former home of the Talco squad. A new gym was part of the school facilities and was to be opened in the fall. In addition to the Rivercrest coaching slot, there were also junior high vacancies at Talco and Bogata.

More than 1,500 guests had registered and toured the open house of the new Red River County Hospital on Highway 82, west of Clarksville. The open house followed ribbon cutting ceremonies at 1:30 p.m. The hospital had opened with 66 rooms, all private with individual bath and shower in each room. Acting administrator, Tinnie Garrison, had pointed out that the entire concept of the new building was based on patient care and comfort.

W.J. Corbell had been in charge of the entertainment. A quartet, Mrs. D. Butts and Marion Hines of Clarksville, W.J. Corbell and J.N. Lee of Bogata with Mrs. Vera Grogan of Rugby at the piano, had sung several beautiful selections. Rev. Gene Shoemaker and Mrs. Shoemaker had also given several numbers. Hay Quality Variable This Summer

By Herb Brevard

Due to wet weather, hay has been cut at odd times this spring. The 28 day schedule, normally used as a guide for determining the cutting time, has not held due to the unpredictable weather. Therefore, according to Dr. Sim A. Reeves, Jr., agronomist, it is difficult to determine the quality of the hay without testing.

Reeves says that each cutting of hay should be tested and properly identified. Hay quality is important whether selling or buying hay. The quality will determine the best use for the hay, since different classes of livestock require different nutrition levels. Higher quality hay should be fed to lactating cows and developing heifers. The lower quality hay is generally sufficient for dry cows if the protein content is near seven percent.

Some hay has gotten wet after cutting and before baling. This can be a very discouraging situation, particularly if the hay supply is limited. The longer the hay stays wet, the more quality is lost. Reeves says that if the hay can be fluffed so that it will dry quicker, less quality will be lost.

The production of hay is a very expensive practice on most farms and ranches. Therefore, it is a definite economic advantage to study the cost of production, cost of harvesting, investment and labor requirements, and the best use of the land available before going into the hay baling business. Many smaller producers find it advantageous to purchase all their hay and use their land and capital for other purposes. The situation will vary drastically from farm to farm.

MRS. HENRIETTA WALL, former candidate for the Silver Haired Legislature enjoys working with many senior citizens groups including playing "42" Tuesday mornings at Red River Haven. Other organizations of which she does weekly volunteer work are the Ladies Auxiliary of Franklin County Hospital, Mills Center in Franklin County and Mission Manor Nursing Home. She is also vice-president of the American Association of Retired People, a member of Texas Extension Homemakers Association of North Franklin County and serves as reporter. She also has a presentation of her travels that she offers to organizations.

Buckman Sets State Record

July 6 at the East Texas Rifle and Pistol Club monthly IHMSA bigbore handgun silhouette match, Bill Buckman set a new state 4-gun aggregate record of 148 targets of 160. The previous record of 145 had been set in 1985 by Buddy Bailey of Houston. This record was then shared in early 1986 with Dr. Tom Clinkscales, also of Houston. In May at the state finals in Sweetwater, a new record was established at 146 by Jim Bodkin of Hereford. Buckman helped Bodkin in shooting this record by serving as his spotter.

Shooting a 140/160 or 100/120 is considered an honor in IHMSA and qualifies for a special president's 140 (or 100) Club award from the president of IHMSA, Elgin Gates of Idaho Falls, Idaho. Buckman had made the 100 Club for the past five years, but it was 1986 before placing in the 140 Club with its small yearly number of usually less than 100 shooters. However, this 148 score was his fourth 140 Club in a row this year.

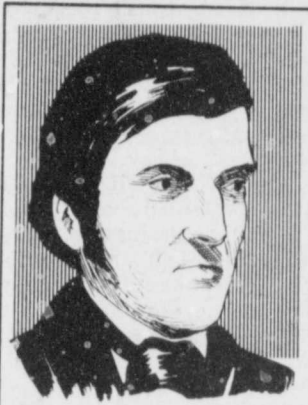

IHMSA (International Handgun Metallic Silhouette Association, Inc.) is an organization of some 38,000 shooters world wide. A match normal course of fire is 40 rounds as 10 chickens at 50 meters, 10 pigs at 100 meters, 10 turkeys at 150 meters and 10 rams at 200 meters (219 yards). Life size targets cut from steel plates, must be knocked off the stand to score a hit. Rams weigh approximately 55 pounds. Targets are shot in banks of five, left to right, in two minute intervals. There are four categories, Production Revolver (freestyle); Production Single-shot (freestyle); Production Standing (revolver or single-shot); and Unlimited (freestyle). Freestyle is a position that allows the shooter to shoot in a comfortable, but unaided position with certain safety and gun placement regulations. Aggregate totals must always include the standing category. Handguns fired must meet certain qualifications according to category such as weight, sight radius, amount of custom work, etc., but all share the same requirement of having only "open sights", no scopes or magnifying devices allowed. Individuals are ranked in classes according to their shooting ability, International Class being the highest class in each category.

Buckman's score was made by firing a standing score of 29/40, Production Revolver 39/40, Production single-shot 40/40, and unlimited for 148/160 with 39/40 rams (missing one ram in the revolver category).

Buckman has participated in IHMSA competition since 1978 and has served as Texas Deputy Director-North since 1980. He and his wife, Joyce, travel regularly during the summer participating in state and sometimes out of state matches. Joyce participates in the competition serving as a "spotter" for Bill and is often called upon by other shooters.

A spotter calls the placement of shots and keeps track of the very critical time.

Richard Alford also shoots regularly in IHMSA and occasionally Troy Howerton joins in for a match. Both men are also of Bogata.
