Rains Slow Area Agricultural Activities

The weekend rain brought most agricultural activities to a snail's pace and it will take several days of open weather before most activity can resume

The rain was general over the entire area. Not everyone needed the precipitation.

Peanut producers will be anxiousg open weather as they not too spectacular crop. Dry land peanuts were hurt by the dry July and August.

before harvest is complete if the weather cooperates. Fewer acres of soybeans are in the field at this time than in previous years as most of the acreage has shifted to the earlier maturing varieties.

Upwards of 50 percent of the wheat has been planted. However, the present planting delay is not critical as there is still plenty of time to plant wheat for grain. In fact, many plant scientists that have studied the leaf Part of the soybean-erop remains rust and Hessian Fly situation are en-in the field and it will be November couraging a later planting date. So, perhaps this will all work out to the betterment of the farmer

> Tons of high quality forage has been produced in the area during the last month and several days of hay curing weather will be needed to make hav. Hay making will be a hit and miss affair due to the heavy dews, lower temperatures and rank grass growth.

Scattered armyworm reports continue to be received, but their activity should be slowed down with the arrival of cooler weather. Individuals with young wheat and winter pastures should continue to look for damage. We do not expect an epidemic in pastures and meadows this late in the

Pecans are beginning to fall which is about three weeks earlier than normal. The nuts are smaller than normal but the kernel is filled in most cases. I do not know the reason for th eearly fall unless it is associated with the earlier nut set in the spring. There should be an adequate nut drop to meet the needs of the holiday baking

Turnips and mustard green patches have been hard hit this fall by leaf eating worms. Cabbage loopers are one of the major pests and should not be confused with the armyworms. Loopers are a lighter green than the armyworm and do not have the inverted "Y" behind the head. It is important to correctly identify the insect, as Sevin and Malathion will not control the looper. Dipel is about the only material that will take care of the looper.

Read label instructions before applying as there are different day intervals from application to eating. For instance, there is a 14 day waiting on greens where Sevin is used. There is no time wait where Dipel is used. However, one should understand that it takes longer for Dipel to control worms than insecticides.

Life is not like television I only hope the kids growing up now realize

I am not a big television viewer. I realize that millions of Americans are. For that matter, my husband is one of those millions

In between chapters of my book, I frequently have my attention grabbed by what is happening on the television.

For instance, the other evening I was struck by some woman "struggling" between life and death on some program or another.

The only reason one knew she was seriously ill was because the doctor had just said so, and she was in a hospital bed.

Of course, her night gown looked like a designer original, (where was tht skimpy, wrinkled cotton gown known so well?) her hair looked better than mine does after I've spent two hours at the hairdresser, and her makeup would have done for a "How To" demonstration in a woman's magazine. There was not wasting away, and she didn't have a single intravenous drip in her perfectly rounded arms! No tubes snaked around her head, no monitor beeped in frantic counterpoint. Hmmmmp, we should all be ill so gracefully

Car accidents are another totally unrealistic part of television. It seems today that the higher the number of chase scenes and car crashes in a movie or show, the higher the ratings.

Children can watch their favorite characters total out two or three vehicles a week, crawling from the wreckage unscathed and wise cracking. It should be so funny in real life!

Heroes seem incapable of being hurt, too. They mow down wicked enemies by the hundreds, stabbing, strangling, shooting and bashing. When the enemy tries the same tactics on them, th eonly result is a scratch or bruise ... nothing incapacitates the good guy!

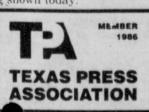

Of course, the invincibility of heroes is nothing new. Old westerns abound with cowboys shot in the shoulder, grandly continuing to finish their business

But today's movies have brought the blood and gore to a fine art. The had guys die in startling realism, while that hero is as unrealistic as the one's in bygone days.

Perhaps it is harmless. Then again, perhaps it isn't. I don't believe it is. t teaches kids a totally view of life...of it's very real problems, which seldom have the excitement and drama of acting. I think it teaches people a biased, unrealistic view of what the world is like, and that they feel disappointed when THEIR life isn't in the least like the ones on TV.

I, for one, would like to see some changes made in the entertainment being shown today

Injuries Hamper Rebels Against Redwater

By Stan Anderson

The Rebels played their last nondistrict game last Friday night in Redwater, but injuries to five Rebel starters in the previous games and the loss of two more in this contest helped the Redwater Dragons to a hard fought 20-0 victory

The Dragons received the kick-off on their own 31 and after a 15-yard return, set up on the 46-yard line. A make shift Rebel defense held the Dragons at bay on four consecutive plays, but the Rebels fared little better as they could only muster three yards in four attempts. Following the Rebel punt, Redwater took over on their own 32-yard line.

Running back Chris Sanders sparked the first drive of the game, running for 51 yards of a 68-yard drive which resulted in the first score of the game, making the score 7-0 at the six minute mark of the first quarter. On the Rebels second possession of the game, Bradley Woods was intercepted on a second down pass play. Once again Redwater had the ball in good field position, but a stingy Rebel defense forced Redwater to give up the ball on downs. Rivercrest still found the yardage tough to come by and had to punt the ball away for the second time. The Dragons' next series saw two Rebel defenders leave the contest with serious injuries. The Dragons put together one final drive in the first half, scoring on a pass play from quarterback Brian Burleson to running back Jamey Sorsby. The extra point attempt was missed, making the score 13-0 at the half.

The Rebels opened the third quarter on their own 40-yard line. Rebel back Amos Brown, tried the Dragon defense twice for only five yards and a third down pass attempt by Bradley Woods fell incomplete. The Rebs third punt gave Redwater the ball on their own 26-yard line. The Dragons held the ball eleven plays and managed 40 yards but a swarming Reb defense denied a TD this Rivercrest could only manage three yards on four tries at the stubborn Dragon defense, thus giving the ball back to Redwater near mid-field. The Dragons kept the ball on the ground and pounded their way to the Rebel goal. Running back Jamie Sorsby carried the ball over the line for his second touchdown of the game. The point after was good, giving Redwater a 20-0 lead.

Late in the fourth quarter, Rivercrest had the ball on the Redwater 36-yard line. The combined running of Bradley Woods, Joe Richeson and Amos Brown moved the ball to the four yard line, but the Dragons held on a fourth down play and regained possession with only seconds remaining in the game, leaving the score Redwater 20-Rivercrest 0.

Next Friday night, Rivercrest travels to Honey Grove for the first district game of the season. Most of the injured players should be ready to play this week against the Warriors. The kick-off is slated for 7:30

Anyone wishing to make a donation may send money to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cawley, Secretary-treasurer, Homecoming 1987, F.O. Box 473, Bogata, TX 75417.

Parker, Wood, Randolph Win

Kevin Parker of Paris missed only three games and predicted Redwater would win 20-12 to capture the $12 first place football contest money.

Denise Wood of Bogata missed four games and picked Redwater 21-6 for second place and Monte Randolph of Bogata also missed four games and said Redwater would win 20-6. Also missing four games were Edward Deaton of Talco, who picked Redwater 14-6, Austin Sparks of Pattonville who chose Redwater 13-6, Josh Jones who didn't put down an address, missed four and picked Redwater 38-0.

Jeff Morrison missed four games and said Rivercrest would win 6-0. Tobe King of Bogata missed four games and said Rivercrest would win

Randy Jones from Talco guessed the tie-breaker exactly right, Redwater 20-Rivercrest 0.

Other winning teams were: Prairiland; New York Jets; L.A. Raiders; New England; Cleveland; New York Giants; Philadelphia; Detroit; Denver; Detroit; Mt. Pleasant; Southern Methodist; Arkansas; Alabama; Arizona State; Louisiana State; Ohio State; North Carolina.

Keeping Healthy

Physical Activity May Help To Prevent Colon Cancer

A preliminary study points to higher incidence of colon cancer in men with sedentary occupations. These individuals are 60% more likely to develop colon cancer than those whose work requires more physical activity, according to David Garabrant, MD and research colleagues at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles who studied 2,950 men with colon cancer.

'Physical activity appears to stimulate the movement of stool through the colon," Dr. Garabrant explains, and this reduces the amount of time carcinogens are in contact with the colon lining -- "assuming cancer is caused by carcinogens in the fecal stream," he adds.

Importance of School Bands, Past And Present

By Mollie Williams

The modern band may be traced to Frederick the Great of Prussia. In 1763, he ordered a military band to be established, and named the instruments to be used. Later, France, Italy, England and other countries in Europe sponsored military bands. Thus the band came into being through its use in military training.

As America grew, the citizens of almost every town and village took special pride in organizing a local band. These bands are typically American. They sometimes have developed from school a school band. An open-air band concert in the public square became a regular weekly feature in many communities. It was usually given on shopping day.

Interest in town bands led to the support of bands in public schools, especially after World War I. In many cases, the schools gave the bands instruments, uniforms, music and other equipment. State and national contests were established to select the best school bands. Both concert and marching bands took part in these events. College and university bands also began to improve. Leading institutions featured their marching bands at football games

School marching bands offer more than entertainment. They help the student to master a musical instrument. They drill him in difficult marching patterns which help in learning team work and self-control.

A few people around Bogata well remember Bogata High without a band and most of them will acknowledge the importance of having a school band.

The first Bogata School band was formed in 1957. Rick Rodkey was employed as director and Lynn Buckman became the first drum major. The newly formed band boasted several members and was soon able to give high standards of performance at football games and concerts and parades.

In the years that followed, interest in the band began to dwindle. A lot of students somehow got th eidea that being in the band wasn't quite so resplendent. Band directors came and went through the school system. At times there would be an increase in band support and enthusiasm, but never to the full extent to really have an extraordinary band.

Consolidation came in 1965-66 and the members of the Talco band joined ranks with the Bogata band. Rick Rodkey was brought back to assume direction of the band. Those recalling that year of consolidation say that interest in the band seemed to increase for a short time, but again, student participation in the band began to

After asking around about the reasons for lack of band members nd the lagging band interest, most of the answers conveyed the message that students feel that band performers do not get the desired glory and recognition that is givne to those in athletics and other activities by the faculty, fellow students and the communities.

One Rivercrest ex-student confessed that although he had loved and enjoyed his years in the band, he advised his younger brother to forget band and try to excel in sports because that was what people liked.

I suppose we're all guilty at times of honoring those in a place of prominence and ignoring those who serve in a more obscure position. This happens in all phases of society whether it be church, school or community.

In view of the need for having a school band, and the benefits band students receive in later years from their band experience and musical abilities, the band deserves the dedicated support of the school faculty, parents, other students and the

with a local guide. Among places toured were the Capitol, the Arlington National Cemetery, the Smithsonian Institute, toured by night to see the beautiful lights. While there, an attempt was made to ride the subway, but the ride was interrupted when a body was found beside Metrorail tracks.

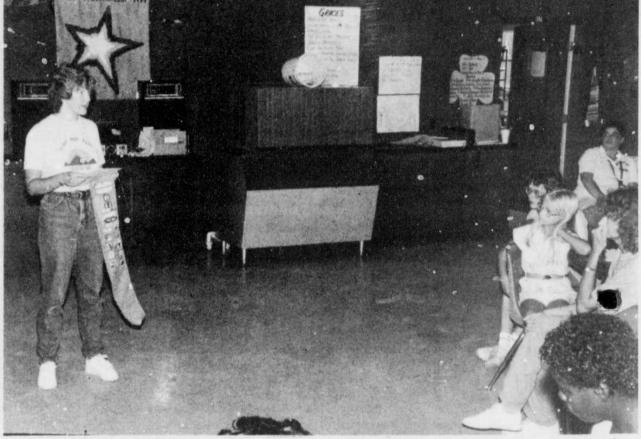

The next morning the group went to Lancaster, PA to see the Penn-Dutch countryside, made an Amish tour and had lunch at the Good and Plenty Restaurant. They then went on to Philadelphia where they saw the Liberty Bell and toured Independence Hall. They spent the night in New York City and attended the Broadway musical "42 Street" at the Majestic Theater. Some of the places visited on the guided tour the next morning were the Lincoln Center, Riverside Park, Olestead Gardens, St. Patrick's Cathedral, Rockefeller Center, Time Square, Empire State Building, China Town, Brooklyn Bridge and many other interesting sights.

The tour group was ferried to Staten Island to see the Statue of Liberty and they had lunch there. The night was spent in Boston, Massachusetts, and the next day they traveled through White Mountains of Vermont and New Hampshire where the foliage was beyond description. They also visited the "Boston Tea Party" on the harbor and spent the night at Waterbury, VT.

The group then traveled to Canada where they stayed three nights. One night was spent in Kingston and two in Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada. While enroute to Canada, they visited the cold cider mill and Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream Factory. While at the falls, a local guide gave them a tour of the falls and the flowers viewed there were beautiful. They saw the lights as they were turned on at night. Everyone enjoyed the falls.

They left there and headed for Ft. Wayne, Indiana which started the return back to Texas. When they arrived in St. Louis, MO, they visited the Gateway Arch. Near Stanton, MO they stopped at the winery of the Abbey. They ate lunch in Springfield, MO and left for northeastern Oklahoma and spent their last night of the tour at the Shangri-La Resort on the Grand Lake and returned to Paris on October 3.

They traveled in eighteen states, Washington, D.C. and Ontario, Canada and traveled 4,144 miles. Everyone reported a good time but as always "it's good to be back home
