Have you ever picked up a glossy magazine and seen those ads or articles on kitchens? You know, the ones where they have those sparkling countertops, and those glass fronted cabinets with immaculate, gorgeous crystal neatly arranged behind them. Those kitchens have pull out racks with pot lids arranged in them, and the pots are never greased-tainted or battered.

I figure that one of two things must be going on in these kitchens: either no one cooks in them; or they aren't real, they are displays in stores!

Somewhere, perhaps, there is a homemaker whose kitchen really looks like these all the time. It's not mine, however.

Saturday I lost my mind and decided to clean the kitchen cabinets.

So, armed with cleaning liquids, rags, scrub brushes, new shepaper and sissors, I sat on the floor and began.

Now, all of us have those shelves that are nice and ddep. You know, the ones where all sorts of things have shifted to the back, where they lurk, unwanted, unremembered.

So, I began throwing things out.

Where, along the way, did I come to own a collection of holiday cookie tins bigger than a discount store's?

What, was a Dallas road map doing wedged under a casserole dish so old it had orange mushrooms emblazoned on it?

Why did I have a set of mixing-bowls big enough to feed an entire army division, but none small enough to feed the two members of our household?

Did I ever really use those hideous spotted placemats?

These questions, and more, arose as I dug through stacks of stuff, threw out, washed, papered and put things back in general order.

Anyone else know about this stuff? Anyone else find that they keep letting their scrubbers get shoved to the back, and buying more rather than getting down on hands and knees to dig them out?

Oh, it was quite a day.

I mean, I actually disposed of my entire collection of empty coffee cans!

I threw out my extensive collection of paper napkins, of where there were only one or two alike. Birthday, Christmas, wedding, they all went in the trash!

I got carried away and threw away the bows off of floral arrangements, saved for years!

What a field day! Two garbage sacks went out, then another!

Finally, my cleaning frenzy finished, I arose from my task, spent a considerable amount of time picking up the last evidences of my labors, and waited for someone to notice. No one did. Not Thomas, not my visiting niece, no one.

Finally, I led them into the spotless, gleaming kitchen (which still doesn't look like those in magazines, mind you) and began throwing open cabinet and pantry doors shouting "look, look" and "see here how clean this is".

They appeared mildly interested, so I sulked off to think about whether or not to tackle the under-the-stairs closet or not.

Nope, nobody appreciates my efforts anyway!

Flipped-This 1979 Dodge pickup apparently struck a guard rail on a bridge on Highway 271 early Tuesday morning, then catapulted into the bottom of the deep creek between Bogata and Deport.

When motorists noticed the accident and reported it, no one was on the scene. Evidence was found that indicated at least two people had managed to scramble out of the totalled vehicle and climb out of the creek. The accident is currently under investigation by the DPS and Red River County law officers. (Staff Photo by Nanalee Nichols)

Don't play in trees near power lines.
Substations are not playgrounds.
Power poles are not for climbing.

Becky Brooks Honored With Special Occasion Party

On May 26, Becky Brooks, bride-elect of Kenny Paysee, was honored with a special occasion party at the home of Lori Robertson in Detroit. Other hostesses were Jo Gordon, Kristy Farr and Beth McIntosh.

A southwest theme was used throughout the home. Guests were served southwest foods from a table covered with a woven Indian tapestry and a basket of dried flowers, adobe huts and cactus completing the table decorations.

The registry and gift table was covered with a pale blue cloth and overlaid with a hand-loomed Indian rug and accented with a basket of natural flowers, Indian Teepees and vases. An added accent was a cow skull which was a special gift the bride prepared by George Gordon. The honoree opened gifts representing special occasions throughout the day, everything from paying the bills to a picnic in the park.

Those present were JoAnn Hanes,

Jane Strawn of Bogata; Gayla Jeffery, Betty Lou Maynard and Scarlet Harvey of Paris; Jennifer Reeder of Dallas; the hostesses; the honoree; and these special guests, Mrs. E.E. Brooks, mother of the bride-to-be; Mrs. Travis Hale, grandmother; Kim Kelsey, sister all of Bogata; and Staci Chappell, sister of Paris.

A FAMILY celebration to honor Mrs. Irene Pettit on her 81st birthday was the welcoming of fifth generation Justin Hoover. Justin was 6 weeks old when the photo was made with his great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Pettit of Paris, great-grandfather, Weldon Pettit of Denison, grandfather Randy Pettit of Sherman and mother, Mrs. Tina Pettit Hoover, of Sherman. Seated is Mrs. Irene Pettit, holding Justin Hoover. Back row: Randy Pettit, Weldon Pettit and Tina Hoover.

CALLEN MORGAN celebrated his first birthday Sunday, May 27 with a party given by his parents, Vandy and Elaine Morgan. Cupcakes, ice cream and Koolaid were served to Cara Morgan, Mary and Clifton Joplin, Rusty Lawings, Jan and Robert Lewis, Leah and Brittany Bull, Britt, Amanda and Seth Barnard and Audrey Rodgers. Callen received many nice presents.
