

Great Going, Graduates!

NICHOLS' WORTH

By: Nanalee Nichols

It's graduation edition. One of my very favorites. This is the tenth year I've had a hand in creating the special graduation issue, and the pleasure never dims.

It might be easy to mistake this week's issue for a "school" paper. Perhaps a few folks might think we overdo our youth coverage.

Most people of course, are thrilled to see their children, grandchildren, nieces, nephews or neighbor kids pictures in the paper.

But for one and all, this week, I want to point out something. Whether you do or whether you don't like all the youth coverage we give...these youngsters are our future...our only future.

Without them our communities will shrivel and die away.

It is already all too easy for young adults to grow up and go away...to cities with higher paid jobs and more glistening excitement. But many of them come home again, because hometowns care.

Hometowns, and consequently this paper, must do everything they possibly can to show they care.

We must appreciate the honors our children earn...we must encourage them in whatever endeavor they take on. We must be the collective shoulder they can cry on if they fail or need a friend. Hometowns must ALWAYS remain home. That is what hometowns ARE, for heaven's sake!

Every youngster who chooses to remain in his hometown and work, get married and raise a family within it is precious. Each one takes the place of a citizen lost, each one is worthy of being part of our community.

Each young adult who goes away to school or job and returns someday, whether within a few years, or at the end of a life-long career, is a special part of the community.

At this time of year, when yet another group of people leave high school to begin a new segment of their lives, it only takes a moment to express appreciation, caring and encouragement to them.

Our communities are made up of people...people just like this year's little league players, this year's FFA or FHA honorees, people just like this year's seniors.

Let's let them know we care about them...and want them to always remain a part of our hometown.

New World Skeletons

Evidence confirming that no human skeletons found to date in the New World are older than 11,000 years has been produced by a group of university researchers. The new data refutes earlier controversial estimates that Homo sapiens was in the Western Hemisphere at least 70,000 years ago.

The question of when humans crossed the Bering Strait from Asia to Alaska long has intrigued archaeologists and other scientists.

Chapman Says Older Americans Are Valuable

By Congressman Jim Chapman
About one in every eight Americans is 65 years or older; that's about 28 million people. Our society, with its emphasis on youth and vigor, often fails to recognize the achievements as well as the needs and concerns of our older citizens.

Congress has proclaimed the month of May as "Older Americans Month." Our intent is to have public officials, community agencies, educators and the media take time this month to honor the accomplishments and recognize the needs of those 28 million citizens.

Given the aging population and the current reality of budget restraints at federal and state levels, efforts are ongoing to develop innovative ways to meet the needs of our older residents. The 100th Congress, with my support, is doing its part, addressing a number of issues to improve the lives of older citizens.

As in the past, a cost of living adjustment will likely be given to Social Security recipients this year. Despite the concerns of some interest groups, the Social Security system is in sound financial condition, and Congress has shown no inclination to limit or cut benefits for Social Security recipients.

The 100th Congress will also examine legislation to curb rising Medicare costs for senior citizens. Many elderly persons have their lifetime savings wiped out by catastrophic illnesses or expensive long term hospital or nursing home care.

The theme of this year's observance of Older Americans Month is "Make Your Community Work for Older People". But the theme only tells half the story. Throughout America, thousands of dedicated older volunteers are working to become dedicated servants to community needs.

A recent Gallup poll found that 43 percent of persons between the ages of 65 and 74 are doing some type of volunteer work. Even more striking, fully one-fourth of those over the age of 75 are volunteering time to their communities.

Some of the projects, such as home safety checks and assistance to people with visual and hearing impairments, benefit other older people. But older volunteers are also involved in projects like energy conservation, community beautification, law enforcement assistance and consumer education that help improve the quality of life for citizens of all ages.

I urge everyone to express appreciation and respect for the achievements and contributions of older Americans. We must all demonstrate an understanding of their needs and concerns.

Highway Commission Approves 65 MPH Speed Limit

At one minute past midnight Friday night, a new 65-mph speed limit goes into effect on rural Interstate Highways in Texas.

"The public is excited about this," said Byron Blaschke, deputy engineer director of the highway department, "and we are doing all we can to make a smooth transition to the new speed limit."

Last Friday, the highway commission established the new maximum speed limit for 65 mph for cars and light trucks on rural Interstate highways. In this context, "rural" means outside urban areas of 50,000 people or more.

The governor concurred Wednesday with the new speed limit which becomes effective at 10:01 a.m. Saturday, May 9 where signs are posted.

Some rural Interstate sections will continue with speed limits posted lower than 65 mph for traffic and engineering reasons. These reduced speed zones existed before the 1974 federally mandated reduction to 55 mph. The department will examine each of these areas and determine the need to continue or discontinue the lower speeds.

Blaschke emphasized that the new limits apply only to rural highways with Interstate designation. The speed limit on all other roadways, including urban Interstate, remains 55 mph.

The department will be working Saturday to put up the new signs.

"With more than 1,300 signs going up statewide, it will take us a few hours, but we will get the job done as quickly as possible," Blaschke said.

The speed limits will affect 2,441 miles of the 3,148 mile Interstate system in Texas, but only about eight percent of the total vehicle miles traveled in the state.

The rural Interstates comprise only three percent of the total state-maintained system.

Blaschke also pointed out that the current action does not change longstanding Texas law that sets maximum speeds. Under that law, the maximum speed for large trucks is 60 mph during the day and 55 mph at night, and these limits will once again be in effect May 9 on rural Interstates.

Grammar Hotline Established At PJC

Hung up on when to use "who" or "whom"? Can't decide where to put that comma? Or maybe you'd just like to know how a "kangaroo" is like a "nitwit". Answers to all these questions are available for the asking by calling the new PJC grammar hotline at 784-WHOM.

A new community service at PJC, the grammar hotline is operated by the English Writing Laboratory, itself a workshop for the department of communications. The grammar hotline provides accurate and readily available information to such diverse callers as a secretary composing a business letter, a speaker writing a speech, and a frustrated speller failing to remember that "shivaree" doesn't really start with an "s".

Spelling assistance is available in French, German and Spanish, as well as English. Hotline personnel are as ready to settle an argument about whether to use "I" or "me" as they are to correct an error of faulty parallelism. These services are provided free to the community by Paris Junior College.

The PJC grammar hotline is the newest addition to 31 similar services in 20 states and two Canadian provinces and its number will be listed in the 1988 directory of North American hotlines, published by Tidewater Community College in Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Next time you want help in coming to the aid of mauled syntax, split infinitives, or muddled tenses, feel free to call 784-WHOM any weekday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Camp Gambill Registration Set

Registrations for Camp Gambill are being accepted by the Red River Valley Girl Scout Council. The resident camp is open to all girls between the ages of 6 and 17. Camp sessions are held from June 14 through July 18.

The three day session, "Brownie Friendmaker", is designed for the younger camper. The short session gives girls an opportunity to sample camp life without being away from home an entire week, said camp director, Linda Woolston. Activities will include campercraft, swimming, arts and crafts, gardening and ceremonial campfires. This session will be June 28-July 1 and the fee is $45.

Girls who are comfortable with being away from home and enjoy the outdoor life will want to attend one of the week long "Sampler" sessions. In addition to the above activities, these sessions will include badge work, cook outs, pioneer living skills and crafts, nature lore, conservation projects and boating. The sessions will be June 14-20, June 21-27, June 28-July 4, July 5-11 and July 12-18 and the fee is $80.

Extended opportunities in campercraft and aquatic skills will be offered during the two week "Adventure" sessions, June 14-27 and July 5-18. The fee is $125.

Girls who are interested in exploring the field of camp counseling are encouraged to register for the four week counselor in training session June 21, July 18. This is a progressive two year program that will help girls develop skills relating to leadership and child growth development. To be eligible, girls must have completed the ninth grade or be fifteen years old. The fee is $200. An additional $20 fee will be charged on each of the above sessions for non-Girl Scout members. Chlordane Controversy Continues

By Paul D. Payne

One of the hottest topics of discussion in the county now concerns the use of pesticide Chlordane. There are a variety of ways that a community can gain recognition, but receiving daily information on the misuse of a pesticide is not one of the better methods.

There is a definite need for everyone involved to maintain a calm composure. Certainly there is reason for concern where Chlordane has been applied to the inside of a building. However, there should not be a panic where a house was treated for subterranean termites in the correct manner.

Chlordane, when used properly, is needed to prevent subterranean termites. It has been estimated that the insect causes more than one billion dollars of damage each year in the United States. If present efforts to remove Chlordane from the market is successful, the losses to the American homeowner would be staggering unless some new product comes on the scene very soon.

It is legal to apply Chlordane to the soil prior to pouring the concrete for buildings. It is also legal to treat existing buildings by digging a trench around the foundation, applying the chemical and covering the chemical with untreated soil. If one does have a house or building on piers, it is legal to use Chlordane around these piers. One should trench around the pier, apply the chemical and cover with untreated soil.

On the other hand, Chlordane should not be applied under a house on top of the ground or on the outside of a building on top of the soil. Neither should it be applied inside a home in any method.

The present situation points out the importance of everyone applying a pesticide in the proper manner.

I would suggest that we give the regulatory agencies an opportunity to determine the amount of Chlordane residue present before we as individuals have a bunch of tests run. There are several private labs around that are available to run samples. The point I want to make is let's be calm and rational.

The annual horticultural field day at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center in Overton will be May 28. Included in the tours is information on fruit, vegetables and ornamental crops for East Texas. Highlights of the fruit tour are variety trials of blueberries, raspberries, grapes, kiwis and Asian pear. In the vegetable areas, one will get to evaluate the effects of soil solarization on sweet corn, Irish potatoes, onions, bush beans, tomatoes and summer squash. There are 12 varieties of sweet corn, ten onions, over 30 bush bean lines and 26 breeding lines of tomatoes to evaluate.

There will be commercial and educational exhibits to see. Concurrent tours begin at 9 a.m., 10:15 a.m., 1:15 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. There is no registration fee but a barbecue lunch will be served for those wanting to purchase.

Bulls Crucial To Cattle Operation

By Herb Brevard

CAROL MOORE, a 1987 graduate of Rivercrest High School, will enter Devry Institute of Technology in Dallas, July 15 for a two year and eight month course. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thompson of Cuthand and the late Oscar Moore.

Few beef producers can afford to lose part or all of a calf crop, says Dr. Randall Grooms, livestock specialist. Many factors can reduce the calf crop percentage. However, Grooms adds that neither disease, nutrition nor weather can destroy a calf crop like a sterile bull. Several things should be checked about the herd sire to insure a high calf crop percentage.

The first checkpoint for a herd sire is a breeding soundness exam immediately before the breeding season. This exam includes a physical and a semen test. The bull should be physically sound on feet and legs, be in excellent body condition and have clear, alert eyes. He should be able to maintain vigor and body condition to get him through the 60-90 day breeding season. The semen check should point out any potential problems with semen quality or reproductive organs.

If a bull passes the first checkpoint, he is well on his way to becoming a herd sire. Grooms says the second potential problem area is libido or sex drive. A bull with low sex drive will result in a more strung out and even lower total calf crop. Producers should observe the bulls in the pasture to be sure they are completing breeding services. Since the cows cycle on three week intervals, it is relatively easy to write down the cow's number and watch for a return heat in three weeks.

Many producers are beginning their breeding season for late winter and spring calves. Precautions now could save many dollars later.

Patient: "Well...I've seen most everything."
