"Kills Bugs DEAD" the lable on the bug spray can proclaims. Excuse me...but isn't that a little redundant? Doesn't the word "Kill" mean to make something dead?

Think about it. Wouldn't the statement "Kills Bugs" be sufficient. Obviously, if it kills them they are dead! But the statement seems to imply that somehow, this poison will kill bugs a little bit deader than another spray would!

But, such is the world of lable advertising...in some sort of frenzy to impress the American buyer with a product's tremendous power the lables seem to go overboard.

Another rather stupid statement that one sees fairly often reads "IT REALLY WORKS!"

Well, did they think we were going to buy it if it didn't work?

Would they put on the lable "Doesn't work worth a flip"?

Of course not. If we don't think it would work we wouldn't buy it. But it makes me wonder just a little when they try to assure us of that.

Another thing. How many times can a product be "New, Improved, Better, Stronger, More Powerful... Better Flavor... Healthier... etc.?"

Does that mean it wasn't very good to begin with? Why didn't they make it the very best they could at the start of marketing instead of "improving" the product fifteen times in it's first year or so of production?

The answer is obvious...they do it to sell more.

But sometimes I wonder just a little about their techniques.

Still, those lables with outrageous or silly claims don't bother me nearly as much as the new packaging strategies.

The pound of coffee that isn't a pound is a well known thing, now. We adjusted to the fact that we don't buy coffee by the pound anymore.

Soon, I suppose, we will adjust to the sneaky fact that a five pound bag of sugar usually contains only 4 lbs.

Marketing does this to avoid upping the price, so they say.

Of course any fool knows that when you pay the same price for 4 lbs. as you do for 5 lbs. there HAS been a price increase.

But, like I said, they are pretty sneaky and hope no one notices.

Bacon, little sausages, various canned goods are doing much the same thing, putting less into a package and charging the same. Somehow, the size of the container never seems to shrink either!

It doesn't matter much, we have to have the food items anyway. But somehow, somehow, I can't help but wish that the marketing strategists would realize that the public isn't a bunch of idiots falling for these little tricks.

No, we know what they are up to, we just have to buy the stuff anyway!

Brad Williams Is Making A Name For Himself

According to a newsletter released by Texas Christian University, Brad Williams, a 1988 graduate of Rivercrest and currently a senior management major at Texas Christian University's M.J. Neely School of Business, has accomplished a great many things during his career as a college student. He is slowly making a name for himself in the business world.

One of his recent accomplishment is being one of a dozen founding members of a new Texas Christian University student organization, Capitalism, Entrepreneurship and Opportunity (C.E.O.) which is an organization that seeks to bridge the gap between academics and practical application through projects with local businesses and non-profit organizations. C.E.O. is currently working with the Tarrant County Mental Health/Mental Retardation Services to identify stable job opportunities for the organization's clients. The group also plans to establish a competition to demonstrate professional management skill such as developing business plans and preparing speeches on sophisticated business subjects.

Brad was honored at the Annual Chancellor's Scholarship and Awards Banquet at the Colonial Country Club in Ft. Worth, Texas. The honors included being the recipient of the Wayland Oatman Business Scholarship and being recognized for his outstanding community service projects.

As the Community Service Chair of Delta Sigma Pi, a professional business fraternity, for the past semester, Brad has involved his fraternity in the following community service projects: Texas Special Olympics, Senior Citizens of Greater Tarrant County, "Paint-A-House" project, Ft. Worth Parks and Recreation's "Adopt-A-Park" program, American Red Cross Volunteer, as well as presenting the Professor of the Year Award to Dr. Joe Steele for his outstanding service and commitment to TCU and the students of the M.J. Neely School of Business.

For all of the reasons above, Brad was recognized and commended by the University, the City of Ft. Worth and the Ft. Worth Star Telegram.

Brad has also been appointed to the University Admissions Committee for a one year term by Chancellor William Tucker. He is one of three students appointed to represent the student body. The committee is made up of three students, three faculty members and three administrators. The Admission Committee makes decisions on admissions policies and procedures as well as implement new policies for the future of the University.

Brad has also recently been elected as Chancellor of the Delta Sigma Pi Fraternity at TCU next fall. As Chancellor, his duties and responsibilities will include presiding over all meetings and trails conducted by the chapter according to Robert's Rules of Order and the bylaws of the fraternity. Also, Brad will be attending the Delta Sigma Pi National Conference at the University of Houston on June 12-13 where he will represent the TCU chapter.

Brad was listed on the Dean's Honor Lists for Spring 1992. On December 19, 1992 Brad will graduate with Departmental Honors.

Brad is the son of Mike and Dianne Williams of Bogata and the grandson of Carl and Maggie Williams of Bogata and Flint and Bobbie Hendricks of Cut Bank, Montana.

Editor:

As a member of the Family Council of Red River Haven, I would like to urge anyone who can and will to volunteer your time and talents to a most worthy cause. You may not realize what a jewel you have in Red River Haven. It is so far above the average nursing facility it would be hard even to compare. You could do so much to make it even better with just 30 minutes to an hour once a week, or even once a month. There are dozens of ways you could be helpful-entertaining, crafts, writing letters, sewing on buttons or just visiting with the residents. Sandra Mauldin is doing a fantastic job as activity director but she could use your input and your help. We really don't realize what a blessing of good health we have until we lose it, and we can't know how to appreciate good nursing care until we ro our loved ones need it. Please contact Sandra and ask what you can do, or offer what you know you can do to make our senior citizens' days a little brighter. I know God will smile on any effort you put forth.

Country Cooking

By Gerrie Bankhead

The Country Cooking Column is coming to you this week from the breakfast room of Marise Fontenot of Pattonville.

Originally from Lake Charles, Louisiana, Marise retired 15 years ago and has made her home in Pattonville for the last three years. Marise chose this area because of her family members living there. She is the proud mom of two children: Barbara and husband Jon Young and two children of Pattonville; and Roxan DeRosier and husband John and one child of Lake Charles.

Hobbies include traveling, fishing, quilting, cooking, walking and growing roses. One of her favorite places to travel is Alaska to visit her sister, Eva Smith. She also enjoys visiting Michigan and Pennsylvania.

Cooking any kind of Gumbo, especially seafood gumbo is her favorite food to cook. Of course, being from Louisiana, she was reared on this type of cooking and has lots of recipes, some of which she is sharing this week with us. There are very few "Texas" foods she will eat. She says she does like blackeyed peas, rice, sausage and a very few more items. She strictly likes Cajun food and is trying to keep the traditional taste acquired in her children and grandchildren.

Marise recalled during the many years her husband was living, how she cooked a lot. He was in politics and always thought someone had to eat with them. He was very particular about what he ate and what was served. One instance she wanted to share was about eight years ago when she was asked to make three gallons of Roux (an oil and flour mixture) to make Quail Gumbo to be served to the President in guests at the White House. This was exciting for her. She has cooked many, many meals and served to the Governor of Louisiana and members of the Congress in Washington. She also uses Roux in lots of recipes. She makes it or buys it either one. We hope you enjoy the recipes Marise is sharing this week.

The Shrimp and Okra Gumbo was handed down from her late mother and she has used this recipe all her life. The Blend of Bayou Seafood was from Roxan, her daughter, about four years ago. Missy, a granddaughter, was visiting and stated this recipe is delicious. This is one of their holiday favorites.

The Cajun Smothered Chicken recipe is another that is handed down from her mom many years ago. The Crawfish Etouffee came from a nephew, Jay Fontenot, about 20 years ago. The Syrup Cake (Gateau Sirok), which is French for syrup cake) has also been used as long as she can remember.

If you have enjoyed the article, want to request a recipe or make a suggestion, please call 652-6032 or write to Rt. 1, Box 67A, Deport.

Next week I plan to share several recipes I have collected from many different readers who have generously shared with me. Keep sending in any type of recipe that is new, different, or one your family has really enjoyed. There are lots of readers that live miles away in many different regions that I cannot interview, but you can still share your recipes with us.

MARISE FONTENOT is sharing some of her favorite Cajun recipes with us in this week's

Familiar Faces

By Denise Wood

If you need Betty Ford, you can find her where she always seems to be - her restaurant, Betty's Place. She's usually there on Mondays through Fridays from 6am to 6pm and on Saturdays from 6am to 3pm.

Betty grew up in the Hopewell Community with her parents, Luther and Jewel Lewis along with their three sisters and two brothers. Her father was a farmer and rancher and her mother was a housewife.

She and her husband, O.L., raised their family, Kaye, Cathy and Jackye in Claksville. Betty worked for Red Cap for twenty years in Clarksville and Dallas. She and O.L. also ran and operated a number of service stations over the years. Raising a family and working has never been a problem to Betty. She believes a woman can have both a family and a career.

In 1979, Betty and O.L. moved to Bogata. She was helping her daughters, Kaye and Cathy, run a beauty shop and tanning salon, My Friends and Me, in Paris. O.L. was wanting to open a service station where the restaurant is today. For some reason, Betty decided that running a restaurant would be better. So in July 1987, she opened Betty's Place.

The only restaurant experience she has had was when she was fifteen. Her first job she worked as a waitress until her mother made her quit. For a few months, she worked in a drug store as a waitress in Lubbock. Everything else about the business she has learned in the last five years.

Within the first year, Betty had to extend her building. She simply had too much business! The next year she had to extend her kitchen as well. Betty said that the customers automatically came.

Working in the restaurant, Betty likes talking to the customers the best. She has gotten to know the community over the years better and has become attached to her customers. When she's not at the restaurant, she is only resting to go back to work.

Betty hopes that her restaurant is remembered as a good place to eat. For someone who opened a restaurant on only an impulse, she certainly made the right decision.

Bogata Rodeo, June 25-26-27, To Kick Off Frontier Days

The annual Bogata rodeo, sponsored by the Bogata Rodeo Association, is in the final planning stages, with the 1992 dates set for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 25-26-27. Three big performances of action-packed rodeo thrills and chills will be coming to rodeo spectators at the Bogata Rodeo Arena.

Special events are planned in conjunction with the Bogata rodeo this year, one being the appearance of local country/western singer, Wade White, who will perform pre-rodeo. White has won numerous competitions and is coming off his latest big win at the "Showdown In the Desert" in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Seven championship events are being featured at the Bogata rodeo, with the Rodeo Association offering $400.00 in added money to each event, for a total of $2,800.00 in added money.

Entry fees for the contest have been set at $40.00 for all events, with the exception of the team roping, which will be $70.00.

The Rodeo Princess contest is in full swing, with girls ages 7-12 and living in a 75-mile radius eligible to enter. The winner will be determined by overall ticket sales; horsemanship; personality and appearance.

The new Princess will receive a trophy buckle.

The Rodeo Queen contest is open to contestants ages 13-19 who live in a 75-mile radius of Bogata. The winner will be determined by: selling tickets; horsemanship; dress; and personality.

The new Queen will receive a trophy saddle donated by Peoples National Bank.

Further details on dates and times will be released when the information is available.

Silence Is Golden—But Not When It Comes To Talking About Alcohol

"You can drink alcohol, why can't I?" Parents are finding helpful answers to their children's tough questions with the help of a special public service program.

A free kit can help parents deal with preteens' questions about alcohol use.

It's a kit called "Talking About Alcohol," developed by Education Development Center (EDC) to help guide parents through the difficult task of talking to their preteens about alcohol. Since its introduction in 1989, more than 50,000 kits have been requested by parents nationwide, and results of a recent Michigan State University survey indicate that the materials are improving communication and understanding between parents and children.

"Talking About Alcohol," which was commissioned by Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc., consists of a 25-minute audiocassette and hand-book, available to parents free of charge by calling 1-800-SEAGRAM. While the kit prepares parents for tough questions from their preteens and helps them learn important facts about alcohol, the main focus is on ways to discuss drinking and how parents can communicate consistent non-drinking messages to their preteens.

The new Queen will receive a trophy saddle donated by Peoples National Bank.

Further details on dates and times will be released when the information is available.

Journey To Scotland Litry Landscape

Once again we have been on our yearly vacation trek. Once more we feel a little embarrassed to print an account of our journey, but folks tell us they do enjoy them. If you don't care about them...just pass this story by!

After our long journey overseas and our trip to Leeds Castle all of our little band opted to sleep late the next morning. That meant we were up by 8, still confused by the time changes.

We ate a continental breakfast (rolls, yogurt and croissants) while Thomas and Richard fussed about not having bacon and eggs. Not being a "breakfast" person, I didn't mind at all.

We took a cab in a light rain over to Baker Street where we went to the Sherlock Holmes Museum.

In spite of the fact that the famous detective never really existed, he still receives over 50 letters a week!

The 221b Baker Street address is complete down to the tiniest detail, including having 17 steps up to Holmes' sitting room and tiny bedroom.

Gaslight, candles, worn velvet chairs welcomed us in, and the coal fire burning on the grate felt good after the chill rain outside.

Books, well worn; a violin, knick knacks and letters created the sense that the world's formest sleuth MUST have existed!

Upstairs were Dr. Watson's rooms, and above that a little museum area that housed a collection of absolutely fascinating, and often hilarious letters.

Fans, children, even serious pleas for help made fascinating reading. One 8 year old boy wrote that he feared for Mr. Holmes' safety since he KNEW Dr. Moriarity was on his bus he took to school every day. He said he was disguised as an old age pensioner...but it must be him because he was so hateful to children!

Every letter is responded to, and a full time secretary is employed to write people. The official line is that Holmes is retired to the country and is no longer taking cases!

We took another one of the boxy black taxi cabs through London's narrow streets to the Frames Rickards tour station. The cabs aren't the cheapest way to get around London, but they efficient, comfortable and talking with the knowledgeable cabbies is a treat.

Arriving early we wandered around until we found a pub serving funch. The pub seems to be the only reasonable place to get a lunch in London, which is getting very expensive.

We climbed steep steps up to the dining area, which looked as if it came from a movie set. Aged oak fire places, green glass shaded lamps and victorian pictures gave the big room a cozy feeling.

Richard, Helen and Thomas had Gammon steak (ham) with chips (fried potatoes) and I had steak pie, served with cabbage and brown gravy. You may notice I said steak pie...not the famous steak & kidney pie. Once was quite enough for that particular delicacy!

Thomas and I were very put out with the guide that took us around for our half day tour of London.

London, with about 15 million people, is huge, busy and not a little disconcerting to the newcomer.

We still know of its beauties and glorious monuments from the past.

Richard and Helen, as newcomers, were not treated to a glimpse of the city's best side. Inside, John the guide harried and rushed, made fun of people and was generally rude and unacceptable.

St. Paul's - usually so awe-inspiring, became a blur of rush, rush rush.

The tower of London was little better. The crown jewels, however, put on their usual breath-taking display as the light sparkled from diamonds, rubies, emeralds, pearls and gold in profusion.

Other than that, most of our time had to be spent rushing after our umbrella-waving guide.

The exchange rate this trip was horrible. It now takes about $1.90 to equal a British pound.

Back at the hotel we discovered hoards of red and white clad young men running down the sidewalks, yelling strange slogans to one another. Some had obviously been over-indulging in drink.

We inquired what was going on and learned that the Rugby stadium was only half a block away from our hotel. These crazed people were heading for a major rugby match.

We didn't linger long over dinner that night, because we had a 4:30 a.m. wake up call so that we could join our tour and head for Scotland.

The drive up to Edinburgh (pronounced by any good Scot as Edinburgh) was absolutely beautiful.

Our guide for the next 10 days was David Fleming, a charming, very funny man whom told so many tall tales it was sometimes difficult to sort the truth from fact!

Our bus driver, Frank, was excellent and funny too, so we set in, our group of 40, to drive the length of the nation.

That's still something that amazes us, as Texans...the idea that the United Kingdom consisting of England, Scotland and Wales, can be driven across in a few hours! The entire length of the nation is only a little over 600 miles long.

As we drove up the motorway we were entertained with rolling fields dotted with clouds of sheep with wisps of lambs trotting along beside them.

Golden fields of rape, a crop grown for oil, lit the landscape as far as the eye could see.

The further north we proceeded the more meandering dry stone walls crisscrossed the rolling dales, hedge-rows sprang up, and ruined abbe towers and cathedrals and Hadrian's wall gave mute evidence of the Normans, Romans and Celts that sprang up centuries ago.

The shires were so lovely, we drove through Lincolnshire, Nottinghamshire and across the river Trent.

Throughout the day we listened to David Fleming explained history, agriculture and various aspects of what we were seeing in a lovely Scottish accent, rolling his Rs and referring to a "wee cuppa tea" or a particularly "bonny" view.

We made a brief stop in Jedburgh and saw a 500 year old tree. While the locals would hang their feet from the branches of the tree to play a game with the heads! This was one of our first hints of the bloody history that Scotland and all the country is drenched in.

Our hotel was right on Edinburgh's famous Royal Mile, in the center of the things to see. The city is divided into two sections, the Old Town and the New Town. Of course, the New Town is over 200 years old.

We popped across the road to the Royal Mile pub and restaurant for a Hot Pot meal...thick stew and vegetables with crusty bread.

Thomas, Richard and myself dressed for our evening in rain. We were scheduled to go to Murder, Mystery and Ghosts! Helen had decided that walking around in the narrow, dark alleys and closes of Edinburgh hearing out torture and witches simply wasn't a cup of tea. This mystery tour was a highlight of our trip, and I'll tell you about it next week!

HILLSIDE Farms with dry stone walls and billowing clouds are a common sight along the motorways on the road through "James Harriot" country in the Yorkshire Dales. (Staff Photo by Nanalee Nichols)

A Nighttime Tour Of Old Edinburgh Can Be A "Spooky" Experience!

Murder, myster, ghosts and torture...a walk through the darker side of old Edinburgh was how we spent our first night in Edinburgh!

And, to make it even creepier, the evening was, as our guide said "Dreek". Dreek meaning very very damp.

Our group of thrill seekers gathered outside a restaurant on castle hill called "The Witchery". Our guide introduced himself as one Adam Lyle, deceased, hanged for his crimes in the 1700's.

He came to us dressed in a black cloak, white shirt with lace at collar and cuffs, and a dead white face.

We scrambled along wet cobblestones up to the grounds just down from Edinburgh castle.

There we stood at the witch's fountain while Adam explained about the terrible witch trials of long ago.

In Scotland there were over 4000 people executed as witches! Where we stood had seen the deaths, by strangling, then burning, of over 300 poor souls.

The civil authorities, he explained, were corrupt and they took possession of the worldly goods of a convicted witch. For that reason many wealthy people were accused of witchery! Others were poor old women caught talking to their cat, or simply mumbling to themselves as they wandered around the marketplace.

A list of crimes, taken from the registers of the city, included "Talking to the devil; causing people to lose the power of speech; causing people to fall from their horses and break bones, or enticing the devil up".

The manner of confession was pretty tough, too. It seems that they used to sit a poor woman on a "ducking stool" and duck her into the loch. If she drowned, then it meant she was innocent. If she was a witch she would save herself by popping to the surface! Then, they took the "witch" and strangled her and then burned her.

Hmmmm, what a system of justice. We followed our ghostly guide up and down narrow single file alleys called closes. We heard of hangings, ghosts, and the way things were in old Edinburgh centuries ago.

We also, at unexpected times, were joined by some rather strange visitors.

Ghosts and old women came to join us, popping out of dark corners and places at the least expected of times.

No matter how hard we tried to anticipate their appearances, they always managed to surprise us enough to make us jump in spite of our vigilance!

It seems that back in the 1600 and 1700's hanging used to be about as much entertainment as baseball is today.

Up to 25,000 or 30,000 people would come to see a "good" hanging! Rooftops and windows were rented out if they had a clear view of the gallows.

All these stories were told to the accompaniment of blowing wind, falling, ice cold rain and pitch darkness! Needless to say there was quite an atmosphere to go along with the tour.

We were finally in a wet, very dark place at the back of a building. There our guide began his tale of the much famed Burke and Hare...the body snatchers who used to murder people and take them up the hill to Edinburgh Medical College. Dr. Robert Knox bought the nice, fresh cadavers for dissection.

The infamous pair would entice some indigent, village idiot or stranger to an evening of hard drinking, then smother them (so there wouldn't be marks on the corpse) then take them to the doctor, who paid 10 pounds per body.

They were finally caught when they killed a young woman who was a "lady of the night" whom many of the medical students recognized! This aroused suspicion since she was known to be healthy the day of her death.

One of the two men turned state's evidence and the other was hanged for his crimes. Ironically, he was wheeled up to the back door of the medical school for dissection after his hanging.

About the time these horrendous stories were being told a yell erupted, there was a crash and some strange creature dashed right through the middle of us. We jumped, some of our party screamed, and away we went again, up stone stairs to yet another narrow close.

The mad monk came to visit then. A small, hunched figure in a monk's habit, he had a horrible skeletal face, and muttered and whined most convincingly.

We had a lengthy discourse on the horrors of the plague, which killed so many people. Adam Lyle then pulled out the famous plague carrier...a rat!

This brought on more shrieks and screams than anything so far...even though the roden t proved to be stuffed.

We also learned about the closes sanitation...or lack of it.

Everyone would throw all their garbage and other unmentionable stuff down into the street from their windows for collection. The odor must have been horrible!

At the very last we rounded a corner to be greeted by boiling, foul smelling smoke rolling down stairs towards us.

As we began up the steps, almost choking on the eery, backlit vapors, the mad monk plunged among us, setting off fire-cracker like flashes and pops from something!

It thinned us out pretty quickly! We wound up back on the Royal Mile, wet, tired and as happy as a bunch of clams.

The tour had given us a look back in time, to Deacon Brodie, the model for Robert Louis Stephenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, to tortures and accusations of witchcraft, to hangings and the cruelty of an earlier age.

The whole evening was filled with lots of fun as our ghostly guide cracked jokes and filled the evening with lots of chatter. It wasn't designed to be really frightening, only fun, and they certainly succeeded.

But it also brought home the harsh realities of what life must have been like hundreds of years ago.

In the dark and wet the stories of a plague-filled world stalked by death, of a justice system capable of stacking all the facts in their favor, and a city of filth and garbage became much more real than if they were told in the bright sunlight which revealed the autos, luxuries and modern conveniences we take for granted now.

We walked back down the hill to our hotel for a hot cup of coffee a hot shower and dry clothes.

Our night time tour of Edinburgh proved to be one of the most interesting parts of the whole trip, and our video of it is a real "scream" to watch! The next morning we were up nice and early to take a daylight look at castle hill, and the castle on top of it.

We'll discuss that next week, as Archie, our 84 year old guide, gave quite a history lesson.

Banana Gingersnap Pudding

Try this up-to-date version of an old favorite and give your family a unique nostalgic treat.

- 1/3 cup sugar
 - 2 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
 - 2 cups low-fat milk
 - 1 large egg, beaten
 - 3 tablespoons dark rum
 - 4 medium bananas, sliced
 - 12 gingersnaps or ginger crisps
- Mix sugar and cornstarch together. Pour milk into medium-size microwaveproof bowl. Whisk in sugar mixture until cornstarch dissolves. Microwave on high 4 minutes, stirring once. Whisk a little of the hot milk mixture into beaten egg; return to bowl. Stir in rum. Microwave on high 1 to 2 minutes longer until custard thickens. Remove from heat; cool slightly. Slice a layer of bananas into each of 4 individual dessert dishes. Pour custard over top bananas. Serve warm or chilled. Makes 4 servings.

Conventional Method: Mix sugar and cornstarch in medium saucepan; stir in milk. Cook, over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture begins to boil. Whisk some of hot milk mixture into beaten egg; return to saucepan. Bring to boiling, cook 1 minute. Follow procedure above.

In the absolute darkness, your eyes can see light as faint as that of a candle 14 miles away.

Your eyes have a sensitivity 300,000 times greater than the finest light receiving photocell—they can receive an image 10 times a second and distinguish it from any of 150 colors.

Legal blindness means vision cannot be corrected to better than 20/200 with conventional glasses or contact lenses or that a person can see no more than 20 degrees to the side while looking straight ahead.

GHOSTLY FELLOW! Adam Lyle...deceased, was a guide around Old Edinburgh for a night time tour. The "Murder and Mystery" tour provided a humorous and informative look back into the days of witch trials, public hangings and plague. In spite of (or perhaps because of) the icy rain falling, it proved to be a highlight of a Scottish vacation. (Staff Photo by Nanalee Nichols)

Fire Ants Are Increasing

By Paul D. Payne
 Fire ant activity is on the increase in Lamar County this spring as the insect continues to move out from Paris to all parts of the county. The insect was first confirmed in the county in 1984 in a vacant lot on SE 36th in Paris and at the then new Lamar National Bank. There was a mound of the ants in a shrub at the front and back door of the bank leading one to believe that they were brought to the spot in shrubs.

In 1985 we began to find them scattered throughout the city. It was at about this time that we had an outbreak along Loop 286 near the Comfort Inn and Paris Lumber Company property. Now, it is not uncommon to find the Red Imported Fire Ant from many areas of the county. They are moving east of Paris along Highway 195, Pine Mill Road and Highway 82. This is not to say that you do not have a problem where you live.

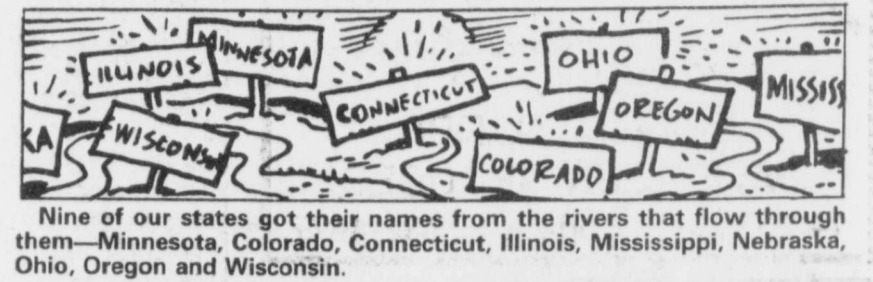

Everyone wants to eradicate the pest. However, it would appear to me that that is impossible with the present know how. We have been attempting to eradicate the insect since it arrived in North America at Mobile, Alabama around 1920. It took them 30 years to reach Texas and another 30 years to reach Lamar County.

Chloride Control Funding Approved By Subcommittee

U.S. Rep. Jim Chapman today announced that the House Energy and Water Appropriations Subcommittee, at his request, has approved $6 million for the continued construction of the Red River Chloride Control Project.

There is a dire need to lower the chloride levels in the Red River so that communities in our state, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana can have a safe and dependable water supply," Chapman said.

"From hearings held earlier this year, the Corps indicated that $6 million represented their full needs to continue the project. I am pleased my subcommittee colleagues have agreed with my position on the project and I will continue to garner support as the legislation moves to the full Appropriations Committee later this Summer," Chapman concluded.

Comptroller To Offer Tax Help

"While closing the chapter on your 1991 federal taxes, don't forget about the latest changes in state taxes as well," State Comptroller John Sharp says.

"In order to run a leaner and more efficient business, understanding state taxes can prove to be a valuable tool," said Sharp in announcing that his office will conduct a free seminar in Paris area on Wednesday, June 17.

Wayne Brower, from the Comptroller's Tyler field office will be on hand to meet and discuss tax questions at the PJC Gabbart Building from 10 to 12 noon.

"Our agency tax expert will be delighted to sit down with you, one on one, detailing which state taxes may affect you as a business person, assist you with sales tax forms, or provide you with information that can be useful in the future," said Sharp.

Those taxpayers who cannot attend the free seminar can call the Comptroller's office toll free tax hotline for additional assistance at 1-800-252-5555.
