

NICHOLS' WORTH

By: Nanalee Nichols

Every now and again we all tend to get a little "too big for our britches" and get some idea that the human race has enough technology and power to do just about anything.

Anytime that happens, all we have to do is stack our achievements up against that of nature and feel pretty insignificant once more.

Storms, to me (yes, I realize not to a lot of folks) are very beautiful. We sit and watch them from our porch and it's better than the world's best fireworks display. They are exciting, and oen of nature's best power displays.

The electricity voltage in lightning, the awesome rumble of thunder, the sometimes frightening power of high winds, there is absolutely nothing that puny humans can do to harness, control or stop this power.

Over the years we have chased a number of tornadoes. I actually began collecting tornado pictures...and have five different twisters in the album. Tornadoes are terrifying...the fastest winds ever recorded on earth comes from them.

They can destroy any and everything in their path...and once again, bear testimony that nature can undo just about anything we can build.

Hurricanes, typhoons, volcanic eruptions and earthquakes are unstoppable, undefeatable aspects of weather violence that are almost beyond the comprehension of the human race. Little could seem more horrifying than to have the very earth we feel is so unshakable ripping and heaving beneath our feet as the world shakes and gapes open!

Not all forces of weather are so violent and extreme...but sometimes they exert more death and destruction than earthquakes or storms.

Drought...again completely beyond the control of mankind, is the silent, devastating killer that starves and deprives millions.

There is much talk of erosion control, dams for irrigation, "weather domes" covering whole cities in the future...but that's exactly what it is...in the future.

For now we depend, as did the most primitive civilizations before us, on the bounty of the weather...the gentle rains, the pleasant sun, the cool breezes...and yes, the awesome, thought-provoking power of storms, drought, volcanoes and earthquakes.

Before the untouchable powers that be the achievements of mankind, as appealing and incredible as they may be, still lose much of their glory and pale before the natural elements that have ruled the earth since the beginning.

Re-Elect

THOMAS FOWLER

County Attorney

Your next County Attorney will face some of the worst criminals and best defense lawyers in Northeast Texas. The robbers, murderers, rapists, and burglars should have to face a prosecutor with the ability to put them away. Your property and your lives could be at stake. If you were a victim, would you TRUST the other candidate to represent you against these kinds of people?

I have a very good record in office. Based on population, Red River County was in the top 3% among Texas counties in 1985 in sending criminals to prison and in 1986 we were in the top 20%.

The other candidate in this race has no experience as a felony prosecutor and no track record to show whether he would work or how he would perform under the pressures of the office. You have a choice on April 12th between a tested and proven winner and an unknown. Please vote for Thomas Fowler for County Attorney on April 12th.

DO YOU BELIEVE IN MAGIC?

There is nothing magical about being the County Attorney. The County Attorney and the defense attorney deal with the same people and evidence in a criminal trial. The experience factor is the same. Clayton Hall has been trying criminal cases in Red River County for the last 11 years. There is nothing magical about switching from being a defense attorney to being County Attorney. Clayton Hall knows how to try and, how to win criminal cases.

WHAT ABOUT PLEA BARGAINING?

Plea bargaining can be appropriate in some cases and not appropriate in others. Clayton Hall does not believe it is right for the County Attorney to come up with just any old plea bargain in a tough case and then explain it away by saying, "That's what a jury would have done." How are you ever going to know what a jury is going to do unless you let a jury have a chance to make a decision? The County Attorney is not all-knowing and cannot read the minds of jurors.

DOES INSURANCE COVERAGE MAKE A DIFFERENCE?

Clayton Hall does not believe the fact that someone is insured should have any effect on how a lawbreaker is punished.

For example, Clayton Hall does not believe it is right to tell someone who breaks into your house and steals your furniture that the criminal can keep the furniture because you will be paid for your losses by your insurance company. The fact that there is insurance coverage does not make the loss any less. The person who breaks the law should suffer the full consequences of their actions including full payment to the injured citizen for his losses.

CAN WE TALK?

We sure can.
 Clayton Hall believes the County Attorney should be available to sit down and talk to you and try to help you with any problems you may have.

LET'S KEEP IT CLEAN!

Clayton Hall has tried to run a clean campaign throughout, focusing only upon the issues. He does not believe that personal attacks on a person's opponent are what the people of Red River County want to hear. The County Attorney should be an honorable person.

EQUAL UNDER THE LAW.

Clayton Hall believes that every person is entitled to be treated equally by the County Attorney.

To The Citizens Of Precinct 1:

This is to respectfully solicit your support for re-electing Mr. H. Drue Pirtle as Commissioner of Precinct 1.

He is a man of extensive business experience, has a life-long interest in, and strong dedication to the well being of this area.

He has been very effective in this office. Some of his accomplishments are:

- Takes a leading part in the proceedings of the Commissioner's Court.
- Has upgraded the condition of the mechanical equipment such that it will now function with a minimum of costly down-time.
- Has reactivated and repaired some roads and bridges which had been out of service, and rebuilt some roadbeds which had been neglected for several years.
- Has been alert to state programs affecting Red River and adjoining counties, and co-ordinated common efforts to produce improvement for all.
- Is very sensitive to the tax burden and the adverse effect on citizens that excesses have.

In summary, even though they are very important, his efforts are living proof that maximum effectiveness involves more than simply attending to the details of routine maintenance of existing roads and bridges.

A vote for him is a vote for continued improvement in Precinct and County management from which all citizens derive benefits.

It's Planting Time For Some Crops

By Paul D. Payne

The soil temperature remains very cold as the latest cold front has kept the temperatures below desired ranges. Much of the area's corn crop was lanted during the last week with the remaining corn, grain sorghum and soybeans to be planted once the soil warms.

Just when is it safe to plant what crop? The average minimum temperatures for planting are as follows: corn, 50 degrees; cotton, 65 degrees; sorghum, 55 degrees and soybeans, 70 degrees.

Hardy vegetables such as onions, cabbage and potatoes can be planted once soil temperatures range between 45 and 50 degrees while warm season vegetables such as melons, peas and beans need soil that has warmed into the 60's.

Based on research that has been conducted in Lamar County for the past three years, early maturing soybean variety groups should be planted in early April. In 1987, there were 10 of the early maturing varieties planted at three times on April 7, April 17 and May 21. Those planted April 7 averaged 42.7 bushes while the April 17 planting averaged 29.8 bushes and the last one averaged 20.2 bushes. This was on upland blackland.

Some Wheat Has Rust

By Paul D. Payne

Yes, Virginia, we do have rust on wheat in Lamar County. In fact, Stripe Rust is heavy on some fields in the Chicota bottoms in northern Lamar County. Not every field in that area is infested and wheat in the Direct, Petty and Brookston area are virtually rust free.

It appears that the fields of wheat with the severe infestation should be treated as soon as the weather will allow aerial application. We have determined based on previous demonstration and research work that a yield potential of 40 bushes should exist before fungicide can be justified.

Most area wheat should have a 40 bushel yield potential as the less fertile soils have been taken out of production. Producers are doing a better job of managing the wheat planted by planting improved varieties that have some disease and insect resistance.

Producers are encouraged to frequently check their wheat fields by walking out into the wheat rather than windshielding the crop. In the early stages of rust development, wheat may appear to be normal from the road, yet have lots of rust on the lower leaves.

The aim of wheat disease prevention is to protect the flag leaf and possibly the leaf just below the flag leaf. We call this growth stage 8. Our wheat is not at this stage yet. So, the next two to three weeks will be critical.

Two systemic fungicides now available to the wheat producer are Bayleton and Tilt. Four ounces of either of these are recommended in five gallons of water. It is generally believed that they have a long residual effect in the plant three weeks or so. Satisfactory results have also been obtained in previous years by applying two ounces of Bayleton and two pounds of Manzate or Dithane.

Manzate or Dithane are contact fungicides and come in a wettable powder. The wettable powder feature is disliked by aerial applicators as it is difficult to get them dissolved and into suspension.

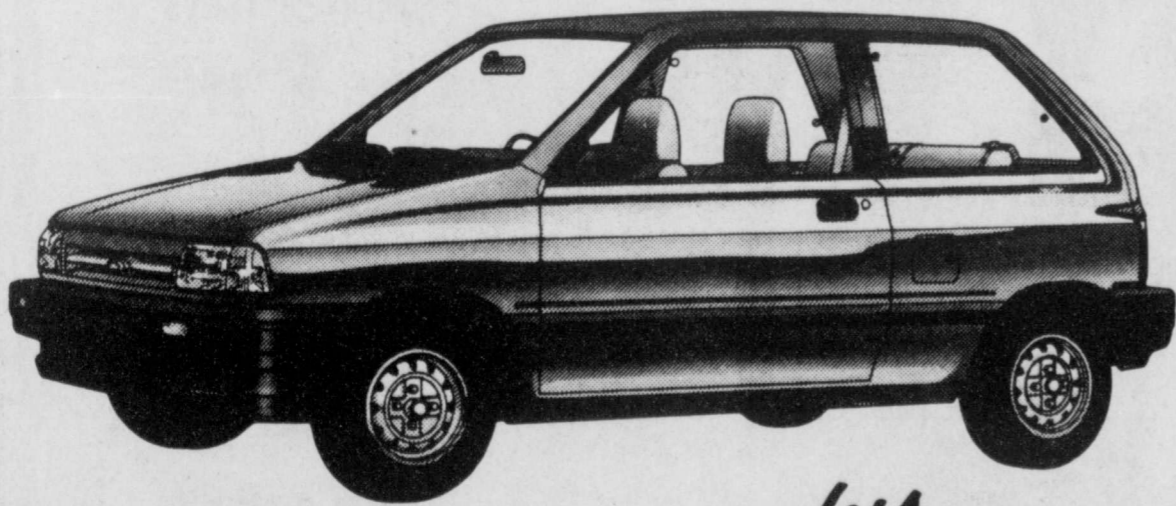

Due to the present disease threat to the wheat crop, a wheat disease breakfast meeting has been scheduled for Tuesday, April 5 at 7 a.m. at the Holiday Inn in Paris. The purpose of the short meeting will be to give producers an update on the disease situation.

Program speakers will be Dr. George Phillee, Extension Plant Pathologist and a representative of Ciba Geigy Chemical Corporation. The complementary breakfast is provided by Ciba Geigy and Estes Chemicals. Breakfast reservations should be made by noon on Monday by calling our office at 785-4513 or Estes.

Wagons Travel Through Bogata

By Randy Corbell
Not since the mid-19th century have settlers crossed this area in their covered wagons, laboring toward a promised land.
On Monday, however, a modern-day wagon train rolled into Bogata.
Five covered wagons drawn by a dozen horses and mules brought a group of travelers to the Community Center for a night's rest along a nine-day journey through northeast Texas.
While most of the early settlers were hopeful novices on a perilous journey across thousands of bone-jolting miles of wilderness, today's trailblazers make their way along a carefully planned route on wagons with rubber tires.
The six in the group were Wagonmaster Boyd Ivey and his brother, Loyd, J.D. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Permie Phillips and Johnny Barnes, all of whom make their homes in the DeKalb area.
"We planned the trip for almost a year," Boyd said. "We loaded into a stationwagon and made the route, decided where we wanted to go, what we wanted to see and then got permission to stay where we needed to."

The trail began Saturday morning when the wagons left DeKalb for Boxelder; from there, they made their way to Clarksville and on to Bogata. The route will take them to Mt. Vernon, Mt. Pleasant, Wilkerson, Bassett and back to DeKalb by next Monday.
The wagons were designed and built by each of the owners and vary from the basic prairie schooner to the sophisticated wagon being completed by the Phillips which has all the conveniences of a camper trailer.
"It takes a lot of work to do anything like this," Jean Phillips said. "You really have to love what you're doing."
Mrs. Phillips cooks for several of the men riding along the trail on her camper stove in the kitchenette and has helped in the building of their wagon.

Boyd said his wife, Dorothy, would be joining the train sometime Tuesday.
"Not everyone rides with us the whole trip," he said. "A lot of people ride with us for just a day or two."
Boyd said the train attracts the attention of friends and followers along the way who often share their stores around the campfires of riding on the range.
"We joined a celebration in Boxelder," he said. "They were celebrating the opening of a new store there which had a cafe. They were having a band play and grand opening. I think we made some new friends there."
Boyd said the trains greatest hazard is traffic. In a day of speeding cars and paved roads, the motorists sometime forget the danger.
"People just don't know animals," he said. "They think a wagon is a vehicle that can't change direction. They forget the horse is like a person and can become frightened."
"But, we haven't had any accidents so far," he added.
Paul added that his team had been trained to follow each other.
"They never wander far and they're always here when I need them," he said. "I trained them myself."
"Horses and cattle are all I know," he added.
"I live a simple life in the country and that's what I think is best."

try has always been a part of his life. He has been a cattleman and
